DAIRY SCHOOL AT KINGSTON CLOSED

Work Will be Transferred to Kemptville Despite Protests

Toronto, Mar. 14 (CP)—The Eastern Dairy School at Kingston will be closed and the present term's work and the work transferred to the Agricultural School at Kemptville, according to an announcement from Agriculture Minister Marshall.

The minister's announcement, made in the legislature Thursday night following a question from Col. T. A. Kidd (Cons., Kingston) followed indicating the Budget Committee's decision to transfer the work of the dairy school will be transferred to Kemptville.

Col. Kidd brought up the dairy school question at the start of yesterday's brief session by reading a Kingston report of the protest by Frontenac County Council against the reported closing. The council was due to hear the case at this time but arrived later and continued the matter.

Mr. Marshall justified the closing of the Kingston school on grounds of economy and said it could serve the same purpose by being attached to the Kemptville school.

The Kingston member declared it was the biggest mistake in the history at Queen's University and seriously affected the dairy industry area. The advice received there, he said, could not be obtained at Kemptville by the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph. Colonel Kidd urged the government to reconsider the decision.

LAST OPPORTUNITY TO MAKE PEACE OFFERED GERMANY

France And Belgium Join To Press Their Demands

COUNCIL ADJOURNS

Signatories Will be Given Chance to Study Proposals

By CHARLES P. NUTTER
(Copyright 1936 by The Associated Press)

London, March 14—The League of Nations Council, formally requested by France and Belgium to consider Germany's remilitarization of the Rhineland, invited the Reich today to make a report and promised it a last chance to make peace with the Locarno powers.

The council, meeting in secret session, extended its offer to Reichsführer Hitler to lay his cards on the council table after being assured by Britain in a public meeting that Germany would not begin rebuilding of a new peace structure.

France and Belgium joined in the demand at the public meeting of the Council that, the League condemn the Reich as a violator of treaties for its occupation of, its demilitarized Rhineland a week ago in violation of the Locarno Pact and Versailles Treaty.

Anthony Eden, Britain's Foreign Secretary, supporting the charge said: "Undeniable breaches of treaties has been committed," declared it was for the Council to deal with the crisis.

Asserting the peace of Europe is in the hands of the members of the Council's action, Eden declared the community of nations could count on Britain's help in "restoring peace on a firm foundation."

Paul-Boncour, French Foreign Minister, and Yvon Delbos, Belgian Minister of Foreign Affairs, supported the charge through the great seal and gold covering Court of St. James' Palace, the members of the Council adjourned their public session until Monday and went immediately into their secret session. Deciding to invite Hitler to send a representative here to explain his views and open new paths to conciliation, the Council expressed hope the German representative would be here in time for Monday's session.

Treaty sources, entering into the final efforts to break the Rhineland deadlock, said France and Belgium would ask the Council of sanctions against Germany if she continued her military agreement with Great Britain.

Homeless Taken Back To Look After Homes

Although residents in the flooded areas on the west side of the river were all either moved from their homes or provided with adequate refuge, the local firemen, who had worked heroically and continually for the five days' flood period, were busily looking into the death of Archie Irwin, 81 year old Sharon Lake Glen, whose body was taken from the river by them, forenoon of the 7th. H. Smith, who was engaged in releasing ice on the company's property at Glen Ormond, told how of releasing the ice flow in company with Irwin, when the latter lost his footing and fell into the turbulent waters. Owing to the darkness, however, Mr. Smith, Irwin, a cousin of the deceased man, did not see the deceased man fall, but rather heard his cries.

Other fellow-workmen on subsidiaries their testimony in evidence were Arthur Burri, Chas. Lawrence and one other, all of whom corroborated their foreman's testimony. Irwin, early Monday night, disappeared through the water-filled culvert, he was later taken from the water by means of a pike pole and is believed to have died from drowning. Coroner Dr. Orchard is then said who refused to leave their homes.

Jack Reeves Thinks Flood in '95 Worse

"This is a bad flood, but it's not a patch on the one we had in 1895-96," stated Jack Reeves, Harry Reeves' resident who with his brother Cecil Reeves has labored among the flood victims of what is known as the "Swallows Flats" in Murray Ward for over sixty years. "I was there days ago. The Reeves brothers have summered on their boats night and day, bedding removing marooned residents have assisted the firemen in taking fuel and food supplies to isolated houses as the lower ends of Bayview and Clement's streets.

Why, forty years ago we rowed boats over the tops of the fences and took people out of the second storey windows and even off roofs where they were stranded by the floods. No, I think the flood 40 years ago was the worst in the city's history, but this week's a beat," added Jack Reeves as he pushed his boat down Bayview Ave. to take fuel to a stranded resident.

Heroic Effort Made To Reach Isolated Houses in Flood

Today rescue workers in the flooded areas are confronted with heavy ice flows, which made boating difficult in and around James and Coleman Sts. as the workers were trying frantically to reach the isolated dwellings in order to deliver coal and provisions. Maurice Callaghan, local fuel dealer, was busily worked without rest for three days and nearly nights in conjunction with the fire department in rescuing marooned families, who have remained in their homes are beginning to feel the strain of the present cold spell and as it is impossible to light furnaces and stoves in some of the houses, the question of keeping those families from freezing is becoming serious as the masonry dropped. Chief Callaghan, Indian leader of city firemen, who has labored heroically throughout the entire flood period, stated that the situation is meaning beside Murray Ward, so-called "Swallows Flats" are trying to provide fuel and provisions for families, who have been isolated in the upper floors of their homes.

Last night quiet reigned in the lower city, as most people are now in their homes, as store pipes are being connected up. Fires in windows. The cellars of numerous business houses, banks, etc., have been flooded for days, forcing the occupants of stores in the downtown area to erect stores and endeavor to heat their premises in order to prevent drying goods from being damaged. Every person affected by the flood is handicapped in their work, but carrying courageously on with a smile.

CROWN ORDERS AN AUTOPSY ON IRWIN

Will Determine Whether The Man Was Drowned or Died of Shock

Following identification and the taking of evidence by fellow-workers the inquest called at the Belleville Burial Parlours yesterday, looking into the death of Archie Irwin, 81 year old Sharon Lake Glen, whose body was taken from the river March 18th next. The inquest was held before Coroner Dr. C. A. Orchard.

Corporal Tripp, C.P.R. employee, identified the body of Mr. Irwin, who lost his life in the worst flood in Belleville's history, when he lost his balance and was swept beneath the railway culvert on the bay bridge crossing on Thursday night. Thomas Irwin, foreman of the C. P. R. workmen who were engaged in releasing ice on the company's property at Glen Ormond, told how of releasing the ice flow in company with Irwin, when the latter lost his footing and fell into the turbulent waters. Owing to the darkness, however, Mr. Smith, Irwin, a cousin of the deceased man, did not see the deceased man fall, but rather heard his cries.

Other fellow-workmen on subsidiaries their testimony in evidence were Arthur Burri, Chas. Lawrence and one other, all of whom corroborated their foreman's testimony. Irwin, early Monday night, disappeared through the water-filled culvert, he was later taken from the water by means of a pike pole and is believed to have died from drowning. Coroner Dr. Orchard is then said who refused to leave their homes.

FIREMEN, OTHERS PRAISED FOR WORK

Local Citizens Work Ceaselessly to Bring Families Out of Flood Area

"Hats off to Chief Lyons and his courageous band of firemen," was all that could be heard in the flooded area of Coleman and Bayview when Belleville last night. "The local firemen have been on the job day and night and above the flood broke early Thursday morning and had it not been for the splendid work of Lyons and Chief Gerald Vance and all members of the fire department conditions would have been much worse in our part of the city," stated Belleville's hustling mayor.

Maurice Callaghan, local ice dealer, also came in for his share of the honors as he labored feverishly with... out rest assisting in the saving of property and dwellings. Jim... Mc Guire and Bill Brother Fred... assisted Mr. Irwin for two days and two nights without rest while Jack Arnold is to be highly responsible for the bringing out of 18 persons during the height of the flood, between Bayview and Coleman. Other residents in Murray Ward worked ceaselessly throughout the flood period so that the women and children might be removed from the danger zone. Mrs. Ernest Smith, wife of Chief of Brock street along Coleman, James and Bayview, all of whom were taken safely by the firemen and their courageous efforts, also are due fresh praise for their time and experience.

Yesterday's freeze-up, however, hampered the progress of relief work, last night as they carried coal, wood and provisions to those who refused to leave their homes.

TRENTON CHIEF SAYS WORST OVER

Clear Channel Now Under Railway And Traffic Bridges

"Everything is just fine now," said Chief Wm. Smith of Trenton to the Ontario Intelligencer this morning, when information as to conditions in that town. "We hear, that the flood is over in Belleville," said the reporter for the paper and Chief Bill's answer. "That is not so. We have a clear channel underneath the railway and traffic bridges and everything is going on smoothly. There are a number of boat loads of people in Trenton, residing atop the ice field in the river but otherwise everything is quiet. There is no doubt, that had the ice field driven by a terrific current, not been straight down the river, both bridges would have been destroyed. Ice flow jams went from one bank to the other and thereby lost their momentum and remained calmly under the bridges on its way to the Bay of Quinte."

PICTON COUPLE WEDDED 73 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Maybee Oldest Married Couple in Canada

Picton, March 14—Believed to be the oldest married couple in Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Addison Maybee are quietly observing the 73rd anniversary of their wedding, which was solemnized in the log cabin home of the bride at Cherry Valley, Prince Edward County, March 15, 1863.

Living "in accord with the laws of God and his country's good looking," are attributed by Mr. Maybee to his long and happy life. Abstinence from tobacco and liquor has also assisted in maintaining strength and the use of all his faculties, Mr. Maybee believes. He is in his 94th year and Mrs. Maybee, who also enjoys good health, is in her 92nd year. They live their own work and live alone in a cosy home a few miles from Picton.

Mr. Maybee still performs in "the good old days when there was less hurry and worry in life" when there was the centre of all social life as it is not to-day.

Born in Prince Edward County, Mr. Maybee returned here after spending some years in New York and 40 years in Odessa, where he was engaged in farming. He has been clerk of the township of Ernestown and was prominent in the Orange Order in Odessa. Mrs. Maybee, also born in Prince Edward County, was one of a family of twelve, but of these only a sister, Mrs. Cummings of Hallowsy, and Mrs. Maybee are still living.

In his younger days, Mr. Maybee was a keen sportsman. Mr. and Mrs. Maybee plan to observe their golden anniversary event without any special celebration. They have one son, Stanley Maybee, residing in Northumberland County. He is 72 years of age. Last year Mr. and Mrs. Maybee had the honor of being congratulated by the late King George V.

HANGING CALLED BARBARIC RELIC

Lethal Chamber Urged

Dr. Blair asks substitution of a lethal gas method of execution. Sheriff Lawrason supports this method and with the Sheriff's Association, considers that a lethal chamber in the provinces should be provided for imposing the death penalty, instead of hanging, thus facilitating the proper administration of justice and materially reducing the considerable cost to the public of the present gruesome method."

Sheriff Lawrason says: "Regardless of what method is adopted it must be quite obvious to the public that if the death penalty is inflicted at central points in the Dominion, all cases now scaffolding have only large and specious to accommodate the prisoner in comfort, and on the date during the month when he was to be executed and on some occasions when he was sleeping, all air vents could be quietly closed to produce lethal gas and the gas quietly turned on. The condemned prisoner in this case would never know what was happening. It has been suggested that scientists claim anesthesia by which is entirely odorless and very deadly, can be easily manufactured for the purpose of executing the death penalty."

Sheriff's Attitude

In his letter Sheriff Lawrason remarks: "History shows that the hardened days the intention expressed in executing the death penalty was to make it appear as cruel as possible and to give it extensive publicity, but that is no longer desirable.

Dr. Blair has been interested in reforming the method of capital punishment for nearly 30 years. He has on many occasions officiated at hangings, when he occupied the position of coroner. He said one of the main difficulties was that as a general rule it was "very, very, hard to get a change in the criminal code."

Devasting Floods Inundate City of Belleville

With ice jams breaking, releasing what are claimed to be the worst spring floods in years, many districts in southern Ontario have been devastated, and some districts are still in danger. Its streets foaming rapids, three feet deep in swirling water, Belleville suffered the greatest damage. Traffic was entirely disrupted, and boats were used in the main streets. From a specially chartered aeroplane reporters and photographers viewed the distressed areas. ABOVE is shown a general view of Belleville with the flood waters covering all streets and open areas with six feet of water in places.

Flood Threatens Stores

While water swirled through the streets of Belleville, Ont., in the worst flood that has ever hit Central Ontario, citizens worked frantically to keep huge blocks of ice from crushing buildings. Above a group of men are shown keeping ice away from store fronts.

Minature Icebergs Fill Streets of Belleville

Warm rains and mild weather sent the Moira River on a rampage causing inestimable damage as the swirling water floating huge masses of ice, invaded the City of Belleville, Ont., endangering the lives of residents. Brick buildings had holes torn in them as the ice was forced against them by rushing current, and water rose to a depth of eight feet in some parts of the city. Many people were marooned in their homes and had to be removed with the aid of boats. Above is shown ice blocks jammed into one of the streets of the flooded city.

Obituary

CAMILLE DELISLE

Many friends in this city and in railway circles generally in this C.N.R. division will deeply regret to learn of the death of Camille Delisle, of 209 Foster Avenue, Canadian National Railway engineer, who died as the result of pneumonia at the Belleville General Hospital at ten, o'clock this Saturday morning. He had been ill since last Monday, having brought the passenger train here from Brockville shortly before being taken ill.

The late Mr. Delisle, who was better known to his many friends as "Charlie" was in his 60th year and was born at Trenton. For many years he had resided in Belleville and by a wide circle of friends he was most highly esteemed and generally popular. He was a faithful and prominent member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, being a member of the Board of Management. Fraternally he was a member of the Masonic and Oddfellows Orders.

Surviving to mourn his death are one daughter, Miss Helen Blair and one nephew, Mr. George Gibson, who resided with him.

Funeral announcement will be made later.

RED CROSS WORKERS HELP IN SITUATION

Under the direction of the president, Mr. T. O. Hefkey, the Belleville branch of the Red Cross Society has undertaken emergency work in aid of the flood victims, and has carried on zealously since the first news of the disaster. Blankets were sent down from Toronto and are today being distributed to those in need. Baskets of clothing were collected for men, women and children and given to Miss Lynch at the relief office.

Last evening eight members of the Wilson family, Brock street, were brought to the Y.M.C.A. and Mr. Hefkey arranged for meals for them. A fourteen months old baby almost without clothes was cared for, and clothing was hastily collected from the Red Cross depot. Today arrangements were made to care for the family in the city as the Y.M.C.A. is still without heat.

The president of the Red Cross has kept thoroughly in touch with the situation and with members of the executive has been tireless in his efforts to do everything possible for the unfortunate sufferers.

Delivery of Paper Delayed on Friday

The Ontario Intelligencer of Friday's issue was not delivered until today as a result of a six-up by a derailment on the railway east of Kingston, which delayed the train which was to take on the newspapers which are being printed in Kingston until the return of normal conditions in the flooded district in Belleville. As a result the papers did not reach Belleville until about midnight and the delivery did not take place until this morning. The Ontario Intelligencer regrets the delay which was unavoidable.

LATE ADMIRAL BEATTY

Earl Beatty,-hero of the Battle of Jutland, was one of the most glamorous figures which came to prominence in the Great War. He was always in the thick of the fight.

He was everywhere admitted to be a man of supreme bravery. He won his spurs a young man. He was a tried and not a spoiled child. He was always at the top of the hat, said Admiral Rodman of the U.S. navy, now retired.

Beatty was immensely popular with all ranks of the British navy. When he was the guest of the sailors at Portsmouth in 919, admirals and ship boys joined on occasion in honoring him. At sixteen bells (midnight) an unprecedented thing happened, all sang "He's a Jolly Good Fe-

THE RESCUERS

Too much praise cannot be given those persons who risked their health and limbs in order to bring succor to those who were marooned by the flooding of a portion of the city about the riverbanks of the Moira on Thursday. Such a need existed and for great and heroic men. It was a case of some one having to dare, in order to bring aid to those who were caught without warning. There were many who responded to the call and their names were not surprising in view of the conditions which arose. Going through the flooded streets in boats, these firemen, police-men and others, combed the flooded district until they practically accounted for everyone which might have been in the flood area.

Then rescues they effected are their own great reward. Those whom they took from places which were menaced and those who desired to remain in their homes and to whom they brought food and fuel where none were necessary, appreciated what has been done for them. Their deeds will go down in local story for many a year.

It is but human nature that such sacrificing zeal for the safety and comfort of others should be called out. It would be unusual if men did not respond to such a human need. It is also the glory of those men who did take over the duty of looking after the flood victims that they did it. Some individuals are not fitted for such public work but those fitted by nature to undertake this task.

Floods have not many bright spots. Such untoward events often bring tragedy and misery when she becomes unruly as be violent and ruthless with human life. One has but to cite the case of the examiner who died as a result of exposure after he had stripped some clothes while engaged in the performance of his duty. That tragedy shows what danger here exists in floods and it was a matter of fortune no doubt that others escaped the case of the sick who were marooned in houses far from the unimpeded roads, is one that rouses man's sympathy. Sick persons have been taken out and removed to places where they may be given proper treatment under more favorable conditions than in flooded homes. It is the rescue work which has bright spot in such an event, while it another bright spot that there was not loss of life in the homes so suddenly submerged.

Grave deeds have been performed by gallant men and women and even children.

THE EUROPEAN SCENE

I what is now happening in Europe ing to be the final showdown on this great problem of armaments and internal strife? Who knows what the next few days or weeks may bring forth? There has been talk of war as a very real danger. The Fuehrer's decision rests with the men who now play the part of leading figures.

Whatever is done in Europe in this in-ence is to decide for all time to have a pro-and effect upon the future. The French people demand security, Hitler claims his occupation by troops of the Rhineland is to be regarded as a guarantee against the menace of French guns. Other lands are lining up on the side of France for a determined calling of the German nation to their obligations.

Late yesterday there was a report that the Locarno signatories were reaching something in the nature of a closer approximation of views.

A grave duty rests upon those public men who few in number represent the individual and the collective society of hundreds of millions of people, few of whom want war. If war should come, it will not be entered upon with any doubt of the horrors which it will entail. Hence it may be inferred that they will make desperate efforts to reach a settlement.

Letters to the Editor

A CHANCE TO DO SHOPPING
Editor of Ontario Intelligencer.

I hope to read in your valuable paper the letter to the paper by-law from "A Farmer's Wife", and would thank you for it with kind remarks.

I understand that there are many who are not satisfied and would like to give a tax-paying citizen's unbiased view.

Some years ago, I heard a great deal of dissatisfaction expressed by the farmers' wives because, when they came to town, there was no convenient place to park as they could all available space was taken by the cars of the merchants and they said if the merchants didn't want their trade badly enough to arrange for them to park their cars that they would not come to market and sell their produce and send elsewhere for what they bought and all their money would be spent at the larger stores.

The Council passed the by-law, thinking they were doing the farmers a favor and the merchants a good turn by trying to keep the farmers' trade in the local city.

I would like also to say that there are several city people who owing to physical weakness are unable to walk down town and shop and walk home again and so are forced to be driven.

We get down to Front Street and after driving up and down, vainly trying to locate a parking space, we bask in front of a store and send honking of cars in our rear, we scramble out and hurriedly run to tell our (let us hope) good-natured husband that we will meet him somewhere, sometime or he can drive up and down till we can spot him and again we hold up traffic, more frenzied honking and we hurriedly throw our parcels into the car and start up if the car doesn't stall.

The Farmer's Wife threatens to trade at her local store, perhaps they need help as well as the chain stores. Let us try and co-operate and help one another to make conditions better. The merchants could walk to business or park on a side street and so give the farmers a chance to do their shopping.

And for those who want to attend the movies, there is a good parking space at the Bells and also on the Market, near the Capitol, so what more can be wished for?

One who wishes for fair play for a hard-worked Council and for Farmers and Merchants.

Threat to 'Yank' Judge Is Claimed

Los Angeles, March 14.—(AP)—A Superior Court judge declared his transfer from the criminal to the civil bench followed an anonymous threat to "yank" him unless he gave Berkeley Arthur Call favorable a "break" in the latter's murder trial.

Judge Charles Burnell, who presided at Berkeley's second degree murder trial last December, disclosed the threat in letters to 40 other judges.

Berkeley's trial, which grew out of an automobile accident in which three persons were killed, ended in a jury disagreement. It was recalled for April 6 before Judge Burnell. But the judge since has been transferred to the civil division.

DR. BUCK RUXTON WILL BE HANGED
Found Guilty of Murder of Wife And Nurse-maid

Manchester, Eng., March 14.—(AP)—Dr. Buck Buxton was convicted today by a jury of the "Devil's Beetroot" slayer of his wife and immediately sentenced to death by hanging.

The jury deliberated an hour and two minutes.

Supported by four court attendants, the Rhodes Scholarship blood whitehaired before the bench of his head bowed, the doctor was led down to the gallows.

The jury decided he had threatened his wife to death, dismembered her body and tossed it into a lonely ravine called the "Devil's Beefsteak" near the Scottish border.

Hunton was also charged with having killed the nursemaid, Mary Jane Rogerson, after she saw the gruesome choice his wife.

Justice Singleton told the jurors before they retired the crown had built up the strongest possible case against the physician on circumstantial evidence.

Near the end of his long summing up, the judge referred to the gruesome part of one body found in the ravine called "The Devil's Beef-steak", had been wrapped in a romper suit of one of Dr. Ruxton's children.

He said to the jury: "Does it not seem to you the fact of the prosecution as a case has never been established before on circumstantial evidence."

Justice Singleton also pointed out to the jurors that the dismemberment of the bodies had been done "by a person of some anatomical skill."

Writings Show Wolfe Had Boiled Complainer

Montreal, March 14.—(CP)—Writings of General James Wolfe presented to the Royal Society by Mr. Oord Museum at McGill University and read by Dr. Lucien Cary, Quebec a hard-boiled campaigner and not a gentle dreamer historians suppose.

It has been told how Wolfe received from Great Britain "the Country Churchyard" as his best, but his letters home to Kilton, Eng., later known as Wolfe's Cove shortly before the Battle of the Plains of Abraham. But Wolfe's writings reveal a practical soldier, ardent disciplinarian and "hard boiled" fighter.

"If any private soldier," he wrote, "shall misbehave before the enemy or run away, he shall be tried by a court martial, such a soldier will be whipped, without mercy."

Wolfe referred to "villains he has been forced to whip out of the regiment." Gambling was to be regarded with the utmost seriousness. Duelling was forbidden. Sentry is the highest branch of military discipline and of the men, failure of that discipline is death. He warned he was determined to make a thorough campaign of the province of Quebec.

Referring to insubordination among soldiers, Wolfe wrote: "The only way for the shall take upon himself whether obedience of order, shall be put in dungeon in irons and tried by a court-martial." Sobriety and obedience become the character of a soldier."

ric for keeping power and light on in operation. If the light service should go out during local flood nights, the situation would prove serious indeed. Since the Hydro staff was successful in keeping a continuous service of sunshine lighting system in most of the city, and this makes those areas available as a centre for work with little sleep.

Save Pipe, Thru Basic Window

Water in the cellars of both sides of Front Street, from Bridge to Pinnacle Street, put the fires out, the furnaces and many business places and residences suffered from lack of heat. Interested to see whether turned, called a strange sight in the business section was that of a stove pipe with water pouring from it protruding from the side window of the Bank of Montreal, corner of Front and Bridge Street. Logic is a place where there was enough to burn could keep warm without stovepipes, but the power must have got a chill in the flood.

Bridge Caving

Hotel Quinte, filled to the roof with guests felt the effect of the flood although situated a block away from the river. The water flooded the basement, filling filling the boiler room to the ceiling and that plugged the supply of hot water and heat. Proprietor Mr. Jenkins got busy and secured a portable steam engine which he had shipped to the basement from Pinnacle Street to the back of the hotel. Temporary heating connections made with the result that heat was soon coursing through the hotel again.

Too much praise cannot be given Fire Chief Lynch and his brave laddies for their splendid work during the days of help and hero-ism in battling against the flood waters, especially the sick, aged and crippled. Not only did the fire brigade shirked no danger or hardship and were soaked through many times during the days of the flood. Sometimes manoeuvring in boats, the craft would sometimes capsize, cakes and overturn, but even that did not daunt the courage of the fire laddies who carried on through soaked to the skin.

All day Friday gangs of men were pumping water from the Front and Coleman Streets in an effort to relieve the pressure on Belleville's flood by breaking up the large cakes of ice that blocked the channel back the raging waters of the Moira River. These men were working under the direction of City Engineer Mott.

On Front Street the larger cakes of ice were broken up by small pieces and hauled away in trucks, while on Coleman Street the huge pieces of ice were only broken into smaller pieces and allowed to float down the river.

Latter on Friday night as the snow continued to fall, a number of crab sight was presented over the flooded areas as the broken cakes of ice became frozen together.

Older and more experienced flood veterans stated today the danger point had passed when the rain fell over the week end. "This freeze-up saves Belleville's bacon" as long as the weather stays cold and the snow is not melting to any great degree. There is still a chance to run away under the ice freely without a back-ash, but a rise in the temperature would prove most serious. Should the water-ice this morning as he gazed upon the Belle Shirt Company building on Coleman Street, with a brick crushed into its east wall fully 20 feet square with little chance of the building being saved without serious loss.

During the height of Belleville's worst flood in years the rescue workers laboured feverishly as became imperative to have the lower end of Murney Ward adjacent

Dale Plays The Game

BY

Ann Forester

Dale's mirror gave her a new hold on the man. From the door she was wrapped in the pale pink negligee. More like his Christmas tree angel than ever she looked as she moved across the darkened room and gently shushed him.

Clough had come up for dinner, and after the meal Cassie served on a little table, just for two. The man brushed his black, coffee-and-cream-tinted and tinged heavily on the side, his gaze fastened on the girl's face.

Dale, pretty square in a yellow dress that night, I say you at the Jubilee, haven't I, Angel? Made them keep you on when you were Thelma's maid-of-honor?

"Why are you saying this?" a tremor sounded in Dale's voice.

"Because it's time you and I talked things over, sweet." Clough turbed a thumb at the room. "Couldn't have got this yourself, it was me did it, wasn't it?"

Dale nodded. Her dark eyes fastened on his face in fear.

"What do you think I did it for?" Clough's tone was blunt.

Dale's voice was a whisper. "You didn't have to give me this. Why did you?"

"Because—well, you just kept me guessing. I knew you meant what you said, that you'd rather pay me by than take it on my terms—then. That gave you more of a hold than I fancy, my girl, if you don't see which side your bread is buttered on."

Dale moved her stiff lips. Tried to be calm. "Then I shall just have to learn to do without butter!"

Across the table their eyes met, fenced. A flicker of admiration came into Clough's eyes. There was a cold hard quality about this girl which he liked.

Clough sucked in his breath and his eyes caressed her.

"You got me in a place where no girl ever had me before, Dale. I thought none ever would. I'm crazy about you, Angel. Fact, my—you know it. That's why I've held back along the way you wanted. Now, but all the same things stand. Come on forever, do they? There's got to be an end somewhere."

Cold fright seized her. "The end?" Her was straining at the leash. "You've published—haven't I?" demanded Clough. "I've let you take your own steps, make up your own mind. Now I've got to add to a man's patience. It's a show down for my hand."

"You've been very good to me," Dale said in a small voice. "I—I don't know what to say." She put her hands before her face to shut out the picture of him sitting there waiting—waiting—

Clough was beside her—pulling her into his arms, his blunt fingers stroking her face. It was only by an effort that Dale thrust him gently away instead of striking him. By a supreme effort she smiled—a smile which promised.

"Not.....now." She got it out breathlessly. "Give me until tomorrow..... Tomorrow—truly.... a show-down."

Dale made Clough be content with that. She closed her eyes and let him kiss her good-night, while her nails dug in her palms.

When Clough was gone Dale shed the dress. She fled to the long mirror in the bathroom, fingering the thin negligee under the over-lighted bracket breathlessly. Tomorrow she must look for work. Dashing, of course, was out of the question. But she must get other work. This was the last of November. She was not going to Reno until the first of the year. She must make more money.

The glass gave back Dale's reflection. Still pretty. Still slender. Yes, she could get another job. But she was played out with Clough.....

Thirty-six hours ago—before the incident Cassie had come to put the apartment to rights, Dale pulled her suitcase out and packed it.

For Clough, Dale left a letter on the table—shrewdly sealed.

She wrote briefly:

"You have been good to me. Perhaps better than you know. But I am going to learn to do without butter."

Dale found a cheap hotel in another part of the city, and registered under her smallest room. She hung up the contents of the suitcase, dusted her face with powder and set out to find work.

CHAPTER II.

CHRISTMAS CANDY

Dale found work in a candy store over the holiday season. It would do. After the first of the year she was going out to Reno. Her decision was made.

A strange interlude, it was. At first the customers were startled—even frightened—by the girl behind the counter. Was this Christmas tree angel? Dale's hair was drawn back tightly from her face, and she wore a plain, dark dress. Nothing could be more unlike the girl who had been Clough's Christmas tree angel.

Gradually, however, quickly the forceful figure of Clough became shadowy. He had been a condition only—a dynamic force of which Dale had met shrinking around. Strange that she had ever feared him. Now she neither hated nor feared him. Nor had she any regrets for the part she had played. She had taken all and given as little as she could in return. So had Clough. That was Clough's policy. She had merely played a woman's game in a woman's way. And when the game became dangerous she had quietly withdrawn.

That was something Clough owed her! He never knew the truth—she had never shadowed his life. Her Christmas tree angel could still be unburdened in his memory.

The gift would remain gold to him.

Clough would think he had had the best of her because of his bulk, Dale shrugged. Kinder that way than to let him know he had been tricked—used. In this way she had saved his pride.

Cold cigars, they called girls like her.....

Well, what did it matter?

Clough was already shadowy, but the balance in the bank was there—only real. The little Dale would have a start in life—a start, Dale thought with sudden fierce love, which she would owe to her mother alone.

Dale consulted a doctor, who told her she must not work after the first of January. The baby was beginning to live early. There were times when the room swam strangely about her, and once when she was wracked by wild fear, and by a still, wilder emotion, over which she hid behind the still white mask of her face.

Dale would not look ahead, the hours so broken that Dale did not have to stand long at a time. And she was willing to take the broken hours.

"Search me how she stands it," said the fluffy blonde in the lingerie counter as they trimmed the window together one morning. "Stands and stares she has to stop on to a dance at those hours."

"Poor girl," said a dear old soul who "drew a chilly" comes to the surface now an' then for air—" said the brunette brightly.

They could not know that all of its had stopped for Dale. She was waiting among shadows which moved through a shadowy world.

The day was small, but Dale lived on a little of it and saved the rest. She moved to a cheap hotel near the store and walked to work in save carfare. Nothing was too small to add to that sum in the bank.

Christmas crept on the world, shops bloomed with expensive toys. The ten-and-fifteen-cent store windows were a sparkle of tinsel and cheap paper. Lighted entrances to steamy yellow grottos opening into fairyland.

The candy store grew gay with Christmas boxes—holiday boxes tied with flashing ribbons, bows and dainty sprigs of real holly. Sugar-plum fairies danced in cellophane boxes displayed in the center, and hordes of tiny red Santa Clauses marched in rows on the shelves. Each time something warm about her heart as she looked at them. They would be a baby laugh.....

Dale dipped into her precious fund for only one thing. She bought an enormous and expensive box of chocolates and sent it to Honey. She could imagine Pa and Honey looking with admiring awe at its silver and orchid ribbons.

Last year— Dale's mind just brushed the thought—Brand had sent her a huge bouquet. Never mind she had been, driving it about the town, a pained and spoiled young wife.....

Luckily, the candy store kept strong Christmas odors, and it used to work. It meant a day's pay, and she would get her lunch as well. Next Christmas—Dale would be she hoped. If she lived, not alone, surely! Her baby's laugh filled with a joy so sweet it was pain. Oh, that would make up for everything—even for this bitter hour! Brand.....

Brand..... where was he today? Was he thinking of her? Dale seemed to see the big, warm house. Machines driving up—the excited Annie running down the steps. Exciting, trailing tissue paper. Lovely silky garments sliding from their crumpled carelessness as one turned to more expensive, silky things. Brand, tall and handsome, moving through it all.

.....Would he miss her today? Brand.....Dale was not to be put off. The ghastly mockery of their marriage? Brand, with utterly sleek dark head bent over.....

"How much are those boxes of French candies?" A customer paused, leaning an impersonal finger languidly on the glass. Dale knew bitter thoughts. Like little touch of friendliness breaking through the dreary, chill which encompassed her.

As she went to the dressing room at the end of the day, she met one of her things. Dale found Annie there. Annie was a buxom girl with a snap of black eyes and hair, a ready laugh, and teeth like pearls. Something coarse and wholesome about her.

Now, as she watched Dale slip into her coat and puff on her hat, Annie nerved herself to a hard task.

"Listen, kid. I've been wanting to say this—you seem so sort of alone. Is there anything I can do for you?"

Dale's smile was infinitely sweet, but infinitely far away. "Nothing at all, thank you, Everything's fine."

But Annie was not to be put off. "Well, if it is, I'm a Chinaman!" she burst out. "Look here, kid, give me credit for good eyesight! You're in trouble ain't you? Oh, don't frown me! Honest to goodness I mean to be kind. Look here—I got in wrong somehow—an' the family disowned me.

Dale winced, but her eyes met Annie's candidly. "No. My man's dead—you see—we didn't get along."

Whether or not Annie believed Dale, she nodded vigorously. "I knew! Lots of fellows are dirty dogs. But it there's anything I can here—you tell me. I got two kids myself. Twins—cutest little devils in the world. My mother keeps 'em down in the country with her. Near broke my heart I couldn't run down an' see 'em today—" Annie's face was beautiful with the light of motherhood upon it as she spoke. "My old man was a taxi driver, but he died in a hold-up—just a month before the kids came—"

Tears swam in Dale's eyes as she walked home through the nearly deserted street. The noble tragedy of common lives! Poor Annie, with her brief hour of sunshine. A threadbare little romance of the city, nipped like a rose by the frost. Yet Dale felt her heart seared by aching sense of being rejected.

Alone..... So dreadfully alone.....

Dale couldn't stand conditions much longer. It was time to go out to Reno.

CHAPTER IX.

THE BALM OF THE DESERT

Once again Dale was on a train crossing the continent. But this time there was no expensive drawing-room. There was no Brant, laughing and brown, sitting opposite. No sweet feeling of being precious and sheltered. Only the expensive fur coat hanging by her seat made this trip resemble the other.

A queer little smile touched Dale's lips when she looked at it, swaying gently with the movement of the train. The coat Clough had paid for.....

Many curious glances were sent at her clear cut profile. Several would have been glad to make friends with this girl with the pensive brown eyes. But Dale failed to see friendly gestures. For the most part she sat, an unread magazine in her lap, looking out of the window as the train rushed by.

It was a rainy year. Miles and miles of chocolate colored mud reeling along. Sluggish brown streams. Plains of brown mud. A world half thawed, and soppy as a sponge.

Gaunt frame houses of Kansas, shivering in the midst of frozen wastefulness. Bleak and lonely in Nebraska. High, mud-splashed platforms of country railroad stations, where men, wearing ear muffs, watched the train go by, as their breath smoked in the cold air.

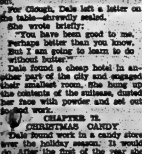
Muddy cities.

Then, out again into the flat, open country and more mud. The ugliness was appalling. Yet Dale simply glimpsed something as tender, so upsetting, that it opened a red wound in her heart.

Just a dour opening in a Nebraska hut. The train whirled past, and down the long western slope of the Sierras into California.

Dale breathed and fanned by the Pacific winds..... Dale fell her eyes fill with tears. Oh—this was home.....

Once again, by the power of her loyal followers, did La resume her throne as Queen. Through Tarzan, Lord of the Jungle, ate again from the golden plates of Opar while young girls served the people, who hated Oah and had killed her, promised loyalty to La.



Tarzan, knowing La was safe, was glad when the new day found him at the head of his Waziri crossing the plain of Opar.

Upon his bronzed shoulder sat Jiad-bal-ja, and at the ape-man's side paced the golden lion, while behind him marched his hundred Waziri warriors.....

She had made her plans. When she reached Colt City she intended to stay at the hotel and drive out to the Cross Roads the next day. But when the train pulled into the station in a rich red sunset, there was Pa's old truck waiting beside the track. Pa himself, gentle and dreamy, more like a dejected poet than ever, sat on the high seat. Beside him was the impressive, overalled figure of Jimmy.

Before she had helped Dale down the step, she was swallowed in Henry's hearthy hug, her brow tenderly pressed to an overall buckle.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING INSTALMENTS

Antoinette Tait, 33 and attractive, is the secretary editor of the San Francisco Call and delighted with her job, after months of job-hunting. She finds Charles Greenwood and the rest of the staff friendly and helpful. She lives with her sister Rosalie, her two brothers, Cliff and Bruce, and Aunt Mary in a comfortable old top-floor apartment. On the Call is a blonde named Rose Outhier who gets a salary and keeps up a fine apartment at which Fleet, a wealthy bachelor, is a frequent visitor. When Rosalie has to make out a dinner party there Tony goes in her friend Barney Kerr for advice. This results in a proposal. He has one thing Tony wants, for as she tells Brenda she does not love Barney. Sent to report a carnival at Fleetmont, she meets Mrs. Bellamy at the Fleet home. Bellamy is a banker, and is astonished and thrilled to find Rosalie engaged to woman's husband is Larry Bellamy, the handsome young editor of the Journal whom she had tried to job-hunting. Ruth Bellamy, a frail woman in her early forties, is fearful of her little son. She is ten years older than her husband, and is reluctant Tony appeals to her and they become fast friends. Larry tells her the Journal offer is withdrawn with the Examiner. By refusing and promising to be a friend Tony confirms a tip on the Porter engagement. As she turns in her story she tells Greenwood about the Journal-Examiner merger plans.

INSTALMENT 10.

"What a Journal!" Greenwood's voice was as swift as a bullet.

"There's only one. Lawrence Bellamy's Journal—the Journal of Commerce and Business."

"Who said so?"

"He did. I knew him and his wife quite well. I saw him today and he told me. They're going to have a weekly supplement and then he's to do a daily column."

The expression slightly impish face of Charles Greenwood went suddenly blank.

"Are your Sunday column in?" he asked.

"Yes."

"What's keeping you? It's almost ten."

"I'm going with Van to get some others."

The lights of Market street were caught in the long lines of the swiftly flashing cable cars, illuminated in black; the air was deliciously fresh to Tony's lungs. She and Van Price once had their oysters; Van talked about a girl named Dorothy, and ate the hot heartening food and thought her own thoughts. Barney Kerr would not be back in town "with his family in Piedmont on Monday; he had to stay on the job. On the boat trip home, Barney would ask her again to marry him; he was constantly asking her, or pretending he was giving her those strong, hints that were not hints at all, but to put the direct question to the point. She must, it suggested, be sufficient any more, or even interesting. Tony couldn't take it seriously. She couldn't believe that anything that wasn't the newspaper office and the city room, the constantly recalled men, the atmosphere of blue smoke and the clicking typewriters. And tonight she had to keep coming back to the warm little secret memory of the Journal and what it was in the hall.

When she reached home she told Brenda that she was not going to the Kerrs' on Sunday.

It was quiet in Brenda in the silent spring morning, rested and content, with nothing much to do but best of all worlds. The clock's hands moved slowly. Tony opened her eyes; Brenda, dressed except for her jacket and hat, was packing a suitcase that was open on the table.

"Santa Cruz today!" she chanted. "My vacation—I'm entitled to three from tomorrow, but the publishers' convention comes in there and so they telephoned me to say I'd take it this week instead. And—" the elder sister's voice was falling pleasantly with tense people—"Gregory can get his work in a week, so now for the pleasure of saying and so—Cliff has to drive down to Santa Cruz, before he goes to Reno, and do drive down! Did they get the Ferguson cottage?"

"I've got to get it and Tony leaped from bed, snatched from a lower bureau drawer her fresh linen—a blouse and skirt of inverness dotted swiss, tucked them hurriedly under the clothing Brenda had already packed in the bag and slipped into the pale pink stockings she had while Jack Tait, the eldest of the brood, was the first to be back in bed again, the picture of innocence, when Brenda returned.

"Get up, Jack," said Brenda. "I haven't had my breakfast yet."

"See the papers?"

"Yes, I read it meant to tell you my engagement story's signed, on the front page."

She went out to the kitchen where on the table among the dishes from the earlier breakfasts, were the cream pitcher, the empty clean cups, the folded napkins.

Tony sat down upon it. Ah-h-h! There it was, on the front page, with a photograph. Miss Patricia Page Ferguson, a debutante of the season before last, said Mr. Leo Carolan Blithedale, members of the most exclusive Hillsborough set, have elected to announce to their friends one of the year's most interesting engagements. Tony felt a delicious thrill passing, pleasantly, with fear. Suppose they got mad and decided it! But no, Brenda was smiling, and she would not do that. They would just be sugary sweet, instead of the condescending engagement, as many another person had been, and then accept the situation with whatever philosophy they might.

Tony had propped up the paper where she could feast her eyes on it. She drank her orange juice slowly. "Brenda, you're a fine, big newspaper woman, within!" said Brenda, and she added, "Antoinette!" he said coming in.

"The other papers haven't got it!" Brenda triumphed.

"Well, congratulations," Cliff said smiling. He kissed his sister's head, shook hands; the kitchen was full of pleasantness and youth and excitement. Then Brenda asked Tony if she could keep the paper.

Tony at least the day had the thrilling taste of success.

She and Brenda expertly disposed of the breakfast dishes, and Brenda went back with Tony to the living room, putting on her hat, taking her gloves, her bag, her suitcase. Meanwhile Tony washed her face and hands and wandered about, assisting her sister with small last gifts and so on.

"Good-bye, darling, be a good girl, and don't let the mosquitoes bite you. I'll take care of Bruce and write you every other day."

Going back into the apartment Tony remembered suddenly that Ruth Bellamy was the Ruth Bellamy.

She dialed the familiar number in a moment later, humming as she did so.

"Hallo, Mims. Is Mrs. Bellamy there? It's Mrs. Tait."

"Mrs. Bellamy is not," Miss Van's Mims's slow feet retreating; and then the subdued distant: "Is that Miss Tait?"

"Is that you, Ruth?" Tony echoed in her turn, her surprised voice unsteady. For Ruth's tone bespoke calamity of some sort. "What's the matter?"

"Nothing. Only I feel rather sick over the Journal, Ruth said.

"What affair? What's happened?"

"Why, Lawrence is in Stockton getting quitting out. Tony. It's Larry's frantic. He knows Ruth's health, and he's frightened. That it wasn't you. Don't worry about that, Ruth," Tony said, flushed only. He had a telegram from the other early this morning; that's the way he does things, you know, and of course." It had been absolutely overwhelming. He's on the train and may be off. Larry says he'll have to take any train they offer. He's gone—he flew to Los Angeles about an hour ago. And here's something very much more important to do for him, Tony. He wants to know how Ruth's being looked out. He says you can find out in the office; he can't, he's on the front page of the paper. "He's awfully worried."

Tony had listened so far in a flood of incredible horror. Her ears were in complete confusion; what had she done, how on earth had she failed? Larry was going, Ruth to do now? They didn't suspect her; they were too generous, they were too honorable themselves to do that. Wouldn't it be more decent not to mention it? But no, Ruth was talking, . . . Her thoughts wheeled sickly.

"I wish you could have seen the telegram from the chief," Ruth was saying.

"What'd it say?"

"Oh, not right near the shore. Oh, my camera—"

"I've got to get it and Tony leaped from bed, snatched from a lower bureau drawer her fresh linen—a blouse and skirt of inverness dotted swiss, tucked them hurriedly under the clothing Brenda had already Something like that. Pegg Larry?]", Ruth said, "was just pitiful to see how it upset him. But will you do that, Tony? I guess I'm not the one save it to the Call?"

"Where'll Larry be? Seattle?"

"Portland. And he's got to be in the office late. Tomorrow's Saturday. They go to press holiday."

Tony sat silent; thinking.

"Tony, are you there? Come up and have tea with me at five?"

"Unless they send me to the Federated Clubs across the bay, and they're doing a wedding at noon and a lecture tonight."

Tony replaced the telephone on its stand; sat on the little hallway, staring. Presently it would be half-past seven, and Miss Bedney Ann Frettinghuysen would be arranging her bridal veil and preparing to the cathedral to be married to Johnnie Wood. And after that Tony would be down at the office, for somehow Nora herself to enter it. Somehow they send her

HITLER'S CONDITIONS PRECIPITATE NEW CRISIS

Water Slowly Recedes; Situation is Improving; Cannifton Ice Holding

Rumors on Sunday Disturb Citizens

STREET CLEARING

Several Families Move Out of Flooded Section

As the fifth day of the flood ends, almost all the inundated district of Belleville remains under water, though there has been a slight recession in the water level. Efforts to open up traffic in the river section were made on Saturday by City Engineer Mott and department of public works in co-operation with the Canadian Pacific Railway workmen and engineers south of the bridge, but no effort was made up the river. These efforts did not appear to be effective though huge cracks were blown in the ice field by the dynamite charges.

A threatened washout of the Canadian Pacific tracks near the west end of the bridge also caused the attention of a large gang of section men, under the railway engineers, on Sunday. Operations to block and prevent further erosion were carried on all night after we brought to the city.

Flooding Is Moved

The exodus of people from their homes in the low areas of the city and flood fringe followed on Saturday and Sunday by many removals of furniture, and by Sunday afternoon the streets were busy down the streets through the flooded district. Many houses and lost on furniture and other household contents. In the great majority of cases the people are saving their furniture, determined to keep it there any way they can, staying in the flooded section.

Business Disturbed

Hardship has been reduced to a minimum as so few remain in the homes and have been moved to the upstairs in the upstairs of their residences. The difficulty has been performed with the provisioning and delivery of supplies to the residents. Some are available milk, vegetables, meats and every kind of food, and coal are carried by trucks to the upstairs windows and make their purchases, and return to their apartments.

Water is running down Front Street from the Chamber of Commerce office south. West Bridge Street, Coleman, is in the same state as the Citizens' Dairy is still wet, a part of Bridge Street is dry, also on James Street and all the streets south of Bridge Street. West water runs. On Sunday the water was flowing with greater speed.

Estimate of Loss

Estimates of the entire loss run up to very high figures. The million dollar figure is placed on the damage and loss by some is believed to be a conservative one.

Clearing the streets of ice has been started in the section of Bridge Street West, the task completing the entire bay. Some traffic now is passing through this street through the water is still high for the large machines.

Roads Fly Streets

Some of the streets looked like a non-traveler's conception of Venice, the city of water streets and highways with gondolas. Many of these indeed added even more of a touch of Italy as flat bottomed boats traversed or shoved through the ice field bearing bushels of groceries, bananas and bread and other foods. One of the contents not Venetian by any stretch of the imagination was the presence of coal bags in these boats—telling of a chill Canadian springtime.

Many of the refugees took advantage of the flat bottomed boats to revisit the homes and try and straighten some of the mess in which littered their ground floors. One of these men shouted from the doorway of his home:

"What am I to do with my radio?" "I don't know," said a boatsman. "Guess I'll put it through the wringer."

Floes In Moss.

Some of the homes whence the people had made a hasty exit at the time of the flood looked desolate to the passing strangers. Yesterday's play on the floors marked by water and traces of mud which had been had carried in and distressing said one woman sighing, but she went to work. Most of these people left their homes.

No sign of the piano which some one thought he saw going down the flood waters on Thursday has been found. Nor has the piano left any "Spirit of Sleeps."

The spirit of hopefulness springs eternal in the human breast. One of the latest signs is that many homes is still deeply surrounded by water after doing damage to the homes and furniture, was busy cooled with by some one and replied: "I'll wait until the grass is growing all around and the flowers are blooming and we shall forget all about it."

It was another sign of the hopeful spirit which featured a little scene on James street not far south of Bridge street on Sunday morning.

Flood Notes

On numerous occasions on Sunday local police were called to the scene of Belleville's flood to caution advenurous youths, who purposed in exploring the ice-floes on the Moira River, at dangerous points. The police were called upon to forcibly remove youths from the broken cakes if ice in the vicinity of the footbridge, which has been swept away. More daring boys were also seen precariously jumping from one cake of ice to the other making their way to the footbridge, which was on top of the ice a considerable distance from its original position. Other more adventurous youths were daring the ice floes in the vicinity of the C.P.R. bridge even during the period of dynamiting, little knowing their lives in the river should suddenly commence to move downward. Fortunately no injuries or fatalities were reported during these twenty periods of adventure.

Mr. Jas. McMullen, road superintendent of the C.P.R. in this district, was in the city yesterday and assisted City Engineer Mott and Superintendent of the Water Mr. McMullen previously made a trip to the head waters of the Moira River as far north as Tweed and reported back there was no blockage of ice or snow there and the quantity of gravel thrown in by the water from the fields were only too evident. A gravel train of ballast train about on the track east of the bridge on Monday and while engine repair and stone train will be put on the river bridge.

EROSION HALTED

Water Pouring Through Gully Cuts Way to Culvert

Washout conditions at the culvert under the track on the west side of the Moira River bridge of the Canadian Pacific Railway kept a large staff of workmen and engineers busy on Sunday. Water poured through the culvert which is a short distance eventually bumping the bridge but the lake of water north of the track from the riverbank washed out a gully 20 feet wide, 20 wide, side of the culvert and then erosion of the fill west of the culvert began. Engineers called the immediate action to prevent the washout here being washed away. A pilediver was brought up and a crib work was built to guard the bed against further erosion. Piles were driven down, grooved timber was placed on them while the bed backed with boulders and blocks of stone concrete secured by the flats of baled straw. This operation lasted until dark last evening.

The reason for the washout when flood conditions were at their highest on Thursday and Friday was evident to the hundreds of spectators who stood down the tracks from the bay bridge and watched. The amount of rock which had to be thrown in to fill the washout there and the quantity of gravel thrown in by the water from the fields were only too evident. A gravel train of ballast train about on the track east of the bridge on Monday and while engine repair and stone train will be put on the river bridge.

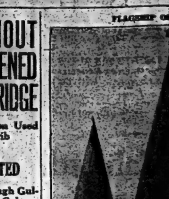
REICH CHARGES MADE AT FRANCE

Attempt to Separate Rhineland Claimed by Germans

Berlin, March 16 (AP)—The Reich turned to the United States State Department today for backing in the Rhineland crisis with France and Britain.

The State Department published a series of documents bearing on French manoeuvres said to have been designed to wreck the "isolation hospital" stated Mr. Hope McGinnis, public health inspector, in contradiction to "rumors that the local isolation hospital was being used for smallpox patients during the flood period in Belleville. At present there are seven cases of sickness being cared for in the isolation hospital, including scarlet fever and two cases of measles, Mr. McGinnis added.

Ex-citizen's Interest.



Interested in the welfare of his native town, Charles "Chas" Hayes, a former Belleville boy now residing in Detroit, Mich., got through a long distance telephone call to the local police station enquiring as to the welfare of the old town. Sergeant Harman received the call and Mr. Hayes' friend assured Mr. Hayes no serious results had been reported. "I read in our newspaper that Belleville was completely under water and lives had been lost, is the story true in that?" asked "Sing". Upon being informed that such was not the case Mr. Hayes thanked Sergeant Harman for his information and gave his best regards to all his friends in Belleville.

Magedomas Winner Of District Title

Smith's Falls, Ont., March 16.—Brockville's mighty Magedomas swept to their first Ottawa and District Senior Hockey Championship here tonight when they downed Smith's Falls Mic Macs 6-3 to take the two-game, goals-to-count series 8-6. The Magedomas will now meet the Intermediate champions of Bell's Corners at Manville, in a series to decided the Eastern Ontario Allan Cup representative.

Brockville staged a five-goal scoring splurge in the closing period while Smith's Falls players were serving penalties.

Milo Maes suddenly snapped into form, seems to help their cause in the scoreless middle session and in the next they pressed the Brockville goal behind Gordon Hall and the roaring crowd saw Brockville flinging the puck at the length of the ice for 15 minutes of the last period in a unsuccessful effort to safeguard its lead.

Honeycombed Condition of Ice Formation Leads City Authorities to Leave Railway to Take Chances

Dr. Laurent Records

Endeavouring to refloss the pressure of Belleville's worst flood in years, Mayor Gill communicated with the Dominion Government in Ottawa on Saturday and received the services of Dr. Laurent, engineer of the Department of Lands and Forests, who came to Belleville and viewed the ice conditions. Mayor Mr. St. Laurent is a civil engineer but immediately upon his arrival and upon viewing the situation stated that the ice was honeycombed to be cut a channel in the ice from the C.P.R. bridge to the south of the bay south, of the lighthouse.

After conferring with city officials and Mayor Gill however, it was decided that the ice at this point was too honey-combed and owing to the fact, that it was frozen to the river-bed, it was definitely decided to let nature take its course and allow the water to melt away the ice and form a natural channel in the city. Dr. Laurent recommended that in the future however, a channel should be cut in the centre of the lakes. Nevertheless, it was decided that at this point a bore the C.P.R. bridge as an outlet for the usual spring break-up. "I believe very early salvation from future floods will be found in a channel open from mid-winter, thereby assisting a deep channel for the water to recede. If you can secure yourselves of a sufficiently wide and deep channel at this point, it will relieve the surplus water and also assist in carrying the ice at the broken ice out into the deeper depths of the bay," stated Mr. St. Laurent to Mayor Gill prior to his departure.

Military Display is Banned In Rhineland's Celebration

Frankfurt on the Main, Germany, March 16 (AP)—The highest international situation applied a dampening influence to the Rhineland celebrations which reached their peak today, all ostentatious military display being banned in the city.

What was to have been a day of great military parades, culminating in a celebration of the Nazi "symbolic" re-occupation of the demilitarized zone, At first it was thought the band, and the troops would parade in the band, but the troops would parade in the band, but the troops would parade in the band, but

WATER SLOWLY RECEDES

Alec Mourning and others were looking at the progress of the recession of the water when some street urchin took out from the top of a pile of wood and brush which had been piled up by the fire hose. The men all started for Sunny and Alec Mourning's pet policy close to the jalopies annual for he was sure he could catch the poor animal. But to no relentless avail. The rabbit jumped off the debris, and leaped into the water, swam down the street streaming the current bravely and reaching terra firma, and made off into the dry land south of Murney's mill.

A Hard Bed.

One Coleman street resident has been having a hard bed. Needing to sell as many of the household's friends as he could, he forged the couch near the kitchen for his wife as the furnace fire was out because of flooding of the boiler, and for himself he brought in a table, covered it with bedding and settled down for the night's rest until the water receded.

Saved By Trees.

Ottawa Daily removed its equipment from the Front Street garage on the river bank south of Bridge street. It is expected the loss will be quite small.

Mr. "Ted" Chirks pointed to two trees on the south side of the street as having saved some buildings of his. He was advised to cut these trees down, but I said that they provided good shade in the summer. Now I'm glad that they held back the ice," he commented. In the great ice jam last March, when water racing against the trees but the trees were unbroken.

Ambulance Call.

Local police authorities received a hurried call at 10 o'clock near the C.P.R. railway bridge about 11.30 p.m. last night when it was reported that a man had fallen into the fire floe and was being carried by the ice mass. Upon the arrival of the police and also the firemen, however, it was discovered that the ambulance call was undoubtedly a hoax. The only signs of drift in that section around the midnight hour, however, were C.P.R. engines, which remained all night to endeavour checking possible wash-outs along their right-of-way. Also the C.P.R. bridge, where the water was washing away the ballast at a rapid rate, went at that spot.

Thomas Smith, local youth, while searching with the relief workers of the flood yesterday, found a new tire, tube and wheel still rim floating down Coleman St., and secured the article. Later on the wheel was taken to the police station, but on keeping it to be claimed the complete wheel came from a nearby garage, or was torn from a motor car that had unsuccessfully tried to buck the waters of the river.

Numerous reports prevailed around Belleville at different periods on Sunday relative to the ravages of ice from the Hamilton and Corbyville dams, but all send information proved highly inaccurate and erroneous. Police and firemen were constantly inundated with telephone calls of a similar nature. "It is the ice from the dams," was the cry that broke away north of Belleville and we are in danger of a more serious flood than ever," was the cry that was always in the negative. Flood conditions existed today, however, there was little or no chance of the ice jam from the dams reaching Belleville in large bodies, owing to the more level and broadened bed of Moira River, and the banks. Where the ice has an opportunity to spread into the lowlands and bridges around the brush and bushes there is little possibility of such ice from coming further, it was thought.

On Sunday morning the salvaging of flood articles was done, but on Thursday's and Friday's flood considerable of the Moira River and the flooded areas of "Flat-built" Doces, window sills, furniture, automobiles, garden tools, furnaces, and household goods were some articles being rescued. During numerous spare moments, were taken by adventurous youths during the week-end. Hundreds of awe-stricken spectators were there during the floods. In their results. No lives were reported to any of the workers, however.

Fight For Heat.

Hotel Quinte made quite a fight for heat after the fires in the boiler of the heating plant had been drowned out by the flood waters. Approximately two hours after the fires were out, a portable engine, property of the Public Works Department of Belleville was secured and moored alongside the building connected with the heating system of the hotel and geared up to convert pitch. That was done, and the city had heat for the engine and it was removed. Sunday, Manager Gerald Jeckins had the boiler fires synphoned from the basement and heating again resumed business to the delight of the staff and guests.

The New Queen's Hotel was closed over Sunday on account of the flooded condition of the power plant connection, but the water had subsided very noticeably. The beverage room was operated as usual on Monday morning.

Says Worst Is Over

A lady who has lived upward of sixty years in Belleville and Moira said: witnessed all the floods since the river said yesterday that she was positive the worst was over. From her experience of past floods she said the most of the trouble is looking for is done. If the danger has passed, she is a prophet, the lady's history says.

Hundreds of curious onlookers standing on the railway bridge watched the ice and water movements and the pile driver were treated to observers as the ice jam broke away too, from the blasting. Sunday afternoon. After several such shows on the concrete bridge it broke.

Small Paddle "Shot"

A small paddle wheel about Coleman Street Sunday afternoon in a miniature punt made a shining hit with the small amateur boating artists. The lad was having the time of his life.

Although the flood waters had gone down several feet, Sunday morning the Capital Theatre on Monday morning was still under water. Manager Ernest Lewis and others of the Belleville General Hospital reported that the flood conditions were directing operations of protecting and refitting the likens from his establishment. The telephone has been stalled.

Congress of Makers.

Flocks of automobiles from every part of Ontario descended upon Belleville Sunday and witnessed the ravages of the flood. Thousands of visitors were attracted to the down town streets and the restaurants did a rushing business. Other than that, the city druggist open, did a rushing business in cough lozenges, cough syrups and liniments.

Everybody seemed to have a camera Sunday and the "shooting" and "shooting" all up and down the River North.

River Quieks Down.

The Mad and Merry Moira has held its appearance of turbulence for a city and is now just a sullen, swollen stream. Sunday afternoon and evening, however, it was a huge jumble of ice floes.

The work of clearing Coleman street, blocked from end to end with huge blocks of ice, was started all day Sunday and large motor trucks hauled away the ice as fast as lower brings where they were broken up so that they would melt away more quickly.

A newsreel man was observed on Sunday finally making pictures of some of the ice-filled streets and the moving floods of the eight-year.

Night of Terror.

That night of terror—the first night of the flood—when the citizens in the inundated territory heard the sounding of the ice, the thunder of the moving waters and saw the flood waters rising steadily in their homes—that is a story which has not been told in all its vivid coloring yet. It was not all a story which happened as conditions varied in almost every home affected. The darkness, the noise, the fears which could not be stilled, and the absence of all knowledge of the extent of the damage and the probabilities—all formed a terror which many who experienced it will ever forget.

Toronto newspapers became a trifle hysterical over Belleville's flood conditions, magnifying the damage, and the probabilities. The public's phone service was cut off completely west-and rates in Belleville which had raised the water five feet in the city, but Sunday lifted that. As a matter of fact there was no "rushing" water and rather than the water receded more than five inches at 1 to be added.

Reeder Is Forgotten.

A city official stated that up to 10 p.m. he had been without one thing and, one hundred and one gratifications, notices for getting rid of the flood, which most of them different. Remarkable how many people have forgotten that dawn started the disaster, and remove the ice now that it is here in its time. Just like baths at a fire, the vociferous kind, that tell all and sundry how the fire is being put out, but the fact is that generally the opposite of that used by the Firemen. Well, it takes all kinds of people to make a world.

Picton has tried to short circuit the debacle by coming around by the Corbin factory on Coleman street. The Duke" got down to it and the firemen had to go to his assistance in a department truck and two trucks to dry ground.

The absence of heat in so many buildings was one of the worst features of the situation, but it was not long before stove pipes began peeping out from stove and offices in the business district, while stoves were being moved from the cellars and homes hitherto depending on furnace heat.

Today the Bank of Commerce added stoves to the equipment.

Specials are worn in many stores while stoves are being put up.

BLACKBIRDS RETURN

One of the first signs of spring, red wing blackbirds were reported in the district today. Several of the birds were sighted this morning in the field bordering the marsh on the west side of the city.

RATS DROWNED OUT

"There will be a complete shortage of rats in the city after this flood," stated one Front street business man today.

Following a check-up of his flood-ed cellar, the store owner this morning declared that seventeen rats were found floating around in the debris.

NO HYDRANTS BROKEN

Sanitary conditions are excellent in the city as yet, it was stated by officials this morning at the department today."

"We're lucky," was the official comment of Mr. E. T. Austin, manager of the department, this morning.

"The flood is costing us about one half million gallons of water a day due to pumping out to the siphons and pumps being used to pump out the cellars mostly through the residential section of the city. But we have been lucky all through it. Think-kinds of tons of ice have been piled against our hydrants in addition to being frozen in the city, but so far no broken ones have been reported. Several of them have been shattered though, but the general system so far is functioning excellent," stated Mr. Austin.

Trenton and District

Trenton, March 16 (Special) — All fears of floods at Trenton have diminished as the river is almost back to its normal levels, although a steady rain which still prevails over the townbridge. The ice, which was jammed north of the C.N.R. bridge, moved down the river last night and filled the channel which was carrying the water and log out into the bay. The around them.

spring water supply on the eastern side of the town is quite low and many of the citizens have to draw water from other wells. "A diver will have to fix the water intake under the river after the ice jams depart" states one of the Hydro officials of the district. Trent river are safe now and the rise in temperature today made little difference in the levels of the water which.

SAYS WATER FOWL FACE EXTINCTION UNLESS GUARDED

Eastern Breast "Scarce" on New Brunswick Shore

Wolfville, N.S.—(CP)—A warning that Maritime Brant were facing extinction unless "drastic steps to prevent decay" has been issued by Noble W. Tufts, Chief Migratory Bird Officer, who says game protective associations throughout the Maritimes are urging a continuous closed season on "these sadly diminished birds."

Statements appearing in several Maritime papers claiming that eelgrass, favorite food of the brant and brant, was returning to the North Shore of New Brunswick and with its return, flocks of birds were becoming more numerous prompted Mr. Tufts' warning.

"These statements are glaringly out of line with what is known to be the true situation," he declared in an interview.

"For the past four or five years, I have received weekly reports by the constabulary system, during both spring and fall, from 30 or more reliable men who live at strategic points along the North Shore, as well as elsewhere in the Maritimes. These are on file and are available upon application to anyone who may wish to see them. The reports were furnished voluntarily and most of not all of those who sent them in are themselves gunners, who would naturally be inclined to paint as rosy a picture as conditions would permit. They are summarized at the Ottawa end chiefly for protection therefrom, and the picture they portray in regard years is alarming to say the least."

"There are men of international reputation who are familiar with brant conditions along the birds' entire migratory route from the Migratory Bird officer continued. "And these have no hesitation in stating that the Eastern Brant has reached the lowest ebb in its history and they express grave fears as to the possibility of their becoming extterminated within the present decade."

The return of the eel-grass at certain points in Northumberland County, New Brunswick, was cheering news in Mr. Tufts but he could give no assurance that this new growth would not die down as it had happened on "so many similar occasions at other points."

"Individual sportsmen and Game Protective organizations all over the Maritimes are pressing the government to place a continuous closed season on these sadly diminished birds, in order that the species may have every possible chance to maintain its existence until such time, if ever, as the eel-grass colony is extended through the course of nature," he concluded.

'SYMBOLIC' OFFER TO WITHDRAW?

Unconfirmed Report in London Says Germany Will Take Step

London, March 14—(CP-Havas)—An unconfirmed report current here late Friday, according to the Havas News Agency, said Germany had offered to make a "symbolic" withdrawal of certain troops from the Rhineland zone as a conspicuous gesture to make further negotiation possible.

German officials here denied, however, any new communication relative to the Rhineland had arrived from Germany.

This report — which would not immediately be confirmed from any official source—said Leopold Von Hoesch, German Ambassador, had conveyed this order to Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, in a talk at the Foreign office lasting for half an hour, according to Havas.

Following the meeting between Von Hoesch and Eden, Havas reported, the Locarno Signatories reconvened shortly after 5.30 p. m. (12.30 p. m. EST). It was presumed they were considering the asserted German offer.

The report said Germany had proposed, "under certain conditions", to withdraw some of the troops she sent into the Rhineland last week end.

In German circles, however, it was said Von Hoesch's visit to the Foreign Office was connected only with naval matters and not the Locarno pacts.

It was understood the four Locarno conferees had ended today's talks still undecided as to a common attitude toward Germany, beyond finding she had violated the Locarno pact.

London, March 14—(AP)—An unofficial communique issued tonight said a "closer approximation of views" had been reached between the Locarno Treaty signatories.

Gives Many Cares To Mission Work

Winnipeg, March 14—(CP)—Miss Harriet West, superintendent of the Margaret Scott Nursery Mission at the annual meeting reported 351 to 407 visits to the 4,065 cases. Average number of visits made in a day was 35.

One patient, who was 100 years old in August, sends for a doctor at their way with "God love you, my dear."

Another "patient" met the nurse with the request: "I don't quite like the boy my girl is going with, so I send for you to size them up." Another house could produce nog, one scrap of mosiin for a mustard plaster. "We took the hint," Miss Latin...after, we washed off the plaster, and put the curtain up again, freshly ironed."

One little home had the frying pan and the hot water bottle on the same hook, and most commonly the flat iron was in the same room, "one day the old lady a hair cut, while the old man gave us a violin solo, and he played it, her critically saying: 'Gee do look nice, her do.'"

Atlee, Halifax physician and frequent contributor to Canadian magazines, for the establishment of a central nurses training school in Halifax, is receiving the support of members of the medical and nursing professions and public welfare societies.

Dr. Atlee is advocating the need for a broader education for nurses who were "required to meet such a variety of cases as prevail in the Scotia". A more extensive teaching of psychology and anatomy is also needed, the doctor said.

FOGHORN BLUES HAVE FADE-OUT ON SUPERLINER

Musical Sirens and Completely Equipped Synagogue Among Features of Queen Mary Soon Ready For Maiden Trip.

Glasgow, March 14—(AP)—A special promenade deck for dogs, a synagogue, harmonically tuned ships bells, and an almost musical foghorn are among the novelties claimed for the new British liner Queen Mary, making her first Atlantic crossing in a few weeks.

Dogs are to have their special area on the sports deck, and alongside the modern kennels there will be a strip of deckspace reserved for such dogs as are able to keep their sea legs.

The Synagogue will be a permanent part of the ship design; not merely a room converted to that purpose on occasion. It will be about 30 feet square, and, although miniature, will be complete in every detail, with room for about 50 worshippers.

Fittings will include a carved shulchan, or reading desk, and the holy ark in miniature. The Jewish nair-lomd or perpetual light or remembrance will be lit electrically on a special circuit so that it will never go out.

Three bells will take care of ship time. The largest weighs 250 pounds. The one which will fill used to sound the watches will be harmonically tuned. Passengers will hear the musical tones of a perfectly adjusted church bell.

The 10-ton sirens of the superliner have been carefully timed to "A". In full blast they will be heard 10 miles away, but on board ship, if the designers can be believed, there will be not a trace of those fog-horn blues.

One of the electrical novelties will be the telephone adjustments of lights in the verandah grill where the late night life of the ship will be centred. The lighting of the cafe will automatically change its keeping with the type of music being played.

For many of the novelties been reserved for the passengers. The member of the crew who stands watch in the crow's nest, a great height over the water will not encourage the lamest of the poor sailor on a night like this."

He will ascend to his nest inside the mast, instead of climbing up a ladder outside, and his nest will be electrically heated and shielded from the elements.

SOVIET PLEDGES AID FOR FRANCE

Military And Economic Sanctions Will be Backed if Necessary

(By Frank H. King)

LONDON, March 13. — Soviet Russia threw its full support to France today, an authoritative source said, for punishment of Germany for violating both military and economic —for the Reich's violation of the demilitarization of Rhineland.

Representatives of the Locarno Powers, after indicting Germany yesterday as a violator of the Locarno Pact and the Versailles Treaty by its occupation of the Rhineland, met again to determine what action to recommend to the League of Nations in the same room, "they gave the old lady a hair cut, while the old man gave us a violin solo, and he played it, her critically saying: 'Gee do look nice, her do.'" adjourned at 1.45 p.m. to re-assemble at 5 p.m. in the Foreign office, which French and Belgian officials pressing for severe penalties, informed sources said the Powers were considering issuance of a virtual ultimatum to Germany, giving Adolf Hitler 24 hours to reply to a demand for evacuation of the Rhineland before the Locarno Powers reconvened tomorrow on its course against the Reich.

An authoritative French source said Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin entered today's conference, reassured by a United France-British front, and Belgium as well as the Soviet, backing for sanctions.

WIDOW'S MITE, D.C. AN INDIAN PRISON

Romance of Indian Chief and English Widow Revived in Legends

Washington, March 14—(CP)—The capital of the United States does not stand on the historical piece of land called "The Widow's Mite." There was a Widow's Mite, however — possibly there were two parcels of Washington land which bore that designation. One may have existed in fancy only.

The legend of the Widow's Mite has been discovered by writers of the American Guide, the government's forthcoming five-volume travel handbook, who are assigned to the District of Columbia.

The legend says that among the white captives of Chief Manmee, chief of the Anacostia tribe which gave its name to the river flowing through the eastern edge of the District of Columbia — was a young Englishwoman, a widow. The chief fell in love with her and spurned in his suit, determined that no other man should have her.

In his territory grew an oak tree of great size which was a landmark known far and wide. Manmeacanet decreed that she should occupy a hut under this tree and that she must not stray beyond its shade on pain of death.

For many years she occupied this hut with her little daughter Gwara, and when Chief Manmeacanet went to the happy hunting ground the widow had become so much attached to her prison that she refused to leave it.

It is told that the Maryland Legislature gave her a tract of 17 ½ acres around her oak in appreciation of her sufferings. The widow is supposed to have willed the "mite" to Gwara, with a special admonition that she care for the tree. The legend declares that the United States government sought to purchase the property as the site of the capital, but that its overtures were rejected by the widow's dutiful descendants.

FOUR NOMINATED IN NOBEL PRIZE

Names of Lady Aberdeen and Three Others up For Decision

Oslo, Norway, March 14 (CP)—In addition to Lady Aberdeen, widow of a former Governor-General of Canada, names put forward for the Nobel peace prize for 1936 include Prince Carl of Sweden, Baron Pierre de Coubertin of France and Cari von Ossietzky of Germany.

The prize is suggested for Lady Aberdeen because of her prominence in international women's organizations. Prince Carl is president of the Swedish Red Cross and Baron de Coubertin was founder of the modern Olympic games.

Von Ossietzky is a pacifist and writer. He was for two years prisoner in a concentration camp. His nomination is sponsored by certain members of the Swiss National Assembly and by the Norwegian Labor party.

No Nobel peace prize was awarded in 1935 and there is a possibility two will be given this year.

LEAGUE WARNS DRIVERS

"Do not rush flooded sections of the highways," was the advice to motorists given by an official of the Ontario Motor League last night.

There is the danger of spraying water over the wiring and ignition of the car, stalling the motor, and leaving the traveler in an awkward position, the league official warned. "Proceed in low gear, slowly and deliberately, whether on the main flooded highways or on sideroads where the traction is poor," was the advice.

Parr, minister of a Congregational church, during a discussion as to whether women should be allowed at church services with their hats off, with his assenting to hats being worn in the church. He was still further.

"If their shoes pinch — and to judge from the way some women shuffle their feet they often do— I have no objection if they take their shoes off, too," declared the minister.

SIDELIGHTS

SPIRIT OF CO-OPERATION

The spirit of co-operation and goodwill was never more marked than it is in Belleville at the present time when untoward conditions have upset routine, the flood driving residents out of their homes to be taken in hospitable homes, when losses are piling up for so many with damaged furniture and walls and floors, when the merchants suffer with trade interrupted and with heavy losses to stocks caught in the cellars and even on the street floors in the lower parts of the city. There is a fine spirit which has been manifested by the authorities, the firemen, the police, of the city and the provincial police and the highway traffic officers, the V.O.N. and the service clubs, and everyone who can lend a hand to ease the burden on the sufferers.

Readers of the Ontario Intelligencer which has been severely handicapped by water conditions necessitating the printing of the newspaper out of town have been very kind and appreciative of the difficulties under which publication has been carried on. The management of the Ontario Intelligencer is grateful to its readers and its advertisers for their consideration.

THE FLOOD

Belleville's worst flood in many years entered its fifth day today with almost all the inundated property still under water. This condition is unusual, as the amount of heavy ice and the amount of ice which came down with the break-up. Citizens have risen manfully to the emergency and a great deal of property saved, but the work of reclamation from the waters has begun. Motors, valuable equipment, stocks, have been removed, the roads have been opened as far as possible and conditions are beginning to get themselves.

The west side is not so accessible as it was. With the lower bridge handicapped by flooding on Bridge Street West and the foot bridge crossing, an immense traffic proceeds by way of the upper bridge.

In old time floods motoring had not come or was only in its infancy, but today the motor car plays its part in getting about. The use of buses and of the boundary bridge makes for greater accessibility than in the days of long ago flooding.

The flooded bridge will be sorely missed until it is replaced. There is nothing in the city which serves more effectively than the wooden bridge across the Moira. Immediate reconstruction of the bridge is imperative.

The flood has turned men's thoughts towards the problem of possible protection against the ice and water and ahead of that later when the more pressing question of flood relief has been settled and the return to normal conditions has come.

GERMANY ALONE

Germany has found herself in an isolated position and in the realm prevents her understanding what is the reason for this. If Germany were normal she would not find herself in this position but if it were possible to find the answer the causes of this she would find the blame in herself.

Hitler's nation cannot claim that this is because of jealousy of Germany. Such loneliness as Germany has is the proof of outraged international morality. In her mood Germany cannot understand this. And yet this is the nation that talks of the need of "equality" among the nations.

If Germany could see she would understand that she cannot be trusted. Her tearing up of the treaty in 1914 followed twenty-four years of peace during which the other treaties justly gives the world ground for misgivings as to the honorable principles of the Reichsfuehrer and his Reich. No other nation is making a bid for rearmaland with his troops in contravention of treaty. Had he wanted change, he would have sought it in the gatherings of the nations. Instead he is making a bid for peace to carry out her principles without co-operation and the subsequent acts are the basis of the loneliness which she deliberately has brought upon herself.

This isolation must bring Germany to think of her dangerous position if nothing else will. It means that she is hopelessly outnumbered if assemble nations if it comes to a test of arms' strength. Germany is not what she was in 1914, even if the other nations of the world are not, but with Russia and Czechoslovakia as allies she find herself hopelessly outclassed as far as military strength goes. She would also lose trade. Indeed German bankers are reported as having warned Hitler that his economic isolation will bring disaster upon Germany.

Hitler's game, whether it is just raising madness, or is a melodramatic gesture to please the Germans, is wrongly calculated. He has stirred not only Germans, but Frenchmen, Russians, and countless millions of others, to think in a different way. He has stirred them to feel that never again must a mad lunesanie force of a self-willed nation hazard civilization. Hitler's only normal way would be a modern one along with wisdom, but that is not his way.

A NORTHERN BUILDER

HOMER BLACK IS DEAD — John Homer Black. That may not mean much to folks along the "Front," folks who live the sedate life of the older communities, but it means much to those pushing, progressive argonauts who have made the land of the stunted pine — the country north and west of North Bay, a progressive, prosperous hinterland, a land if not flowing with milk and honey, at least flowing with silver and gold.

x

John Homer Black was one of the builders of Northern Ontario. He was keenly and actively interested in the operation and extension of railways all through the north land. He was a firm believer in the existence of mineral wealth in abundance under the grey and cobalt hills of that amazing community called Cobalt, and he was almost overnight-in haphazard fashion. His optimism helped to bring millions of United States dollars for investment in mining development. Electric power developed at Niagara Falls was also assisted by him, as well as water power development and the establishment of pulp and paper mills.

Homer Black started railroading like Edison and other notables, as telegraph operator at a small station. He was station agent at Sharbot Lake building the track here this spring and summer. It is said that numerous railways will be constructed, while the building of the House of Refuge by the county, the Curtis Publishing Library and possibly the Armouries by the Government will be some considerable work to carpenters and masons.

Mr. Morley Sine who will leave here shortly for Western Canada was tendered a banquet by a number of his friends at the Victoria Hotel on Monday and on evening he was presented with a handsome gold locket.

For Queen Alexander School the stars were Rickey, Ketcheson, and Collins, while Deacon in goal did good work. L. Wells was a capable referee. The following composed the teams: Queen Alexander—Goal, Deacon; defence, Ketcheson, Rickey, Boyle and Roberts. Queen Mary:—Wesse, Baker, McWilliams, Latta, Hagerman, Palmer and Weir.

Miss Edna Thrasher read a letter from Miss Vera Tay, the meeting closed with a hymn, the National Anthem and prayer for peace by Mrs. Cyrus Summers and the pastor.

Several of the homes in Rawdon Township are finding their cellars flooded, with huge depths of water covering their fields. A few of the highways have almost lost their ways. On Wednesday evening and all day Thursday Mr. Frank Hutchinson, Rawdon, had his horses trained at his post owing to the flooded condition of the highway track from Hoard's to Stirling.

Three Up Star Has Busy Day

Ames, Ia., March 14.—(CP)—About the busiest athlete of Iowa State college these days is Fred Peak, three sports star.

On a recent Saturday he competed with the track team in the afternoon, tying with Capt. Lynn Philson of Drake to add in Blaine Peterson in the dual meet. Then in the evening he donned a basketball uniform and played against the Oklahoma game.

In the fall he plays end and basketball for the football team and does the kicking.

On the Northern Railroad Mr. John Holmes and a large gang of men left Rawdon at 8 a.m. Thursday morning in the drenching rain trying to open culverts and divert the water which was flowing in three directions and they were again busy Thursday. In many places the roadbed was simply flooded with water, doing a great deal of damage to the tracks.

At Mount Pleasant on Wednesday the water was higher than it was in several feet on both sides of the new road bed. Mr. Wm. Thrasher on Thursday morning the water broke through underneath.

Mr. Jas. Boundary road to Rawdon and Seymour the mail is carried by Mr. Frank Pearsall, the carrier. Mr. Fred McDonald, Rawdon, left the usual trip through on Thursday and was compelled to cross through between Mr. Scott's and Mr. Wm. Thrasher's, few families missed their mail.

Mr. Wm. Ostrom, Odawa, road boss, has been with Mr. John Holmes for the past few days overseeing the Northern Railroad, which is in very bad condition.

Mrs. Blake Sharpe, the four-months' old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sharpe, Rawdon, passed away on Friday, March 13, following an attack of measles and bronchitis.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Holmes who have been holidaying in Rawdon for several weeks have returned to their home at Mount Pleasant.

Mrs. Glenn Morden underwent an operation for appendicitis in the Belleville General Hospital Thursday last.

Owing to the flood of water a part of the dam at Mr. Fred King's grist mill has been washed away.

Mr. Wm. Thrasher, Spencer spent a day this week with Mrs. W. Beckett and Mrs. Morris Rose.

Owing to the condition of roads and heavy snow storms the Rebekah Lodge postponed their meeting Thursday evening which was to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Hoover.

HEAVY LOSSES IN STIRLING THROUGH FLOOD

Rawdon Creek Overflows Banks And Sweeps in on Village

NARROW ESCAPES

Several Business Places Are Badly Flooded by Water

Stirling, March 16.—(Special)—Many of the residents were quite unprepared for heavy losses by the floods which struck Stirling with such exception. For twenty hours the local fire department assisted by volunteer workers fought the persistent flood in the history of the village, during which time the streets became a raging torrent of water, which over ran the banks of Rawdon Creek, filled and flooded the first floor of many dwellings, most of the business places and homes in the east end of the village suffered heavy losses. Residents were taken from their unwarned homes in boats and the violence of the torrent in Mill St. tore up the sidewalk and pavements. The puke-up of ice in the pond with ever increasing depths threatened the dam and bridge and taxed to their limit.

Shortly after through the home of R. H. Williams knee deep, Mr. Harry Francis suffered losses greater than any resident. Motor boats plied between the homes in the village and heavy losses. Residents were taken from their unwarned homes in boats and the violence of the torrent in Mill St. tore up the sidewalk and pavements. The puke-up of ice in the pond with ever increasing depths threatened the dam and bridge and taxed to their limit.

Shortly after through the home of R. H. Williams knee deep, Mr. Harry Francis suffered losses greater than any resident. Motor boats plied between the homes in the village and his home right in the pathway of a river of rushing water. The basement, the garage walls high, and his place of business a block away suffered heavy losses. Mr. Francis' main floor, and the cellars and basements of Mr. Griffin's store, Griffin's Furniture Store, Rollins Barber Shop, Reynolds' Shoe Store and Mrs. Wright's millinery store badly flooded during the hours of the early morning. Over-all the damage done during the night narrowly escaped injury and two almost drowned.

Gordon Bailey of the Stirling Hydro Office, who had moved his family washed helpless down the new, by formed rapids for seventy-five yards, but with the help of others to catch hold of a light pole and hold on until help came to rescue the gained safety. This was all in the night's work for these men, who worked tirelessly and did all in their power what they could to fight the flood. Mr. Wright's shoe store on the west side, when he waded through water waist deep he stepped into a whirlpool, he managed to keep his head above water, and pulled himself out. Fortunately he was not injured most. The cellar, bakeshop and store house at the rear were all flooded with water, but by the grace part of his residence. The actual loss in Mr. Wright's case is not known for a few days. But to business places, private homes and stores it will run into the thousands of dollars. And still Stirling has escaped the full force and damage of other places is considered. The Stirling Hotel guests were given every attention, and kept warm while the heating plant in the basement was flooded. Every effort in the water began to lower the fire department set its pumping equipment to work, pumping the cellars and snow began to fall with a low-ering temperature which is not much relief for those who are without fires.

Horticultural Society Meets

A meeting of the Stirling Horticultural Society was held in the horticultural hall on Tuesday afternoon with a large attendance. Interesting reports of the year's activities were presented by the various committees. Future activities for the coming year were discussed and it is expected that Mr. J. F. Clarke, Ontario Horticultural Representative for Ontario will be in Stirling to give an illustrated address on Tuesday, April 14th. Further notice of the time and place to be arranged later. Mrs. Gordon Morden was appointed a delegate to attend the date in mind. Many problems in connection with gardening will be explained by this prominent speaker. The society has a membership of over 100 this year which will take place in the early fall. Much interest is being taken in this fast growing organization whose aim it is to beautify the village and district in which it is located. The past few years have shown a remarkable progress in this direction and a large part of the credit for this progress is due to the efforts of the horticultural society. Another interesting feature of the year was a short paper given by Mrs. R. Hoard on the "Growth of Child Culture" which as the social organ of the W.M.S. has gained for itself a wide circulation setting forth all information of the work in the various fields and on the workers themselves.

After the singing of "Thy way not mine" Rev. Mr. Cooke of Stirling brought to a close with the Lord's Prayer after which the hostess served refreshments.

Stirling, March 16.—(Special)—In spite of the floods and bad weather of the past two days rink and curlers supplied good fun for the second game of the Central Hockey League play-downs between Stirling and Madoc on Friday. One of the largest crowds of the season was on hand with a large representation from both Stirling and Madoc. They were good and the game real speedy. Madoc took the lead in the first game of a three game series, when they met in Madoc on Wednesday night. They scored two goals in the first straight bat on fast ice in their own favor. Stirling gave them the works, and when the bell went to end one of the fastest games ever seen in Stirling was credited along with a two goal lead. The last two out of three games will be played in Stirling on Monday night and as the best game of the year is sure to pack 'em in.

The Game

When Referee Ross Burtt of Belleville dropped the puck the game was on and Stirling started at top speed having a decided edge on the first few minutes of play. Leslie and Robinson boxing close on most of their forward rushes. Madoc began to get organized, and their systematic combination plays started them in scoring position on several attempts but they couldn't get the puck by Ackers in the nets. They got the first counter in about twelve minutes of play when during a mix-up in front of the nets one of the rubber bounced off a player's shoulder into the net. Stirling started it on again and Nickle made some wonderful saves. Scuffle tied up with a body-check and a mix-up in the blue line and the first period ended with Madoc 1-0 with no penalties to either team.

Shortly after the start of the second period Madoc added another to pass from Wallace to make it 2-0 for the Madoc team. Stirling's offensive was much the best with every rush being dangerous. Robinson, Leslie, Hill and Jeffery began to rough up a bit. Ingram grabbed a loose puck and passed it over to the other counter to make it four.

Madoc began to gang in their end and Ackers made a fine rubber came at him from all directions. Stirling finally began to get going and Tulloch was chased and followed closely by Hill and Jeffery. Jeffery made it real warm for Morton who was showered with rubber but somehow managed to stop them. Madoc was the next one to get the gallery behind them right after a goal or two finally-looking Stirling forward Hill and Jeffery skated as busy as he has been this season.

Last Period

Madoc sent every man up with the the opening of the last period and Stirling rushed back to their own goal but the goalie, it drew a rise from the crowd as he made save after save forward after him but he slipped it in the top corner to make it 5-0. Stirling came back to get on the game for the red shirts drifting through with a goal to make a long shot at centre. With the score 5-2 Stirling began to coast and Madoc to bear down. Jeffery and Hill hovered around the Stirling nets, Jeffery finally broke away and as they pressed and were getting results for shortly after they ganged in on Morton and scored on the counter from a scramble to make it 6-4. Time came and Stirling were still trying hard and Stirling shooting it down the ice. It was one of the fastest games of the season and in spite of the big score there teams to be well matched. It would be hard to pick the winner. But after next Monday it will all be over one way or the other. This is the last game for Madoc in eight games.

Madoc—Goal, Nickle; defence, Whytock and West; centre, Keiler; wings, Wallace and Scoffe; subs, Ross Brothers, Emery and Smith.

Stirling—Goal, Ackers; defence, Ingram and Ackers; centre, Robinson; wings, Wallace and Scoffe; alternates, Hill, Tulloch, Jeffery.

Referee—Ross Burtt.

SHOPGIRLS CALL GARBO BLESSED

Screen Star Not Keen on Swedish Society, Makes Hit Elsewhere

Stockholm, March 14.—(CP)—Hesitation again to the call of Hollywood, Greta Garbo, incurable Swedish, left Paris, it is understood to be almost ready to return to America.

Seen enjoying winter sports at Are, a fashionable resort in the province of Jamtland, in company with Count and Countess Wachtmeister, she discredited reports that illness in health caused her physician to advise delay in her return to work.

In Stockholm, with the exception of a brief period at Christmas time when she had a cold, she has been in evidence at theatres, in restaurants and on shopping tours.

The Swedish movie-going public continued to give the lie to stories that Garbo was not what other United States as an entirely new personality; with hair-curled into modern coiffure and with clothes, from hat to shoes, in keeping with latest fashions.

Seen here in Sweden's capital, Garbo was still addicted to those mannish hats, pulled down to the heeled shoes, and an air of complete indifference to what other women were wearing.

Her theatre-going more often than not and she has seen every legitimate stage show here — last insisted of missing the Swedish premiere, and had pulled low over her face.

Shop girls swear by her. "She never makes a fuss," explained one. She just buys what she likes, when she wants, and it isn't necessary to put the whole store on the counter for her."

Smart society in Stockholm has not yet been able to persuade her one night life does not claim her. Her friends, in the Swedish capital, aside from the Wachtmeisters and Max Gumpel, the building engineer of Saltsjobaden, where Garbo has been in rumored romance for several years.

Negotiations relative to her next film are still underway, it is [illegible] Stockholm, but within the next future she is expected to start back for the studio lights.

BEATTY RESTS IN OLD ST. PAUL'S

Imposing Rites as Admiral Is Laid With Naval Dead

LONDON, Mar. 16 (CP)—Covered with the Union Jack which flew from the Iron, the flagship of the battle cruiser squadron which Admiral Beatty commanded at the Battle of Jutland, the body of the famous Admiral was taken with due pomp today to rest beside that of Admiral Jellicoe, also in Admiral's tomb in St. Paul's Cathedral.

The funeral followed the lines adopted at the burial of Earl Jellicoe last November. The procession was headed at the Horse Guards Parade. A naval guard of 100 was followed by the massed bands of the Royal Marines. Eight British admirals walked among the pall-bearers walking alongside the gun carriage. Then came distinguished officers, bearing the insignia of the late Earl, who died after several months' illness last year.

Immediately following walked the Duke of York representing the King, followed by the Duke of Kent. Earl Beatty's brother, Major William Vandeleur Beatty, was unable to attend through illness.

Kings Represented

Lord Milne represented the Duke of Connaught. The King of Norway, Italy and Rumania and various other Royal families and heads of governments were represented. Alfred Duff Cooper, Secretary for War, standing in place of Ramsay MacDonald.

Canada was represented by Col. G. P. Vanier, the High Commissioner's Secretary. The French and Belgian Ambassadors both attended. Captain Wassner represented the German Government, which sent a wreath of lilies and carnations with a swastika emblem on a ribbon. Viscount Biada represented the Italian Navy.

One hundred men each from the Grenadiers and the Royal Air Force represented the Army and the Air Service respectively. The Lord Mayor of London, Sir Percy Vincent, and the Corporation of the City were present in State.

Traffic Halts

Traffic ceased in the vicinity as the procession, with the gun carriage borne by naval ratings, left the parade ground to the solemn notes of Chopin's music.

It proceeded through the Admiralty Arch and passed Nelson's Column, the approaches to which were crowded with spectators. The route to St. Paul's lay along the embankment and up Ludgate Hill to the broad sweep before the Cathedral.

As the coffin was borne along the aisle to the catafalque, flanked with tall candles under the very centre of the dome, the hymn "He who would be valiant" was sung, followed by the "Nunc Dimittis," "The Lord is My Shepherd" and then came the lesson from the 21st Book of Revelations where the writer speaks of a new heaven and a new earth.

Words by Archbishop

The chief officiant at the service was the Dean of St. Paul's, Very Rev. W. R. Matthews, with Rt. Rev. A. F. Winnington-Ingram, the Bishop of London, assisting. The Archbishop of Canterbury delivered a short address.

"To his fellow-countrymen, as to comrades, he was, as one of these comrades has said, the very embodiment of the fighting spirit of the navy," said the Archbishop of Canterbury. "In him something of the spirit of Nelson seemed to come back."

Mystery of Flaming Fire

"As with Nelson—to use the words of an old chronicler—he was like a mystery of a flaming fire. In him as in Nelson the fire burned as a passion for victory. When any doubts came that the enemy was coming out, he was like one of his own hounds set free from the leash.

"In pursuit of victory he was ready to take all risks. As a horseman admire he feared no fence; as a commander at sea he feared no responsibility. Yet all this ardor was controlled by deeper forces. Behind the fire was forethought; behind the swift decision of a moment lay the careful planning of months."

After His Grace had spoken, Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar" was sung as a hymn to Parry's music. This was followed by a sounding of Beethoven's "Dead March" for four trombones. Then, as the last four trombones, "Sounds of command" addresses were pronounced, the coffin gradually disappeared through the floor into the crypt, to be moved to the final sepulchre in what is known as the Admirals' corner.

Recessional Sung

Kipling's "recessional" to Dykes' famous tune for "Eternal Father, strong to save" and "O God, our help in ages past" was sung. Then a brief silence was observed, followed by the bugles of the Royal Marines, awaking the echoes of St. Paul's with the last post.

This concluded the simple but stately obsequies and the procession, watched by tens of thousands of city workers, immediately reformed and marched smartly away.

Four motor coach loads of wreaths were taken to the cathedral. They were mostly composed of Flanders poppies, in accordance with the desire of the family, made by ex-servicemen.

SERGE MDIVANI KILLED AT POLO

Palm Beach, Fla., March 16 (AP) —Death in a polo game gave a final dramatic touch today to the colorful life story of 32-year-old Prince Serge Mdivani, one of the widely-known "marrying Mdivani" brothers.

While his bride of less than six weeks, the former Louise Astor Van Alen of Newport, R.I., collapsed at his side from the shock of grief, Prince Serge died late yesterday a few minutes after he was kicked on the head by his horse when which he had fallen.

The tragedy, recalling the death of his brother, Prince Alexis, in an automobile accident in Spain a few months ago, occurred on the Delray Beach polo field about 30 miles south of here.

Prince Serge's first wife was Pola Negri, motion picture actress. They were married in 1927 and divorced in 1931. His second wife was Mary McCormic, opera singer, who was married to him in 1931 and divorced in 1933. The singer was without restraint last night on learning Prince Serge had been killed.

Prince Alexis was the former husband of Countess Barbara Hutton Haugh wits-Reventlow, from whom he was divorced in Reno, Nev., last May, shortly before he was killed.

Prince David, only survivor of the famous three brothers, was married to Mae Murray, motion picture actress, in 1924 and divorced in 1933. He resides in California.

Prince Serge was born at Sighaun, Georgia, in Russia, in 1902. His father, General Zakhari Mdivani, was aide-de-camp to the Czar during the World War and later was secretary of War in the Georgian National Government. The family's oil properties in Georgia were taken over by Communists.

Pola Negri and Serge twice after their divorce. In 1931 she sued him for 2,000,000 francs she claimed was entrusted to him when they were married. Last year she sued for the return of $10,000 and a set. Mdivani was reported two weeks later.

Prince Serge was so fond of polo he interrupted his recent honeymoon on the chartered yacht Isolde to play at Flemington Field, Miami Beach.

Prince Serge's 27 year old widow is the great-granddaughter of Mrs. William Astor who once ruled New York and Newport society.

DAVID CHESNEY MURDER VICTIM

Problem Facing Police is Presence of So Much Blood

Wallaceburg, Ont., Mar. 16 (CP)—Chief problem facing provincial police investigating the death of David Chesney, 68, believed to have been murdered, is the presence of so much blood in the kitchen as well as in the vicinity of his little home in West Wallaceburg, it was stated today. Chesney, laborer, was found dead in a slightly crouching position behind his home Saturday.

At that time the battered condition of his right arm together with other marks on his body indicated he met death by foul means. As a result Dr. Fred W. Hall, coroner, Chatham, opened an inquest Saturday afternoon and adjourned sine die until provincial police complete their investigations.

An autopsy was performed early yesterday by Dr. E. R. Tuttle of Wallaceburg and the dead man's stomach and contents are to be sent to Toronto for analysis.

Married Twice

Chesney was married twice and his second wife survives. There are also a son, Harry, three daughters, Mrs. Barney Sponner of Detroit, Mrs. Warden Shortt of Sarnia, Mrs. R. Peters and Herbert Langton in their investigation work here yesterday.

Chesney was married twice and his second wife survives. There are also a son, Harry, three daughters, Mrs. Barney Sponner of Detroit, Mrs. Warden Shortt of Sarnia, Mrs. Arlen Lepers of Flint, Mich., and two sisters, Mrs. Davidson and Mrs. Walker of Brigden. After the inquest the body was released for burial and funeral services are to be held from first Baptist Church this afternoon with Rev. J. W. Duncan officiating.

Harry Chesney, only son of the murdered man, was sentenced to police court March 9 to a reformatory term following convictions on a wood theft charge. He was brought under guard to Wallaceburg yesterday from the Kent County Jail in Chatham for a last look at his father, broke down completely and cried. A few moments later he was taken back to jail for transfer to the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph.

Rescued From Drowning When Thermometer Was Below Zero

LAHAVE, N.S., March 14.—(CP) —A small ice cake to actuable cot for safety is "a mighty nice ice cake when you are 64 years old and fall in when it's 'way below zero'" writes R. W. James to a Halifax newspaper.

He was telling of his experience when he was almost drowned in the LaHave river last month.

"No, I was not afraid when I fell in," he wrote the newspaper, "but I feared for the men coming from the shore to help me for the ice on which they were approaching would not carry them and as soon as I could make them hear, I directed them on what I knew was best."

"I had got myself out and was on a small ice cake, but to me it was a mighty nice ice cake . . . I think that ought to satisfy everyone, and there should be no need of stretching anything".

DAVID MEISNER HAS 2ND TRIAL

Michael McCardell, Member of Kidnap Gang, to Testify

LONDON, Ont., March 16.—(CP) —More than a year after starting to serve a 15-year sentence for the kidnapping of John S. Labatt, David Meisner will go on trial today for a second attempt to prove his innocence. This time he will have at least one witness to testify on his behalf.

Michael McCardell, a confessed member of the gang that abducted Labatt in August, 1934, and held him for $150,000 ransom, is expected to testify for the defence that Meisner had nothing to do with the crime. McCardell, serving 12 years, has made this declaration frequently in court.

It was largely on McCardell's testimony that the Meisner case was reopened and which led Minister of Justice Ernest Lapointe to grant him a new trial.

MAGAZINES FACE FIRE IN COMMONS

Trashy Type Stirs Attack By Hon. R. B. Bennett

OTAWA, March 14.—On the magazine question Conservative Leader Bennett had protests in the House of Commons against admitting American magazines duty-free as he understands to justify the Tariff Board Government had imposed in 1931. The tariff had had two objects, to obtain revenue from the advertising carried in American publications and to restrict their circulation and their influence on Canadian National character.

Finance Minister Dunning said he was not insensible to the loss of revenue which would accompany the removal of the Tariff but he reminded the House Canada obtained guaranteed free entry for newsprint into the United States by the Tariff. He thought the Conservative fear of the effect of imported publications on Canadian character was a bogey and claimed in any case it could not be controlled by a Tariff; or even an embargo.

"I propose," said Mr. Bennett, against this expansion to an issue of 1,000,000 copies of magazines coming in with all this propaganda that influences our national life by trying to inculcate that it does no other country quite so great, no other form of government quite so much to be desired, no products quite so good and there is to be found on the other side of the line.

Moulding of Character

"When it comes to a question of moulding the character of young country this formative period of our existence are we to save it shaped and formed and blocked in accordance to the suggestions made to us from week to week and month to month in this great propaganda that is carried on, not for this particular purpose, but that is carried on just the same?"

Imposing a tariff to raise the price of American magazines would not remove the influence Mr. Bennett feared and feared needlessly thought Mr. Dunning. If magazines were higher in price fewer might be sold but they might still be read by as large a number of people, as they could be passed around, more from hand to hand. In any case he did not think protectionist institutions were endangered by comparison with other form of government or even by criticism.

A veteran Liberal member, Hon. Charles Marcil of Bonaventure, was more worried about the effect of cheap publications than about advertising. He thought the Government should take steps against trashy publications.

"If they want to do the Canadian people a real service," he said, "they should see that trashy magazines that circulate to pollute and degrade Canadian youth are banished from this country."

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was trying to make his cigar lighter work and ma said, Willyum, do you realise it's been years now since we've had a canary?

And yet some pessimists claim the world's not getting better, pop said, and ma said, just Willyum, seriously, I mean seriously, they have some lovely ones in the fish and bird store, the most ultra-ferret shades of yellow and all looking as if they're just pining to sing. Dr. Immerman Melba, Willyum? Melba never did axually make up her little mind to sing. Just remember the thrilling suspense we had waiting and watching for her to try? ma said.

That was the life, pop said, Melba had an inferiority complex. Many a time I've seen her try bravely to shake it off, but all she succeeded in doing was shaking a few ounces of partly fresh bird seed all over me. I sat quietly reading my paper. Ah, yes, indeed, he said, and ma said, I've often thought that perhaps her range was limited or her tone not very clear, so she really didn't want us to hear her voice. I mean she really was an intelligent bird.

The yard that came after her more than made up for her deficiency, pop said, mad ma said, O, you mean Percy. There was no question of Percy being a singer, he fairly sang his little hart out, and such tones, she said.

Such tones is rite, pop said. Oft in the silly nite I would be dozing peacefully in my chair coy to be aroused by a symfunny of tin engines, steem whistles and riveting machines, and it always turned out to be little Percy all by himself. High ho, those were the days, he said, and ma said, Now Willyum I really believe you're against my getting another canary, so why don't you come rite out and say so?

I don't know what gives you such an idea as that, pop said, and ma said, I can see through you as through an open book, that's how I know. I think I'll get some goldfish instead, she said.

There's nothing like a nice quiet goldfish, pop said.

Police, firemen and citizens of Belleville worked far into the night trying to clear buildings and streets as cold weather threatened to freeze water in flooded homes and buildings. Many cellars are still completely filled with water from the flooding Moira river. The above pictures show some of the scenes in the flood-stricken city. (1) Pigeons rescuing a citizen suffering from cold and exposure. (2) Marvin Richardson saves his dog from the flood. (3) Jack Johnson attempting to rescue some of the furniture from the flooded home. (4) A citizen clearing huge blocks of ice from in front of his place of business. (5) Some of the homes completely isolated by flood waters. Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

Ann Forester

"My precious girl," crooned Honey. "Precious baby girl!" And the tears rolled down her sapple-hard cheeks.

Pa was busy getting Dale's suitcases into the truck. "They were silent." Dale gasped. "Honey—I wouldn't tell you when I was sick because I knew—and I—Brant and Brink—Honey!"

"I know, Lamb. "I know."

"But, Honey — there's something else. I mustn't go out without tellin' you—you see, there's going to be a baby."

"Lord love you, Lamb, did you think I didn't guess? All through your letter—Honey's child, you're a bit too much through as window glass."

The desert—Oh, it was beautiful. It was home. The broken ground casting long rays in the sinking sun. The winter rains had called out the desert flowers, blue and red and yellow and pink—from every hill, every hollow, as if they needed her welcoming.

So heartbreakingly familiar, the rough road winding over the hard earth, tearing the ground squirrels dashing across the road with agitated tails, of sitting motionless in the machine, settled to Dale's throbbing consciousness. Seeing rabbits crouching in the shelter of the roadside, hear sage twitching—just as it had been years ago....

Honey guessed her thoughts and tried to gain her attention with an inane conversation, but Dale was painfully alert. A wire about her heart—drawing taut.

There it was—small and lonely, hunched under the mesquite trees. Sashed red on the front windows, so that the little house seemed to be blazing. Fire in the desert had claimed the vegetable patch. But the rusty pipe Brant had laid from the well.....

The landscape swam in a haze of tears as Pa's old truck bumped over the road and down the swell of ground.

Some Kenny's orange grove.....

That made Dale think of the valley day when Brant had fought Kemp. The day she and Brant had learned that they loved each other. Oh, better that they had never learned it than she should know this forlornness.

It was almost dusk when they reached the Coast Road and Honey changed about getting dinner while Pa proudly displayed his new radio.

"We used to turn it on at night an' get the big station stuff," he explained in his gentle old voice, "and seems like we could almost see you all dressed up, darlin' in them swell hotels."

An ironic little sound caught at Dale's throat. Pa looked mildly surprised as she suddenly turned and kissed him.

At last Dale stood alone in the little room which Honey had given her as her own. Clean, bare floor, with scatter rugs made by Honey's busy fingers. The white iron cot was a crazy quilt, in which Pa's old shirts and Honey's discarded dresses figured largely. But there sat drawn up prim and demure was Dale's doll—the little child which had never lived to grow up.

A clear, and second little room. Dale fell the friendliness of it flowing about her, the security, love, Honey's and Pa's love.

The girl moved to the window and stood, her arms crossed, looking about her—warm, secure, like Honey's old Pa's love.

The girl moved to the window and stood for long moments looking out—looking at the Wide and free and still Starr of the desert, looking down on her like friendly eyes.

Yes, she was safe here. She could rest.

Dale found that she had begun to cry—cool, healing tears.

CHAPTER 14.

BIRTH!

To Dale, all that had gone before now seemed a restless dream. Like a wakening she lived in the desert, though the days were slow and otherwise the whip of necessity no longer cracked over the girl. She could rest.

Pa and Honey had driven her into Colt City to buy some cloth. Dale was in the rocker on the front porch and saved. More often than not, the sewing would lie, unregarded in her lap, while her eyes went out to where the mallee hills lost to sight. She was sad but not unhappy. At last she had rested her burden on Honey's broad shoulders and she was at peace.

She took long walks each day, as the doctor had advised, stopping frequently to rest, she wept back to the shack.

Heartbreak—in prowling about the lonely spot—yet there was sweetness too. Dale could whip up no bitterness toward Brank.in those days. Not even toward Mimi did Dale feel bitterness now. Mimi seemed almost pitifully artificial, not like something which would melt under the hopest desert sun.

Here was the place where Brank had fought Steve Kemp....The sun slanting through the grime of the windows to fall on the worn floor boards. And past yesterday she had passed Steve Kemp on the road. He had looked foolish and tried to evade her eyes. Dale herself had been dangerously close to laughing, the danger of him seemed so absurd, looking back on it from this distance.

COUNCIL HEARS REPORT ON BUILDING

ALDERMAN LEWIS DEFENDS ACTION OF RELIEF OFFICE

Head is Competent and Doing Everything Possible

COMPARATIVE FIGURES

Many Questions Asked by Aldermen After Accounts Presented.

When the relief accounts for the month of February were submitted to council at the evening session Deputy Reeve Clapp took exception to the distribution of the vouchers and this precipitated a lengthy debate on administration and other subjects related to relief in this city. Alderman Lewis, Chairman of the relief committee, and department, came to head of the defence of Relief Officer Mackenzie and doing everything in her power to make an equal distribution of vouchers and granting all fair and square.

Alderman Lewis gave a comparative statement of the cost of relief in February of this year with that of February in 1935 and took exception to the statement that there was a previous meeting, that the cost of relief in January 1936 was more than the cost in December of 1935. Alderman Lewis stated, that in January 1936 there were 1,183 families on relief, while in 1935 there were 438. Single persons on relief in 1935 were 90 and in January of 1936 only M. The individuals in each case were 1,712 and 1,711. The total amount spent in 1935 was $18,818.71, while in January 1936 the amount according to the Alderman's figures were $19,340.48. This was spent on the 1935 figure having the advantage of a week's extension. In the case of December 1934, the wages from which were deducted for employments three quarters of the way through January of 1935," said Alderman Lewis.

Turning to another matter, Alderman Lewis will take full responsibility for the statement made at the last meeting". The Chairman was given way by the Treasurer and I personally say the figures were correct as they were in January. The age upon which the city is paid is by the provincial census, as certified by the Treasurer.

FLOOD HELPS FARMER TO GET ICE SUPPLY

One of the more amusing stories of the present flood was related the day by officials of the local department of public works.

Backing into a large truck to the heaped-up ice cakes on Coleman St. yesterday, a rural resident from Edward County made arrangements to load some of the ice for his own use. Previous to that, however, City Foreman Clifford Mailloux was approached by the farmer for power to secure permission to take the ice.

"Take all you want of it," agreed the department head when the situation worked with the explanation that the solid cakes would be useless for the purpose of making ice cream.

WATER HIGHER IN CITY HALL CELLAR

"Over five feet of water in the basement and getting higher all the time," it was stated by caretaker Hall of the City Hall yesterday. With the boiler room flooded for the past two days, heating and electrical service in the various departments of the building have depended on electrical heaters and gas grates.

Can You Tell Me Where So-and-So Is?

"You now where I can find ....."

This was not an isolated question in Belleville today. It is one that is asked by flocks of tourists, men and others. Strange to know pretty well where people are located so as a result of the flood but the information collector is not so fortunate. He has to collect and he does not know where the insured live. And time means something with insurance companies.

When it is considered that about one hundred and fifty houses are in the flooded section which was inundated six days ago and that many persons have moved out, the complexity of the situation appears. Where relief cases are dealing their lists in Supervisor Hall and other authorities but where others are is not so easy a matter.

PROROGUE HOUSE BEFORE EASTER

Activity in Legislature Great-est Since Session Opened

TORONTO, March 17.— (CP)— With legislative activity gaving high this St. Patrick's Day in hopes of prorogation by Easter, the longest Legislature saving into the Budget debate, after starting off like wax, by making the best progress since the session opened February 13th.

Third reading was given six bills in yesterday's busy session before the House went into committee of the whole and Premier Hepburn called for complete data on Hydro Commissioner Thomas Adams' activities that asked the Labor Committee be summoned to discuss unemployment.

Col. W. H. Price, Conservative member for Durham, forbidden, broke the Opposition assault on the Budget, today, followed by Wilson Mitchell of Oroll at the first night session of the week.

Along with General Roebuck's Bill amending the summary Convictions Act, which was given its third reading since the provincial income tax Bill, two weeks ago, Clergy to make similar progress provided for appointing a timber coroner in each district, increased the membership of the York County Bench, amending the Mechanics' Lien Act and other provisions for the government assumption of roads in Sudbury area and another provided for licensing funeral directors.

Anti-Sub Device Called Fool-Proof

London, March 17—(CP)—Somerset De Chair, who at 24, is one of the youngest members of the House of Commons, made his maiden speech the occasion for announcing that British have an efficient, almost foolproof anti-submarine device.

De Chair, who said he hoped he was not betraying a great naval secret, told the House of Commons during the debate on the estimates for the navy, that the device is to be used to screen merchantmen in the event of war.

"Provided the device is known to the submarine collector is not so fortunate. He has to collect and he does not know where the insured live. And time means something with insurance companies.

BLASTING ASSISTS OPENING CHANNEL IN BAY OF QUINTE

Ice Able to Work Out From River Into The Bay

HUGE CAKES CUT

Debris From Flood is Deposited at Lower End of Front Street

Under the direction of City Engineer Chas. Hanna dynamiting was continued at the mouth of the Moira River all-day yesterday, with fine results. A channel some 40 feet wide and the depth long was made in the ice south of the C.P.R. bridge in the centre of the river and showed signs of diverting the water at a late hour last night. While the dynamiting was in progress by city workers, however, the C.P.R. placed ballast trains on their railway bridge to be ready to move same out at that point, the concussion being tremendous at times.

Early yesterday afternoon Engineer Mott and his city workmen were diverted from working on the Front Street into the Belleville harbour, previous to which this water had been dammed back at the entrance to the park with an idea in view of opening up the ice in the river and thereby cutting through the ice, as water could be seen to be coming up and eventually found running with the result that these barriers were finally diverted into the harbour.

Blasting Assists

The dynamiting on the river is believed to have assisted in the rise of the flood waters, as the ice floe at the upper end of the city moved considerably after the blasting started and no rise in the waters was noticed, the apparent cutting through the channel, that had been previously blasted below the railway bridge, evidently relieving the strain and thereby cutting through the ice, as water could be seen to be coming up and eventually found running with the result that these barriers were finally diverted into the harbour.

Huge Cakes Cut

Workmen of the public works department were busy Monday cutting huge cakes of ice that blocked Coleman, West Bridge, Victoria and Front Street with most satisfactory results and the higher mound of ice that ran through over these streets freely, but still must traverse the basements and be hoisted over the pavements on these streets. The large cakes of ice are either cut into smaller pieces and floated down-stream, or hauled away by means of a horse and chain attached to the huge ice particles.

While cutting the ice at the lower end of James Street, workmen came upon two pools that had been marooned by the rise in water. Apparently these craft had been used during the early days of the flood for rescue purposes, but had been found wanting under the circumstances as either craft got in the turbulent streams or had to be abandoned. In the case of ice as they passed over them. At any rate these boats were found by workmen and Mr. Hanna later he claimed by their owners.

SPRIG OF GREEN MUCH IN EVIDENCE

The gay sprig of green and the proverbial day rose were in evidence in the city today although temperatures were not high enough to observe St. Patrick's Day in the Emerald Isle to the full. The heavy snow and the following rain later in the day created a depressing condition, however, in spite of ever, there will be the usual parties and celebrations arranged by the loyal supporters of the day.

Flood Relief Fund

At the request of Mayor Harry Hill and the City Council the Ontario Intelligencer herewith opens a fund for the relief of sufferers by the flood. Many families have been badly hit by the flood, property has been destroyed, food destroyed and homes made unfit for habitation. All of this entails a large expense upon a number of good citizens whose resources are thus swept away. Citizens and neighbors in position to do so will no doubt be glad to assist in any way the flood sufferers. Contributions, large or small will be cheerfully received and acknowledged through this column.

A relief committee has been appointed which will have the administration of the fund in charge. The committee will consist of Mayor Hill, Alderman Armstrong, Belleville Rotary Club; President J. B. Boyce, Rotary Club; President Frank Donnelon, Kiwanis Club; President Dr. Ross, Kiwanis Club; President Jack Marshall, Y's Men's Club; W. E. Rowsome; I. G. Last Appeal to Britain Will be Made by France

Gravest Moment in Post-War History Reached Today in Meeting of Locarno Powers and Declines Council Session

By CHARLES P. NUTTER

London, Mar. 17 (AP)—French sources announced Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin, at an audience with King Edward today, would make a "last appeal" to Britain to fulfill her Locarno obligations.

Although the audience was described officially as a "courtesy visit", a French spokesman said, "that does not prevent the important questions arising from taking place."

After his audience with Flandin at 4:30 p.m. (11:30 A.M.E.T.), the King also was to receive Paul Van Zeeland, Premier and Foreign Minister of Belgium.

Ministerial Meetings.

Flandin, it was understood, might agree in today's negotiations for consultations of economic and financial sanctions against Germany for violation of the Locarno Pact and the Versailles Treaty. Informed sources however, said there was little hope of any definite action forthcoming.

A French spokesman frankly described the situation as "the gravest moment in post-war history was reached with today's meeting of the Locarno powers and the decisive council session.

The future, the spokesman said, depended upon the British reaction to French proposals for sanctions against Germany.

Flandin was understood to have told the Locarno meeting flatly determined to press the British for a clear-cut assurance, as to what they would do to uphold the Locarno Pact and to give the French immediate assistance in the event of a German attack.

The French delegation was described reliably as feeling that after the failure of efforts with Locarno powers and the League Council, they would have no further interest in London negotiations.

Furthermore, the French were said to feel, the League has about run its course as an "international instrument" and that a new system might be in the beginning of the end of the League in this role.

Premier Hepburn Heard.

The diplomats of the Locarno powers met in the Foreign Office and journed at 12:30 p.m. (7:30 a.m. E.S.T.).

French sources said they were aware they had placed the British in a difficult position by their demand for immediate action but that the circumstances made the rejection of their request for assurances of British aid.

Premier Hepburn was the reply in British official circles today to reports from Geneva that Britain is considering giving new Rhineland guarantees to France.

Berlin, Mar. 17 (AP)—All indications pointed today to German acceptance of the British plan for negotiations Council session, dealing at Locarno with Germany's occupation of the Rhineland, unless Adolf Hitler experienced a sudden change of mind.

Conservatives And Liberals Battle Over Labor And Tariffs

Ottawa, March 17—(CP)—Debate on the Canada-United States trade agreements entered its second day in the House of Commons. Item by item consideration of the treaty tariff changes is the first order of business today but only 14 of the 140-odd changes in the Canadian tariff remained to be passed.

Sharp political clashes between Conservatives and Liberals and occasional digressions into the broadcasting of prohibited speeches by Canadians over United States radio featured yesterday's debate.

Behind the treaty moves were ordered closed for a two-day period by the spread of the epidemic among that village's X-200 inhabitants.

Steel Alcohol Implement Duty

The United States seemed at one stage of the debate on the verge of getting a larger concession in the Canadian tariff than it is prepared for in the treaty. This was on agricultural implements which proved a bone of contention between the sitting.

The treaty reduces the duty of 15 1-2 per cent and a number of Liberals, including Agriculture Minister Michael J. Stack (D-Pa), who formerly was secretary to Representative William B. Barry (D-NY) formerly Mayor and Representative John J. Kindred (D-Dublin) from County Limerick.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Crookville, O., March 17 (CP) —A farmer and his three sons narrowed deep into their family cellar to an attempt to rescue "Fannie", a five-year-old yearling cow-in from which City Brown and his sons saved her life during the natural 15 days ago.

Fannie and Brown kept alive with food and water shoved through a hole in the floor and some entry bet a new cave in which occurred in the Brown home. Only father carried to release the pet, sealed the hole.

Little danger isn't going to keep me and my boys from digging out Fannie," declared Brown. "Even if we have to shut down the mine and devote all our time to digging her out. Like losing more of that pony than anything else we possess."

Rochester, N.Y., March 17 (AP) —More than a third of the population of Monroe County, including Rochester and suburbs in the county was estimated to be suffering from an epidemic of grippe.

Schools in nearby Brighton were ordered closed for a two-day period by Health Director Dr. Ross McClusky.

Washington, March 17 (AP)— On this St. Patrick's Day three members of the United States House of Representatives, who are natives of the old sod and unashamedly proud of it, were absent.

Ireland is a land of many geese. There is no "Mother" in Ireland; St. Patrick actually did drive the snakes out, and that corn beef and cabbage while delicious, are also not an Irish dish.

There were hurried consultations on the governments, and the Finance Minister Dunning protested the bill was out of order.

Treaty Unchangeable

Prime Minister Mackenzie King intervened to say he had signed the treaty and it must be taken as it was. He said the treaty unchangeable could be made even if it involved a new convention as the United States likely to please that country.

Mr. Dunning said Mr. Coldwell had to press his motion as it might prejudice the cause of lower duties on British goods if he voted against it.

The C.C.F. member allowed the matter to drop and Mr. Kipp said personally he favored further reductions. Mr. Dunning on Discussion. He promised to use his influence with Mr. Bennett, when this about when the budget is brought down.

Exports Increase

February trade figures showed the treaty was having a beneficial result, Mr. Dunning told the House today. Exports to the United States increased $6,500,000 over Feb. 1935, the largest increase for the total of any year since 1930.

Tempers became frayed occasionally, Conservatives asking setting questions about the American tariff rates on Canadian goods, on which Canadian rates were lowered to the quantities of goods on the basis of many Conservative questions.

Hon. C. H. Cahan (Cons. St. Lawrence-St. Georges Montreal) told the Minister he would get faster if he did not make provocative remarks.

"Words of Time"

Mr. Dunning said he had no desire to be provocative but thought it was a matter of time giving a lot of information. There was a matter of public record and which every member possessed had in his possession.

IRELAND OBSERVES ST. PATRICK'S DAY IN QUIET MANNER

Shops Are Closed And No Processions Take Place as in Other Years

ELECTIONS SOON

De Valera Government Has Lost Much of Its Earlier Popularity

By DENIS O'CONNELL

Dublin, Irish Free State, Mar. 17 (AP)—Ireland observed the day of St. Patrick, its patron saint, today, but in the words of one veteran, Pitts is more like a day of national mourning than a day of national rejoicing."

Shops were closed, the Irish flag flew over all public buildings, the theatres were dark, taverns and the children were bedecked in Irish costumes, all gay and brave enough. But the spirit was not.

The great processions of the past apparently were dead.

"Twenty-five years ago," one old resident recalled, "there were demonstrations on St. Patrick's Day which were demonstrations."

Today, he commented, "since Ireland got her freedom, you can't even depend on a demonstration on St. Patrick's Day. Today all the beer shops are closed and it is an offence for any drink to be bought on licensed premises."

No Gaiety.

"Ireland will be quiet tonight, too, tomorrow and the day after. There must get permission to hold it from a magistrate. In many parts of the country, there will be no dancing, the magistrates having declined permission.

Beneath the day's observance ran an undercurrent of political rivalry with a general election soon to decide the future of the regime of President Eamon de Valera.

An increase in taxation, during the past year, which has been contributed to discontent although Irish industries are largely revived under the present welfare.

Neutral sources agree that the De Valera government has lost much of its popularity of four years ago especially in the left wing of the president's party, the Fianna Fail.

SCOTS SAY KING IS EDWARD II

Scottish Patriots Say Historic Rights Are Overlooked

London, March 17.—(AP)— The wall of bag-pipes over the border in Scotland, however, is not for King George V., has become patriotic cry with the protest of those patriots who say their historic rights have been overlooked again.

The fact that the King is, they say, is not the eighth at all—he is Edward II.

Under the treaty of union when, by Scotland finally joined the "auld sister" nation with the Stuart Hills, a prime condition of the treaty was that Scotland join the union—not merely an absorption of Scotland by England.

Thus it was that when James VI of Scotland went to London to become sovereign of both the Kingdom he became James I of England, Britain.

By the same token, it is contended, the union when Queen Victoria died and the throne passed to her grandfather, Edward VII, came to Scotland as Edward VII, and was styled Edward I—despite the fact that between the union there had been six previous Kings of England named Edward.

A mighty gathering of Scottish clans, highlanders and lowlanders will march in Edinburgh tomorrow to protest against the "violation of the country's rights."

They maintained if Scotland's own King James V became King of England, the present Queen's monarch of the newly unified countries, then Scotland's records would show her the first Edward since the union—should similarly be called King Edward V.

Now the new King they maintain, should be Edward II.

Sterilization Operation Presents No Bad Affects

BADLY NEEDED

Windsor, Ont., March 17.—(CP) —Sterilization of the feeble minded and those unfit to take their place in society is a necessity if the collapse of the civilization is to be averted, Dr. W. Brown, Chatham biologist, told a Service Club yesterday.

Dr. Brown said sterilization is often considered to involve serious surgical operations. It is, he stated, a simple one or tying the tubes in a constituency. He described as a "myth" that the sterilization is followed by a mental collapse or obesity. He said it had no deleterious effects on the patient.

"The public must be educated if we are to prevent the decline of civilization. There are two ways of doing this. One is the encouragement of the propagation of superior types among children today. The other is the sterilization of the morons or inferior type."

"The Belleville branch of the Red Cross is willing to co-operate with all relief organizations in bringing to the flooded districts," stated Mr. I. G. Herbert, chairman of the Red Cross in Belleville, to the Ontario Intelligencer yesterday.

"So far we have supplied blankets and cots to anyone requiring them and any person or body can get them by applying to the Red Cross Society.

Mr. Herbert also thought that some public building could be fitted up with cots and blankets for the use of those families whose homes are flooded so badly that they cannot be lived in.

Over two dollars has been contributed by the Red Cross to the Flood Relief fund.

Household Goods Float to Bay

Although it eventually proved anything but humorous to those affected, there was a few odd and comical sights witnessed during the height of Thursday and Friday's flood period, when all kinds of household goods were floating downstream with the raging waters towards the lower levels of "sav-dust flats".

"I realized some persons were today minus property," said by an radius, chesterfields, arm chairs, dressers and even whole bedroom suites, while we were turning our attentions towards the rescuing of stranded families. Even the commercial, at times," stated Jim—Mc—McGuire, as he viewed the Welsh other heroic citizens worked night and day during the height of the flood to save the flood-stricken families from the rampaged areas.

"Of course, we had our laughing matter, but as we struggled against these turbulent waters of Thursday and Friday at a small's pace and saw large pieces of furniture being tied up and down in the middle of the streets on Coleman and James streets, and realized fully how serious the bay, it was funny at times. Of course we later assisted in removing whatever furniture remained floating, but our sole object in the early days of the flood, was the safety of the lives of our friends and neighbours."

Kerfoot of Toronto. The floral tributes were many, and all very beautiful. Interment was made in Glenwood Cemetery.

Sense of Humor in Serious Situation

Even as the height into this city's worst flood in years there was some little humour shown by those most seriously affected. In one isolated home at the lower end of Jones Street, that had been washed submerged for two days as one of the younger members of the family rose slightly earlier than the remainder of the household on Sunday morning.

Suddenly and with a lusty voice he shouted to these members of the family still enjoying their Sunday morning's sleep—"The flood's all over, I released the family "dove" an hour ago and it has not returned, so it must have found dry land some place."

SEASON'S FIRST ROBIN COMES WITH FLOOD

Reports of robins having been heard in the vicinity of the north end of this city and other districts around the city were prevalent over the week-end, but seemed to have "Phil" at he is an avid known around the city, makes the first assertion he had actually seen the little bird, that spells the breaking up of a hard winter.

SECURING HEAT PRINCIPAL AIM

Every Kind of Device Used to Pump Water Out of Cellars

As the waters of the Moira receded from the flooded Front Street business houses, on Front Street centred their attention on one thing, the removal of water from cellars to allow such lighting their furnaces or heating plants. Suction pumps, water pumps, hand pumps and a number of fact every conceivable device for the pumping of water was seen in operation along Front Street last night and again this morning as merchants laboured frantically to relieve the situation, that had last downtown Belleville besieged for practically five days.

Old stoves, new stoves and any old kind of stoves were pressed into service today as business and working populace of some-kind of heat while at work. Temporary stoves of every description were put out of store and bank windows without regard as to results—but chief aim being to procure that much-wanted heat for the cold days ahead.

In the downtown area of local business establishments, the cellars were muffled as though labouring in the out-of-doors during the cold winter with overcoats, mufflers and caps on. Today however, the downtown district stores have either provided the old fashioned means for the comfort of their customers and clerks, or the water has sufficiently been allowed thereto to re-light their furnaces and business is fast returning to normal.

No Harm Done If You Reduce in Proper Way

By HELEN FOLLETT

THERE IS no sense in beating with too ample measurements and overweight. Reducing can be accomplished with safety. It is a matter of cutting down on food elements that fatten, adopting certain expending enough muscular energy to burn up the calories.

There can be no harm done to the health if fats, starches and sweets are cut down. If one sticks mainly to lean meats, fish, poultry, green salads, fruits and all vegetables except those that grow underground like potatoes.

I found fat is a different problem. If the rest of the body conforms to normal measurements, excess bumps must be treated by means of exercise and common Diathermy, which is electrical heat will accomplish a good deal, if not cut the electric cabinet at the Turkish bath salon.

Massage is slow in effect but it works. Get a strong-armed woman who will pound without mercy, pay no heed to cries of protest. Fatted calves will take on slimness and lines if the plump lands will rise on her toes, come down slowly. She should also run standing still, kicking up her heels like a young colt. Long skirts don't make room for any more bearable. The afflicted one hates them just the same, she hates them like sin.

'SALBALD' TRICKS INTERPRETER

Little German Word Used by Hitler Upsets Diplomats

By the Canadian Press

A serious translation of the Little German word "Alsbald" curiously loosened the strained web of European diplomacy as heads of delegations to the League of Nations Council went into secret session in St. James' Palace, London, yesterday afternoon.

Meantime a lighter touch was added to the crisis by a dispute between Interpreter Chancelor Hitler's acceptance in the German text contained the words "Alsbald". Germany wanted assurance the Powers concerned with "Alsbald" discuss Hitler's peace proposals.

Official interpreters translated "Alsbald" as "forthwith", immediately the French were up in arms. It meant a reversal of their position that France will not negotiate as long as German soldiers remain in the Rhineland. Other interpreters were consulted.

Today Berlin puts a softer meaning on "Alsbald". They intended it to mean not "forthwith" but "in the course". French headquarters like learning of the change, breathed more easily.

IT ISN'T ALWAYS EASY to pick just the right hat amidst the wealth of new ideas and models that appear at the start of the Spring season. A safe choice would be a sweetpitalled tricorne or shiny black banding with a grosgrain fine veil and two clusters of tiny white gardenias posed high at either side of the hat.
ANYTHING GOES when it comes to suits and so there should be plenty of variety for Spring. A novel suit is of cherry red woolen with short, full swagger coat, slim skirt with front pleats and a blouse of black taffeta embroidered with red dots.
NOT YET popular but slowly gaining acceptance is the evening outfit of printed fabric. A nice model done on long, slim lines, is of printed satin in black and white with stitched peplum and revers and a cherry red satin scarf.
RIGHT ON HAND are smart bags for southern wear. A new model is a square white antelope suede bag studded with green, red and yellow composition buttons.

Rapid week-end temperatures added to flood menace in Belleville and nearby. Fear was felt that an ice field above Clamilton dam might move down and imperil the ice-jam in the flooded Moira river. The water of the river was raised five inches by melting snow. Photograph in (1) shows the rapid flow of water at Lester's Dam, a mile and a half north of Belleville. ST. PATRICK'S DAY

Today the world over there is an Irishman everywhere who does not forget the day of Saint Patrick. Saint Patrick differs slightly from some other patron saints in that his life is fairly well recorded. He was a missionary of the fifth century and was commonly known as the Apostle of Ireland. Other countries have patron saints but they have not been so closely associated with the lands for which they have become patrons as St. Patrick is with the Emerald Isle.

The year of his birth is variously given as 377 and 388 and it is probable that he was born even later than the latter date. His father had a small farm near Bonaven Taberniæ; and he is even said to have been born at Nemthur, Bologne-sur-Mer or a place in the estuary of the Clyde, named Kilpatrick after the missionary. His father was a deacon named Calpurnius and his mother was named Conches or Conchaess. His original name is said to have been Succath, Patricius being the Roman appellation which he was given in his adolescence when he was seized by pirates from his father's farm and sold to a petty chief of whose hands he remained for six years. Escaping he went to France where he became a monk at Tours and at the monastery of Lerins. In 431 he went to Rome and was thence sent to Ireland by the then Pope. Success marked his missions. He addressed himself first to the chiefs and revived the spirit of the clanship and other existing usages of the ancient Irish for the furtherance of his preach preaching. To degree he visited a large portion of the country and baptized large numbers of the people. He built a church, one for every day in the year in the long ministry, a total of 365 churches during his lifetime. He baptised twelve thousand persons by his own hand, ordained a vast number of priests and blessed very many monks and nuns. After twenty years he fixed his see in Armagh. He died at a place called Saul near Downpatrick and his relics were preserved at the latter place. The place is still venerated by the people. His year of death is unknown at a great age of 116 or even 126 as some say. He left behind him "Confessions" and a letter in rude Latin of great historic interest. This letter was addressed to a wild Welsh chieftain named Caradoc to whom he made a present of the Irish people and slain or carried off a number of the Irish of whom some were neophytes.

This brief biography gives some indication of the fact that Saint Patrick was an inspired born leader of men, a great statesman and builder, one who left his mark on Ireland.

It is no wonder that the Irish people delight in honoring the memory of this man who was associated with the highest things of life.

The fame of St. Patrick is growing not only in Ireland but across the world for Irishmen who are found everywhere carry the sleep of their native land.

Ireland is happy in having its great saint's day almost coinciding with the coming of springtime which adds interest to the great feast day and birthday.

EXECUTION METHODS

The none-too-pleasant subject of human execution for murder has been to the front in the Commons as the question of a study of a substitute for hanging was opened up. The lethal gas chamber and electric chair were particularly mentioned as substitutes.

Dr. Blair, M.P., advocate for a substitution of some other method to be used pointed to the fact that the sheriffs have advocated some change in the method. He noted its effect upon the public in the town or city where the execution takes place. It was pointed out, however, that there was no possibility of bungling in the lethal chamber method and Nevada found it more barbaric than the old hanging method. The electric chair too may go awry.

If there must be executions it would seem that the English way is the better. Why should a man lie in jail awaiting death—horrible no matter what form the execution takes—for two months or more? Why should not the time be brief as long as sufficient time is given for appeal or for review? In Great Britain the condemned man is not required to wait over 2 months as he is in Canada. Dr. Ruxton convicted Friday for the murder of his wife and maid was yesterday sentenced to the death on April 1st. This will allow him only nineteen days. That seems more sensible than the prolonged death wait in Canada.

Of course the plea will be made that the condemned man must have time to prepare by fasts the "Great Judgment", it is doubtful if a shorter period would not be more effective. Under the English rule the condemned man has no chance to keep putting off the thought of eternity as he has in this country. If he knows he has but little over two weeks he is not likely to neglect. Nor has he the time to harden himself against the future life.

However the lethal chamber and the electric chair methods are to be studied and a report will be presented.

I know of nothing sublime which is not some modification of power.—Edmund Burke.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY IN THE MORNING AND ALL THE REST OF THE DAY.

St. Patrick's Day in the larger cities is generally commorated with a parade with bands and uniforms and shamrocks, and the singing of "The Wearing of the Green". St. Patrick, patron saint of Ireland is thus honored. There were no biographers or printers in St. Patrick's Day, and whatever has come down through the centuries about him is largely credited to word of mouth. That he was great and good and left behind him a trail of good deeds is universally accepted as truth. Much has been written about Saint Patrick, much that is hazy, and some that is contradictory, but he is revered in the hearts of all Irishmen as one who brought much good to Ireland, and the world at large.

IN THE OLDEN GOLDEN DAYS

when Belleville was Myers' Creek or before, the Moira was a mighty river, according to a member of the Sidelight Family who is a keen student of Before and After and all that kind of thing. Says he the banks of the Moira, or, whatever its name was before the Earl of Moira's name was perpetuated in running water, were in the vicinity of what is now Church Street, and what is now the crown of Murney Hill. Thus was the mouth of the Moira, and a big mouth it was in those days. Time went on, the forests disappeared with the Indians and the mad and merry Moira settled down to a more restricted and decorous existence—the white men came and located their stores in the valley despite the threat of annual floods. Now, when the Moira bursts its banks it is only trying to return to a measure of its former glory.

A REAL HONEST TO GOODNESS DIVER operated in a Belleville bank Monday. The flood water filled the basement but when other adjoining basements showed a lowering of the water the bank's water level kept high and crept higher, sending cripe through the manager notified the waterworks department and Manager Austin found that there was a distinct leakage in that vicinity of water service. A diver was secured and he explored the flooded basement, discovering that a pipe connected with the water service had begun disintegrating, pouring into the basement. Repairs were made and the flood water immediately began to fall.

WHEN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS IS IN SESSION AT OTTAWA an open season is declared on members of parliament from the back concessions, meaning all members outside of the city of Ottawa. The mail of the member of parliament becomes heavy and the new member is inclined to swell up a bit with a realization of his importance until he has been nicked by cards. However a scrutiny of the mail indicates that rackets have no respect for the towers of parliament, and the list of names becomes as long as that as a glorified "sucker list". Just now a new report from Ottawa states that the members mail is glutted with invitations to join quilting bees with the alluring prospect of having their names perpetuated in yarn on bedquilts, fees two bits and upwards. There are all kinds of letters from plain begging letters to requests to become member of some organization at nominal fee. Thus the visiting members are fair game and must be very canny how they act day and night, be careful of the friends they make and examine every proposal made them carefully before committing themselves—for it must be admitted that the open season for M.P.'s is on and the sharpshooters down by the Gatineau and Chaudiere do not miss many openings. The same condition applies, it is said, only in slighter degree in Toronto the Good where members of the Legislature are targets for many schemers.

children reach Kamloops. But this need not be so! Realize what may happen and prepare early to combat it. Take the Doctor's advice when the children are young, inform herself with affairs in which your maternal viewpoint can be made helpful and uplifting.

With woman suffrage and upon freedom for expression in all walks of life, opportunities for more fullness and happiness away from the immediate home are opening to her. By guarding in this way against the decay of middle life, your children won't be slighted. In fact, the freshet more varied and larger interests and activities, the finer, nobler and better mother you will be. It is not the children who make women fade. It is the mothers who, unwittingly, allow themselves to fade.

Any woman who fears motherhood; or refuses it because of friends who seem to have suffered because of children is surely forgetting that it is the mother herself who is to blame rather than her sons or daughters.

Motherhood is a difficult, trying and enervating job. It can be controlled, nevertheless, and the mother spared, if it is approached with thought, care and a measure of common sense.

The primary aim of motherhood should not be to sacrifice for the child, and to subsequently be sacrificed by the child. The aim should be to lead the child and also the mother into what a continued youthful outlook can accomplish.

Dr. Brady's Daily Diet Hint

Hard-boiled eggs and fried eggs are not good for persons with delicate digestion. For them, poached eggs are specially valuable. To prepare poached eggs, first boil the water, remove it from the fire, place the eggs in the water and allow them to remain there for 3 minutes. By this method the albumen of the eggs become the consistency of jelly.

In Moira River

...ber 100 years Belleville has suffered from floods on the Moira from time to time. The stone wall along the bank on Mill street is all ...ce time was corn sway. In 1886 and 1891 the flood reached the present flood in intensity, although ...amage not as much damage was done. The upper bridge has been carried away on the occasion of ...ood and the lower bridge has been carried away on ...ing occasions.

During the last 100 years probably a million dollars would not cover the damage that has been sustained and during the next 100 years there will probably be as much or more dollars worth of damage done by the sudden breaking up of ice unless steps are taken to prevent it. Why not follow the suggestion made in report of Mr. Acres. He is now regarded as one of the ablest engineers on the continent. Ox-Corville is 85 feet higher than Belleville and Foxboro 100 feet. A rapid current is produced in the river before the ice is out. It is on the top where the current is scarcely perceptible. If the dam of the Rock were in repair a serious flood would practically impossible.

See Esplanade as Protection

Editor of Ontario Intelligencer,

This appears to be a propitious time to emphasize the real need of an esplanade along the east bank of the river. Had this been done, several years ago, the access of water to all cellars on the West Side of Front Street could have been completely cut off.

It may be that the loss of merchandise now felt would have gone a long way to meet the expense of an effective stoppage of any future ravages of the river.

I remember two successive floods

Tweed and District

Tweed, March 17—Tweed Horticultural Society held a most entertaining meeting in the assembly hall of the Tweed Public School on Friday night. The attendance was the largest that has attended such a meeting in several years and indications that interest in horticultural matters locally is showing no signs of abating but rather all indications point to a most successful season.

The meeting was featured by a report of the recent Canadian Horticultural convention held at the Royal York, Toronto, given by Rev. R. A. Nicholson, the delegate. Rev. Mr. Nicholson also gave an address illustrated by colored slides, on "The Perennial Border." Musical selections were given by Mrs. Harry Crier who sang a delightful solo, "Sunshine and Rain" and Miss Enid Connor who played "The Sextette from Lucia". Dancing followed for half an hour or so after.

In his opening address Dr. W. A. Peal, president of the society, referred to the slogan of the local society, "A more beautiful Tweed." To attain this end all members must constantly keep that ideal in mind.

Gardeners and horticulturists have a code of ethics which is not found in the statute books of the general. Their idea is not to make a lot of money out of what they grow but to share with others. This is seen in the custom of those who have specialties to send them broad to the world at large in the briefest possible time, and in the most reasonable prices. There is a willingness on the part of gardeners to exchange their strongest plants if they may be interested in. A bond of fellowship exists between gardeners who discuss their problems together and help each other out at first to break down any restraint. When we cultivate gardens we cultivate more than flowers and vegetables; we develop a high code of ethics and we develop a love of work which would be difficult to attain by any other activity.

The society is particularly fortunate in numbering among its members Rev. R. A. Nicholson who is a keen student of nature in all its phases. Rev. Mr. Nicholson also entertained large audiences with his illustrated lecture on birds and we speak with the authorship of a book on birds when we say that he has over feathered friends in their natural environment. Wild flowers and plants received their share of attention on equally familiar ground. It will probably be added to the list of the society named Rev. Nicholson as its delegate to the annual horticultural Association convention in Toronto, as one who would present a report of some of its proceedings. Such a report was presented at the meeting.

In concluding his comprehensive report, Rev. Nicholson spoke of the necessity on the part of many societies to do away with cash awards and give prizes instead at the flower shows. More money would be available in this way for community enterprises. It would take away the jealousy, strife and remove grounds for jealousy and ill-feeling so detrimental to society. This matter will be left to the local society will be dealt with by the committee at a later meeting.

An interesting feature of the meeting was the presentation by Mrs. J. G. Frost of a ribbon, Many ribbons were present ribbons won by their members who have done some outstanding work during the year.

Mr. Frost qualified for the ribbon awarded by the local organization by his work in the local horticultural society, and for his success with a flower garden in the best planted garden in Tweed hall. This was recognized by everyone as the most effective improvement made in Tweed in 1925, and called forth many expressions of commendation from townspeople and visitors alike. It represented on the part of Mr. Frost considerable skill in beautifying Tweed. In accepting the ribbon, Mr. Frost declined any particular credit for the work, saying that everyone had been willing to help him and he had enjoyed many times over on enjoyment.

The address on the "Perennial Border" given by Rev. Nicholson, was illustrated by a set of beautifully colored slides. The perennial border may be of varying length and width, but should be at least five feet wide. The top soil should be thrown out and the sub-soil deeply dug and liberally enriched with well-rotted manure before throwing back the top soil which should be similarly fertilized. Plants must be so arranged in the border that the taller varieties are at the rear, and the shortest in the front. Care must be taken in selecting the plants to ensure a succession of bloom throughout the border from early spring to late fall. The planting of annuals where the earlier perennials have bloomed will aid in obtaining the desired result. Best effects are obtained by planting in clumps or in natural arrangement. To secure early, bloom various annuals, flowering bulbs, gladiolis, tulips, etc., are good. Miscellaneous subjects for the perennial border are delphiniums, pyrethrums, pinks, phlox, anguilegia phlox paniculata, coreopsis, hardy asters, gaillardia. Many wild flowers also do well under cultivation.

This address was greatly enjoyed, as Rev. Nicholson showed an intimate knowledge of the habits and habits of cultivated plants. At the conclusion of the address a vote of gratitude of ladies' set tables and plain by other activities.

CITY SERVICE CLUB THANKED BY MAYOR

Public thanks for the assistance given by the City Service Club and seven private individuals during the recent flood period in Belleville Ont., was expressed by Mayor Harry Hill this morning.

"I don't know what some of these families or the city would have done without the help they have given us," he said. "Many of the homes would have been severe. Ice cakes still lower in places as far as seven and eight feet and the marks on the houses indicate the height to which the water rose, four and five feet, and possibly higher. It was here that the Service Club did splendid work done. A good many of the overalls are worn by them. Appreciation is without support at one end, the public and the City Council at the other, and the Service Club has been forced to carry on. Much repair work and reconstruction will have to be done in this area.

Other Fires Prevented

Ice which in its firm state extended from the river mouth to the village of Camilla is now contained within the bounds of the river banks on the flood plain and the bridges on the north. Several movements in the river took place in this field as it is slowly settling owing to the disintegration of the ice by reason of the sun and the running and swirling of water and of the efforts made below the C.P.R. bridge to find a channel by use of dynamite.

Water levels lowered appreciably as these movements occurred but the flooding is unusually prolonged this year the ninth day for several causes, the fact that the ice which broke up extended a distance of three miles or more, which is also immoderately large section to break away all once, because of the earlier crack-up. Spring freshet this year was at least a week ahead of the usual time of breaking and hence the ice was firmer and heavier than it would have been had the spring rampage been delayed for a week or ten days.

Heavy Downfall

The quite heavy snowstorm this morning had the effect of raising levels of the water somewhat though not much. Whether this storm will be followed by another ice and block up channels and openings in the river and whether the melting of the snow will have the result in greatly increasing the volume of water remains to be seen.

Relics of the flood are to be found on Bridge Street. West where an upholstered chair, an overstuffed table and other furniture are to be found, these articles appear to have washed out of some home or repair shop.

Houses in flooded Murney Ward south were more accessible on Wednesday afternoon as the water slowly retired, finding its way out through the culverts under the C.P.R. tracks.

Girl's Arm Broken

Miss Catherine Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Grant, 16 Burton Street, in company with Miss Georgie Page, 11 Highland Ave., was standing upon the sidewalk on Front Street near the O.P.R. crossing Sunday afternoon when a large piece of ice, said to have been thrown in the air as the result of the blasting of ice at the bridge, struck her, descended upon the sidewalk and broke her arm between Mrs. Page and herself, striking Miss Grant and breaking her left arm at the shoulder. She was conveyed to the Belleville General Hospital and the injuries received by Dr. Austin Walkers. Miss Grant will be confined to the hospital for a few days.

CANINE REFUSES TO LEAVE HOME

Howard Clarke, Charles St. Barred From Home by Angry Dog

To arrive at your own home and find a ferocious dog standing between you and your own doorway is rather fiscitious, but that's exactly what Mr. Howard Clarke of 218 Charles Street experienced last night as he returned to his home from a day's tedious day's labor under flood-conditions.

After laboring all day in efforts to keep his business in the home office on Coleman Street, after four days of struggle to keep the lower parts of the city, Mr. H. Clarke, manager of the Citizen's Dairy, Limited, came home late last night evening, only to be confronted with a large, fierce Spitz dog, standing in the entrance to his own front verandah. The canine bared its teeth and growled, and refused to grant admission to his own property. Naturally Mr. Clarke called the police.

Constable Wm. Evans was dispatched to the scene of the trouble and found the dog did not exaggerate. The officer experienced something of the same police experience as the dog still persisted in retaining the "lord and master" attitude. Eventually Mr. Clarke was driven away from the scene of the trouble, forced to seek shelter, and forced ice balls at the canine which took refuge in a hasty retreat.

POLICE BLOTTER

Householders residing in the flooded area, or "protected" by the "police lines" established by the police authorities, that persons in boats have been stealing fire wood from their premises by night. It is alleged by the police authorities that a number of persons formerly row boats into their premises by night, cut down trees, saw them into lengths, split them and steal the wood. The police promised action in the matter.

Vincent Freeman, assistant manager of the Bell Telephone Service, complained to the police that speeding motorists had splashed him with flood water while he was walking on West Moira St., yesterday afternoon. Mr. Freeman in his complaint was not the first received by the police who let him go with warnings to punish motorists who drove at a reckless rate of speed through the water pools on the local streets, thereby splashing water on innocent pedestrians.

Fifteen drunkards were welcomed in St. Patrick's Day at the police station during the week-end, and the city provided warm sleeping quarters all night. No reports of serious motor accidents were received by Motor-cycle Patrolmen of this district today. Motorists are still driving cautiously, they added.

Personals

Miss Dorothy Mason has returned to Toronto after spending the week-end with her parents.

Mrs. F. Gilpol, Toronto, was the guest of Mrs. Finance Minister announced the engagement of his daughter, Marjorie Agnes, to Stanley L. Seymour, son of the late Reverend J. A. Seymour, D.D., and of Mrs. Seymour, of Belleville, Ontario. The marriage has been arranged to take place in the early April and they will sail for Australia where Dr. Seymour has received the appointment of the General Hospital in Adelaide.

Mr. Stanley Hagerman, sales manager for the Canada Hardware Corporation, left on Sunday for New Britain, Conn., where he will remain for a few weeks at the head office of the company. Mr. Hagerman was formerly sales manager for Stewart-Warner Alemite of this city.

AT THE RELIE

"The Petrified Forest"

Leslie Howard and Bette Davis, Gene Raymond and Wendy Barrie Co-Star

When Leslie Howard makes a picture, it is something the motion picture industry and public alike look forward to seeing. But when Bette Davis is co-starred with him "Dangerous" resulted in her winning the Academy Award for outstanding performance of 1935, rating her as one of the finest actresses of the screen, plus a reputation for great actor, that is something about which to rave.

Consequently the fact that Mr. Howard and Miss Davis are co-starred in the Belle Theatre, tomorrow, Thursday and Friday, matinee daily at 2.30, in Robert Sherwood's play "Petrified Forest," is real news. And the supporting cast includes such brilliant players as Genevieve Tobin, Dick Foran, Charley Grapewin, Joseph Sawyer and Charley Grapewin.

The Petrified Forest" will probably always be remembered as the play which Leslie Howard has adapted from the successful stage play by Robert Sherwood, and which gave an all last season to packed houses on Broadway, the picture is a gripping story of life in the desolate (in the colorful) Arizona desert.

Into the midst of this lone stage production reacts his splendid performance of work by a group which suddenly awakens to the fact that his life is a complete failure and that he is a lonely drifter, a fugitive who is in love with another man's wife.

Miss Davis has the stellar feminine opposite role, playing the part of the erotic girl of thwarted desires, while Miss Tobin is the wife who is unfaithful to her husband.

Humphrey Bogart, who played the role of the ruthless killer on the stage, has been given the part by the screen version.

Gene Raymond co-stars as Brent Chandler, a newspaper reporter, and ten days to convince Wendy Barrie, a penniless debutante, that marriage to a wanderer with a career (Brent) is more profitable than marrying a wealthy Chicagoan. Miss Barrie has spirited adventure romance, "Love on the Run" with Clark Gable as her male feature attraction on the same program.

Raymond contrives ingenious devices to surmount the obstacles which Miss Barrie erects to marry the millionaire, enters Reno with Miss Barrie, and, played by Helen Broderick, Brent's fiancee, Raymond and Miss Barrie attack to offset his persistent siege of Miss Barrie. Thus the romance is developed.

Starting on Feature Tonight

Harold Lloyd and Dorothy Wilson are featured in the Allen Theatre tonight for the last times in the uproarious comedy "Movie Crazy Way." The second feature is "The Preview Murder Mystery."

SNOW CAUSES RISE IN LEVEL OF STREET WATER

ICE AT CANNIFTON

Water Finds Outlet in River Through Channel

Flood conditions continue to improve steadily but slowly. But this morning's snowfall and the day's good rain may be important factors.

Anchor ice and sludge formed in the river by the heavy snow overnight and the following drizzle of rain this morning loomed as one of the latest menaces to the lower part of the city, where a gradual rise of the water was reported today. With the ice in the field jammed hard below the lower bridge to the bay, the heavy snow has covered over the smaller holes and channels, adding to the blockage. South of the upper bridge are the heavy parts of sludge and snow ice has been steadily packing at the edge of the field of ice below that bridge.

Along lower Front Street the majority of the cellars in which blocked entrances and exits to the buildings, earlier have become washed and worn away by the action of the deep water. Business is still closed in many of the lower stores and shops, whose floors are still under water in many cases.

Water-laden cellars, the depth of five inches covered the city today and there is every indication that another freshet, the water now already covering part of Front Street, West Bridge Street, and streets on the west side of the river being several feet higher than the levels of Monday and increasing with each passing hour. The snowstorm in the early hours assumed near blizzard proportions fanned by a high wind, which has for the most sealed towards the noon hour. The water was lower on Wednesday, and authorities, who claim to know the vagaries of the river, state that anchor ice will be formed and cause a blocking of the ice in the river.

The depth of the water around the ice jam in the river and abortive effort was made to dynamite the whole ice field moved down more than half a mile before this was done. Blasting in the river mouth and Bay of Quinte Monday and the first few days of this week set out in the channel cut and consequently the ice in the river dropped in places nearly a foot below the established level, which will relieve protection from flooding cellars.

Deeper on Streets

With deeper water on West Bridge street, the bus line for the west side resumed its operations this morning. The water is still coming from the west, and with the lower Front Street although cars are visible on the surface of the street as a highway. The erosion has taken out large chunks of the pavement and the road will need considerable repair, once the flood subsides.

Those who left their homes and have returned are again awaiting developments. The weather and the greatly increasing the depth of water especially in the section of the city around Colborne, James and Brock Streets.

Steady Rain Falls

Falling of steady rain which began early this morning and which was an incident in the flood situation which will cause wonder as to what effect it would have on the flood situation.

Up to noon the flood waters go down, it does not necessarily mean that the flood is past. Last year on Lake Hibbard of the Bell Sthrt Company had trouble with their dam because when two pairs of the brick wall fell in and fell out during Thursday morning's rise, the push and the second push at ten o'clock, set to work to push down the remaining part of the wall. This was accomplished by the following afternoon.

It was at a window in this wall that Mr. Sam Hibbard was sitting a business discussion late last night, at midnight, Thursday morning when the first brick in the wall fell. And it happened that at ten o'clock in the morning when the next push dislodged another section of the wall, Mr. Hibbard was near the window and a swirling flood of water caused him to hastily leave the room. Another push, with a shuck though his firm, the Bell Sthrt Company, Inc., five minutes closer of shirts wet in the flood. "But we had only five hundred pairs of shirts in the store, and we had been very busy preparing for the flood, so we moved them and lifted the stock to a level of three feet above the water, and the water rose to 3 feet, 10 inches.

Lease Settled

With the water levels lowered to last Monday's dollar mark, and to use the streets north of Bridge St., it is hoped that traffic will be resumed that traffic might pass through about Monday. Water was running lower on Monday at the corner of Front and Bridge Streets, and the water was near the river-bridge on the north side of the bridge.

The blow which struck Coleman Street in and about Jane Street, in-undating cellars and homes, was severe. Ice cakes still lower in places as far as seven and eight feet and the marks on the houses indicate the height to which the water rose, four and five feet, and possibly higher. It was here that the splendid work of the Service Club was done. A good many of the overalls are worn by them. OUTFITTERS FOR PARTICULAR MEN

$6,500,000 RISE IN SINGLE MONTH

Exports to the United States increased $1,500,000 in February, the second month of the treaty, Finance Minister Dunning, told the House.

In a general defence of the agreement the Finance Minister said Canada's exports jumped from $15,500,000 in February, 1935, to $22,000,000 in February, 1936, which that is the highest export figure for February since 1930.

Steel "Black Spot"

At one stage, A. A. Heaps (C.C.F., Winnipeg North) said Labor conditions in the steel industry were "a black spot in Canada." He said men in Nova Scotia mills sometimes worked 102 hours a week, often seven days in the week. Conditions in mills at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., were "more too good," with low wages and no recognition of the right to organize.

There might be one or two steel or implement manufacturers, admitted John H. MacNicol (Conservative-Toronto) who "refused to play the game" but the majority "do treat their men right as far as it is possible to do so."

Tariff and Labor

With other Conservatives, Mr. MacNicol predicted the cut in farm implement tariffs from 22 to 12½ per cent would throw men out of work but one Liberal after another went on record as believing the reduction was not sharp enough. Many Western Liberals wished it removed entirely.

The Finance Minister said Canadian exports of farm implements to the United States increased from $174,000 in January, 1935, to $218,000 in January, 1936.

The implement items carried and others passed quickly until the main lumber item granting the United States free entry on planks, boards and other finished lumber was reached.

The House stuck on this when W. J. Ward (Lib. Dauphin), charged that Canadian manufacturers were met with destroying the Canadian lumber business and throwing hundreds out of work by exporting a duty against United States lumber. The same charge, he said, were a retaliation for the actions of the Bennett Government.

HINDE AND DAUCH TROPHY WINNERS

Defeat Whittall Cans 3-2 in Second Game of Finals

Trenton, Mar. 17 (Special)—By defeating Whittall Cans two games in a row Hinde and Dauch will hold the Courier-Advocate cup for the next year. It was a hard fought game throughout the entire eight minutes and little difference between the two teams, although the Hinde and Dauch forwards looked a little more effective around the net. The score was 2-0 in the first period Whittall Can forwards opened up a somewhat offensive and about half way through the period Hinde and Dauch defence combined the scoring when Smith batted the second Whittall goal in from a scramble in front of the goal. Hinde and Dauch protested the second goal as they claimed Smith was in the crease when he scored but the referee and goal judge decided that it was in.

Near the end of the second frame, Hinde and Dauch defenceman, worked his way through the entire Whittall team to score. In the second period the play was about the same with each team missing several real good scoring chances. After about halfway through the period Hood streaked down the right boards and took his shot which rebounded off the corner in. Art Maitla had to be carried off the ice after he was hurt around the Whittall net. It is believed that his sticky ran into his stomach when he was in a scramble in front of the Whittall net. In the third period the boys started to settle it on and both teams in their overanxiousness to score did not seem very fussy where they carried their sticks with the Whittall players coming out on the short end of it as Derry, their defenceman, received two penalties for tripping.

After fifteen minutes of play Mc-Creed, after little opposition forward, scored the winning goal. He managed to get from a scramble. From then on Whittalls put on the pressure but could not seem to get anywhere as Hinde and Dauch's shots shot is down the ice at every opportunity. The line up:

Hinde and Dauch—Good, Stenbury; defence, Bowen and O'Malley; centre, Lobb; wings, Maitla and Hood; alternates, Perrael, Harr, Cochrane and Hood.

Whittall Cans—Goal, Greyerence, Kerr and Derry; centre, Charlton; wings, Wilson and Smith; alternates, Cain, Dadswell and Maclean.

Referee—Sen Bowen.

Tweed and District

TWEED—A room in the rear of the Council Chambers has been redecorated and equipped as an office for Constable J. O. Hagen. A telephone has been installed and provides direct connection with the police office. Constable Hagen has his former office in the Hydro building.

Mr. Ken Callahan, local Metropolitan Life Insurance agent, motored from Belleville on Friday and early Saturday morning. He left for home on Saturday at 10 p.m. Wednesday and did not reach Tweed until 5.30 a.m. Thursday. Driving conditions were the worst Mr. Callahan had ever experienced. The fog was so thick that it was impossible to see the road most of the time. In many places the road was foundated to a depth of four feet, with the water in the ditches several feet deep. A false move might have had disastrous results and Mr. Callahan was mighty glad when he reached his destination.

Dale Plays The Game

BY—
Ann Forester

One day Sandy appeared in a twinkle of freckles with the excitement of seeing her.

"Well, if you ain't a sight for sore eyes, sister!" he shouted, jumping her hand up and down rapturously.

Dale evaded Sandy's questions of where trying to give the impression that she had merely come out here to visit Honey, but Sandy, like Honey, wistfully drew his own conclusions.

"You're a darned square kid," he said vigorously. "Not many play the game straight as you do, sister."

Dale felt the weak tears rush to her eyes. Sweet to have their praise after the silent disapproval of Mrs. Kendall. The barely hidden sneers of Mimi.

Playing the game.....? No, Dale told herself wearily; the game was played out. She had lost. Indeed. She was dull.... tired.

A leaden time of waiting. Dale had expected to go to the hospital at Cobb City, a suggestion which Honey bitterly contested.

"You stay right here, Honey," she scolded the color-faced solemnly at the girl. Then she sent a trained nurse in the world can take care of you better'n me."

You weary to argue, Dale agreed. This dull apathy creeping over her would be the order of her life.....

Then, all in a moment, stabbing her—the pain.

Dale was tossed in a sea of pain. Honey's warm arms. Sandy's head, with faint surprise, a voice which sounded like her own, crying for Brant.

Then a strange new noise—piercing through the unconscious. Making her pulses leap.

In a sense of blessed peace she lay on the pillow. Honey's face brooding above her—Honey's smile appearing to shine.

"Lamb.... Lamb, you're all right now."

Dale raised heavy wet eyes. She twisted stiff lips to a smile. "Is she——" She finished with a heavy gesture of her hand.

Honey's chuckle. "Not she! You have a son, Dale. A fine big boy—with a bellow like one of Steve Kemp's bulls!"

Grief and wonder shaking through her. A son! Oh, she was afraid! A girl..... it had seemed natural to think of a girl. Dale had felt close to the thought of a girl.

But a boy..... Oh, he would be like Brant—handsome—strong-willed. With the Kendall temper and the Kendall pride!

Dale rolled her head on the pillow and cried.

Strange little thing which went through her. Her own baby—and so little and helpless! Dale made a crooning little noise in her throat and lifted a slow hand to touch the fine black hair which covered his head like a cap.

"Doin' to have grey eyes, I bet you!" boomed Honey happily. "Them colored eyes always turn grey....."

Dear, grey eyes in a brown face....

It was sanctuary, this quiet room where Dale lay, day by day, hearing the wind around the desert flowers for miles around.

Oh, the world was so beautiful..... There was much to live for. Loving kindness.... and sunshine ..... and helpless babies with brown eyes that would turn grey.

Other boys had grey eyes, their fathers.... Oh, she would try to make it up to him!

The doctor who came out from Cobb City to see Dale looked grave. "She isn't getting on the way I could wish. The child took too much of her strength. Rest and a tranquil mind—those are what she needs."

"Ain't why shouldn't she have them?" demanded Honey wrathfully.

To Dale she exclaimed vigorously: "Get it out of your head that you're going to die this year, honey child! A drain on us? "Tommyrot! You don't eat no more'n a canary, an' I'm sure you've had about die if you took the Grand Duke away."

Spring merged to summer. The fierce desert heat seemed to agree with the baby and Dale. Dark, flaked, picking with legs as brown-ed as his face. His hair grew in fine wisps and shapeless class. His nose straightened out. His eyes turned grey, as Honey predicted—not the steel grey of Brant's eyes, more pastel. Later, Dale guessed with a catch at her heart, they would be the same as Brant's. Ray already, to trace the Kendall features in the baby's miniature face!

But Dale herself lay listless in the big rocker, as she had longed to do so many times in her winter. Her eyes were often closed with purple circles of weariness drawn under them.

Summer gave way to the rains of winter. Wind and storms raged about the Cross Roads Store, churning the sand, washing the dust from the cracks of the porch.

A quiet life, Days broken by the few customers who drifted in for provisions.

Indoors, Honey brooded over Dale—always her. Dale's charge. Fe mended and played with the baby. Sophisticated mists from the outer world stealing strangely in over the radio to this lonely outpost in the desert.

Then again the magic carpet of red and blue and yellow and pink flung over the broken ground.

A new spring on earth....

THROUGH SMOKE AND FLAME

The Kendall house was a city of light towering into the night. Three large rooms had been flung into one. Waxed floors gleamed softly as moonlit pools and the throb of an expensive orchestra hung on the air. Mimi was giving a dance.

Mimi had announced, very offhand, that she was giving her formal dance for Brant. But the announcement had started a buzz of whispering.

Because Fatsy spoke, as she stood in the entrance of the softly lighted conservatory looking out on the dance floor.

"Mimi's making a desperate play. If you ask me," she confided to Helena DuBois. "She's been angling for Brant all winter and now she's going to use the net to land him—to put it the way Jim talks when he's on his 'Wall Street' kick."

But Helene failed to follow the placatorial terms used by Jim Farraday and Eleanor explained impatiently.

"Can't you see Mimi's trying to show Brant her a corner where he'll have to ask her to marry him in all decency? They've been everywhere this winter."

"There was some sort of affair between them, hasn't there?" mused Helene. "But that was years ago....."

"Mimi never got over it," said Eleanor with relish. "And it never really kills her now to think that Brant did. She's been after him ever since his wife skipped out."

"What became of her?" asked the other curiously.

Eleanor shrugged. "Who knows? But I'll bet friend Mimi helped to oust her! And that's what we've all here tonight for—to help Mimi land Brant. She wants to give everyone the idea it's a secret engagement so Brant won't be able to get out of it. Look at her—isn't that as plain as day?"

Mimi was dancing with Brant. Strange and lovely, she was tonight in a close-fitting gown of some heavy gold lace which made her appear, with her long dark eyes and silky brown, like some exquisite Siamese princess. Sweet husky voice and languorous perfume..... everything about her was seductive.

When Mimi looked at Brant a lambent flame played over her face for all the world to see. Something possessive in the touch of her hand on his arm. Her voice, when she addressed him, was a caress.

Nor was it acting. Mimi's stubborn determination to have Brant had turned to an obsession. And this had largely been brought about by his indifference.

Nothing he'd bought Mimi shrewdly, but to get him into a position from which he could not free himself. Let the world couple them and Brant could have no further choice.

As Mimi danced with him now, she nestled into the head of his arm like a doll. Brant looked down with an indulgent smile.

The orchestra had changed to a tune, sweeping the country just then—the haunting thing of jungle throbs and dark pain. Through the bright ballroom they went beating as though it beat through hot tropic night. It were as though a spell suddenly nodded out from underbrush to confront them.

Mimi found himself fitting the words to it.

Through the dark of night—

I want to go where you are.....

Through the dark of night—

I want to go where you are.....

The music was engulfing him. It was hypnotic. The words were singing in his brain. Mimi's body was laden with a strange intensity as though they bore some hidden message.

Through the smoke and flame—

I want to go where you are.....

A cry shaking silently through him, leaving him quivering. The cry he had been trying to stifle all these months.

Dale..... why pretend! He want-ed her! If it's wrong or right..... Wrong or right—yes! He wanted her! Whose fault was it that he couldn't hold her—here?—his? What did it matter whether it was hers or his? Nothing mattered save Dale. Even that other man didn't matter! No false pride now to bite the truth from him—he wanted Dale.

He'd had her once. She'd loved him fiercely—loyally. As a woman loves only her male. By God—he could make her love him again! For he had her in his arms this minute—no one could get her from him. Through the smoke and flame.....

"Brant!" A little cry from Mimi. "You're crushing me to death! You cave man....." But Mimi's eyes were melting. Mimi's lips parted as she tilted them to him through the soft light.

Mimi was not pleased at the blank look which flashed over the man's face. Not pleased when his arms relaxed.

"Sorry....." he mumbled.

"Darling!" she whispered.

But Brant did not hear.

If you love me—if God! Well—why not? A man searched the world for his ideal. He fought for her—as he had fought Steve Kemp..... And if he couldn't keep her for himself he'd kill Phil Clifford..... He'd fight for his own..... She was his.....

"Brant!"

The man saw Mimi's angry eyes through a haze. His mind have thrust her away for she was standing in a corner a couple of paces from him. Her usually husky voice was shrill—shrewish: "What are you doing—peering—eavesdropping? Couldn't tell like a man in a fever. He put her hands aside and his voice sounded far away as though it were the voice of someone else.

"Sorry..... I don't feel well—make excuses for me. I'm sorry—Mimi—I must go away—it's important—"

Brant was in the hall, striding toward the door. Mimi running after him in vain.

The air striking sharp and cold on his face as he opened the door. The stars above him and the music of the orchestra following him out.

If you live I'll find you.....

Mimi leaned from the entrance watching Brant stride away. The night wind flew the gold lace stiffly about her body.

And Mimi knew, somehow, that she had lost.....

SEARCH

Matthew Cage, head of the Cage Detective Agency, had been surprised a few times in his life, but perhaps never more so than to see a man in full evening clothes, wearing neither hat nor overcoat, bolt into his office out of the blackness of a January night.

When his abrupt visitor stated his name, Cage raised his head more alertly.

In lists of wealth alone, Brant Kendall's name would not perhaps have exacted such attention. But in that list of "family" the Kendall name was much the same as that of Rockefeller in furniture—Ford in autos. As a consequence, Mat Cage looked curiously at the good-looking, agitated young man before him.

"I want you to trace someone for me, Mr. Cage," said Brant, and his voice shook with the pressure he put upon it. "Phil Clifford—his present address. I believe he's taken the mails in several road shows out west."

"That shouldn't be difficult." The detective made a note on paper.

"Not difficult, perhaps," said the other nervously. "But I want the information very quietly. And with as little delay as possible. That is why I came here—I knew you had day and night service. Will you make inquiries immediately?"

"Immediately," Cage assured him. Brant laid a card on the desk. "Please call me as soon as you have located him. I'll appreciate all possible haste on this." Brant reached the door then turned;; "Please don't hesitate to call me at whatever time you get word, even though it's three in the morning."

When he had left Cage raised his grey brows and looked speculatively at the card. "A woman case," he thought. "No business affair ever called that look into a man's eyes. It wouldn't surprise me to find murder in the game we're done."

Cage frowned, then shrugged. After all, it was no affair of his. He was hired to trace a man named Phil Clifford.....

Brant entered the taxi he hired, to return to his house at speed. Inaction was abhorrent now that he had put the machinery in motion.

The dance still raged. Lights blazing from the windows, the blast of the orchestra reaching him as he got out of the cab and paid the driver.

Impossible to think of returning to that heated maelstrom..... Brant made his way quietly through the servants' entrance and up the stairs to his own room.

He ordered a grip brought upstairs, and he packed in preparation for a journey. All the time he was almost painfully alert to the small desk phone across the room.

Then it rang and he was the call summoning him back to Dale.....

Brant was strapping the grip when an impatient knock brought him to the door.

When he opened it, Mimi stood in the hall. She slipped inside and a small glittering figure.

"It has happened—run up the stairs.....

"What is the matter? Why ..... run away like that? People wondered—" Mimi stopped as her eyes fell on the grip. "You're going away!" she ejaculated sharply.

The Belleville block, which includes dealers from Cobourg on the west to Seeley's Bay on the east, Trenton and Lonsward County and north as far as Madoc was held at C. J. Long-well's Store on Front Street. The purpose of the convention was to discuss plans for co-operation in business during the coming year, and to this end a number of officials from Chicago, Ill., and Ottawa, Ont., were present to discuss with the dealers all their trade problems. Mr. Hoover left Leaves of Picton was the speaker of the evening, he being a dealer for this firm. In conversation with Mr. Williams regarding the prospect for increased buying of farm machinery, he stated, that not since 1928 has such been seen as great as this year. "I believe the farmers are more optimistic and that there is a wide field for selling as nearly all of the implements on the majority of farms have been used for many years due to the depression and the time has arrived to replace the majority of these implements," said Mr. Williams. The convention was most successful.

Firearms Used to Urge Crew in East to West Crossing in Pioneer Steamship of 1836

London, March 17.—(CP)—Pitted and finished to the last letter of steamship excellence, the Queen Mary, 73,000 tons, proudest passenger vessel yet launched on the high water by Great Britain, will make her first crossing of the Atlantic in a few weeks.

Just 100 years ago, it is recalled, the possibilities of steam as a motive power in ocean travel were being explored and experimented from both sides of the Atlantic. Early in the 19th century wooden ships, diminutive and tardy in comparison with the modern liners, were ploughing the seas in the tests of the new found power.

One of the most interesting of these ventures was the "record trip" of the Sirius in 1838. This sail-and-steam vessel, 703 tons, carried the flag of the British and Irish Navigation Company, organized by Julius Smith for the transatlantic service of the new power.

The company had ordered the construction of a steamer to be called the British Queen, but the enterprise was held up when the contractors went bankrupt.

Meanwhile a rival English firm at Bristol built the Great Western, 1340 tons, and determined to put it on the Atlantic service before the British Queen could be completed. The promoters of the latter, not to be outdone by their rivals, chartered the Sirius, Leith-built and engaged in the Irish Channel traffic.

When the Sirius left London she encountered her competitor, the Great Western, in the Thames River. It is recorded the latter had on board "a respectable pleasure party". An intensive, if formal, speed trial took place in the river. The first degree team also made a public exhibition of their work. Lunch was served at the close.

Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Prindle and Mr. Bruce Prindle spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Morton.

Leaving London March 28, 1836, the Sirius arrived at New York April 22. The records state this 20-day passage was effected "through stern discipline and the persuasive effect of loaded firearms." The crew was demoralized by continuous headwinds. Fuel only in bunkers formed of the stair of mind of the 94 passengers.

Shortly after the arrival of the Sirius in New York her rival, the Great Western, bore in sight and anchored in the harbor. The replated speed of each vessel was 8.5 knots an hour. The Sirius made comparatively few transatlantic voyages, soon returning to the coastal trade where she had a melancholy end, wrecked in Ballycotton Bay.

These early vessels made the journey partly by steam, but to a much larger measure under sail. The earliest effort to employ steam in the Atlantic packets of which there is any full record, was the American ship Savannah, which made the voyage in 1819. She was 320 tons gross and her speed six knots.

The Savannah was built in New York as a sailing ship but before launching was fitted with steam power, her paddle wheels being detachable for hauling to the dock in stormy weather. Her port of departure for the Atlantic crossing was Charleston, South Carolina, where James Monroe, President of the United States, inspected the ship before it sailed.

The Savannah made the trip to Liverpool in 29 days and 11 hours. Her steam power seemed to have been little used except on leaving and entering port, smoke belching from her funnels bespeaks a reverse caster sailing to her assistance in the belief she was on fire, the story goes. There was much anxiety among the promoters of the trip on the American side until they heard of her safe arrival in the British port.

BOATS ARE TIED AT FRONT DOORS

Tilbury East And Dover Inundated by Floods

Chatham, Ont., March 17—(CP)—Hundreds of acres of low lying lands of Tilbury East and Dover at the mouth of the Thames were inundated when the river overflowed its embankments as a result of an ice jam, carried lakewards by Sunday's freshet.

While the situation at the mouth of the river was regarded as serious with land owners ready to take to boats and all their fresh doors, all danger of trouble f floods in Chatham and environs had passed although many basements of downtown stores were flooded as water backed up sewers when the river reached 16 feet above normal at 1.30 p.m.

Farmers in the low sections near the river mouth spent an anxious night. They were jubilant early Sunday evening when reports reached them the river ice, which came down in tremendous quantities Sunday was passing under the frozen stretch of the river from Baptiste Creek to the lighthouse, and passing out into the lake. During the night, however, a jam of ice formed at the river mouth, and water stead-ily rose.

Farmers worked all night herding their horses and cattle to places considered safe from flood while chicken were placed in the upper part of barns. Boats were made ready at the front doors in which they could escape if the water poured into their homes.

So far as could be learned no residences, actually were under water in Kingsville, Leamington or Chatham the river had receded six feet since the worst of the freshet Monday afternoon when the flames went to 14 feet above summer normal.

Johnstown, 'Flood City,' 16 Feet Under Water 2 Persons Lose Lives

Second Highest Levels Are Reached at Ohio City

DISASTER RECALLED

Johnstown, Pa., Mar. 18 (AP)—Rising waters swift for many converting basin poured 16 feet deep through Johnstown, the "flood city" today and left hundreds of acres, miles around death, misery and disaster brought the worst spring storm in years.

The waters of the Conemaugh River, which on Sunday ran bank down the valley to shut out 2,235 lives, seemed bent today to accomplish a grim story levels, narrowing hundreds in the downtown area yesterday.

A special train bearing National Guardsmen with food, blankets and medicines left Pittsburgh early for the city early today and railroad officials said they expected no difficulty in getting there.

Two deaths were reported in the Johnstown area. Russell Hall, 7, said, 18, was swept away when a footbridge on which they were walking collapsed as they were attempting to ferry a woman. The elderly woman drowned at Hooversville 13 miles away.

Dam Bursts At Rossiter.

At the mining town of Rossiter, in adjoining Somerset county, a hundred-foot dam swept away Russell Saye, 36-year-old miner, his wife and two children. An unidentified man was found dead at Tyrone.

Leishman, merchant at Conemaugh was reported missing. He was heard crying for help when he was caught on a bridge flooded by the Susquehanna River and not seen again. Two companions were rescued.

Reports of other deaths and of missing persons were received from State Police and other sources said these could be verified.

Throughout the flooded area there were reports the Wilmore dam, the small reservoir back in the hills from Johnstown, had burst and the big Conemaugh dam was weakening but telephone operators in Johnstown said both structures were safe.

Miss Leslie Miller, one of the operators marooned at her post all night as flood waters swirled below, said:

That cried be true. The water has quit rising."

Death Handicapped.

Miss Miller also told of futile efforts to get motor boats into some sections. Thousands of residents were safe on hillsides and roofs but hundreds of others still waited for a chance to reach safety.

There was no indication yet of a recession.

Thrilling rescues by the hundred were reported throughout the many miles of flooded area.

Three firemen were lowered over a bridge at Plattsburg to rescue a woman and four men from drowning after their houseboat sprang a leak.

At the "Point" in Wallaby, where the Conemaugh and Stony creeks join the Ohio to Pittsburgh, the stage was 36.2 feet, 11.2 feet above flood stage and Pittsburgh and area were further reached by the memorable flood of 1907. Streets and homes around the Metropolitan area were flooded.

Bridge Toppers.

Sixty-five residents of the village of Conemaugh were taken to the ranges of Conemaugh from Blairsville in Indiana county were brought over a tottering bridge but fifteen remained behind.

Firemen and National Guardsmen did not dare complete the rescue because fears that the bridge was going and asked residents of town on the other side of the Conemaugh to go to the aid of their stranded ones.

The state police with ropes saved three men caught in a tree in the Conemaugh river. Two were rescued while trying to rescue a family from the village of Huff, which was evacuated.

Johnstown Flood On May 31—1889 Took 2,235 Lives

Johnstown, Pa., Mar. 18 (AP)—A wall of water which rolled down from the shattered dam of Conemaugh lake swept over this famous flood city 47 years ago next May 31, claiming 2,235 lives and causing $10,000,000 damage.

Heavy rains, such as today, brought waters to a 30-foot level in the main business section, started the waters rising in the south fork of Conemaugh at 3 p.m.

By 7:30, the dam across the south fork, three miles above the city, had given way and a half miles long by a mile and a half wide. With scarcely any warning the dam, 70 feet above the city, let go.

Horseback riders who saw the waters roaring down the narrow Conemaugh valley raced against time to warn the residents of Johnstown to flee but they had no time. The wall of water, 40 feet high, struck the city at 8:10 p.m. Only 45 minutes had elapsed.

It was a thundering wave, said the finance officer.

Labatt Mistaken in Identity of Meisner

London, Ont., March 18 (CP)—David Meisner's second trial for the slain St. Isabel kidnapping entered its third day today with the former Corporal Kay Hoarshaw more and more cheerful than he was 24 hours earlier. He was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment for setting his first trial a year ago.

Chief Detective Thomas Coughlin, Labatt, testified from the witness stand that the man identified when he declared at the trial that that Meisner was one of his captors. Mr. Justice Wilson has conceded he was wrong in identifying Meisner as the man who held him captive three days in a Muskoka hideaway.

Labatt, who changed his mind after talking with Michael McCardell, Meisner's brother-in-law, identification, named McCardell as the man he saw in Muskoka. On the stand McCardell was captured following Meisner's first trial.

The defence lawyer, will attempt to prove Meisner had a part in the kidnapping of Peterboro Grocery D. L. McCarthy, K.C., said in outlining his case yesterday that the prosecution contends Meisner was implicated.

FLOOD WATERS SLOWLY, STEADILY ARE RETREATING

City Gradually Rising From Spring Freshet Calamity

HOMES RE-OCCUPIED

Effects of Snowstorm And Rainfall Not Greatly Marked

Fears that Tuesday's very heavy rainfall and the subsequent rise which continued for the greater part of the day and far into the night would have complicating effects upon the flood conditions were not realized. The water levels were little affected. Citizens took this morning's rain very much of the manila of snow which had practically disappeared and the six-foot fall last evening had disappeared. Water levels in the river were slightly lower. Tuesday's improvement in conditions slowly continued.

The rise of the ice jam which formed at the Front Road bridge at that last Wednesday midnight is now below the dismantled footbridge and is slowly receding. Everything downward towards the harbor mouth.

Eighth Day Nears

The flood crest which late midnight tonight will enter its eighth day has been greatly prolonged. It is usual for the flood crest to recede over the lower portion of the river and its crest has been delayed by three or four days. In this instance the rainfall was more rapid and the solid ice rots slowly.

No untoward incidents have occurred during the night and today.

Slowly some of the inhabitants driven out by the overflood have returned to their homes and have begun to clean up the slate of the settlement in the interior of their houses and eliminate what they can of the mud left by the receding flood water.

There are a number of houses which bore the brunt of the pressure from the ice field and these cannot for a time take on their former appearance.

Situation Deepens

According to marks registered by Engineer of No. 1 Station this morning, the level of water still flooding Front Street has remained almost about the same as that registered yesterday noon.

Relief from deeper and wider channels are now being worked upon and so far the activity during the night has been considerable when be declared at the trial that Meisner was one of his captors. Crown Counsel Kay Shorshaw contended he was wrong in identifying Meisner as the man who held him captive three days in a Muskoka hideaway.

Labatt, who changed his mind after talking with Michael McCardell, Meisner's brother-in-law, identification, named McCardell as the man he saw in Muskoka. On the stand McCardell was captured following Meisner's first trial.

NEW TAX POWERS FOR PROVINCES

Premier King Introduces New Legislation in Commons

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, March 18—Over the clash of Federal and Provincial taxation rights rose anew in Canada today when Prime Minister Mackenzie King introduced legislation to submit amendments to the British North America Act.

Adding to the problem was the situation in Alberta where the province's treasury is insolvent and a public debt conversion and seven million dollar bond issue maturing April 1.

Prime Minister King in the House of Commons yesterday gave notice that the government would move an amendment of the B.N.A. Act. One would give provinces the right to exercise exclusive control in amusement and entertainment. The other would give concurrent taxation authority to the proposed Dominion Loan Council.

Announcement of the resolutions was received by most Provincial premiers in a spirit of restricted satisfaction.

Premier Aberhart said that Alberta does not subscribe to such schemes which would take financial matters out of the hands of the Provincial Government.

"It will quit first; we could not carry on under such a form of management," the Social Credit premier said in declaring his refusal to accept any loan council scheme embodying such surrender of provincial power. Dealing with the Prime Minister's forthcoming legislation, Premier Aberhart said the direct taxation and to clarify the British North America Act pertaining to the provinces.

2. The Federal Government must not collect $1,000,000 annual maturity obligation due April 1.

3. The Federal Government become a plan under which Alberta's total debt of $160,000,000 could be refunded at lower interest rates.

INDUSTRY MUST CO-OPERATE WITH GOV'T CLAIMED

Decent Wages Must be Paid Says Hon. D. A. Croll in House

GRANTS CONTINUE

Col. Price Makes Serious Charges With Respect to Patronage

Toronto, March 18 (CP)—The Ontario Government will expect Labor Minister Croll, expects co-operation of industry with respect to decent wages, a fair continuity of employment and candour about wages, but if co-operation is not forthcoming the government is prepared to achieve its end by force of law.

At the opening he is not Minister indicated last night in his address on the budget debate, the question of low wages and long hours would be looked into by the Supreme Court of Canada has made a decision on social legislation and when the Provincial Government's policy will be clear.

"We know that today thousands of workers are getting between $5 and $15 for a week of 48 and 50 hours," he said, "I brand their employers as the lowest type of exploiters. Hitherto the public conscience of this country in its hour of humanity acted."

Mr. Croll, speaking on relief, announced a reduction of 133,079 in the Ontario relief rolls for 14 months. Without giving details, he said the government is assuming the Federal administration would continue its present policy and intended to expire March 31, during the coming year.

Premier Hepburn spoke after Col. W. H. Price, Conservative member for Lambton-Parkdale, who featured an attack on the government with criticism of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Control Board by Chief Commissioner E. G. Odette.

Kept in Dark Charged

Col. Price charged Premier Hepburn with keeping the public in the dark with regard to the increase in the Provincial debt since the present government took office and he estimated the increase since July 1934 to have been $80,391,676 up to Feb. 1, 1936. He placed the debt then at $497,000,000 and said that the minister's estimate was not better than that of Mr. Ferguson in 1931 it would be "quite a substantial one."

Liquor Commissioner Odette, he said, was not the type of man for such a position and he suggested that a man must be on the job all the time. Premier Hepburn, he said, did not spent an entire week in his office.

"Look at the returns," said the Premier.

"Irrelevant" shouted Col. Price. "It's not a sales department. This is a commission that has much sale and not enough control."

Referring to a lengthy list of Toronto properties, Col. Price declared sale authorities, Col. Price called the handling of such matters "a public disgrace" and said the fire marshal system of schools differing only from the Public Schools in that the teaching of any denominational doctrine was forbidden, were carried out of the public treasury, and whereas, Mr. J. Quinn, President of the Roman Catholic Separate Schools Association has, as reported in the Toronto Globe, refused to defend the government of this province at the public meetings of the faithful demands are not met, it is further resolved that we, the Grand Master, Orangemen of Ontario in general session assembled in the town of Prescott do most emphatically protest against any further concessions being made to the Roman Catholic hierarchy in Quebec."

Demilitarized Area Suggested For 2 Countries

(By Charles P. Nutter, Copyright 1936, By The Associated Press)

London, March 18.—Aroused by unconfirmed reports that a British draft of a security proposal envisaged a joint Franco-German demilitarized zone, policed by the League of Nations, French sources declared today any Paris Government agreeing to such a plan would sound its own death knell.

French sources insisted no Government, in the present state of French nationalism after the German occupation of the Rhineland and before the French spring elections, would dare subscribe to any plan by which a portion of its own territory would be policed by foreign representatives.

Meanwhile diplomats of the Locarno powers began a new session seeking to arrive at a lasting solution of the crisis precipitated by Germany's Rhine watch in defiance of the Locarno and Versailles Treaties.

FORMER PREMIER OF GREECE, DIES

Eleutherios Venizelos in Self-Imposed Exile

Paris, March 18—(AP)—Eleutherios Venizelos, 71-year-old former premier of Greece, who led the modern Greek statesman, died today in self-imposed exile.

Eleutherios Venizelos, for nearly 25 years dominated the political border of the post-war republic and history maker, wound up his dramatic career in exile, after participating in Paris, to a return to his native land, from which a revolutionary once had been lifted by amnesty decree after the overthrow of the monarchy in November, 1935.

"I am not going back; it would not be wise," he said when word of the amnesty reached him, and that was the last attitude of his Liberal party led all others in the first general election under the restored monarchy, on Jan. 26, 1936.

The death sentence was the outcome of an abortive revolt which broke out in the navy on March 1, 1935.

RELIEF OFFICERS HELD 12 HOURS

Blind River Council To Discuss Clothing Quota

Blind River, March 18—(CP)—Blind River council will meet tonight and hear from the relief officials the town's angered relief recipients of the 10% clothing cut.

A mob of 162 men and women in Canada, last night released two Provincial relief officers, T. W. Littleford and H. Hanger, after holding them prisoners for more than twenty hours.

Angered by the decision of council to cut off a $900 clothing quota for relief vouchers, the crowd threatened to lay Constable Ed Labbe when he attempted to release the officers. The release was made while Provincial Police were being rushed from Sudbury, 85 miles west of here.

Tonight's meeting will be presided over by Mayor Williams who was absent during the trouble which was caused by the appointment of Northern Development Officials to administer the provisions of the Ontario Government.

PERMANENCY OF TREATY DOUBTFUL SAYS H.C. GREEN

Defeat of Roosevelt Would Lead to Cancelling of Pact

PATRONAGE DEBATED

Bill Talked Out With C.C.F. Leading The Discussion

Ottawa, March 18.—(CP)—The fate of the Roosevelt administration at the coming Presidential election in the United States will mean the end of the Canada- United States Trade Treaty, in the opinion of H. C. Green, Conservative House member for Vancouver South.

While considering the treaty in the House last night for the benefit it brought to Canadian Lumbermen, the Western member said the Empire trade agreement were a month more satisfactory arrangement as far as the lumber business was concerned.

Chief opposition of Canadian lumbermen, the United States came from the lumber producers of Washington and Oregon who were able to make their lumber and sell at the American capital. They did not like the treaty and their influence made its permanency doubtful.

"If the Roosevelt administration is defeated," he said, "the lumbermen and other interests will make a drive to cancel the treaty."

The House today continues itemby-item consideration of the treaty in committee of the whole. Yesterday it approved the first of the items in the schedule or changes in the Canadian Tariff and made good progress in the study of the many schedule or changes in the American tariff.

Patronage Placed

Private member Bill Bouvier provided a brief but stormy discussion of the old question of patronage when the C.C.F. member for Beauharnois, (Quebec) (Salaschaus), to remove the civilian service from the control of the Civil Service Commission came up for second reading. Across the floor from James H. Hall came my and one the second time was "talked out."

J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, led an attack on it. He said he was amazed that the Government now seemed ready to endorse the principle of patronage. Conservative Hon. Fernand Rinfret, Secretary of State, had suggested the Bill receive second reading and be referred to committee.

There could be no efficiency in a Civil Service ruled by political patronage, said Mr. Woodsworth, and the Bill would introduce patronage in its worst form. Liberals attempted to call the Bill to committee at once and shut him down when he tried to make them proceed. Premier Mackenzie King outside the House, high-tempered Speaker Rinfret said he was out of order and a Liberal member warned him to "cool down."

FATHER FARRELL APTLY DESCRIBES SAINT PATRICK

"Irish Day Honored By The Kiwanis Club"

MUSICAL PROGRAM

In typical Irish fashion, the Kiwanis Club honored St. Patrick at their luncheon on Tuesday at Dickens' restaurant, when an Irish program of music was given and a most interesting address on the life of the Saint was delivered by Rev. Father H. J. Farrell of Shirley. Leo B. Bligh, chairman of the entertainment committee was in charge and Lawrence Leo acquitted a most worthwhile program. Introduced to the club by the latter was Harold Davidson, who delightfully sang most numbers "I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen" and "When Irish Eyes are Smiling". Clare Patterson also delighted with Irish numbers and both singers were enthusiastically encored. The speaker of the day was introduced by Leo Bligh and Kiwanian appreciation was expressed by Dr. Ross Mitchell.

Large Number Present

There was a large number of the members present, and each was treated with a clay pipe and a shamrock, the latter worn by Sullivanian Bill Cook. The air was literally filled with smoke, as the Irish members of the club appeared bedecked with green ties and a sprig of shamrock in the lapel and each and for once the Scotchmen, the Welshmen and the Irishmen of Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Dr. Ross Mitchell.

Larry Keenan Present

There was also a large number of the members present, and each was treated with a clay pipe and a shamrock, the latter worn by Sullivanian Bill Cook. The air was literally filled with smoke, as the Irish members of the club appeared bedecked with green ties and a sprig of shamrock in the lapel and each and for once the Scotchmen, the Welshmen and the Irishmen of Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Dr. Ross Mitchell.

Rev. Father Farrell spoke of the happy character of the Irish people, and Frank Dowsley, chairman of the day, thanked Father Farrell for his address and Frank Dowsley, chairman expressed his thanks for the entertainment provided and the royal welcome extended to the visitors.

Gordon Bray announced, on behalf of the press, branches and journalists, would be a guest of honor at the Kiwanis Club and give his impression of the Irish, after spending a week in the evening Mr. Maclean is giving a talk on the Canadian Rockies at the Kiwanis Club in the Bay Shore Hotel, and all are invited to hear this talented journalist give full and informative information on this all absorbing subject. PROVINCIAL TAX FIELD ENLARGED

Resolution to Amended B.N.A. Will Permit Indirect Taxation

Ottawa, March 18 (CP)—Expansion of the Provincial field of taxation by amendment to the British North America Act is provided for in a resolution, notice of which appears on the order paper of the House of Commons today.

The resolution would amend the constitution so as to give the provinces right to impose indirect taxation within their fields on certain stipulated things. As the British North America Act stands at present provinces are restricted to direct taxation.

The amendment would also give the Dominion power to guarantee debts of the provinces. Whether or not this power resides in the Dominion has been a matter of dispute.

The resolution placed on the order paper in the name of Prime Minister Mackenzie King, asks the House to approve the amendment "as humble address to His Most Excellent Majesty the King" embodying the proposals. This is the method of asking that Canada's constitution be amended in such a way as to embody the proposals.

Indirect Taxation

The amendment would add to Section 92 of the B.N.A. Act (the section which deals with provincial taxation) a clause which would empower provinces to impose indirect taxation within the provinces in respect to:

(1) Retail sales, other than of all alcoholic beverages, and of automobiles, cigarettes and cigars which are subject to duties imposed elsewhere by or in Canada or other than of all goods and articles for delivery outside the province.

(2) The patronage of hotels, restaurants, and of amusements, admission or entertainment: in order to raise revenue for provincial purposes.

This amendment would be retroactive with respect to provincial legislation in force at the time it is passed.

With respect to Dominion guarantees of provincial governments, sections of the British government is requested to place the following provisions in the British North America Act:

Guaranteed Securities

"The Parliament of Canada may authorize the government of Canada to guarantee the payment of the principal, interest and sinking fund of any security (hereinafter called 'guaranteed securities') which any province of Canada may from time to time make or issue, and, subject to the provisions of this Act may prescribe the terms and conditions upon which any guarantee authorized shall be given, and the provisions of the Act shall, in the case of any security guaranteed being given, apply and have full force and effect notwithstanding anything contained in the British North America Acts, 1867 to 1930, the Statute of Westminster Act, 1907, the Parliament of Canada Act, 1875, 1940 (Canada Ontario Boundary) Act, 1889. The Canadian Speaker (Appointment of Deputy) Act, 1895, Section 9 of any Act, orders, rules and regulations passed or made thereunder or any statute thereto establishing a province or admitting a colony or territory into the Union affecting the constitutional relationship between Canada and a province. ....."

100 P. C. Attendance Four Straight Weeks

For the fourth consecutive week the local Y's Men's Club met 100 percent on Monday night, featuring a splendid address from Mr. Grafton of the local Collegiate staff. Mr. Grafton's talk was a sequel to special request, of a previous address on the same subject in which detail than was possible on the former occasion. The speaker dealt with the many modern developments throughout the financial countries and drew comparisons to show the astounding progress being made. Among other interesting facts was the confirmation of many Bible stories through recent discoveries in development of the modern Port of Haifa, and the interesting comment in view of its being the outlet of the great pipe line from Irak, the story of the Jonah and the Jewish city of Tel-Aviv, which has become a modern city of 100,000 people in less than 25 years. Amazing figures as to the export of citrus oranges and other fruit from Palestine were quoted and the remarkable prosperity of the country explained.

Mr. Grafton was introduced by the members by George Pauley, while thanks of the club were expressed by Jack Wilson. Harry Howe occupied the chair and Neyt Thompson led the singing.

Next week we set aside as Hamilton Night, when three new members will be officially put on the roster.

Patients Flee Oregon Home As Mercy Deaths Feared

Assurance Given Inmates That None Will be Chloroformed

Salem, Ore., March 19 (AP)—Assurances that there was "mercy death" talk in the Oregon Home for feeble-minded were given by assurance none of the inmates would be chloroformed.

Four of the five terrified patients who fled Sunday night were returned and others were told they need not fear a sociologist's suggestion children with hopeless mental deficiencies be put to death.

Dr. J. R. Laughlin, Willamette University sociologist, expressed regret his proposal last week had "taken a sensational turn" and was able to read."

Apparently the patients had read the proposal in newspapers. Mrs. L. A. Gilleman, the home's head psychologist, said they were "repeatedly asking" whether they would be chloroformed.

"As far as chloroforming suggestions go, they do not apply to anyone able to read a newspaper or run away," Laughlin said. "I applied the mercy killing idea to applied to idiots who could not read, talk or understand."

CONDON RETURNS FROM VACATION

Liberty Story Says Cabinet-maker Built Ladder For Hauptmann

(By Donald C. Bolles)

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, March 19 (AP)—The enigmatic "Jafsie" came back from a vacation in Panama yesterday, defense counsel in the case he drawn into an 11th hour effort by Bruno Hauptmann to save his life from the electric chair-the man he helped identify as the kidnap-slaying of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's infant son.

Dr. John F. Condon—returned to the United States from Panama City aboard the Santa Rosa less only 34 hours after C. Lloyd Fisher announced he would demand the former Bronx school teacher undergo rigorous examination with the expectation that he would give him a sound basis for action in his desperate effort to save convicted Richard Hauptmann from execution the week of March 30.

Governor Harold G. Hoffman, who has said Condon should clear up his discrepancies at the trial, this week expected to write him either today or tomorrow to ask him to come to the State House for examination.

The last course Fisher might follow should Condon refuse to comply voluntarily was not revealed.

As the 76-year-old educationist landed, Liberty published in an article by Fulton Oursler, its editor-in chief, and Abraham Samuelson, Bronx undertaker, had told of how Condon he made a three-section ladder for Hauptmann several months before the kidnapping.

Samuelson, Oursler article said, told Condon 10ov. 16th, 1933, that three men and a young woman came to his shop and had specifications. specifications in which lumber was to be cut for a ladder.

(One of the State's strongest points against Hauptmann at the Flemington trial was that he had made the ladder from wood stripped from his attic with nails and tools (second to his garage.)

Samuelson, according to the article told Condon he could identify the ladder he made by his own pencil marking and said he had two pieces of wood left over.

MINER TRIMMED BY SLICKER PAW

Klondiker Admits He is Fleeced First in 79 Years

Detroit, Mich., March 18—(CP)—Wearing a big coonskin coat he bought from Howard Eaton for $140, Arthur W. Brennan, veteran of the Klondike, arrived in the city Monday to relate how gamblers in Skeleton Canyon and other mining stampedes, today left here for his home in Seattle, Wash., "broke."

He admitted he was "fleeced" by a slicker paw, and that he is going to himself because he intended one of $2,000.

"I've been among slickers all my life and this is the first time in 79 years I've lost anything", Brennan declared. "I must be getting soft."

Two men he met in Seattle told him if he would hand over $2,500, the amount he had on deposit in a Seattle bank, they would go into a gold mine deal that would net him $12,000. The reason why they wanted him in with such a small amount, they explained, was because they appreciated his "technical advice."

The men told Brennan after he had turned over the money but Fri. day they would have the deal signed at the "Pine Hotel, Detroit." Brennan arrived in the city Monday and discovered after the only Pine hotel there was torn down years ago.

Do You Know That—
To Wash Your Face with Wine was Part of the Elizabethan Recipe for Beauty?

In Olde England of Queen Elizabeth's time the popular recipe for having a beautiful complexion was to take first a very hot bath and follow it by sponging the face with wine, to which a little lemon juice was added. Few women are able to afford these "wine washes" used milk as the next best thing.

Not for several centuries were any delicate secrets made to the public than the manufacture and application of skin lotions on a scientific basis.

To-day they are prepared under strictly clean and antiseptic conditions... with all the ingredients carefully tabulated by the chemist. In the modern drug store, there are a variety of these beauty aids from which you may easily find the one to suit your own skin and colouring.

Napanee Kaladar Highway Blocked

Toronto, March 18 (CP)—All the snow fighting equipment of the Ontario Highways Department was pressed into service to battle yesterday's heavy snowstorm.

Early reports said the only highway blocked was No. 41, from Napanee to Kaladar, but all other highways were reported "heavy."

In the Niagara district, engineers reported six to 13 inches of snow made driving conditions bad.

THE DAILY ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER is published every afternoon (Sunday and legal holidays excepted) at The Ontario Intelligence Building, Front Street, Belleville.

POLICE RADIO PRAISED

Oshawa Times says Belleville as one of the progressive cities of Ontario in the adoption of a police radio broadcast to assist the force in patrolling the city and to keep down crime and to capture offenders against the laws. The editor of the Times says:

"The Belleville Police Department and the City Council are to be commended upon their initiative in installing a radio station to broadcast information to officers on patrol and to neighbouring police stations. The idea which has proved to be such a success in the larger cities of Canada and the United States, should at once prove its value in the carrying out of police work in a smaller city.

"In recent years crime has taken advantage of science to keep just one step ahead of the law. The introduction of fast automobiles permitted criminals to make a "get-away" even when the alarm was sent in by telephone. With the development of radio communication crime is finding that the law is fast catching up and criminals can no longer rely on speed for their own safety. The shoe is on the other foot, so to speak.

"In this age of speed it is noticeable that the police are fighting crime with its own weapon and emerging the victor out second best. Criminals are beginning to realise that crime does not pay. Belleville is in a key position in Eastern Ontario and its radio broadcasting station should prove of inestimable value in relaying information from the larger centres both east and west along the lake."

VIEWS OF PULPITS

Unless the United States joins the community of nations in efforts to achieve international peace, there will be another and the next war in spite of neutrality legislation or any other attempts at isolation, Major C. S. Douglas Booth, member of the Royal Institute of International Affairs said at the Presbyterian Church of the Good Shepherd, New York. "The world is an interdependent society" he declared. He pointed out that United States, Great Britain, France and Russia as statically content to develop under peace and on the other side the dynamically discontented states.

Of the latter he said "They have not got what they want and are now in progress of getting what they want by force. In that group are Italy and Germany and Japan. They say they want colonies in order to gain access to raw materials and a place for their surplus population. These demands, in our opinion, are not unreasonable but are due to grievances dating back to the last World War."

On Church Union question, Canon Bernard Iddings Bell of St. John's Cathedral, R. I., preaching in the Episcopal Church of the Transfiguration in New York, said: "There can be no doubt that the leaders of Christian bodies, Roman Catholics, Orthodox, Anglican and Protestant, are all greatly aroused about the wickedness and folly of opposing a weakly divided front against the cynical godlessness that is degrading the race into merely more clever beasts."

"It is no longer a question of whether or not we happen to be temperamentally interested in the reunion of Christendom. We can no longer stop to argue as some have done in easier times, the question whether or not many brands of Christianity may not be advisable in order to minister to various temperaments. Now in this a time when we can longer afford to be concerned with piously sentimental adherence to inherited denominational loyalities.

"This is a time of crisis. In Russia all Christianity, indeed all religions, whatsoever, are proscribed. People there it is true may still go unhindered to worship but they must not teach to any the moral imperatives of their faith, or publish and circulated religious books or train children in the faith or even preach or listen to sermons. Religion is tolerated there only as an ornamental adornment to the individual life." After referring to the sufferings of Catholics and Protestants in Mexico and Jews in Germany Canon Bell said "Christianity has its backs to the wall. It must bear its witness but to do so every day costs more. It may long cost us as much here as it does in Russia and Mexico. Before long it may cost everywhere, in this, our twentieth century, as much for us to bear witness as once it cost the heroic martyrs in the days of the Roman Empire.

"The reunion of Christendom is not a matter of uniting our existing, separate denominations. It is rather a matter of drawing together from those who belong to the various denominations the people, who, in first of all, are not mere conformists and conventional respectabilities but those who mean business for God against world, flesh and devil. That means that in reunion most alleged Christians, the hangers-on, the people who were once baptized and confirmed but who now rarely if ever attend the sacraments, almost never pray, make no sacrifices for the Master, can be and ought to be and must be ignored as of no importance whatever. Such people are renegades; they are merely rather unloveable impediments in the way of reunion. Let us, whatever our allegiance, agree to ignore these people, except when we pray for them. Their opinions ought to have no weight whatever in our mutual considerations.

"And reunion is a matter, in the second place, of drawing together those in every denomination who have escaped from the false notion that religion is an individualistic affair, between man and God, a private matter. Those who understand that religions, in racial experience, have never been that except when they were dying; those who see clearly that religion is a corporate witnessing to a God who insists on his devotees combatting corporate, economic, political evil as well as private secret badness."

WINTER TWILIGHT

'Tis lonely this eve and the English winds sighing
A dirge that is racking my old heart with pain,
For now comes remembrance and bitter-sweet sorrow
To well blinding tears in my aged eyes again.

'Tis now I remember the far winter twilights
Amid Munster hills looming white in the snow,
And echoing dimly I hear the soft laughter
That rang through my home of an age long ago.

My mother I see by the old kitchen fireside
Her tired eyes happy when toiling was done,
My father with jesting and song ever merry—
My brothers and sisters—aye, gay every one.

And old kindly neighbors I see in the fire-
With warm-hearted blessings and homage they'd call;
And there among friends of a wild, happy boyhood,
I laughed the long hours away—gayest of all . . .

Aye, lonely 'tis now- and the English winds sighing
This grey winter eve 'mid a city's loud roar,
And naught but remembrance to bring the tears welling —
A sorrowed remembrance of days that are o'er.

Patrick Buckley, in Irish Weekly Independent.

HERR HITLER HAS CALLED AN ELECTION so that the people can approve by ballot his acts—and they had better vote right or Dictator Hitler will no doubt find ways and means to show his displeasure. Of courses the election needs to be introduced with fireworks, hence the march on the Rhine, the tearing up of the Locarno Treaty and the annihilation of the last shreds of the Versailles Treaty as it affects Germany. Herr Hitler HASKS face to face with thousands and millions more over the radio, and here are some of the things he said: "Men of the German Reichstag, when in the grey November days of 1918 the curtain was lowered on the bloody tragedy of the great war . . . the views of the President of the United States had reached the ear of the world . . . in Fourteen Points! No people succumbed more completely to the magic power of this fantasy than the Germans . . . We had been deprived of the War, for whose outbreak we were exactly as guiltless, or as guilty, as other peoples . . . That peace which was intended to be the final stone laid on the cover of the Tomb of War developed into dragons' seed for new struggles!"

WILLIAM HARRIGAN, SON OF EDWARD HARRIGAN, famous actor of the Nineties, sang some of his father's songs over the radio recently, recalling to Old Timers the days of Harrigan and Hart and company who toured Canada in "Squatters Sovereignty"; one of the first plays to use realistic and introduce pigs and hens on the stage. Hart died comparatively young in Bellevue Hospital, New York City, and Ned Harrigan went on alone to carve his own theatre in New York City, where he produced "Reilly and the 400" for a very long run and immortalized "Maggie Murphy's Home" and other popular songs. William Harrigan is a son of his father and is an actor by profession.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

MARCH 18, 1916.

Mr. Earl W. VanBlaricom, barrister, of Saskatoon, has been visiting his mother at her home on Grove Street, enroute to Kingston where he will join the 50th (Queen's) Battery.

Mr. Daniel Maye of Washington Territory is visiting his parents in Tyendinaga Township after an absence of twenty-six years.

The kind influence of St. Patrick, the beloved saint of the Irish, was evidently present at the curling rink yesterday afternoon when two Irish rinks defeated two Scotch rinks. Much interest was shown in the match. The veteran skip, Mr. Frank Dolan, was in his glory and he trimmed his opponents to the King's taste as he has done before upon many a St. Patrick's Day. Yesterday was the 17th St. Patrick's Day curling match in which he has taken part. Skip and during the half year time he lost only two games. He is now 74 years old. The members of the game yesterday was 39 to 17 in favor of the Irish. The following composed the rinks: Rink 1: Irish —H. A. Kerr, W. A. Dolan, W. H. Smith, P. J. Dolan, skip, 21. Scotch—A. S. White, J. S. Cook, A. McGie, J. G. Galloway, skip, 8. Rink 2: Irish—T. D. Diamond, E. E. Rose, J. S. McKeown, J. A. Kerr, skip, 21. Scotch—R. Symons, W. J. Stone, C. J. Symons, Dr. M. J. Bible readings were read by Miss Muriel Allison, Mrs. Walker and Mrs. W. Wilson. Prayers were offered by Mrs. J. Milligan, Mrs. G. McLarren, Mrs. C. McMechan and Mrs. Bennett. Another hymn was sung 'Jesus Calls us O'er the Tumult'. Mrs. R. McMechan, Mrs. J. Milligan and Mrs. Bennett were the delegates chosen to attend the March Presbyterial to be held in Bellemille, Tabernacle church, on March 25th and 26th. The Belleville Amateur Minstrels scored another success last night in the benefit for Mr. R. K. Curlett. The house was packed to the doors and everything could be paid to the beneficiary than the house which greeted them on their first visit. The recipient of four bouquets and was repeatedly called before. Hope and Mackie with Mr. Curlett composing the big three got three encores each and the end men, Mr. Curlett and H. James, tambourine and W. Donnelly and F. Fellows, bones, were good. Their jokes were fresh, good and pointed. Capt. Henderson was an able interlocutor filling the office with credit and satisfaction. A quartette by Messrs. Wensley, Morrill, Bulkeley and Fellows was encored twice. Wensley's song "Silver Moon" in fine voice. Mr. Walter Donnelly, a newcomer in the troupe, took a prominent part in the performance and evinced much talent. Messrs. Bulkeley, Fellows and J. L. Morrill are always favorites with a Belleville audience. The Belleville Cooking School by the committee met a decided hit and took well. Mr. R. M. Hoy astonished the audiences with his decapitating a head trick and Mr. W. C. Mikel brought down the house in his usual speech on the recent flood. Mr. Curlett's eccentricities took well and Messrs. Donnelly, Bulkeley and Hosiage in their burlesque on "Three Little Maids From School" carried the house by storm and were repeatedly called out. Mr. J. Mackie was good in his Irish songs and sayings. Mr. H. Hames gave a fine exhibition of club swinging. Mr. J. Fenn performed creditably upon the xylophone and Miss Curlett won fresh laurels in his clog dancing.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY
By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology
Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

It is by no means a rare occasion that, when at a party, you hear a cry and find that a lady has fainted. This happens often enough to merit such an expensive quite commonplace. If you have not yet gone through the experience, you probably will before your party-going days are over.

Following such an occurrence, of course, there is always considerable excitement; one person running for aromatic spirits of ammonia and another for ice; I, myself, have, on more than one occasion, been called upon to procure a pitcher of water in the patient's face, to the acute discomfort of the latter and expensive ruin of my lovely and expensive gown.

The point is this: don't become panicky and excited when somebody faints! Take it easy. Give attention, but avoid excitement. Panicking means that the supply of blood to the brain is temporarily insufficient. Hence the faint.

First of all, place the patient in such a position that the head may be lowered. This forces the flow of blood into the brain. Sitting the patient in a chair and bending the body forward, arms hanging limp and the head held near the floor as possible is a very convenient and effective method.

Stimulate the heart action by applying a cold towel to the forehead and front. If it is cool to have cold water will be beneficial, for the patient will undoubtedly have revived by now. This is the time also when the aromatic spirits of ammonia may be used, if you have it.

When the patient does not need it, feed hungry people are about and never when the patient is alone.

Usually the hysterical attack is accompanied by outbursts of prolonged and sometimes violent crying or laughing. The patient does not seem able to stop it. Sometimes it runs from laughter into weeping.

In an hysterical attack the most important thing is to isolate the patient. Take her to a place where she will be absolutely alone and there it doesn't make any difference whether she makes a lot of noise or not.

There is a curious element of what I might term "grandstand play" in this variety of emotional upset. The more solicitous you are, the worse the patient becomes. Just leave your patient alone and pay no attention, and the likelihood is that the attack will stop as suddenly and unexpectedly as it began.

Hysterical attacks are not accompanied by fainting or unconsciousness. The patient rather what she is doing, but she cannot, by a simple act of will, control herself.

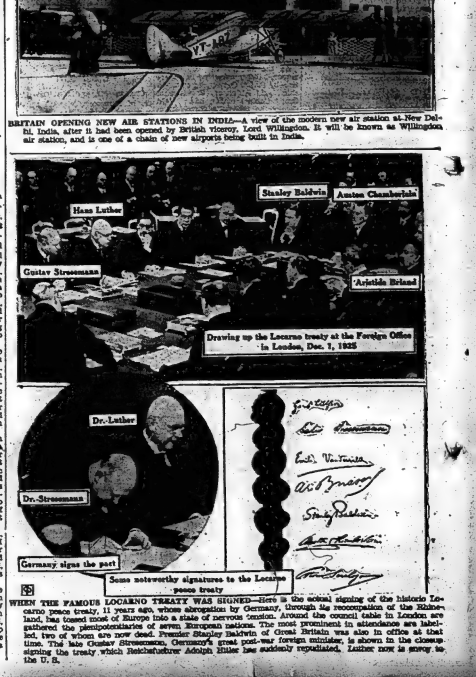
Little Benny's Note Book

We was eating breakfast and ma said to pop, Don't forget we're going to hear Sacha Gietz tonite, Willyum. Sacha is maybe barely 12 years old and already such a marvellous violinist he has fame and fortune at his beck and call and crown heads at his feet. Naturally we awt to dress up extra special. Well, we got all layed out in a boiled shirt and trimmings, for a 12 year old kid, nothing doing, pop said, and ma said, But Willyum, he's going to play Bargarole and Bock as they've probably never been played before, youd anything be more inspiring than that to dress up for?



Sure, pop said, you don't take music through your clothes, you take it through your ears, pop said. I wouldn't mind giving my ears an extra washing in honor of the occasion, ma thumbs down on the dressing. When I climb into that boiled shirt I'm not going to be seen belitling myself, he said, and ma said, Well, as what for an example just for instants?

Well, if the evening started with something real solem such as a noble and edifiying repast of fish and onions, it would be a different story, or rather it would be an epic of long pure poetry, pop said, and ma said, We had liver and onions 3 days ago, which is practically epic, tiddy at any rate. I'm concerned, so it's not coy reducious but only a matter of fact that we have it again today.

Well, I'm even surgested having it, pop said. You admit me what I considered a belitling occasion of genuine clothes and I calmly and dispassionately told you, that's all he said, and ma said, Willyum Potts this is blackmail.

Not at all, it's a bewtiful example of the survival of the fittest. I mean the survival of the fittest. I'm another 20 years from now, without liver and onions, though of course I may be wrong, pop said, and ma said, Very well, I'll call up the butcher and fix the buttonhole of your boiled dress shirt, such a man.

Morning pop.

WHEN THE FAMOUS LOCARNO TREATY WAS SIGNED—Here is the actual signing of the historic Locarno peace treaty, 11 years ago, whose atmosphere is now one of tension. Around the council table in London are gathered the plenipotentiaries of seven European nations. The most prominent in attendance are labelled. The late Gustav Stresemann, Germany's great post-war foreign minister, is shown in the closeup signing the treaty which Archbishop Adolph Hitler has suddenly repudiated. Luther now is envoy to the U. Rosamond's Double Role

By Richard Ballinger

CLARK LARRIMER had met Celia Brady and Ethel, the youngest of that family, and fallen for his feminine pulchritude, but of Rosamond, the eldest, he had only heard echoes of her calm beauty. Men said she was a marble statue, and that nothing could awaken her dreaming peace.

That day Rosamond Celia had repeated one day, "She's the dearest thing, but she wouldn't be any of this." And she was—and her hand at the room full of flowers.

Sometimes, when Clark was alone, the description given by gay Celia came back to him, and disliking the formidable picture of a cheerful girl who was always ready for a date, fatal to any man's interest in her, he became much more fair she be. Clark finally dismissed the hope of meeting the latter, but he became interested in his business of manufacturing paints and varnishes, with occasional excursions into society.

One afternoon when the fever of spring was in the air and he could not resist the call of the outdoors, Clark got out his car and rode out East avenue to the country club. The Brady residence was on the corner, and as he approached Mrs. Brady and the younger girls in the car were driven by into the middle-aged colored man. The Bradys were poor in this world's goods, but it came of a good old family—did had many rich relatives. The latter family were at deal and entertaining frequently in their lovely de

Just as Clark reached the Brady residence it became aware that the machine needed water. It was second thought to stop there and apply for it. Celia, who had been in Westville were always neighborly, and there was no public garage thereabouts, Clark jumped out and hastened up the graveled drive to the house. He rang the bell, and girl was standing with her back to him busily engaged in something at the sister of Celia and Ethel, but saw her embarrassed profile smiled gravely.

"Water? Certainly," she said in a voice which was low and musical, tingle. "If you will come to the house I will give you a pail." Clark to the trailer in front, but you may as well fill the pail in the kitchen." As he followed Lola great kitchen, immaculately clean, where a servant was preparing supper, afflicted with rheumatism, sat in a comfortable armchair by the fire. Clark noted with pleasure where the girl gave Clark a shining pail, handed to her quiet, Aunt Hepzy," called the girl.

"I am sorry to trouble you—I didn't know that it might be intruding—I am acquainted with Mrs. Brady and her daughters Celia—"

"You must be coming to dinner tonight," Rosamond interrupted the girl. "I recognized you at once—I am Rosamond Brady," and she gave him a hand roughened with housework.

Clark took her hand. "May I say a thing while and be fellow-company?" he asked.

Rosamond looked doubtful. Then a wave of color invaded her fair cheeks. "I shall be glad, Mr. Larrimer, if you will overlook—because and the girls it if were known—" "Yes, I know," Clark said, "but we cannot afford another maid, I come out and help. Heppy directs me, and I do the work, and the two younger girls a chance to go about. I shall try to make myself useful there is dinner to get. Can you mix mayonnaise?"

"You will let me help you a little I'll foreswear any knowledge of you and your dark plottings in the kitchen."

That night at the happy, informal dinner party for which the Brady's had invited Clark as one of the men who drove the car, Clark saw Rosamond again and also seemed another girl; she had put on a little some cool frock or thought, but his searching eyes with a hidden appeal to her sleeping heart. Rosamond was not, apparently he saw her coldness melt before his eyes.

During the weeks that followed, Clark learned more about the interesting Brady girls and gradually gained their social position on a desirable basis. He was there each day when they had to unpack Mrs. Brady's own wedding dress, which had been packed away in brick in the kitchen, was the first bride, and Aunt Heppy, who had served her like a mammy, came was almost as proud as Clark himself as he took charge of the sides. She looks like a lovely statue," said someone that day.

Clark only answered. He knew that beneath the marble there was warm blood, but he not kissed his Galatea into life?

HORSE CRAZY

By Hal G. Vermes

That's just the way it was with this Red Tex. If you ever had that horse fever, you'll be racing blood in your veins and you'll always get a thrill out of the ponies. Red had the Great Steward rules you off the turf forever.

We saw this chap for the first time while we're walking around the paddock at the Kentucky Derby. He was Churchill on a quiet Wednesday afternoon. A polite fellow and a Mudder and Bertie.

"Who is the one," I ask. "with the sharpshooter mouth and the little red feather in his hat?"

"Why that's Red Tex, either, and it seems like he is a total stranger to everybody he passes by right him the once-over. It is not that he's so different but there is a look in his shrivel black eyes that acknow makes you start.

Red Tex, when the jockeys get into the irons for the eighth heat and know this chestnut will romp home. That is a horse Jolo by name, from Great Guns out of Henrietta.

"Jolo is a cinch," I tell Red, as it is my business to acquaint myself with all the nags what has any possibilities. Jolo is a three-year-old that has been kept under cover although we do not bet anything on her yet because sometimes she wins and sometimes she don't. That, of course is to be expected but the boys around the track say she is good when she will do which.

Red Tex is strolling back to our box in the stand this day, what we have already named Red Ike because of the leather in his countenance. He walks along beside number five durby and he has a pail of water in one hand and a sponge in the other. He is a cage. While the valets is trying to straighten out the saddle on the barrier. Red Ike rips off his coat and sponge. It is a ball. Then comes that breathless moment when the whole world seems to be standing still.

Being as it is the last race of the day the field is mostly down to scrubs for a few maidens and young fillies. Therefore, there is very little money bet on the favorite and me and my pals has got nothing on it at all. But Red Tex has got a lot of the crowd, we went to see a good thing and Jolo is the best bet to win. There is one fellow that bets, however, and that is this Red Tex, and when Red Tex bets it is a good start, he whams his cost right down and he has money burning on it.

"Jolo, baby!" he screams. Run for papa. Run!"

And believe you me, Jolo is running. She's are every inch of the way but Jolo is eating up the dirt and she is coming down the last length in the fore as they go wilbut you be like they was shot out of a gun.

They close in for the clubhouse turn and Jolo is still in front. Of course no twelve bones can all have the speed and stamina and class like there will be a serious accident. Somebody is going to get spread out on the back stretch and we see that they have all still got four feet apiece, so we are not upset for fast bangtails for the lead.

Red Tex is still jumping up and down and not only on his coat but his hat disappears in the air. He is yelling for Jolo like it is a matter of life and death; and now the crowd is with him and we are all with wrong and the home is dry.

Old German Imperials Back Hitler in Rhineland

(By John A. Bouman)
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Berlin, March 18—(AP)—A number of old Imperial Army officers, once commanders of former Kaiser Wilhelm's regiments, declared today their unqualified approval of the action of the Nazi Fuehrer, Adolf Hitler, in directing occupation of the Rhineland.

The most outspoken was the 58-year-old General Karl Litzmann, famous for his great war exploits on the Russian front. His telegram of pronouncements from a sick bed, where he is suffering from influenza, was sent to Hitler, in Munich.

Clark never forgot that hour spent in the kitchen with lovely Rosamond Brady, with old Heppy

PENSION APPEAL MERGER SEEN

Resolution on Order Paper Proposes Appointment of New Commissioners

Ottawa, March 18.—(CP)—Merging of the pension appeal court with the pension commissioners and setting up of an appeal division of the commission, is provided for in a resolution placed on the order paper of the House of Commons by Hon. G. G. Power, Minister of Pensions and National Health.

The resolution which will form basis for an amendment to the Pension Act also provides for appointment of new commissioners "to facilitate the hearing of applications."

It would limit the time for making application for pensions, in certain cases, and would also limit payment of retroactive pensions.

Further it would provide, "in the case of the death of an 8 per cent pensioner, for the removal, for the benefit of his dependents, of the 15 year limitation."

Generally, the resolution states the amendment would provide and clarify procedure and jurisdiction of the commission and its appeal division.

BRIDGE UNTAXED FOR TEN YEARS

Private Bills Committee of Ontario Approve Bill

Toronto, March 18.—(CP)—Ontario legislation to the Private Bills Committee yesterday approved a Bill sponsored by Gerard E. Campbell, (Lib., Leeds) respecting the Corporation of the Town of Leeds and Landowne. The Bill concerned tax exemptions for Thousand Island Bridge Company.

It granted the company exemption from all municipal taxes, including school taxes for a period of ten years from the date of completion of the bridge to be erected at or near Ivy Lea in the Township across the St. Lawrence, a joint near Collins Landing.

It will be the only bridge from Canada to the United States between Niagara Falls on West and Cornwall on the East, that will be Fulford, and is the nearest point of entry to New York.

Although it must be raised every time a boat passes 65,000 vehicles crossed the Cornwall Bridge last year.

MAXIM LITVINOFF ASSAILS HITLER

Russian Commissioner Deplores Tendency to Tear up Treaties

London, March 18.—(AP)— Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff of Russia attacked Reichsfuehrer Hitler's policy in a speech in the League of Nations Council last night.

The Russian diplomat charged Hitler was using his oft-stated fear of Russia "merely as a smokescreen for the aggression which is being prepared against other States."

The pudgy bespectacled Litvinoff decried what he claimed was a growing tendency toward Treaty violation, declaring:

"This is the third time in the 18 months of membership of Russia in the League that its representative has had to speak on breaches of International obligations."

He cited Germany's infringement of the military clauses of the Versailles Treaty through the construction of an air corps, submarines, and a conscript army, and the war between Italy and Ethiopia.

USES PIG CRATE ON TOP OF SLEIGH

Veterinary Battles Flood to Attend Sick Cow

Lindsay, Ont., March 18 (CP)—Dr. G. D. Lawrence, recently elected president of the Ontario Veterinary Association received a call to a farm in Manvers Township to attend a sick cow and battled floods enroute to his "patient." He encountered his snowmobile. When he came to the long swamp on the Open Manvers boundary, he found his "steed" hocked at the water.

He hitched a near-by farmer to drive him on his journey on horse and sleigh. Before they had travelled very far they found the water completely covered the sleigh. Back they went and this time loaded a large pig crate on top of the sleigh. In this manner they managed to "navigate" the temporary river.

WAVE ORGAN MAKES MUSIC BY ELECTRICITY

Harvey Robb Demonstrates The Morse Robb Invention —Reproduces True Tones

ED. NOTE:—Following is an article on the Morse Robb electric organ written by Edward W. Wodson, of the Toronto Evening Telegram. It gives a very impressive description of this wonderful invention.

The "Wave" organ of present being demonstrated in the Georgian Room of the T. Eaton store, is the invention and development of Morse Robb, a young Canadian now resident in Belleville. It has been my privilege to hear this organ played by Dr. Harvey Robb—to play it myself—and to spend some hours in the company of its inventor and his gifted fellow workers, asking all sorts of questions about it and marvelling more and more at what I have heard and seen concerning it. The thing is a miracle, yet the many miracles there seems to be nothing mysterious about it once the principle of its being is realised. It is an organ that makes music as beautiful and varied as that of the noblest pipe organ, yet it has no pipes nor reeds nor even tuning forks nor things like bells to strike or strings to scrape with rosined bow. Yet it could fill the Coliseum with glorious organ music, dignified, many colored and smooth flowing.

What Makes the Music?

I heard Dr. Harvey Robb play a Bach fugue on it, building up tone after tone and shade after shade, bringing out over the heads of listeners, who sat spellbound, with perfect symphony of indescribable lightness. I heard him improvise dreamily and softly on a theme given by Widow Jarko and then on to a stirring march. This wonderful organ music—better (has most by far) than chalk. There were lovely flute phrases in it—and gentle velvet string passages—a deep-voiced and powerful trombone, harmony and out of the ensemble came a solo flute, of such purity and singing voice purer and sweeter than any ever human. I ever heard on an organ or anywhere. I heard him accompany a contralto singer and a violinist, and perhaps the greatest miracle of all. For the accompaniment was so perfect that the singer's tone, and the solo violin like was lost in many times in the combination that made the listener forget the organ altogether. Ann Forester

"I expect a message any minute, darling, an out of town——" Brant purred.

Perhaps it was the calmness in his voice, perhaps it was the comfortable knowledge of her, but Mimi suddenly let breath "Brant! You're not going——to her!"

"I do said simply.

Brant's voice, Mimi's condescension broke as he might watch a kitten bridle because it became a small, gleaming figure of fury.

"You——you!" she cried spitefully. "You great fool! You go to that rotten snip—that alley cat!" The venom loaded her words. Brant was aghast at the stream of vituperation which poured from her lips. He felt ashamed, repelled, overwhelmed by the conviction that this perfect exterior covered a mass of corruption within.

The curves of Brant's face finally seeped through to Mimi's sense of caution. She caught her breath, shocked herself, then flung herself coolly in his arms.

"Oh, Brant——forgive me. Forgive me. I was driven mad! Can't you see you're breaking my heart! Oh, my love, are you so blind? I love you—I love you—can't you see it? Oh, I hate you for your blindness! I love you——and you, you, you! You've always loved me! Everyone knows it! All the people say it. Why, my mother knows it. She knew it. She knew you belonged to me really." Brant—Mimi's—darling——" Mimi clawed at him, pulling his head down to her mouth. Finishing over to cover his face with kisses.

Brant had the feeling of being in the clutch of some weird and dangerous beast. He was stifled..... Mesmerized..... He caught her hands of him as gently as possible. "Don't, Mimi——be reasonable! Control yourself, please don't——"

At the silliness of the man penetrated. Mimi stopped sobbing and raised eyes, suddenly watchful, to Brant's face. What she saw there made her draw back, white to the lips. Her tears were instantly dried. Her lips curled in an unpleasant silent laugh. Oh, you——you——" Words fell cat spit.

"Oh-h-h-..." she breathed. "I see——I was mistaken. You are lower than I thought. You prefer the love of your cheap, second-class——"

A devil of rage broke in Mimi. Odd fury gave him two nearly strength. He flung open the door. Then, pinning Mimi's arms to her sides he lifted her bodily, threw her half and shut the door in her face.

Shocking, the silence which rushed into the room after the fury of her. Red shame scorching him. Shame for her——and for him. How blind he had been! What fool——....did people think he was still in love with Mimi? Did Dale? ..She knew I——..... God, had Dale thought he loved Mimi?

Brant thought back, encountered the numerous quarrels they had had. Mimi's name had always filled Dale with unerring zest. He had thought it baseless feminine jealousy——he had ignored it. But had Mimi been playing a deep game? Seeking to punish Dale's indifference? Had that flung her into Phil Clifford's arms?

Up and down the room Brant paced, tortured by memory. Up and down..... As he paused at the window he saw a ruffled gray dawn in the eastern sky. Dawn, breaking.

The next day Cage phoned. He had located Phil Clifford playing in a select company in New Orleans.

An hour later, Brant was on the train.

Plunging out of the iron clad north into the balmy south. Strange to exchange chill for warmth——to see sunshine at this time of the year.

The Gulf City, Brant checked his things at the nearest hotel and took a cab to the address Cage had given him. All the way up town, he sat on the edge of his seat, his fists clenched.

As old French negroes, cackling sight of him through the window of the cab whirled by, crossed himself. "Mr. Dead" they muttered, mumbled under her breath. "Yes, she——just dead, Mr. Dead."

It was mid morning, and no one was at the theatre but the old janitor. From him Brant got the home address of Phil Clifford's understudy.

Twenty minutes later Brant unceremoniously opened the door of the apartment and found himself confronting Phil's astonished face.

"Drop your gun, Ivitch," said Romero. "I'm taking no chances with you, either."

Ivitch pulling, did so, for he saw his little world tottering and he was afraid. Across the clearing a figure raced at the edge of the jungle. It had appeared silently as though out of thin air.

Zora Drinov was the first to perceive it. She voiced a cry of surprised recognition; and as the others turned to follow the direction of her eyes they saw a bronzed white man, naked but for a loin cloth of leopard skin, coming toward them.

His temples were throbbing when he started up the steps, hearing them echo hollowly beneath his tread.

Brant stopped short when the door suddenly opened. Honey towering there, blue overalled, high booted. In her arms a baby, brown faced and grey eyes. A baby, Brant saw with a strange clutch at his heart, startlingly like himself.

CHAPTER 7A

TWO—IN THE SUNSHINE

Astonished disbelief—joy—anger—chased in turn over Honey's broad sunburned face.

Honey suddenly dumped the baby in the rocking chair as though her arms had gone strangely weak. "Well,——" she said. "Well,——"

"No fitting reception for me, Honey?" asked Brant with a shake in his voice.

"Well,—— I—I—What are you here for, Brant Kendall?"

"I'm looking for Dale, Honey. Can you——"

"How do you know she'll want to see you?" Honey began spiritedly. Then she blinked at the sudden white joy of Brant's face. "You mean——she's——Honey?"

"Why not!" snapped Honey. "But that doesn't mean——"

The woman stopped and gasped. Brant had taken the last steps in a bound and flung his arms about her. There was a moment when Honey's heavy boots dangled limply in the air, then Brant kissed her with a resounding smack hard on the lips.

"Land!" There was awe in her voice. "You're the only man ever swept me offa my feet, Brant Kendall!"

"She's here, Honey? And she's all right?"

Honey was actually comprehension flash in the man's face.

Brant spoke slowly, as though he feeling his way. "Honey I don't pretend to understand it, but there's been a misunderstanding somewhere. It will be explained. All was about Dale."

A sudden crow from the rocking chair flashed their eyes back to the forgotten baby. Honey swooped down with a little cry of self reproach.

"Did Honey forget all about her precious baby? Oh, he was such a good little man!"

Brant grasped Honey's shoulders and held her at a distance of iron, his eyes were black as they rested on the baby.

"Whose.....is he?"

Honey's voice was solemn and deep. "Yours!"

The baby blew bubbles and laughed up at the two tense faces hanging over him. Honey heard the man's breath come up in a sort of a sob. "Mine.....! I never dreamed."

"She didn't tell you," answered Honey. He was born out here almost a year ago. It nearly killed Dale, afterward. She was so weak, didn't seem to want to live. For the last two months she's seemed to pick up again. I've driven into town for the truck to get some things she wanted for the baby as the drive here."

"I—I can't believe it!" Brant was talk while and he stared at the baby as though amazed.

"Poor little kid; she went through hell, didn't she? Well Honey, I'll be able to ask it your troubles, Brant, that's between you and Dale. I've been here—beautiful hurt. And it's just because the love you so much. Well—that's my job.

Honey made a dive for nose like a sob and turned a little to chuckle. She lifted the baby. "Here—Brant, hold your son."

"Son—Honey!" Brant backed away in panic. "Honey I—I'll drop him—I'm sure to."

Grey eyes clinging to grey eyes. Kendall eyes—like his father's,—like his own son. His own features miraculously reproduced in that tiny face. Grey eyes. Why—and this couldn't end this tender joy bursting on him all at once! Brant held the baby close to his heart, nearing heart and when the small explosion had closed about his throat. Brant laughed—a new laugh with a shake in it.

"Honey—look at him! And strong as the devil he is, too. Oh, the cute little beggar!"

They were inside the house, so intent in talking they did not hear the old Ford drive up before the store and stop. They did not hear footsteps until they had reached the porch. Only then did Brant and Honey turn "to see Dale in the doorway.

The sight of the car Brant had heard, standing before the steps had served as no warning to Dale. Bill Kelsey, the garage man, often drove out from Dale City with supplies for Pa.

For a moment the change from the dazzling sunlight to this shaded room, blinded the girl. Then, as the dazzle faded from her eyes and the sight cleared Dale sagged for a moment—and the bundles she carried slid down to the floor.

Brant— standing there—that tall figure holding the baby—Honey!

A moment when the world leaped—and its sickening fashion. Why—— he was really here—Why? A divorce—? Pride rushed to Dale's aid. Quite as though her heart was not throbbing painfully and she had no reason standing in her ears, Dale entered the room and spoke quietly.

"What—what brings you here?"

"You," said Brant.

Dale found she had no more words. She could only stand there and tremble. Brant—so known and tall, holding his own son. Her heart leaped, though she tried to keep it still. How worn he looked..... his eyes were tired, his face thinner.

In the same way Brant's eyes were drinking Dale in. Steady brown eyes in a face whiter than he remembered it. The same oval of her face—he found his hands aching to cup it tenderly.

"Here I give me that blessed child before you drop him!" said Honey severely. She snatched the grave, trying baby, glad of the chance to escape. On the porch she collided with Pa, about to enter the room. The impact nearly knocked him down the steps. Before he could recover, Honey blocked his way.

"Come, you keep outa there, Henry Waithes!"

The unexpected dignity of his name drew Pa up short.

"Lord, Honey!" he protested gently, "I was just aiming to go in an' say howdy to Brant—"

"Howdy—my foot! You don't say!" Honey aimed a hit at Pa fiercely that Pa actually staggered back.

Left alone in the room, Dale and Brant looked at each other through an almost.

The man spoke with an effort. "Dale—how much to ever forgive me? I have no words. Just—talking to Honey—makes me realize how—how—I don't understand—and you don't either. There has been understanding work—by a self-scheming person. It makes my head swim. But I want you to know that I know—all of this when I started. I came here, believing you had run away with Phil Clifford, and I was determined to fight for your love again. Regardless of who was right or wrong. I wanted you. Does that count for anything?"

"I didn't go away with anyone."

"I know that now. But it doesn't matter. Only you matter. I can't grasp it. Dale. The baby.... Lord, I almost keeled over..... Dale—does it matter—the old misunderstandings?"

The tugging in Brant's voice, the warm grey light in his eyes as she loved to see it.....

Something moved about Dale's heart. A sweet tremulous joy washed over her. She found she had forgotten all things but him through sudden tears.

"No..... no—" she said huskily. "Nothing matters..... just you. Just you, Brant."

Dale found Brant's arms.

After a long moment they talked, piecing together the patchwork of deception and misunderstanding. And after it was all over, there was nothing of bitterness left.

It was all of an hour later when Honey, feeding with the baby on the front porch, saw them appear, Brant's arm in tender possession about his wife.

"Honey," he said, "may we come out into the sunshine?"

THE END.

STIRLING WINS LOOP TITLE IN EXCITING GAME

Third Period Not Played Due to Time Misunderstanding

AWARDED GAME

Fans From Both Centres Not Pleased With Disposition

Stirling, March 13 (Special)— Nearly 500 fans gathered at the skating arena for the final hockey fixture of the season and though technically nothing seemed at stake, a victory only for periods of the game were played. The first two periods were very pleasing to the fans with both teams playing hard, up hockey and the choice for a winner very difficult. The ice was very heavy and the going became harder for the players as the game progressed. Before the game started both teams were on an even basis each having won a game in the three games series with the total two out of three to be the winner. Starting from scratch, both teams were right to work from the face-off Scollie got the first counter, but Madoc tied in fast to get the lace's rebound to make it 1-1 go Stirling into the lead on a solo effort play. Madoc turned on the heat and shortly after tied it all up when Akey scored from close-in. Stiff body checks began to make their appearances and Referee Holway began to wave the offenders of minor rules to the penalty bench before the first period ended. Whytock scored the winning goal to make it 2 to 1 for Madoc and the large contingent of Madoc supporters in the crowd started to cheer their boys to victory did so in a noisy fashion. When the bell rang to end the first "twenty" Stirling players swarming in on Nickle but couldn't beat him.

By Ingram Clicks

With the opening of the second period Stirling rookies had their team in the clicker when Harry Ingram clicked to make it 2-1. The fans were treated to some of the gold brusher, and incidentally rougher. The big boys on both teams stepped into all corners very definitely, Referee Holway had his hands full. Stirling only to miss the open net and on the return play Alexander netted one deep into Morton's pads. On the return play Robinson squeezed a fast one off Nickle's chest and Scollie was lucky for the rebound to make it 3-1. On came Madoc with a burst of speed, that looked real good and after several attempts they scored save, then a great hand when Akey banged in the lying goal to make it 3-2 in front of the Stirling net. The referee let the dressing room know and that was the end of what promised to be a real contest, impatiently the fans waited for their return to the ice for the final period, thirty minutes passed and still they didn't come, shouts, boos and shrill whistles came from the gallery as the lights were reduced to half power, no one knew why it was all about. Meanwhile behind closed doors league officials were wrestling with a problem, should rush phone calls were put through to get the rights of the matter from the proper source. Some one had blundered and there was a wrench in the works right at the last moment.

Financial Troubles

The trouble is believed to have arisen over finances. At any rate Madoc players were ordered by Referee Holway to go to the dressing room unless this or that was done "right now." After thirty minutes of wrangling from one dressing room to another, referee Holway in Belleville rang his bell, Stirling appeared on the ice alone, Referee Holway skated out to centre and couldn't understand it. There was a "side-on" and Robinson was stopped in the goal mouth by Whytock. Scollie picked up the puck up to the net, which had until now been so carefully guarded by a real Madoc player and lifted it lazily into the empty goal, not a player or boo came from the Madoc fans. They seemed speechless in disgust. It was all over, but nobody wanted to go home. Some one had been responsible for this affair. Manager-Thunder Bay Senior League and West Toronto Nationals league and Stirling Intermediate Greenshirts in their series for the Central Ontario title last night.

Otherwise the teams rested for the start of representative and commercial and interleague clashes tonight. They go into action from Winnipeg to Northern Ontario.

Wanderers had to come from behind with two goals in the third period to beat Winnipegs. It's a toss-up in the second game at Fort William Thursday night.

National got their victory with a late third period goal by Johnny Crawford in a lustreless game that featured fighting and body checking. The second game of the total-goal series will be played in Toronto, Thursday night.

DETROIT O'S IN A TOUGH SPOT

Need One Point to Finish in First Place in Section

(By The Canadian Press)

Detroit Olympics cried "On to Canterbury" in unison today. They began on getting the point to clinch the western section leadership of the International-American League against Pittsburgh Shamrocks Friday night.

The Olympics have held first place in their section ever since the season started. Their lead at times has been as much as 13 points and though they've not exactly wavered, it's their last chance for that elusive point.

If Shamrocks do the unexpected and beat Detroit, the extra money for first place might go to the fighting Falcons of Cleveland. Refusing to let up in their drive, Falcons have clawed four points of the deficit with two victories over Olympics in the past week.

Cleveland did it by 3-1 last night, on the home ice of Olympics. They saw a one-goal lead from the first period tied in the second but Ken Doraty and Bill Regan settled the game in the last period, Earl Roche and Carl Liscombe matched the counters.

Rochester Cardinals and London Panthers played through 70 minutes of hockey to a 3-3 tie in the only other game. York Boyd and George Lever tries sent Panthers into the lead and just as often Walter (Whitey) Parrant bagged the equalizer.

Brockville Magedomas To Play Moncton

OTTAWA, March 13. —(CP)— Maroffe, Ottawa and District intermediate hockey champions decided last night not to challenge Brockville Magedomas, Senior Title holders, to a two-game, goals-to-count series here today and Thursday for the right to represent the Ottawa and District Amateur Hockey Association in the Allan Cup playdowns.

As a result of the decision Brockville will meet Moncton Maroons here Saturday and Monday in a two-game, goals-to-count series in the Canadian Senior playdowns.

Brockville at once through two hard series to win the Senior Throne and the Maxville Club felt it would be too much to ask the Magedomas to play today and Thursday and then go against Moncton after one day's rest. Brockville won the Ottawa City League title after a strenuous series with Royal Canadian Air Force and then went against Smith's Falls in the Ottawa district Senior finals.

WEST TORONTOS HAVE GOAL LEAD

Winning Marker Comes When Schmidt is Hurt in Third Period

Kitchener, Ont., March 13—(CP)—A one-goal margin in their credit, Toronto Nationals came back to Toronto today as slight favorites to defeat Kitchener Greenshirts for the Junior "A" Central Hockey Association title. If they do the next opposition will come from South Porcupine Porkies, champions of the north.

Nationals, rated the finest junior hockey team of Toronto since Maple Leafs won the championship, defeated Greenshirts in the first of two-game, total-goal series last night. Kitchener fans weren't worried much, pointing out that Milt Schmidt, star centre, was on the injured list, when Johnny Crawford pumped home the winning goal.

Wes. Toronto had to come from behind to win the close-checking clash, neither team took chances and the fans watched nonchalantly as Kitchener, then West Toronto, opened up only when having the benefit of an extra man through penalties.

Heron was the outstanding player on the ice. He bagged the first two West Toronto goals and supplemented a face off to set Crawford up with a goal-getting shot three minutes before the last period ended.

Schmidt, who has been the spearhead of Kitchener's drive to the playdowns, was injured early in the third period. Previously he had played his usual brilliant game, though checked closely.

Tracey whipped in the first Kitchener goal when Greenshirts had a man advantage. Roy Gonacher drew a penalty to pave the way for the second Greenshirt goal, Keating doing the shooting.

JUDGE O'LEARY DIES

Kitchener, Ont., March 17.—(CP)— Judge Thady O'Leary who retired from the bench of Thunder Bay District within the last year died in this city today after a strenuous illness. He was a native of Bowmanville, Ont., and practised law in Lindsay up to 1905 when he was appointed to the Bench.

RED INDIANS OF KINGSTON LOSE

St. Michael's College "Buzzers" Win Game 7-3 And Round 8-5

Toronto, March 13—(CP)—St. Michael's College whipped Kingston Red Indians last night 7-3 at The Maple Leaf Gardens to overcome a one-goal deficit from the first game in the Limestone City. It put the Celts in the O.H.A. Intermediate "B" finals with the winner of the Assumption College-Guelph game.

Starting the final session of the two-game round, the teams were on even terms, but the Saints scored two fast goals to take the lead on the round and then coasted through to the final, which they lost last year.

The Saints put a special guard on Catlin, one of the smartest players to appear in junior ranks here this season and kept him out of the scoring column entirely in the last appearance here he defended the much heralded Toronto Dukes almost alone. Catlin was draped with checkers wherever he secured the puck and although he made some great plays, the concentration kept Bear's him and also the Kingston Club.

Mahaffy opened on the pressure in the first period to tie the score on the round but were held to one goal, Gosling and Bill Bennett in hysterical play and shots on goal. The Celts rounded the round on a goal by Taylor, who accepted a pass from Stokes.

Kingston reached the lead on the round as the start of the second period, when Dixon and Golding worked a passing play for a goal, but the Saints forged in two fast scores on shots by Burkhart and Toms to put the Celts in front. Dixon and Golding combined for a Kingston goal to even the round before the period terminated.

Starting the final frame Meader and Burkhart worked a neat passing stampede to net two goals and put the Saints in front. Golding and Dixon put two in a row for Kingston but the Saints added two more to their credit to make the count read on a pass from Meader and Taylor counting, aided by McNamara.

FOR a hundred years lumbering has been going on the empty sleigh back into the bush, over the seven in the district where this picture was taken near Greenfield, Quebec. The modern method of taking out the spruce pulp logs to the dump ready for the spring drive has been by horse-drawn sleigh, moving on an iced road. Recently a Ford V-8 two-ton truck, equipped with six wheels, was put on this operation. A heavy team of horses four round trips a 10-hour day, hauling one sleigh-load out and passes through the bush.

DEFIANT GERMANY TO FORTIFY RHINE AREA—Still defying the signatories of the Locarno Peace Pact, Germany has announced that, in addition to rearming, she intends to establish a vast system of fortifications to match those that France has built on her side of the border. France's elaborate system of forts has been called the most effective chain ever built. Some of the forts and cement structures descend far down under the surface. The chart above shows the interior of these forts. The "business end" peeps out here and there in the most unlikely places, carefully camouflaged by misleading parks and rose gardens. It is presumed Germany will build some similar chains.

AT THE BELLE

Leslie Howard And Belle Davis Co-starred in Broadway Stage Hit

Pot-Pourri Of Entertainment

Gene Raymond In 2nd Hit

Robert Emmett Sherwood's stage hit, "The Petrified Forest," which ran all last season on Broadway to crowded houses, comes to the Belle Theatre, today, Wednesday, for three days, in the screen version produced by Warner Bros.

Leslie Howard and Belle Davis play the roles they created on the stage in "Of Human Bondage" in this picture. They are supported by a brilliant cast which includes Genevieve Tobin, Dick Foran, Humphrey Bogart, Joseph Sawyer and others.

The story is set in the picturesque and colorful country of the Arizona desert, the scenes taking place in and about a wayward gas station and eating house far from cities on the railroad Petrified Forest.

Belle Davis repeats the role she created any Easter 25 years ago, to unanimous performance in "Damaged Goods", recently exhibited at the Belle, but the part of feminine lead opposite Howard is played by the part of the exotic girl of thwarted desires, while Leslie Howard is the eccentric woman disillusioned with life. Porter Hall is the girl's father and Charley Grapewin the grandfather. Dick Foran is the lovelorn college boy.

Humphrey Bogart who played the role of the ruthless killer on the stage, has the same part in the screen version.

"Love on a Bet" Funny

Comedy, romance and adventure go in and out of the picture in the most gay attractive, "Love on a Bet", the second feature picture on an interesting program, with the feminine heart accelator, Gene Raymond, and the screen's favorite juvenile, Wendy Barrie, teamed.

The unusual comedy provides admirably suited roles for the talents of the romantic pair. Their unsentimental adventures on the sails of love makes "Love on a Bet" one of the month's unusual screen attractions.

"Love on a Bet" is brisk, roaring well-paced. An excellent cast including Helen Broderick "High Hat" comedienne, Grady Sutton and the odd situations elevate the entire production to a crescendo of suspense and humor resulting in a highly fine comedy romance.

Performances start daily at 2.30, 7.00, the last complete show starting at 8.30 p.m. Tonight "The Petrified Forest" starts at 2.40, 7.00 and 8.50. Tomorrow on is "Love on a Bet" starts at 2.40, 5.35 p.m.

"Sunday Seeking Eve" an hilarious interesting topical reel will be exhibited on the same program.

71 LIVES LOST IN FLOODS IN UNITED STATES

Lower City Re-Flooded To First Flood Levels As Cannifton Ice Moves

After Rising and Falls And Reaches High Level This Morning

BLASTING CONTINUES

Warning of Movement of Ice at Cannifton Given by W. m. Reynolds

Failure of the Committee dam to hold the ice field between that point and Corbyville, a distance of a mile, has again been experienced on this city shortly after eight o'clock, and the flooding statement and conditions as set to water is concerned were the same as those that existed on Tuesday and Wednesday, when the ice field, which were clear of ice from Front Street, to Victoria Park, a distance of about a mile, rising at least three feet, which went down Coleman Street, and but again today it rising steadily from all quarters of the flooded area.

In crushing over the dam at Cannifton the ice field was forced into Eldgate Mill, shutting the river back into the Cannifton district. The ice field was well broken up and did not cause any damage as the first peak had Thursday. The Moira River, which was clear to the Lower Dam on Wednesday afternoon was again filled nearly to the Upper Dam this morning, and more ice coming down from the lower waters, before the Corbyville dam put out results.

Municipal Prepare"

Receiving word from Cannifton early this morning, that forced the ice field, above the dam would not hold much longer, Chief Constable Hall and Fire Chief Ernest Hurley, visited over the entire floor and it was necessary for them to inspect hurriedly, the press room, job printing department and boiler room are still flooded.

On the west side of the river the houses flooded during the last big push were the Bridge Street, it was necessary for the families to again leave their homes.

Firemen removed the Wilson family from Bridge Street, their home with another family on Coleman Street were also taken out, but the water was receding and they will be able to return today. Instead of a boat, as used on Thursday last to remove the family, it is possible to drive a car up to the door of the home of families. Early today, however, the water is again rising, and every effort is being made to cope with the situation. All the storm sewers have been cleared of ice and water away the precipitation caused by the rain, however the danger of Thursday and Wednesday and having added the flood water from last night's drive.

Train on Bridge

Fearing the culvert at the west end of the C.N.R. bridge would go out, officials have placed another train on the bridge, and could keep it in place, while workmen are busy in protecting the culvert. Dynamite charges were carried on near the culvert and in the vicinity of the bridge, and early on Day of Quinte, City officials have had their troubles in the flood. The lower part of Front Street, which was being used by vehicular traffic, has been covered by from two to water. It is feared that parts of earth underneath the pavement has been washed away, and there is the possibility that part of the sewer is damaged. Chamber of Commerce has been pressed out by traffic, and the concrete flow of water over it.

The city's second flood, caused by a bearing ice pack estimated one quarter of a mile long and river wide, coming from points north of the city in the vicinity of Sidney Centre and Corbyville, caught hundreds unawares at eight o'clock last night, and again filled the residential section of Bridge, Hall, and Front Street to almost the same level as the first one. Today early in the morning, the water level of the water was noted. Work, was still plodded in and the water filled streets with rubber boots and again the city was forced into service to ferry scores of early morning citizens across the Main-line Bridge at Coleman and West Bridge Streets.

Thursday morning almost knee deep pushed in tumbling cataracts across the park amidst as the flood sought its own level, and by noon per hay.

The steadily rising river inundated stores and business places inches deep with grain, coal, and other stuff over the floors and past show cases. The sudden rush caught owners completely unawares.

Tune in on 1690Kc Night News Bulletins

As the flood waters seem to be staging their attack on the city during the hours of darkness, many of the citizens, worn out and fed from nervousness, not knowing just how much of the flood waters, Chief of Police Kidd, with this in view, and with the assistance of the Belleville Radio Station staff, will broadcast over the Belleville Radio Station the flood conditions hourly from seven o'clock this Thursday evening, and every on the hour every morning each night as long as conditions warrant it. The station will tune in to 1690 kilocycles at seven o'clock, eight, nine, ten, eleven, twelve o'clock p.m. they will be informed of flood conditions at that time.

This is not done with any idea of alarming the people, as worse conditions are anticipated, but will be a help to those who think they might be subject to nervous forebodings.

river rising, thronged the lower end of the city turning the night into a sight seers' holiday.

Considerable anxiety, with almost irresistible force, the lungs ice pack composed of huge cakes of ice, finally united small pieces moved for several minutes under the lower bridge, and then on well into the upper bay. From this point the flood waters reached approximately to a point near the old Pringle Mill. Early morning damage was noted due mainly to the fact that the dam was composed of small pieces. Only the water rushed with terrific force was some further shifting of the bulkheads under the Bridge Street, any's quarters, where part of the wall had been previously carried.

Much Water Held Back

Interested spectators who thronged the west side of the lower bridge on evening after the ice had risen of the water, parted and an unexcited steel, rallied down the bridge, and the water rushed with the conveyance rolled an elderly driver. Without hesitation the horse and driver plunged into water knee deep along Bridge West to the Front. The Dorand Street fire he passed, reached down and while the water rushed against the spokes of the buggy wheels, nonchalantly proceeded to drink. Driver and buggy, instead of a boat, are being used on Thursday last to remove the family, it is possible to drive a car up to the door of the home of families. France-Soviet Pact Held up a Real Threat to World

London, March 19 (AP) —The League of Nations Council today voted the condemnation of Germany.

London, Mar. 19 (CP)—Germany again took her seat this morning at the council table of the League of Nations. But Joachim von Ribbentrop, her envoy, came not in the guise of repentance, his 25-minute declaration, delivered in German and translated first into English and then into French, was an unqualified assertion Germany was right when she again established her march on the Rhine.

Herr von Ribbentrop withdrew hobbled by his printed speech. The only reference to The Hague Court of International Justice was that a German judge sat on it. He dealt only with both the legal and the political aspect could not be expected of a judicial body. He gave no hint Germany might withdraw if single sentence from the Rhineland.

Deeds Locarno Rides.

It was Herr von Ribbentrop's announcement that Germany no longer considered herself bound by the Locarno, said the Reich's Ambassador-at-large. Therefore Locarno no longer existed. And Germany could not violate a treaty which already had ceased to exist.

Herr von Ribbentrop's uncompromising declaration was much what everybody expected. Yet as he stated the German case in a single, unbroken statement, it was sharp it had almost a tone of command. Many diplomats were shocked by it.

It was clear to all despite their shock the fundamental problem still remained. During the English translation, Mr. Eden, Britain's Foreign Commissar, read a memorandum from Pierre Flandin, French Foreign Minister, drew figures on a pad before him. Premier Van Zeeland of Belgium looked through his correspondence.

Sees Menace to Germany

To Herr Von Ribbentrop European peace was menaced not by the marching battalions of Germany but by the Franco-Soviet Pact. The Franco-Soviet Pact of the two most powerful military nations in Europe was a pistons of this alliance stretching from Far East to Mediterranean. Therefore Germany on her western frontier and by a further alliance between Russia and Czechoslovakia, Germany would not today sign Locarno if she had not already denounced it. Germany's peace offers, which Von Ribbentrop said were extraordinary, he put aside in absolute disarmament, limitation of military men from Europe, and a basis of equality, an air pact, a comprehensive peace settlement.

Council Adjourns

Now with the declaration that the last discrimination against Germany, Chancellor Hitler's renewed offer for peace. All that Germany desired was to live in peace and friendship with her neighbours. The German people wished to end a long era of hate between Germany and France.

"May I say with war the Reich Ambassador kept a final plea, "may I urge the representatives of the nations to put aside your differences and help us pave the way to a better future for Europe."

The Council then adjourned until 4:30 p.m. (10 a.m. E.S.T.) to give the representatives an opportunity to consider the German declaration.

Britain Disappointed

British circles were plainly disappointed over the German declaration to the League Council. It was feared Germany would be prepared to make some gesture with regard to the Locarno Treaty.

She offers nothing. She merely repeated what she had already declared to be already has violated the Locarno Treaty by ratifying the Franco-Soviet Pact, and that Germany could not therefore violate a treaty which has ceased to exist.

League in Session on Rhineland Dispute

Rushed by radio to the United States this is the first photo of the League of Nations Council in session as represented by Dr. Juan de Cotapos, London to debate punitive action against Germany for re-occupation of the Rhineland, Photo was snapped as Foreign Minister Flandin, of France, asked the council to establish Germany as a treaty violator, thereby opening the way for the application of sanction.

PRICE CENSURED BY LEGISLATURE, ATTACK ALLEGED

Col. Price Denies Use of Words Referring to Dr. Roberts

HEPBURN'S JOKES

Conservatives Deny Hearing Price Utter Words Complained of

Toronto, March 19—(CP)—Ontario's legislature was on with the more prosaic budget debate today after a heated session in which it censured a member for the first time in 34 years. The House voted censure again Col. William H. Price, former Conservative Attorney-General, yesterday.

Premier Hepburn's Liberal following voted solidly for a resolution censuring Col. Price, member for Toronto Parkdale, "for his use in attacking the honor and integrity of a fellow member in direct contravention to rule No. 15 of this House."

Col. Price denied using words attributed to him in the resolution, which claimed he said of Dr. A. A. Roberts, Liberal member for Sault Ste. Marie: "The member is that kind, for political reasons, was willing and anxious to kiss any part of the body of Dr. Godfrey (the late Dr. Forbes Godfrey, former Minister of Health) which he might be willing to expose."

The former Attorney-General declared he said Dr. Roberts, when a resident of Mimico and associated with Dr. Godfrey, would "kiss Dr. Godfrey all over the riding". The only inference that could be drawn from his remark, he contended, was that Dr. Roberts had attempted to carry favor with Dr. Godfrey.

Hepburn Jokes Assailed

Col. Price said the Premier had not done him "the ordinary, courtesy" of notifying him of the presentation of such a resolution. He emphatically disputed the accuracy of the words attributed to him.

"But while I'm on my feet," he added, "I want to say that no person in this House has cracked coarser jokes than the Prime Minister and it ill becomes him to come before the bar with a motion of censure against me. The other day Dr. Roberts went out of his way to take a shack at me, and the Premier also whacked back the government defibrerately attempts to misconstrue the meaning of my statements."

Children were carried to safety from snowballing sparks and burning debris as they settled on the

FLOOD RELIEF FUND

Once more has the Ontario Intelligencer been swept by the flood waters, but we are still carrying on, regardless, and the staff is just as chipper as ever and working away just as if there were no big ice barrier of thousands of tons of ice pressing against one side of the building and a small Niagara rushing past the front door and inundating the business office, press rooms and commercial printing departments. However, in the new threat of the flood waters we must not forget the sufferers, those who have lost their little all through the rush of waters and huge ice battering rams. The Flood Relief Fund offers opportunity to all to help our more unfortunate neighbors.

WINDSOR YOUTH PREFERS LOCK-UP

Windsor, Ont., March 19.— (CP)—Because of Rev. T. Dobson, Canadian Rural Dean of Kent County, Ont., Windsor police are to bail that pay a fine for a minor traffic violation seems to be infecting Windsor youth. A 19-year-old boy, told that he was booked for parking in a "no parking" area, astonished the desk-sergeant by asking to spend the night in a cell, rather than pay the $1 fine. Police said he could not liquidate the fine in that way, without court action, so the $1 was handed over.

Hon. W. D. Euler Reveals Attitude of Ottawa Government

OTTAWA ..... (The Hon. W. D. K
Ottawa, March 19 (CP)—Proposed legislative and executive action at Washington likely to nullify the advantage accruing to Canada from the reduction in liquor duties in the Canada-United States trade agreement is causing the Canadian government concern. Representations have been made to the United States government.

Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of Trade and Commerce, revealed the government's attitude in the House of Commons yesterday when the issue was raised by Hon. C. H. Cahan, K.C., Liberal, Lawrence-St. Georges, Montreal.

Mr. Cahan said an executive decree to come into force in August would prohibit importation into the United States of bottled liquor bearing the label "bottled in bond under government supervision."

Bill Before Senate

A bill was also before the Senate, having passed the House of Representatives, which would empower the United States treasury to impose an embargo against any foreign distiller against whom the United States government had a claim.

Mr. Euler agreed with Mr. Cahan that if either or both measures came into effect importation of Canadian whiskey would be materially curtailed if not prohibited. It would appear, however, that it would be a fact, that the object was to impose an embargo against any foreign distiller against whom the United States government had a claim.

BAILIFF SEIZES PIANO FOR FINE

Rural Dean of Kent, Refuses to Pay, Claiming No Infraction

Tilbury, Ont., March 19.—(CP)—A piano, property of the home of Rev. T. Dobson, Rural Dean of Kent, and attached his piano because he refused to pay a fine of $1 and $2.75 costs for not having a full light on his automobile.

"As far as I am concerned, the piano will be sold," said Dean Dobson after the seizure. "I will not pay the fine."

The piano of attachment was placed on the piano by Bailiff Henry Oddingham of Tilbury District Court. The clergyman has right to pay the fine and costs, but refusing the fine to which he objected strenuously a week ago upon his appearance in court. At that time he said he would go to jail like St. Paul and Peter. Paul, rather than pay the $1 fine.

17,000 Homes Inundated And Thousands Flee Flood Waters

By HAMILTON FARON

Pittsburgh, March 19 (AP)—At least 71 persons were reported dead today in eight states swept by storms and floods. The dead by states as it was reported:

Pittsburgh, March 19.—Torrential floods, dealing death and destruction throughout the east, drove hundreds and thousands from their homes today as rescue forces worked frantically to combat one of the greatest disasters in United States history.

The Pittsburgh district, leaving Pittsburgh paralyzed at its source, swept through the valley-lands down the West Virginia-Ohio border, marooned and imperilled hundreds of families.

Flee Before Rampage

In New England residents of the Upper Connecticut River valley fled before rampaging flood waters. The Red Cross and other relief agencies mobilized relief forces throughout the stricken area. An organization appealed at midnight for $3,000,000 to care for 18,000 families.

Although the turgid waters were receding slowly from Pittsburgh, Johnstown and other Western Pennsylvania communities, hunger, fire and pillage spread in their wake.

The National Guard patrolled several cities and towns throughout the night to prevent looting of homes from which flood waters had fled to the highlands.

Starvation in Central

Guardsmen in Pittsburg banned all persons from the inundated "golden triangle" basis of the business district.

Food, water and medical supply shortages were threatened. Five were reported dead in the Pittsburgh metropolitan area, and 28 others in Pennsylvania.

Flood waters spawned "racketeering" came from Mayor William N. Kunkel. He threatened prosecution of any merchants asking exorbitant prices.

In some suburban districts bread and milk supplies were reported depleted. Many stores were closed by order. Prices soared.

All night, centered out during the night, plunging the city into darkness, transportation and communication virtually failed almost entirely.

Hundreds of motorists found themselves stranded, unable to buy gasoline because stocks were flooded.

An almost holiday atmosphere prevailed yesterday before the city rallied the extent of the flood damage. Crowds lined the river front feet above flood stage.

Flood Waters Shrink

Thousands thronged the streets, released from their jobs by the flood waters. They talked gleefully of the unexpected holiday and how they "licked the flood this".

Then, as the power failed, dismay came. Water companies warned of shortages after debris clogged pumping lines. Gas companies reported pressures might run low. Industrial plants were closed down before power and light can be restored.

Fire added to the terrors. One blaze, preceded by the explosion of a gasoline tank car, in the city spurred more than a score, destroyed over warehouses and two dwellings, then damaged a railroad trestle—cost upwards of $100,000 loss. Another spectacular western suburbs. Nearly 50 were injured in fires and explosions.

Fire Stirs Shrieks

Fire during the night through the night. Bells clanged. Flames cast reddish gleam in the sky. Those were warehouses of dollars damage was estimated by firemen.

Most of the business houses, starting at a gasoline storage plant, suffered damage. Many of these businesses were destroyed.

Another fire in a refinery brought injury to several. Thirty persons were hurt in an explosion of an underground tank car. The blast was heard by police and other fire stations. Hundreds of persons fled from homes and business buildings.

Police ordered evacuation of several structures, including one big downtown office building.

Traffic Tied Up in Niagara Peninsula

By The Canadian Press

Traffic was still tied up in the Niagara Peninsula today as the famous fruit-growing district sought to shake off the effects of the paralyzing snowfall, which ended yesterday.

Elsewhere conditions in Ontario were near normal. An ice jam in the Moira River above Belleville broke last night and flooded the lower part of the city but the water ran off quickly and there was no repetition of last Thursday's distress conditions.

Heavy motor trucks provided the only transportation in and around Niagara Falls as snow-clogged and deeply-rutted roads held lighter motor cars in their garages.

The Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto railway, an interurban electric line, has been out of business since Tuesday and there was no indication today, when its fight-of-way would be cleared enough to allow traffic to resume. Car motors were frozen in the ice against snow added to the line's problems.

Only one passenger train of the highway was open to allow one-way traffic and long lines of trucks held up.

A fine rain fell at Port Colborne, making driving difficult, but was more than ever. Bus service around the city has not been resumed and will not be until snow plows make a good job of clearing the highways.

The fine rain softened the hard, icy crust on the fields, but left the highways and car wheels broke through the crust without getting in the slushy mass.

Notice Given in Commons By Major Power of Quebec

Ottawa, Mar. 19 (CP)—Evidence that a veterans bank is receiving a great deal of consideration in one form and another at the hands of the government is seen in several notices of motion advanced in the House of Commons today by Charles Minister, Power.

Banks House With Snow But Fails to Stop Blaze

Port McNichol, Ont., March 19 (CP)—Joseph Gilroux found snowbanks a useful protection against fire. He banked snow around his home last night as flames destroyed the adjoining store next door. But the fire grazed his house. Gilroux, his wife and two children escaped. Mrs. Andrew Molnar, their neighbor, lost her home and store.

broadcast through the W.P.A. Dayton, Ohio, station, hoping to work. Many of them were assigned jobs hastily manufactured to fit the need in the area. Police received orders to seize all skills for rescue work.

Two million dollars in relief funds came immediately, half of it from the federal government, the remainder from the city treasury.

Meanwhile, in Western Pennsylvania penitentiary on the banks of the Ohio, about 1,000 prisoners were crowded into the second and third floors after water poured into the ground floor quarters.

Many feet of water piled up in the kitchen and dining rooms. Food supplies were ruined when cooking facilities were destroyed. Warden Stanley F. Lohr's office said no diarrhea was anticipated.

Thousands Workless.

Up the Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers, the waters swept into the heart of industrial Pittsburgh, three to thousands of men and women out of work. Many were steel workers who had run the big U. Steel's fourth manufacturing company, employing many hundreds of the strong men.

The roaring waters of the Ohio River submerged the entire city of Wheeling, Wheeling's residents Five. Water was near the second floor of the Fostoria, Ohio, residence when taken safely to the mainland, although Fostoria remained in upper stories of their homes.

A gas explosion in South Wheeling killed one person and injured three. Two others drowned when a skiff upset, a child lost its life in a flooded basement and a woman died from exposure.

Rescue Work Pushed

At Wellsburg, W. Va., two men drowned as one tried to rescue the other from a flaming, partly-submerged house.

Residents of Wellsburg screamed for assistance as 20 families were driven in 10 skiffs removed those in the most dangerous position. Plans are to evacuate between 200 and 300 families.

Scenes similar to those in stricken Pittsburgh were enacted throughout Western Pennsylvania. Scores of communities were inundated in the eastern part of the State, were flooded.

Families in devastated Johnstown freed from momentary peril caused by torrent reports the huge Quemahoning dam had burst, remained in the highlands.

Ten thousand persons were without homes in the city, and 15,000 workers estimated, with 1,000 in great need. Widespread looting was reported.

17,000 Dwellings Flooded

After a survey of the flooded Johnstown area, Frank O. Jordan, a Pennsylvanian, reported that 17,000 dwellings were inundated. The wholesale food district, he said, was flooded making it impossible to import all provisions.

"We can give the victims temporary shelter in buildings on higher ground," Jordan said, "but we have nothing to feed them—and little with which to keep them warm."

Mayor Daniel Hildebrand was quoted as saying property damage would easily exceed 50 million dollars. Flood in which 3,335 persons lost their lives.

In the vicinity of Williamsburg, one death was reported. The Williamsport regional in Orchard, Pennsylvania was isolated.

National Guard units were mobilized at Sunbury, Lewistown, Hunting-don, and other cities to prevent looting.

New England

Melting ice and snow from the White Mountains, washed by 34 hours of incessant rain, swept downward through southern Maine and flooded the broad valley of the Connecticut River in Western New England, Six deaths were reported.

Forecasts of continued rain caused stringent precautions to protect threatened sections.

National guardsmen were mobilized in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut. Red Cross officials hurried forward, loading and medical supplies to the stricken areas.

Gardenson and frantic volunteers worked with employes of the New England power company to stem the the $1,000,000 dam at Vernon, Vt., 100 north of the junction made by Massachusetts, Vermont and New Hampshire on the Connecticut river, 8 Mile Island.

Behind the huge dam a six-mile lake has formed. Engineers reported that the dam had gone. Lesser reports said one small hole had broken through, but that it was being sandbagged.

In western Massachusetts state police reported the towns of Hadley and Northampton were inundated.

Worcester, second city in the state with a population of 200,000, was faced with loss of light and power stations, flooded when the Leesville dam burst out. Several districts were virtually isolated, Guardsmen order.

OTTAWA WORRIED OVER PROPOSALS

sumable to American law. The embargo measure seemed to be an attempt to detain Belleville over these Canadians in a roundabout way.

The liquor concession, Mr. Cahan added, was one of the most important in the list, but as far as Canada was concerned. Canadian distillers had between 25,000,000 and 35,000,000 gallons of liquor maturing in bond, and a substantial export trade could be built up if it would go far to maintain a reasonable balance between the value of Canada's exports to and imports from the United States.

Most of yesterday's debate concerned the agricultural implement item in the American tariff. It remains unchanged as free but is guaranteed for the term of the treaty.

No objection was raised to this but members took advantage of the opportunity to stage a new debate on Canadian farm implement duties and the price of implements in Canada. Hon. W. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, read long lists of figures to show when duties were lowered the prices of implements came down and when duties were raised prices rose.

Conservatives had previously asked that the reserve bid the case and had claimed the recent reduction in duties had been followed by a rise in price.

Various reasons were advanced for price rises and drops. Some members claimed machinery nowadays was of better quality and more expensive construction than formerly. Others declared the pre-war machines were just as good as those of the present day.

Hon. Charles A. Stanfford appealed for retention of the agricultural implement industry in Canada. He said duties should be kept up to give protection to the manufacturer and to enable a farmer his machinery at a fair price.

G. E. Wood, also a Liberal and former president of the Canadian Corps of Brant, thought manufacturers should protect against them service. What they needed was higher duties in order to clothe themselves. He had a scheme which would enable farmers to buy machinery.

The treaty discussion continues today before it is put off yesterday with the farm implements.

PRICE CENSURED BY LEGISLATURE

Opposition Leader George S. Henry and other members of the Conservative party, in the House of Commons, made a dramatic two-hour debate, said they had listened closely to Col. Price's speech in the House and did not hear him make such a statement.

Price's Reply

Later in the day Col. Price added to his first statement:

"The imputation put on my words is entirely incorrect. I said quite accordingly that the wooog impression had been given by the Premier. I said what I said at the opening of the House because I was much aggrieved by the press report of the resolution. I felt it unfair, 'that the people have said that I have to say.'"

Premier said it Dr. Roberts had risen in the House and requested an apology he would have withdrawn his statement. He was fair ruling under all the circumstances and he would have no use to withdraw the remark," he said.

Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests, Attorney-General Arthur W. Roebuck; Provincial Secretary Hon. Harry Nixon and Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, strongly inferred the government speakers who urged passing of the censure resolution.

LOWER CITY IS RE-FLOODED

position against the rear of the house as the flood did," declared Mr. Harry Wallace, Dundas Street West, who has also acted as volunteer neighborhood helper during the flood, although himself a victim.

"If you don't come to you, you go for the fuel—is the motto of one man whose home is under water and everything has gone but the bath tub. By bag, by boat and on foot, the resident, hauling their fuel from the nearest point has put in a supply of coal which he maintains will last him until the last of the flood waters have abated.

Siren Advocated

The use of a siren mounted on the city hall for the tolling of the town clock bell as a timely warning for future flood victims, and the use of a special lookout to note the rise was advocated by one local resident this morning as a precaution against further flood.

Meanwhile, the downtown beverage room, blissfully unconscious last night that the waters of the Moira, suddenly rubbed their eyes and then precipitately sat with one another. Water suddenly welled under their feet on the floor, and there was no immediate danger, one man later remarked, but a chill struck through him.

"It's wash day and I have no place to hang the clothes," mourned the mother of one family who has had to move her furniture from the home when water first appeared in the basement. Despite the water downstairs the housewife yesterday donned a rubber boots, carried the weekly laundry chore and then hung the clothes to dry on the clothes line in the upper windows.

Police Give Alarm

Police Sergeant Arthur Booth was kept busy last night warning residents of the lower end of Murney Ward, when the big push came following the four-hourly rise. Dundas at Canniffon early last evening, Police Sergeant Booth was seriously promised to warn residents in the flooded area by telephone and by automobile as the water rose. Calling numbers as fast as possible Sergeant Booth was able to warn many residents before their homes were inundated, but a few were nearly as high as one a week ago.

The seven a lot of floods in Belleville, but few of the water remain at such a high level for such a long time, the police prove it, city," added an older citizen this morning. "Only one week continuous the water has been overflowing the banks of the Moira and Cold Creek down Front Street and the streets on the west side.

Praise For Firemen Praised

Praise for the manner in which the city fire brigade handled the control of the truck for residents to cross the widely flooded areas of the city, was voiced on many sides. This was given yesterday by scores of citizens who were helped. All day long the truck carried load after load of weak old residents from their homes.

Fishing was good in the city yesterday as far up as the intersection of West Bridge Street and Dundas, and youthful James Bryant had a fine specimen to prove it. Weighing 1½, the fish was picked up by him while feebly swimming up the flooded sidewalk on Dundas Street.

A spring hole in the revetment wall of the C.N.R. on Trinity Park just at the car bridge, where the earth has been scarried away by the washing waters from Front Street, was being filled yesterday by railway officials with car load of heavy rock ballast. During the afternoon and today further loads of ice was being carried on in the vicinity of the gap.

Engineer's Query

Desirous of knowing if the city's two new concrete bridges had escaped through the widely severed flood, Mr. Cecil Meyer, M.E., Archie R. Craddock, acquiring engineer of Toronto, in charge of construction of both has addressed his query to Mr. Chas. Mech, city engineer, by mail. Mr. Craddock was informed by the city engineer that preliminary surveys had disclosed no damage to either, as far as known at present.

Bell Telephone employees of the local district office worked through-out the day, Wednesday at repairing heavy damage caused by the coating of ice and snow on the wires, which broke down in many areas to complete cessation of service as the wires were carried to the ground. The main source of trouble was reported from the western end of the district in the vicinity of Consecon, near O. W. Proctor.

Damage Estimate Slight

Belleville has one thing to be thankful for at any rate, declared Mr. R. T. Austin, manager of the local waterworks department after a preliminary survey of the damage wrought by the flood.

"Up to the present we have been very lucky. We have escaped with only a few minor breakages and everything has been put in safe working factorily. The story would have been a different one if the sewers and the water mains were laid in the ground which was not solid rock as the most of them at present are protected.

"The flood water and ice shifted shortly before noon today the water was rising rapidly in the vicinity of the City Hall. The lower portion of Front St. from Montreal St. southward, was submerged. As the waters rose on the east side of the city, at 11.30 a.m. Commerce hilltop was completely surrounded by the water at 11.30. Workmen were labouring frantically to strengthen the revetment of water in the vicinity of the Grand Trunk and the New Scrvin Lunch by making up the large holes of ice that dammed back the waters at that point.

MUCH DAMAGE IN QUEBEC PROVINCE

POLICE BLOTTER

A dozen points in southeastern Quebec suffered damage similar in convenience today as rivers were blocked by jams of broken ice and overflowed their banks to spread throughout streets and countryside.

Chief source of damage was the St. Francis River that winds its way through the eastern townships to the St. Lawrence River. The Richelieu, Yamaska, Chaudiere and Nicolet-Yamaska Rivers were also in jam, spreading destruction in various areas.

Sudden smashing of an ice jam at Sault Angus, far up on the St. Francis, let loose pent up forces of water patrolling adjacent highways.

"People are too interested in the flood to commit any serious misdemeanors," Chief Wallace Cliff told today as he added their had been practically no crime in Belleville since the opening of the flood control dam on the river.

The only persons to be confined in the cell block at the police station of late have been transients, of whom ten were afforded temporary quarters last night. No motor accidents of a major nature have occurred, however, officers say, as it is the duty of the police to patrol the highways.

NEWSPRINT CONTROL GIVEN BY NEW BILL

Toronto, March 18.—(CP)— A clause which will give the Ontario government an indefinite measure of control over the newsprint and lumber markets was attached to the bill introduced in the Legislature Tuesday.

The added clause provides pulp, paper and timber companies on the crown's northern timber reserves may be penalized for certain acts which are deemed detrimental to the public interest.

Hon. Peter Heenan's "reallocation-of-timber-limits" bill when that was introduced in the Legislature Tuesday.

SCHOOL BURNS AT KEMPTVILLE

Some Examination Papers Are Lost in Blaze

Kemptville, Ont., March 18.—(CP)—Kemptville today lacked primary or secondary school buildings as firemen, watched by seniors of the public school destroyed in an early morning blaze with a loss estimated at about $35,000. The High School was burned a little more than two months ago.

Uniformed volunteer firemen, attending a mid-night fireman's banquet and dance, rushed from the Oddfellows' Hall about 1.30 this morning in a vain effort to stem progress of flames that swept the 52-year-old two storey brick and wood public school.

They was little they could do but guard neighboring buildings sector-ed by a field from the school. Spectators spoke of possible incendiarism but police said "... was no evidence of it.

The public school was used house 136 high pupils left, without a building with destruction of the high school and two public school classes. Other classes of the public school were accommodated in the town hall and the Sunday School Hall of the United Church. It was believed the Kemptville Agricultural College was too crowded to offer quarters for school pupils and that there is no Separate School in Kemptville.

Many pupils suffered some sort of fortune in loss of examination papers they had just written but marking them.

Loss of the building is believed covered by a $35,000 insurance policy, The Board of Education recently had plans to build a new high school.

See Death of Star 7,000,000 Years Ago

Pasadena, Cal. March 18. —Astronomers at Mt. Wilson Observatory here are studying the death of a star of 4,000,000 years ago—in a view, they say, of what the end of the world may be.

Savants term the star's disintegration one of the most colossal catastrophes of matter man has been privileged to witness.

Mt. Wilson astronomers discovered, this supernova, on Jan. 19. They trained the world's largest telescope upon it, and obtained the first spectograms ever taken of a supernova.

It was observed at the rate of 4,000 miles a second, with a temperature of more than 200,000 degrees centigrade, and about as brilliant as 10,000,000 suns. It is dropping in intensity, and soon may be a dark-ened mass of neutrons.

The explosion occurred 7,000,000 years ago. The star is so far away it took that long for the light to reach the earth, some 42,000,000,000,000,000,000 miles.

Professor Ewicky of the California Institute of Technology said that, if the sun should explode in a similar way, in sight and a third diameter of the earth would be nothing but a hot cloud of gases drifting into space.

He said there is no cause for alarm, since astronomers know the sun is only about 2,000,000,000 years old, and has about 1,500,000,000 years to live.

THIS ILL WIND

People have almost forgotten what sort of weather prevailed on March the first which should result in such bleak weather and such untoward conditions as have prevailed during the past two weeks or so. There have been floods here and in other places, real disasters which have occupied the attention of the people.

They have found March a very disappointing month from another standpoint. Usually they think for weeks ahead of the approach of migratory song birds which make their appearance here in late March. This year other thoughts have kept the thoughts of the spring birds out of the minds of the people.

St. Patrick's Day which to many persons seems to symbolize the return of spring was one of the most unpleasant days in the calendar of this year as it brought one of the most severe snow storms and a heavy fall of rain to add to the discomfort and distress and disruption of routine owing to the flooded conditions.

Not soon will Belleville folk forget this month, even the spring's harbingers will fail quite to make men and women forget the ill wind which March of this year blew in.

KING OF DEMOCRACY

A democratic king appears at the doors of the cottagers in Glasgow. He has finished the inspection of the super-liner Queen Mary, and takes an unannounced route through the city. At a Glasgow tenement he has tea with the middle finger knuckle, asking to come in. 'Certainly come right in". Who are you? is the reply an answer. I am your King". In another tenement a little five year old wants to know if he is the new king.

Is it no wonder that the people cheer this democratic monarch?

SCOTCH EDUCATION

They are now saying there is very little interest in education in Scotland today, says A. S. Neill in a new book "Is Scotland Educated?" John Knox spoke of a school in every parish, with successive generations of lads starting from the countryside to the university. Will modern Scots believe they have no interest in education or birthday rather still follow the Knox tradition.

Mr. Neill charges that "Scotland by making its education book learning has damned itself efficiently. It has become smug about its education. Here's to our eddication: who has eddication like it? The answer is, unfortunately that the whole world has an eddication like it; only other countries are not content to rest on their educational oars as Scotland does."

Mr. Neill is a socialist and that may explain why he revels about Scotch education. New York Times says he wants to make his countrymen dissatisfied with themselves and that this may be a really difficult task. Neill finds that Edinburgh suffers from "acute snobbery". He attacks Scots food, speaking of "a superfluity of starch, an insufficiency of fruit and vegetables", the same paper says Neill's virulence is mainly humorous, that bland irony might have suited his purpose better. The title of his book is provocative more than enough."

A YOUTH'S PLIGHT

There is an unfortunate youth in a Montreal jail who stares death in the face at the age of nineteen. He took part with another youth in a robbery in which their victim was shot to death. The other boy shot himself.

That suicide showed how the boy felt. His life had been ruined in the one act.

The other boy is now in the death cell. He is a student, who hoped to make his way to an institution of higher learning. Somehow he obscured the rights of others and so has found himself in the most awful predicament known to humanity, condemned to die for murder.

In this case the evidence was clear, the way of the jury was clear. The evidence pointed the only conclusion to which they could have come. The penalty according to the law is death. But the jury added a recommendation for mercy. This has been forwarded to the Governor General.

The Montreal Star points out that while there is a great deal of sickly sentimentality for criminals, in this case there is the question of the condemned boy's youth, with the allied question of the execution of minors. A youth of seventeen the writer points out has no rights as a citizen except to be protected by society. He is unable to vote, and has to have a guardian to administer his affairs. The Star says that a youth of that age is infinitely more susceptible to bad influence than is a grown man. But under the law he can be sent to the scaffold. This leads the Montreal writer to refer to the possibility of revision of the Criminal Code. It is pointed out that society has a heavy responsibility to such youths. "While we deprecate in the strongest possible manner any slackening of the safeguards our laws provide against capital offences, we believe there may be grounds for considering the whole question of sending mere boys to death."

Even in war moral power is to physical as three parts out of four.—Napoleon.

UNSUNG HEROES

Though plainly hay-fever, to any believer
In causes, created the elephant's nose,
To doctors courageous, diseases contagious
Are bagatelles, phases to lightly dispose.

And firemen vigorous, roffing at rigorous
Icicles chilling their reddening ears,
While Moloch unnerving around them is swerving,
Are surely deserving of more than three cheers.

So here's to the hero who works whether xero
Or sultriest weather of summer prevails,
Infernos exploring, demolishing flooring,
And hosing and pouring out buckets and pails!

And here's to the other, our medical brother,

A recommendation—a hero—unpaid!

POLO IS NO PARLOR GAME AND those who take part in it must expect to take rough treatment. Recent polo casualties include the death of Prince Serge Mdivani, kicked by a horse while playing polo at Palm Beach, Florida. Peculiar interest is attached to the fatality because the victim's brother, Prince Alexis Mdivani was killed last August in an automobile accident in Spain. The Mdivanis frequently made the Front Page by reason of their marrying proclivities. Prince Serge married Miss Van Alen at Palm Beach on February 8. He had previously been married to Pola Negri, movie actress and subsequently to Mary McCormic, the opera singer, both marriages ending in divorce. Prince Alexis, the brother, had also been the husband of Miss Van Alen, and afterwards married Barbara Hutton, noted heiress. Hence headline writers frequently referred to the two Princes as "The Marrying Mdivanis."

MY! OH MY! WHAT WE HAVE BEEN MISSING— Reports continue to come in eulogizing crow meat. Champaign, Illinois is the latest centre of epicures to sample crow meat, a banquet being held with crow meat the principal dish. Dieticians and Home Economics experts gave the crow dish their reluctant approval. One hundred guests ate crow at Decatur without any unpleasant results, and Dr. Viola Bell, of the Millikin University Home Economics Department, stated that "the crow was very palatable". Mary Harvey, chief dietician at the Macon County Hospital, put her seal of approval on fricasseed crow, crow pie, crow roast, or baked crow, or stewed crow by saying, "I found it very good." And so, when you want a change for Sunday dinner never mind chicken, go out and shoot yourself a mess of crow.

FLORIDA WHERE THE WICKED CEASE TO TROUBLE AND THE WEARY are busy digging up the coin to keep the pot boiling, there is a Belleville colony, a bunch of citizens who missed the sights of their lives by being away when the flood waters came down and behaved so riotously. John McKeown, Pharmacist, who has wintered as usual at Bradenton, Florida, sends greetings to the Sidelight family. John just now is fraternizing with the members of the St. Louis Cardinal National League baseball team, including the two Deans "Dizzy" and "Daffy", "Pepper" Martin, "Wild Bill" Hallahan, Frankie Frisch and other notables of the baseball world. John says the Cards are in great fettle and rarin' to go and will soon be near the top in this year's pennant race. with the world's 'serious' a strong possibility. Funny how enthusiastic those baseball fans get. The fishing is also one of the great delights of friend John, and if the fish he catches are anywhere near the size of the stories—Gee Whillikins! how does he ever get them home. Of course the fishing boat could be unloaded with a derrick, but that's just our suggestion. Then there's golf and when the Belleville folks get together on the links there is sure something doing which warrants a long rest at the Nineteenth Hole.

A candidate for the police force was being verbally examined. "If you were by yourself in a police car and were pursued by a desperate gang of criminals in another car doing forty miles an hour on a lonely road, what would you do?" The candidate looked puzzled for a moment. Then he replied: "Fifty."

HIGH AIM

"The middle name of that boy of mine, Arnold," said Smith, "should certainly be 'Ambition'." "Glad to hear he's progressive," remarked Hobson. "What has he done now?" "He saved up his pocket-money," went on Smith, "and yesterday he bought cheaply a window-cleaner's ladder, a bucket and a leather, and this morning he wrote to the Crystal Palace seeking a contract as window-cleaner."

Rector Philosophic Over Fine and Costs

Tilbury, Ont., March 19.—(CP)—"If they echo, they echo," was Rev. T. Dobson's comment today on the issuance of a distress warrant to collect $1 fine and $2.75 costs imposed a week ago for a traffic violation.

The distress warrant was issued in Chatham, hailing his goods and chattels liable to seizure.

The Anglican rector Rural Dean of Kent, again said he would not pay the fine and would prefer spending the alternate sentence of one day in jail.

The charge was preferred by a traffic officer when the rector's car was found without its tail lights burning. Mr. Dobson maintained the corrective was unjust, that he had started out in his car with everything in proper order.

MAN DISCOVERED NAILED TO CROSS

Unemployed Bricklayer Victim of Outrage in Florida

Ocala, Fla., March 19.—His lips tightly sewn with four stitches of twine and a heavy thumbtack driven through over his head to keep the gnawing, Georgia J. Timmerman, 45, unemployed bricklayer, was found nailed to a wooden cross in a heavily wooded hammock inside the Ocala State Forest yesterday.

While en route to his work at Camp Roosevelt, headquarters for construction on the Florida ship canals, Jessie Hall, 19, found the body. Condition

Officers removed the spikes and stitches and took Timmerman to a hospital, where his condition was described as painful, but not serious.

When he regained consciousness Timmerman was not able to give any reason for the assault. Officers said he recently had been engaged in labor difficulties on the cross-state canal and had been a critic of the government.

Weak and still unable to talk distinctly, Timmerman said he saw only one of the three or four men who nailed him to the cross before he was struck on his own hammer. He declared he did not know their names, but was "sure he was a northerner."

Timmerman said he left his house-car home after breakfast and started for the scene of construction on the Cull-Atlantic ship canal to seek work. A man, who had accompanied him, left, and forced him to enter the wooded section where he was driven at a heavy pace and cow over his head and began chopping him.

Three or four other men joined in manhandling the bricklayer, he related, and one of them muttered "this ought to teach you to keep your trap shut—you'll be glad to stayed out of Florida, while you were here."

They forced him to the ground and tied onto the cross, he said, between two of them holding him while another used his two hands to drive the nails. Timmerman said he fought wildly, but the pain from the first nail was too much for him and he soon fainted.

SMALL PORTIONS ROADS FLOODED

No Danger of Serious Situation at Tweed is Reported

Tweed, March 19.—Although the waters of the Moira River were still rising at an early hour today, officials of that town stated that there little danger of any serious flood resulting in the district there. The water did rise about midnight as the ice jammed more solidly behind the large dam at the village, but the ice is breaking up and the waters to back-up and flood small portions of highway No. 37 and also the village.

The town officials are planning to dynamite the ice above the dam, which should relieve the pressure and doubtless cause the ice to flow into Lake Stoco", stated Chief Richard Wannamaker of the Tweed News today. "We are not looking for any serious trouble as yet, but naturally we would breathe a little more freely if the ice left the dam would break-up", added Mr. Curry.

Height of the water in the Moira River having risen considerably during the past few days, has been prevented on local streets, flooded thoroughfares are pouring thousands of gallons of water into the main river and it is momentarily expected that the overflowing waters of the head waters may yet cause more serious trouble in Belleville.

Stirling and District

Stirling, March 19—At a recent meeting of Marmora township council, a deputation of farmers headed by Irwin McCoy of Marmora urged the council to purchase immediately a community tractor-grader. By this means, Lindsay Neal, who contracted in 1935 to purchase scarfe fly powder for Stirling, Ont., and Mr. Lindsay Carmichael were immediately advised by the deputation and already applications have been received from farmers to plough over two thousand feet of cattle.

Dr. Robertson of the Ontario Veterinary College, and Mr. Joseph Hastings, Hastings county agricultural representative have been giving demonstrations on treatment and warble fly powder has been distributed through the canvassers.

Warble fly has been partially-ially heavy in Marmora township and on demanded Grade 1 treatments annually averaged close to twenty grubs per head. The entire-prising farmers of this district are enthusiastic and determined to eradicate warble fly control and it is hoped joining townships will profit by the example of Marmora and organize similarly.

ST. PATRICK IS HONORED BY MASS

Sermon on Patron Saint Delivered by Rev. Father Colligo

A High Mass in honor of St. Patrick was celebrated at St. Michael's Church on Sunday by J. J. Collins. A sermon on the life and work of St. Patrick was delivered by the pastor Rt. Rev. Monsignor Wm. V.G.

The Apostle of Ireland was a world figure whose imperishable fame has been handed by history and enshrined in the hearts of the Irish race. The speaker outlined the picturesque life of the pagan chief of the hills of Antrim sustained by the unconquerable religious spirit of servitude. Delivered from bondage a mighty power urged him to return to shed the light of faith among his former captors whose noble qualities of mind and heart he knew and appreciated. After years of monastic preparation in Gaul and Italy Saint Patrick returned again and returned to conquer.

Tells of Interview

An interview on Tara's Hall was sketched between St. Patrick and the High King of Ireland, when the Saint made use of the Shamrock to symbolize the mystery of the Holy Trinity. The Irish people received the teachings of Saint Patrick with alacrity and they have maintained them with constancy.

St. Patrick's life was not an easy one. Above the Cromlech rose the Christian altar and above the round tower, slood the cross of Christ and the nation began to model their homes, their government, their educational life on its sacred principles.

From the Isle of Saints and Scholars went forth a glorious army of monks in Ireland's Golden Age to rebuild lost faith and civilization in western Europe where again today their teaching could be paralled with profit.

Four years ago the Eucharistic Congress was held in Dublin marking the fifteen hundredth anniversary of the coming of St. Patrick to Erin: At the celebration of Mass in Phoenix Park at which a million people assisted at the moment when the bell sounded for the consecration there was heard a sound almost unique in human history. It was the sound of the falling of St. Patrick ringing again after a silence of fifteen centuries, straight to the hearts of his spiritual children.

IRWIN'S DEATH DUE TO HEART

C. P. R. Employee Not Drowned as First Believed

At the adjourned inquest, looking into the death of Archie Irwin, 46-year-old C.P.R. employee, who lost his life in the swirling waters of the flooded creek on the Bell Bridge road last Thursday evening, the coroner's jury last night rendered a verdict of death due to a heart condition, and not by drowning as at first reported. The inquest was held before Coroner T. G. B. Cronk in the police court rooms.

Identification had been made at the primary inquest by Mr. Chas. Irwin, foreman of the C.P.R. gang of workmen, and a cousin of the deceased. At the conclusion of the initial inquiry, the proceedings were adjourned by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., and was performed by Dr. Austin Walters of this city. Dr. Walters was the only witness of importance called last night, he testifying that Mr. Irwin's heart was found to be enlarged sixty 35 per cent. larger than normal and enclosed in tissue. Dr. Walters added he firmly believed that death had been due to heart trouble brought on by cold water exposure. "There were no signs of drowning by water," he added in response.

The investigation was under the direction of Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., while the coroner's jury, like a competent jury of the great Boob who investigated the fatality, was composed of the following—W. C. Baragar, foreman; C. W. Barrow, H. J. Harden, J. Adams, L. Feard, J. Harker, D. Mcnam and Reg. Arnott.

Going ashore for excursions calls for careful dressing by cruise passengers. Ideal is a dress of white crepe with the skirt knife-pleated to the hem, the bodice fashioned with big buttons, and with a white linen jacket, a belt and a tie-scarf of navy blue or brown silk, while dotted.

NO CHANGES IN LAW SAYS NIXON

Number of Dogs Used And Number of Does to be Shot The Same

Toronto, March 19.—(CP)—Provincial Secretary Nixon today told the Ontario Legislature Fish and Game Committee the acts governing the number of dogs used in hunting deer and the number of doe, which could be shot would remain on the Statute books for another year.

"As far as I am concerned," said Mr. Nixon, "I am willing to let the law remain on the statute books this year."

Only two members, J. A. Craig (Cons., Lanark) and W. G. Nixon (Lab., Hamilton East) had favored objection to the Buck law.

The Buck law provides for every four buck deer taken, one doe may be shot but in no case may any party, regardless of size, take more than two doe. One dog is allowed for deer hunters.

After W. L. Miller (Lib. Algoma-Manitoulin) had moved the adjournment, Mr. Nixon addressed the committee on the game conservation plan was contemplated this year by the government respecting game and fish.

SHANNONVILLE W. A.

On Thursday evening, March 12, a St. Patrick's tea was held at the home of Mrs. Ed. Cook, of Carlaw under the auspices of the Woman's Association of the United Church of Shannonville. In spite of bad roads and stormy weather, a good crowd gathered to enjoy the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Clark. The home was beautifully and appropriately decorated for the occasion, the colour scheme being green and white. The tables were very attractive, centred with long-stemmed shamrocks and green and white streamers in the middle of each, place cards of shamrock green and white menu cards and serviettes. Candy of the same colour in green paper baskets and green candy trimmings on the ice cream, made the tea table look lovely and a delicious meal was served by green-capped waiters who were very attentive to each guest. The tables were set three times and after all had been served, Mrs. Frank Dontzler, vice-president, called the gathering to order.

Rev. Mr. Clark was called on and spoke a few words of congratulation on the success of the first social evening of the newly organized W. A. He thanked the ladies for their kindness in providing such a lovely supper and spoke of Lady Tweedsmuir, the Governor-General's wife, being so much interested in the work of the Women's Institutes. Mrs. Dontzler then tendered a vote of thanks to the hostess, who very graciously replied with words of welcome to all and who had just braved the storm to meet with them. Mrs. Harry Murphy then put on two contests. The singing of God Save the King brought the program to a close. The proceeds were $20.61. Great credit is due the workers who planned the affair and worked out their plans so efficiently. The thanks of the W. A. are due to all who contributed in any way to the success of the evening.

THESE FACTS ABOUT BRAN HAVE BEEN PROVED BY TESTS

Supplies Gently Acting "Bulk" to Aid Regular Habits

Now and then, in talking with your friends, the subject of bran has come up. So that real facts might replace unsupported opinions, the Kellogg Company has aided for some years research in leading nutrition laboratories.

Studies made on a group of healthy women showed that two tablespoonfuls of bran daily continued to relieve constipation" over a period of months. How different from cathartics—where dosage often must be increased.

"Another series of tests on men indicated that, with some people, the "bulk" in bran was much more effective than that found in fruits and vegetables.

Further tests showed that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provided vitamin B and iron as well as "bulk." This "bulk" exerts no irritation, and gently exercises and cleanses the system—the right way to correct constipation.

Serve ALL-BRAN regularly for regularity. Either as a cereal with milk or cream, or in cooked dishes. It is a natural laxative food. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Trunks are back! with plenty of simple little frocks for southern wear, frocks that are the backbone of the capitive wardrobe. Such a frock is of gray linen with buttons all the way down. Buttons and belt are in dark green, making a color combination.

At least one big hat is necessary for morning calls and afternoon things. A lovely hat is a tartanwool of black tone with slanting lobe crown and dipping brim. While feather leaves are placed on the brim to one side, near the edge.

Heel and toe don't seem to count any more when it comes to designing sandals. Cuts and shaping wear there is a white patent leather sandal, without toe or heel, but with plenty of cut-out straps and subtle black stitching.

Black magic is enmeshed in a simple black crepe sheath of a gown over which is worn a long cape consisting of layer on layer of black net punctuated by waxed black satin c.on.

At The Theatres

AT THE BELLE

Leslie Howard, Bette Davis "Triumph in Petrified Forest"

Gene Raymond in "Love on a Bet"

Motion picture audiences everywhere thought they had seen almost the ultimate in screen characterizations when for the first time Leslie Howard and Bette Davis were teamed in "The Petrified Forest" ago.

Both Mr Howard and Miss Davis were remarkable in their roles in that outstanding production. Both of them have done equally fine work in more recent films.

It is certain, however, that film fans and critics will, for once agree, that in the Warner Bros. picture "The Petrified Forest" which had its local premiere at the Belle Theatre on Monday and Tuesday and Miss Davis dwarf all their previous accomplishments into utter insignificance.

"The Petrified Forest" was the Broadway stage success of last year, and Leslie Howard, by star, achieved a personal popularity unrivaled in the dramatic capital of the world.

It is on this play, written by Robert E. Sherwood, that the film production, which is declared to be far better than the stage production, is based. The vast, primitive desert which could only be suggested, on the stage, is shown on the screen in all its desolate grandeur.

Dick Foran gives a fine performance of the young college boy, maladjusted to his surroundings, and with a terrific passion for the gas station girl whom he cannot understand.

These people, with others, are all held in duress in the desert eating room by a band of bandits and killers who are awaiting a chance to flee from the posse hunting them. It is in this atmosphere that the terrific drama of the piece takes place, an atmosphere surcharged with death and destruction.

The role of the killer is excellently portrayed by Humphrey Bogart, who had the same part on the stage.

Archie L. Mayo has given the piece masterly direction, keeping up the dramatic tension from beginning to end. He has grasped the situations with a perfect understanding and treated the characterizations with sympathy and reality.

"Love on a Bet", Unique

Gene Raymond, erstwhile matinee-throb of Dolores Del Rio and Joan Crawford, becomes the romantic interest of winsome Wendy Barrie, in their madcap experiences in the new screen comedy heart-thriller, "Love on a Bet", the added feature in the same program.

Helen Broderick has a comedy part in "Love on a Bet" similar in spirit to her screen role in "Top Hat", she plays Wendy Barrie's aunt. The entire programme will be repeated again tonight and Friday, matinee and evening.

RECALLS FLOODS OF YEARS AGO

George Ruttan Has Memory of Previous Freshets

Stories or old time floods in this city are still being related by older residents, many of whose homes were divided upon the extent of trouble and damage which occurred, when contrasted with previous overflowings and jams of the Moira River.

Mr. Geo. Ruttan, local blacksmith and one of the city's oldest and best known residents has been one citizen who has seen worse floods on the banks of the Moira. Many tragic and also humorous incidents were also connected with one he particularly remembers.

"I just forget what year this was, but I distinctly remember the flood in which ice cakes were piled against Thibadeau Bridge before the big cakes also blocked Pinnacle St. The spot railway running down that street was a bad one at that time.

"Another incident connected with a flood about fifty years ago was at the time when several barrels of whiskey were saved by the flood water that were left in the cellar of the old Windsor Hotel. Closed, the smoke poured out through every window and men and women in the building and outside of it were choked by the fumes. Everyone thought it was a fire until the reason was discovered."

It was during this flood too, that a house owned by Mr. Sero, on Dover Coleman street, was picked up bodily from its foundations and carried by the swirling current down as far as Phipps's Asylum, believes Mr. Ruttan. The inhabitants were caught in the house at the time by the unexpected flood and were forced to escape through the windows for help. The house was finally brought to rest some distance down the street before it was carried to the Bay, and the occupants rescued.

FOXBORO

Foxboro, March 18—The citizens of this village were greatly surprised on Thursday morning when the sight of frosty flowing water met the eye. The heavy rain of the previous night had caused the water in the creeks to overflow to the extent that the occupants of different homes were marooned for a time. The cellars filled, water in horse stables and flowing over the road one foot and more deep. The Foxboro Creamery suffered the appearance of a large lake and some wood belonging to Messrs. Richeson and E. Skinner was caught among driftwood. The local merchant said it was the worst flood in twenty-six years, as the rise of his shop was completely washed away. However, into the cellar it did not enter although the water had receded.

Word also reached the village of the disastrous flood in Belleville. Many citizens motored down and sympathy is extended to those suffering loss of their homes, furniture, etc.

Life Revives in Lower City As Flood Waters Recede

Blast at 2.53 O'clock Thursday Afternoon Opens Channel to Rivermouth For Water Quickly Runs off Submerged Section

Moira River, the angry and raging, is placid and calm again. The flood is over and the last push that bore most of the water from the soaked and water-laden woodlands of Thurlow and Tyendinaga, of the oldest part of this historic settlement.

It was 2.31 p.m., Thursday exactly when the Bell flood swept with terrific wallop, with roads of the submerged section, and then it was all quiet. Spring had come with residents yet marooned and forced to move their homes. Spring also found the city sinks deep in water with residents yet marooned and forced to move their homes. Spring also found the city sinks deep in water with residents yet marooned and forced to move their homes. But even through the birds were singing and the bright sun shone, the city looked.

The Last Hazard

The movement immediately removed all danger of further flooding, though the had largely been eliminated through the delay in the break-up of the ice above Canniffon dam and a tight when the Exaard hid practically worn itself out. But Thursday afternoon's show from the water-limited and water-bound city, residential and mercantile and manufacturing sections, the hampering of ice and trees in cellar and on street floor. Twice heavy rains and a snowfall threatened and brought destruction as they dealt heavy blows. But their force passed.

As if by magic the water slipped away. It was like the collapse of an army's offensive or defensive. The water was in full retreat. Belleville at once rose hopeful and smiling from the waters.

It was the end of the flood. To Bellevillians of the year of grace 1936 there is that one flood and it is the flood" which held the city in its evil fetters for eight days and nights.

That Last Shot

There is always a last shot.

That last shot was fired in the Moira River a few feet south of the bridge on which the C.P.R. trains cross the stream. Others led up to this result but there was a last shot.

At the lower bridge the intonation was heard. Then the sound of the crunch or fall of an ice cake just a fraction of a second after. An uneasy movement of the ice field. Then a shift which in a second gathered force. The field began to move. Water poured over the windows of the brick building on the northeast corner of the lower bridge. Water dropped rapidly.

FREDERICTON, N.B. BRIDGE CRUSHED BY HUGE ICE JAM

CAPITAL CUT OFF

Damage Placed at Million And Half Dollars

Fredericton, March 20.—(CP)—Twisted rails jutting grotesquely into space today marked the loss of an important bridge at Fredericton cutting the New Brunswick capital off from railway communication with parts of the Province. Severe damage was done the Maritime Provinces and Quebec.

A toll-bridge on the Mouinval-Quebec highway was washed away at Ste. Anne de la Perade; a boy drowned at Verdun, Que., when he fell through rotting ice; 30 homes were damaged by an avalanche at La Malbaie, Que., with two women slightly hurt and valuable property throughout the province, including that of Quebec lay under feet of water.

Hundreds of families were driven from their homes throughout Quebec Province and the north shore of Lake St. John.

Communication by rail and electrical plant was unworkable at Drummondville and Sorel, where it reckoned in the tens of thousands of dollars.

Spectacular Collapse

Collapse of the Fredericton bridge that stretched its half-mile length over the St. John River in South Devon was spectacular.

A huge ice-jam broke against the structure during last its hundreds of tons of ice in a seething, roaring mass at the supports that had borne the bridge since it was built in 1884. G. S. Hogan, bridge engineer of Canadian National Railways' Atlantic Division, estimated damage at $1,500,000.

The Bridge carried trains to Montreal, Quebec, Halifax and points in the north of Fredericton. Bridge in long service since 1884. John A. Macdonald, first Prime Minister of Canada, stood in a carriage and spoke to a crowd that gathered for the ceremonies marking the start of construction.

The Provincial Parliament Building in Fredericton surrounded by water with prospects the Province's legislature would have to move to their duties late today.

Worshippers Escape

A group of worshippers on their way to church had hard travel cleared the toll bridge at Ste. Anne when two spans of the three-span structure were swept from temporary supports and sank.

The St. Francis River through the Masters, Drummond counties is still a raging torrent spreading needed by the engineers to repair the extensive damage done roads, it is now practically sealed. In many cases whole blocks of improved roads have been torn and gouged by the flood. At Victoria Park on Canada Paper Company's lower mill at Windsor Mills was closed due to water in the basement of the mill.

Hundreds of families were driven from their St. Francis valley homes with factories closed due to power shortage. Water poured into the streets in rowboats. Bridges were threatened by a three-mile stretch of ice in Quebec province that gave promise of smashing up at any moment. Residents were forced to leave their homes at St. Hyacinthe, Quebec, and Paul abandoned their Baie St. Paul homes and at Beaupre warned that new floods in the province might have to leave at any time.

Nine's Death Accidental

Ottawa, Ont., March 20 (AP) —Accidental death as a result of a flood which swept the Rideau River on the side of a Canadian Pacific Railway passenger train, north-bound from Ottawa to Toronto, was returned last night by the coroners' jury investigating the death of George Evans, 58.

He was a dead man when he left the Capital Farm and came from Belleville. He died Tuesday morning. No blame was attached by the jury to members of the train crew.

DAMAGE TO ROADS QUITE EXTENSIVE

Four Foot Excavation at Entrance to Victoria Park

First survey of damage to roads, sewers and other civic property under the jurisdiction of the department was being made by officials of the public works this morning. So far no serious breaks were found crushed or broken, it was unofficially stated, although storm sewers and sanitary drains are still running to overflow capacity. This is attributed to the backup of water in local ceilars.

Thousands of dollars will be needed by the department to repair the extensive damage done roads, it is unofficially stated. In many cases whole blocks of improved roads have been torn and gouged by the flood. At Victoria Park entrance a four-foot excavation has been taken out by the recent torrents. As yet no complete statement is given regarding the probable cost of the flood to roads or sidewalks by the subterranean flow of water.

Power Restored to Town of Arnprior

Arnprior, Ont., March 20 (CP)— Power lines were repaired sufficiently today to restore electricity with all the power it needed and the Kenwood Mills, Ltd., plant resumed activities after a week's shutdown, which threw about 140 men temporarily out of work.

Disrupted telegraph lines, resulting from the snow, sleet and rain which fell during the storm, began to be repaired soon. Late yesterday communication with Ottawa, across the Ottawa River, the only outside connection so far in working order, was restored. Last night recovered its electric power service and houses lighted by lamps or candles glowed up with electric light for the first time in 36 hours.

Rights of Catholic Clergy In Political Affairs Defined By Cardinal Villeneuve

Quebec, Mar. 20 (CP)—Cardinal Villeneuve, Archbishop of Quebec, has given a decision on the rights of the clergy in the affairs of politics, in a statement on the rights of the Roman Catholic clergy in political affairs, which has been published yesterday following.

The service of the Canadian Press gave to many newspapers, French as well as English, an article which is fantastic as it was tendentious, of a private document addressed by the Canons to the Archbishop and Bishops of the Province of Quebec. This document was not intended by the episcopal authority, regarding elections and elections, on such occasions.

LOCARNO STATES OFFER NEW DEAL TO PARLIAMENTS

Formal Approval Sought For Adjustment Over Rhineland

FOUR-POWER ACCORD

Britain's Cabinet Agrees Upon New Locarno Text

London, Mar. 20 (AP)—The cabinets of Great Britain and France, supporting the four-power Locarno proposals for a way out of the Rhineland impasse, dispatched the suggestions for a European political new deal to their parliaments today for formal approval.

After ten days of tension lessened appreciably, British sources said, Europe apparently was safely, if only temporarily past the crisis arising from Germany's occupation of the Rhineland.

Government heads started plans for laying the foundation for a new order of peace for Europe in an international conference which they hoped would be held next May, sitting in London, Brussels or Geneva.

Discussion By Germany.

There, they hoped, Germany would discuss its military, financial and economic problems with the other European nations.

A meeting of the League of Nations Conciliation Committee of 13, originally called for today to consider the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, was postponed until tomorrow.

Prime Minister Baldwin's cabinet, after an hour and a half session last night, approved the text of the plan for a new Locarno and forwarded it to make a full statement to the House of Commons this afternoon with a white paper to disclose details of the program.

French Support Given.

Foreign Minister Flandin also reported the four-power accord to Premier Sarraut's ministry as Paris met night and won strong support for presentation of the proposals to the Chamber of Deputies today at almost the same hour as the London session.

The Italian and Belgian diplomats submitted the plan to their governments while the text of the draft proposals was received by the German delegation today and was studied immediately by Joachim von Ribbentrop, Adolf Hitler's ambassador-at-large.

The British indicated a stand the four remaining Locarno powers had contributed their share now to a relieving of the tension and it was up to Germany to come co-operate.

Details Secret.

The Locarno plan, many details of which already agreed upon by the British while paper, or government heads, was not divulged, for the course of action, authorities said, in the event of the immediate beginning of negotiations with Germany for a settlement.

Geneva, Mar. 20 (AP)—Adolf Hitler's newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter turned against the League of Nations today while a foreign office spokesman insisted the reported proposals of Locarno powers provided for a Rhineland settlement were unsatisfactory.

Under the banner line, "the verdict against Germany is a verdict against the League's council," Hitler's newspaper criticized the League for the first time about the Rhineland offered, simultaneously with his "Locarno peace" ultimatum, to return the Reich to Geneva.

NO OUTBREAK OF SCARLET FEVER

Misunderstanding Caused by Item Without Dateline

To correct a mistaken impression that there is an epidemic of scarlet fever in the city, Dr. G. S. Cronk, Medical Officer of Health, informed the Ontario Intelligencer that there is only one case in Belleville, that of a child who was reported officially recovered to be removed from the isolation hospital, there is no epidemic. The misunderstanding was caused by a news item in Trenton's issue referring to the case in Trenton, but the Toronto Globe's issue referring to the Canadian Press dispatch, whom it appeared in that paper.

Coming Events

Spring Officially Begins Today Sun Crosses Equator, Birds Arrive

Although conditions in the city and district today belied it. Spring in all her gaudy splendor, but without the usual fanfare of bright skies and singing birds officially arrived on the vernal equinox Belleville as exactly 1.58 p.m. this afternoon at the exact moment before two o'clock in the afternoon Eastern Standard Time the sun will be directly over the equator and from that point will proceed steadily northward, bringing later the summery days of June and sultrier days of July and August. We have passed into history also at that time, the Spring came 24 hours earlier today than Leap Year has existed so that every four years it is explained by astronomers.

Spring found Belleville and district white behind, with roads of the deepest snow ever recorded, many feet in some cases and well nigh impassable in the open fields. Spring also found the city sinks deep in water with residents yet marooned and forced to move their homes. But even through the birds were singing and the bright sun shone, the city looked.

rapidly. It was moving to the southeast of the channel which has been filled for eight days. The exact time was stated. This end was at hand. A Chief Engineer of the Public Works Department said he thought he could be by next week. It looked as if we were headed toward Spring. Everywhere in the city there was a general movement of the people, which centered on the flats. Here, when the waters went down and the mud began to emerge, between the third and fourth floors, the real work began. There was an anxious search for those on the lower levels. Most of the refugees in relief from the city brought in to the Armouries on the 3rd. It would, for the low lying areas, be disappear. It is predicted under the Armouries by the 1st. beyond.

Scene of Release

Smiles burst from the people who were on the flats. "Gee, it's great to get out," they said. The relief boats had as if by magic appeared. Many of the refugees, as they stepped ashore, were carried to the waiting cars. Others were taken to their homes, others took their way to the relief. Indeed no one had had important there.

Both learned the same story. The flood waters had risen. Then the pressure was relieved and the flood went down. Water-logged, fairly high for several hours in the river basin, the water began to fall. Those who lived near the bridge and the flats congregated in the mouth of the channel to watch the progress of the railway bridge. Then suddenly it sank, and a mighty current took it, carrying the ice down to within a short distance of the bridge.

Spectacular Sight

"Immediately the shot was fired, we saw the effect as the ice started to move. It started to crumble under the bridge in a straight line and then it began to break in huge cakes and these spread out like a fan or a flock of birds one going this way and another that way and the other towards Allen's," said Mr. Jack Smith who had been in the gymnasium gang hunting in the river for the body of Fred Allen. Fred was first over the top of the ice at the bridge and in the mouth and carried his spud in his hand. He had a high climb on the ice and then hailed. At last he looked like a Polar Bear. Then he went cool.

Then the shot touched off the ice movement which relieved the greater part of the submerged area of the city. Fred was first over the bridge. All day long the workers had been working with dynamite and when working on the ice were attached to the bridge. Fred would have an opportunity of being hailed to safety in the event of a sudden rise. But when the shot was fired all were on the bridge, which, however, had already been a dramatic story told. But the climax was not to be.

A reporter near the railway bridge saw a scene untold. He tells the story:

"The sound of an explosion, a sight gases, waters swirling rapidly, by the ice floes in the Metis River slowly commencing to move and the beginning of the end of Belleville's longest and most severe flood in years had come. The long-looked for and much anticipated movement began at 1.55 p.m. on Thursday following the setting off of one of the heaviest charges of dynamite detonated by city workmen.

"There was a long delay between the charge and the explosion, during which time the progress while immediately the flood waters on both sides of the river showed a decided drop and the flood in many years had practically ended.

Spreading Sight

"It was a wonderful sight to see that huge ice field literally spread and sway down stream," stated Deputy Chief Ryan, one of those who witnessed the scene from the rear of the Queen's Hotel. "To show how rapidly the water was going following that push yesterday afternoon, the time I was in front of the Daphol Theatre was nearly three feet deep when the push commenced, but five minutes after the ice jam had settled at the base of the railway bridge, there was not over two inches of water above No. 1 fire hall. It was nothing short of miraculous to see the rush of the waters on Front Street lowered in such a short period," added Traffic Officer Sam Irvine, who along with hundreds of interested citizens watched the scene from the smoke of the flood.

Other Items News

One of the most interesting incidents of the passing of the greater part of the flood was the whistling of the engine of the C.P.R. work train, stationed on the railway bridge at the time. As the ice field moved downwards and settled and it was apparent that the waters were receding rapidly, the engine gave forth a series of long whistle sent with gusto to welcome the relief from the flood waters, which for the past few days the railway bridge and building gang and kept a work train and crew on the job for eight consecutive days.

When the final big push did come and the waters rose slightly at the foot of the street, the large cakes of ice were hurled towards the railway bridge, immediately went on the C.P.R. bridge and jammed. The work train, crew and pile driver were immediately dispatched to the scene and the pile driver swung into action to dislodge-hammer the large cakes of ice to snow and ice carriers once again was a scene of hurrying torrent of waters.

Ice Started Beyond Bridge

It was the final push the ice field spread below the railway bridge, the ice moving to both banks of the Metis. The waters overflowed the banks completely excavating the waterway leading into Victoria Park. Thousands of tons of water poured into the harbour over the part of the bridge with a huge volume and forced into the slip near Allen's old mill stand. This release allowed the water to flow away towards the mouth of the river with the result that some three hundred feet of channel had been eaten below the ice jam and the field moved over nearly to a joint opposite the lighthouse. Then in front of the Daphol Theatre was nearly three feet deep when the push commenced, but five minutes after the ice jam had settled at the base of the railway bridge, there was not over two inches of water above No. 1 fire hall. It was nothing short of miraculous to see the rush of the waters on Front Street lowered in such a short period," added Traffic Officer Sam Irvine, who along with hundreds of interested citizens watched the scene from the smoke of the flood.

Lights Switched Off

Lights switched fitfully in homes in the city last evening. Every time also sent stringy flames of water into the basements of homes. And there was a sense of security, too. A security that had not been known by the occupants of those homes for days——many days. What mattered it that the

They were the people that stood in the path of a raging torrent. Mighty cascades of water that wrecked and tumbled and foamed through these residential avenues, bringing many thousands of dollars of damage. Mud-splashed, filthy. Now, nearly 24 hours later, there is still a continuous blasting, other cakes swirled hastily, gathered momentum and pleaded with the green depths, and others followed. Then a shudder, the ice jam broke. There were impanied patches of frame fronts of houses showing the ice cakes had shoved their way into them. There were springs bobbing up in the middle of the lawns. An electric bulb bobbed up and down on the water. Then there was a broken old-held twelve feet in the air by the light telephone wires. HYDRO RATE CUT REQUESTED HERE

Belleville Hydro Commissioners at a special meeting of the Commission last night passed the Ontario Hydro Commission to authorize a reduction in electric rates in Belleville.

The following resolution was passed:

"THAT, WHEREAS the annual statement of the Belleville Hydro Electric System shows a substantial surplus and,

WHEREAS the debentures on the system have been paid in full and,

WHEREAS the Belleville Hydro Electric Commission is of the opinion that before a reduction of rates is in order,

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED: THAT the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario be requested to authorize a reduction in rates for the Belleville electric light system to become effective on and after the first day of January, 1936."

For the year closing December 31st, 1935, the local utility had a surplus of $38,597.11 which is an increase over 1934 of $8,220.09. The local system has just received a rebate of $1,741.74 as the "thirteenth power bill". The decision to set up a reserve fund of $5,000 was based on the successful contributions revealed by these facts: Belleville's General Rate Assessment for the year" which was brought before the Board of Chairman, Commissioner George A. Reid presided and Commissioners H. P. Knight, W. D. Duff and His Worship Mayor Harry Hill were present.

Revenue as shown by the report has increased $4,300.05 to $181,982.56 for the year.

The favorable showing of the commission was in the face of a reduction in rates in June last and the year. It was a fact worth noting that though many homeowners have used. The power cost $216.62 , less than it did in the year 1934. Last year the balance of the debt on the utility was paid off.

Interest charges paid off the system are valued at $63,412.90 over the utilities.

There have been four rate cuts which the consumers have enjoyed since the system was purchased. The total of the rate cut is 40 per cent. and over. Street light rates have been down 21 per cent in 1935 from the 1934 rates. It is estimated that the rate saving in street lighting is $33,936.37 since 1929. The saving to the city in connection with the six per is given as $9,317.30. Plant improvements have made last year to over $4,000.

Madoc and District

Madoc—The Young People's Society of Sacred Heart of Mary Church presented an excellent drama entitled "Quality Folks" at the Masonic Hall on St. Patrick's night. The manner in which the play was acted was a tribute to the instructing of Mrs. Leslie Ashley under whose directing the play was prepared. The cast were well suited to their various parts but special mention can be given Miss Agnes Smith for her characterization of the old darky servant, "Mammy Evelina." Harold Mulholland as Major Dorinda, and Miss Marena Burke as Rose Dorinda were exceedingly good. The performance of the rest of the cast was indeed creditable and all who braved the nasty weather were amply repaid their attendance.

The numbers of the play presented Mrs. Ashley with a luncheon set and Miss Smith with a tea set for their assistance. Following the play a dance was held in the church room where a large number enjoyed the music of Harold Mulholland's Orchestra. The cast was as follows:

Rose Dorinda—Miss Marena Burke.

Major Dorinda—Harold Mulholland.

Mammy Evelina—Miss Merebeth Smith.

Lawyer Hixon—Bernard Jackson.

Bud Dorinda—Fred Stewart.

Ruth Beveridge—Miss Marguerite Feeney.

Grand Lee—Dorian Stewart.

Elizabeth Poynter—Miss Harriet Naylor.

Elephante De Sarrie—Miss Mildred Birkett.

Hallie Burke—Miss Reta Cournyea.

The play was the story of the fortunes and misfortunes of a retired army major of the South Land who from his laboratory work to discover a means to eliminate the boll-weevil, had become almost penniless. The spring lawyer had fallen in love with the major's daughter, Rose, attempts to falsely obtain possession of Major Dorinda's which, unbeknownsly to the Dorindas, is rich in oil. By disgracing Rose's brother, "Bud", the lawyer forces her consent to marriage. But the truth is discovered, the major's eyesight restored by an operation and the love of Rose Dorinda for Grant Lee culminates in their betrothal.

Between acts the audience were favoured with vocal selections by Miss Hawthorne singing "Ireland" and "When Father Papered the Wall" and Tommy Jones singing "Dear Old Mother of Mine" and "I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen." All the selections were very much enjoyed.

Broken Hearted Widow Follows Husband

LONDON, March 20.—(CP Cable)—Lady Hopwood died of a broken heart, only a few hours after the death of her husband, Sir William Hopwood, the one-time "shirt-sleeve millionaire".

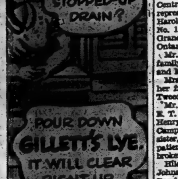
Sir William lost his fortune in the depression. When the crash came his wife pooled her resources with those of Sir William for the benefit of his creditors.

Little Benny's Note Book

We was eating supper and ma said oo pop, O William, by the way, I have a message for you.

Do you mean a message of cheer, or is it something about bridge? pop said, and ma said, O, it has no particular significants on either side of the scale. I mean I happened to meet an old school chum of yours and he asked to be remembered to you. He claimed the very mention of his name would bring back a wealth of amusing memories to you. Ah ha!

Was it any particular name? pop said, and ma said, That's stumbling block. I mean it's on the tip of my mental tongue and I know I'll have it very soon. Maybe I applied my memory system to it as I'll be sure to recall it and my memory system never fales, but just at the moment I keeps recalling me.



Yee gods, was it a long name a short name? pop said, and ma said, It was short and simple, and they've for sure to recall it. I trip up on, so that's the very reason I've applied my memory system. Now let me see, what did I say the name? O, yes, I said, The name is miley man was he. You know, William, from the famous Longfellow poem. Ah that's easy enough, his name must of been Smith, ma said.

I can't recall any Smith, at least no Smith that brings back a flood of dear departed hilarity, pop said, in point of fact I've a little bit of this man, that's just the point: he's not in just the Smith class.

That's just the point, pop said, and he's not in it. I get your drift point. I mean the fact that he was so small and thin made me think he wasn't very much so. what I really said, to myself was, The Smith a miley man he wasn't. In fact to such an extent that he wasn't even Smith at all. He was just the contrary, he was Jones, ma said.

What, Ephert Jones, not old Ezra Jones? pop said, and ma said, that's the very man, now what do you think of my system?

Pop not telling her.

The Belleville Hydro-Electric System

"HERE TO SERVE YOU"

COMMISSIONERS
GEO. A. REID, Chairman
M. P. DUFF
HARRY HILL, Mayor
OSWALD H. SCOTT, Secretary and Manager.

March 19th, 1936.

TO THE ELECTRICAL USERS:

Your Commission submits herewith some facts in reference to the financial condition of your System as of December 31st, 1935. The year 1935 has been a most successful one and your cooperation in making increasing use of Hydro service has been an important factor in the satisfactory results obtained.

The year 1935 was the sixth year the system has been operated by your Commission. It was operated by the Ontario Commission for the first nine months having been purchased as of April 1st, 1929 so in considering the report please bear in mind that some figures deal with the fiscal year of 1935 while others deal with the period from the date of purchase.

The surplus for 1935 is $38,897.11 an increase of $8,920.09 over 1934.

The revenue increased $4,206.06. It was $187,674.53 in 1934 and $191,880.59 in 1935.

The cost of power dropped $4,087.13. It was $123,674.53 in 1934 and $119,475.02 in 1935.

The above surplus and revenue increase was accomplished notwithstanding a reduction in rates was given on June 1st., 1935, and the power purchased cost less although 218.63 H./ P. more was taken.

During the year the balance of the debenture debt of $22,000 was paid so your System is free from debt.

The liquid assets as of December 31st, 1935, are greater than the liabilities by $85,412.92.

The Belleville equity in the power plants ... transmission lines is $88,179.28.

The domestic consumers have received four rate reductions which has meant a considerable saving. The 1935 rate is 40% and up less than the 1929 rate depending on the use. As an example, a consumer using 200 kilowatt hours per month would be billed $4.86 at 1929 rates. Today the account would be $2.70.

The commercial consumers have received three rate reductions. The 1935 rate has meant a saving of 29% and up over 1929 rate. In the case of an average commercial user, he would have paid $36.00 at the 1929 rates whereas his bill under the present rates was $18.97.

The Street Lighting cost the citizens in 1935 over 31½ less than it would have cost under 1929 rates. The total saving to date including all rebates except 1935 is $23,836.27.

The total saving to date to the Waterworks Department including rebates except 1935 is $9,316.39.

The Hydro system of Rates is based on the principle of "The greater the use, the cheaper per kilowatt hour."

The plant has been improved during the year by over $4,000.

It is apparent that a further reduction in rates is in order and your Commission is taking steps to bring a reduction into effect as soon as possible.

Your Commission desires to express its appreciation of your support and loyalty and service rendered by the Employees and Staff during the year.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Signed on behalf of the Commission,

Geo. A. REID,
Chairman.

THE HOME FORUM

Observing the events of the day, from a purely non-political point of view as revealed by the columns of the newspapers of the Province of Ontario and Canada.

THE FLOOD IS PAST

Belleville has risen from the waters of the greatest flood in a generation or more, scarred and soaking wet from its eight days' immersion in the spring waters of the Moira River and of the southern portion of the Moira watershed. Suddenly as the flood burst upon the sleeping citizens eight days before in the early morning hour, so suddenly release and relief came. The raw skunk cabbage as the ice forced its way through into the rivermouth.

It was with a real sigh of relief, that the retreat of the ice and water was witnessed by the people whether they were flood sufferers or not. Every one smiled, especially those whose property had been the spots and playthings of the river since a week ago yesterday morning, even when they realized what they had to return to in their homes, some of them almost ruined by the muddy water which had washed through them for so long a period and by the force of the ice attacks. It was the most sustained flood within the memory of possibly the oldest inhabitant.

This spirit of relief and release was manifest as the people chased back the retreating waters. The inundated area was immediately alive with people. The hand of industry was busy in a few minutes swishing out the water and trying to make broken homes habitable. And some of these homes were those where there was contentment, were torn and wrenched by the irresistible force of water and ice.

The people have faced a trying situation with fortitude. They deserve the greatest credit. For in these dank buildings, where the water was three and four feet deep and where the ice in many places pierced walls and roofed the interiors was much of the wealth of these people. Damage has been heavy, some of the houses seem absolutely broken by the pressure of the ice. Verandahs and porches are gone, some houses lack the corners; the walls of others are scored as if with a glacier. Yet these are homes and will continue to be homes.

In the business area the same feeling of pleasure at the liberation from the spring flood was noticeable. Business had been paralyzed by the flood which not only invaded stores and plants but also created a spirit which would not permit the people to think of anything else but the flood.

Repair of the ravages of the flood will now be begun in all the scarred area, business man and private citizen striving to obliterate the evidence of the havoc in homes and lawns and streets and plants.

HELP FLOOD RELIEF FUND

Now is the time for the public to manifest its interest in the Flood Relief Fund, which is a cause worthy of the attention of every person who can help in any way, chiefly of course with financial assistance. The flood is past but it has left heavy losses. Its marks are not gone. Some persons have lost a great deal, even if they had little before, and they are virtually crippled, and it is imperative that they have some form of aid to set up again.

The fund is planned to take care of emergency demands to assist sufferers of the flood.

There should be a large, generous and whole-hearted response to this appeal, which is a very practical and humanitarian object.

One who realizes the immensity of the situation and the need cannot dismiss this appeal, for the fund will serve a purpose which no other fund is serving.

So far there has been a fine response. With the needs appreciated more and more as the families who have suffered begin to take up their housekeeping the need is great.

Those who have confidence in the people of Belleville will do their utmost to help.

IN SUPPORT OF TREES

Trees are more than sticks of wood. Anyone who has known what it is to strike a tree with a car knows how true this is. Trees which stood in the way of huge ice cakes during the Belleville flood protected many a building from possible crushing under the weight of ice.

Coleman Street has two veteran rows of trees. They are barked and will bear these scars for the rest of their existence, but they stood the test, keeping off the huge floes which threatened to level everything in their path.

Such evidence as this will spur the campaign for the planting of young trees in place of older trees which have nearly reached the last stage of their existence.

Power, to its last particle, is duty. — John Foster.

LOOKING BACKWARD

MARCH 30TH, 1914.

A team from West Belleville visited the Ontario School for the Deaf and played a hockey match with the team of the Institution. It was a fast game from start to finish and resulted in a tie the score being 2 to 2. The West Belleville team all-played fast hockey and it would be hard to pick the star. Lally in goal was great, while on the forward line Weir, Eagerman and Wallis were all stars and the Williams and Hearst on defence were good in checking. The following composed the West Hill team: Goal, E. Lally; point, C. McWilliams and D. Hearst; rover, H. Wells; centre, S. Hagerman; right wing, Y. Weir; left wing, G. Wallis.

On March 19th, a large congregation witnessed a beautiful service in St. Thomas' Church when Mr. G. E. Kingston and Mr. Spencer Godding of Trinity College, Toronto, were made deacons by the Rt. Rev. Dr. Bidwell, Lord Bishop of the Diocese in Ontario. The choral service under the direction of Mr. Ernest Wheeler, the organist, was most beautifully rendered. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. F. B. Woodcock rector of Trinity Church, Brockville. During the service it was announced that it was made to the fact that the day was also the 20th anniversary of the ordination to the priesthood of His Lordship, Bishop Bidwell and the Rev. Canon G. R. Beamish.

Thomson, $1600.00 extra for office help; total salary $1,100.00; Medical Health Officer, Dr. Yeomans $200.00 per annum. The idea of the increases at the present time is to fix the salaries of the officials so that no extra grants at the end of the year. After considerable discussion the matter was referred back to the executive committee for further consideration.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma was pushing crooked things straight and picking things crooked saying to pop, I've decided on goldfish instead of any other canary, Willyum.

What, again? pop said, and ma said, I mean finally. The coy question is, Willyum, shall I get one fairly large goldfish or several fairly small ones?

It seems like a good question, I hope you'll be able to answer it, pop said and ma said, But Willyum, I mean I want your help. The man at the fish and bird store thawt 3 or 4 inside is a good number but it seems to me there mite be jellisy and dissention among them, same as just one goldfish would be moshun of all be strung to a line and not have any cause for dissatisfaction, she said.

Unless you forget to feed him, pop said. And besides, don't you think if you had several they'd be company and inspiration for each other, and all that? he said, and ma said, But Willyum, practically everybody has several goldfish, but how many does you think you know with just one?

If we continued not having any at all it would make us still more conspicuous at even less cost and expense, pop said, and ma said, Now Willyum I want goldfish and the only question is, shall we have singular or plural number, so what do you think, Willyum?

I've always been opposed to soliloquy conversashun, I've noticed about, pop said. Meening plural, and ma said, But Willyum, I read the most intriguing article on Japanese floral decorations and how they can make the most simple and suggestive arrangements with just one flower in a vase, why can't the same thing possible with one goldfish?

Why indeed and let that be my last contribution to the subject, pop said, and ma said, Willyum I knew I could count on your good sense so I've already got a nice kind of a round one in a square bowl, the man's going to deliver it tomorrow morning.

MAKE YOUR OPPORTUNITY

What with more employment about, more trade, and more money to spend, now's the time to make the most of opportunities—for, as Shakespeare wrote, There's a tide in the affairs of men, which taken at the flood, leads on to fortune. Obviously this is a time to make the opportunity and take it, and if some have the desire, and lack the urge to do so, then their stock of nerve force is distinctly low, and should immediately be raised to the necessary standard by powerful with Phosferine.

For always, the test is to the strong, and the energising vitality of Phosferine ensures that one needs the bulk one's own in competition with others.

The origin of most failures, disabilities, and inferiorities, is deficiency of nerve force, which a course of Phosferine soon replaces with the stamina to make your opportunity!

Brothers Are Swept Into Deep Water, Saved

While working at the step logs at the mill dam for Wentworth & Ralph and John Sadler slipped into the swift deep water and were unable to release themselves. Ralph was swept over the dam, while John being cut to the dam with a rope was in the upper water. Their cries for help brought assistance, but not before the young men were badly bruised and were in a dangerous condition. Both village doctors were called and for a while it was not certain that the lads would be revived. However, it is to be hoped they will not suffer any permanent injury.—Wartworth Journal.

CHEESE BOUNTY CONTINUATION IS URGED BY ASSOC.

Decision of Government on Bonus Expected in Few Weeks.

Ottawa, March 26.—A joint meeting here Thursday of the Cheese Patrons' Association and the Unified Catholic Federation of Quebec passed a resolution urging the Government to continue the cheese bonus for the coming fiscal year.

The bonus last year was 1-3 cent a pound. Thursday's resolution did not suggest a figure for the coming year. The decision was to leave it with the Government to do as it "has felt it could, to assist the dairyman."

Most of the dairy counties of Ontario were represented at the meeting by cheese factory men as well as the members of Parliament for those ridings. A. A. MacLaren, of Finch, Ont., chairman of the association, presided and urged the continuation of the dairy farmers' bonus. "It is very serious without it," he declared, "and very helpful with it."

Ottawa, March 26.—(CP)—Representatives of the Ontario Cheese Patrons Association met Ontario members of Parliament here Thursday in continuation of the cheese bonus discussions of January 15 and 16, when the matter was left by members whose constituencies are chiefly interested. W. A. Fraser, (Lib. Northumberland) presided. S. L. Joss of Belleville, head of the Prince Edward County delegation of the Government on the Wheat Board, said that part of the cheese production during the season would probably be kept over for another two weeks. Last week officers of the Dairy Council waited on Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, asking for renewal of the bounty and was told the matter was still under consideration.

For some years the Province of Canada had been to increase butter production with a corresponding drop in cheese manufacture. As this was considered more advantageous to Canada, a bonus was granted by the former government decided to bonus cheese production 1-3 cents a pound, beginning last July.

The bounty was paid on the production from July 1 to January 1, and cost the country $1,062,506 with certain amounts still to be made. Of the total $816,813 went to Ontario dairymen, about five producers in by far the largest cheese producer.

90,246,617 lbs. Produced

Canada produced 100,246,262 pounds of cheese last year and 90,246,617 in 1934. Of last year's production 29,210,941 pounds came from Ontario factories. If the bounty had been in effect during the entire year an 1935 increase would have amounted to more than $1,500,000. Cheese production begins about May first.

One suggestion last before the Government was that the bonus this year apply only to cheese exported. Last year the Dominion exported 36,114,700 pounds—almost half the entire production—the remainder in Canada. If a bonus of 1 1-3 cents was placed on cheese for export it would cost up the domestic price to correspond and under such a plan the Canadian consumer would pay the government actually would pay the bounty on cheese consumed in Canada.

The producer would profit just as much as if the government paid the entire amount. It would cut the cost on the Dominion treasury almost in half.

Tapering Considered

One argument against confining the bounty to export cheese is the danger that dumping considered particularly the United Kingdom, might decide to protect their own dairymen against competition from products so bonused. Importers of Canadian cheese, it is argued, do not object to a producing country bonusing an entire industry but do protest against a bonus exclusively on exports which competes in their markets with domestic products.

One assurance has been given the dairymen, namely, that they will know early enough what if any bounty will be given so that they can decide whether they will send their milk to cheese factories or their cream to butter plants.

Stirling and District

Stirling, March 26—The regular weekly meeting of St. Andrew's Guild was held in the Sunday School rooms on Monday evening in the absence of the leader, the social department headed by Mrs. Gene Seymour, assisted by Mrs. Duncan Mowat, convener, president of the organization officiated as chairman and opened the meeting with the evening service followed by prayer. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Ross and by Aylmer Williams. During the business session of the meeting which followed the secretary's report of the last meeting was read by Miss L. Spry. Communications received from the Peterboro Presbytery's Society were read to present a play in the Stirling church were discussed and the matter was left over for further discussion at a later meeting.

The next number was a fine reading given in a capable manner by Miss Flora Dewery. Mrs. Fred Hulin offered a pleasing soprano solo accompanied at the piano by Mrs. R. H. Williams. Mr. Roy Juby then gave an appropriate reading. The speaker of the evening was Mr. Clifford Baker, chairman of the Board of Managers who gave an instructive address on church law of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

It was a most interesting program and the meeting well attended in spite of the very unfavorable weather conditions. Master Donald MacIlroich gave the final musical number on the program which he offered an instrumental solo. This part of the meeting was closed with the singing of another hymn and the benediction. Miss Mae Johnston then directed an interesting contest.

Ministerial Association

The Ministerial Association of Stirling and District held their March meeting on Tuesday, March 14th when they were the guests at the "Manse of Rev." and Mrs. W. J. Hunter of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Marlbro. The gathering was held during the afternoon by Rev. W. H. Foley of Springbrook (United) church who spoke of the activities within the weather burden with the aid of charts, maps, and so. He demonstrated the manner it which the "forecast is made and said it was a most interesting and instructive topic and greatly enjoyed. Among those present were Rev. and Mrs. A. S. McConnell of Rev. and Mrs. Macklin of Rednersville, Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Foley of Springbrook, and Rev. J. A. Kerr, rector of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling. At the conclusion of the interesting meeting Mrs. Hunter served luncheon and a fine period of social enjoyment shared by all.

St. Paul's P.T.S.

A large gathering gathered in St. Paul's United Church parlors on Sunday evening for a service of special interest which was directed by the Young People's Union of the church.

The service, including the Easter hymns, was entirely dictated by the young people's union and organized in an artistic manner by Misses Mae Marr Hulin president of the organization and Mrs. Nora West' convener of the social committee. The call to worship was given by Miss Marr Hulin and the opening hymn "Light of the World" which visualized the meaning of the service. "I Stand At the Door and Knock" found in Revelations 3rd chapter and 20th verse.

The entire service was directed by the young people who gave the committee in charge of the service deserves great credit for their splendid effort in providing such an unique and interesting program.

All parts of the province are getting a taste of every kind of weather, Stirling having suffered in the floods earlier in the month of the good fortune as they observe the losses and damages in other communities. Not content snow and ice semi several of the linemen out to repair lines. Trees were badly torn with heavy limbs crashing to the pavement loaded with ice. No other damages or injuries were reported, however, but roads are in a terrible condition for the past month, with a heavy coating of wet snow and ice.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Spry and sons, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Alex Nathan motored to Toronto on Saturday where they spent the week-end visiting friends. Miss Rose Spry remained in the city and will spend a week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Rea.

Mrs. G. Geary of Toronto is spending a few days in Stirling visiting friends at the parsonage.

Mr. Thos. Montgomery Jr. who underwent an operation about two weeks ago in the Belleville General Hospital for the amputation of a leg, Mr. Montgomery's many friends throughout the district will be glad to learn that he is progressing quite favorably.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bennett and daughter Joan were Wednesday evening guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bennett's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hulin.

Orange Young Britons Oppose Tax Proposal

Prescott, Ont., March 18 (CP)—Orange Young Britons of Ontario East today went on record as pledging their support to any action by Provincial Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East in opposing any concessions to Separate Schools.

Young Britons, meeting here last night, unanimously passed a resolution "concurring in any action the Provincial Grand Lodge of Ontario East may take in regard to the school question."

Honorary memberships were conferred by the Grand Lodge of Ontario East, also in session here, on W. D. McIntosh, 82, Vankleek Hill and P. Rath, 95, of Lansdowne; Mr. Macsmith has been a member of the Order for 64 years and Mr. Rath for more than 75 years.

A surplus of $2,000 for the past year was reported to the Grand Lodge by Chester H. Wood of Kingston and D. J. Sutherland of Ottawa, auditors. Delegates to the coming Ontario Conservative convention at Toronto be recorded in the balloting for a new party leader.

The idea, it was said, is that those who spoke on the resolution, would be to adopt the possibility of having the new party leader chosen largely on the vote of delegates in the vicinity of Toronto.

Hon. Raymond D. Morand, former Deputy Speaker in the House of Commons, one of the advocates of the move, said due to the distance of some constituencies from Toronto and the cost of bringing so many delegates to a convention, some outlying constituencies might not have just representation.

Germany Is Found Guilty Of Breach of 2 Treaties

Verdict of History Will Be Different' Says German Envoy

'WILL NOT ACCEPT'

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, March. 25—(CP-Cable)—The censure of the League of Nations yesterday unanimously found Germany guilty of a breach of the treaties of Versailles and Locarno.

Germany was the only country to vote against the finding. Her vote does not count as an interested party in the question.

Chile abstained from voting and the representative of Ecuador was absent. Other countries voted or voted for the motion.

The votes of France and Belgium like that of Germany, did not count, however. They were the two countries which established the breach in the council in the first place against Germany's occupation of the Rhineland. That step, taken on March 7, was the action which led to the council's vote.

Judgment of History

Immediately after the vote was taken Joachim Von Ribbentrop, the German representative, rose in his place at the horseshoe table in the room of the League of Nations' council met and, in the names of the German people and the German government, declared:

"This resolution will not be made. It is without legal significance. If the honorable members had had more time to consider my statement they would, I think, the world have been different."

Before leaving in his brief declaration following the vote of censure, said Germany would not accept it. "In France, he persisted which first violated the treaty of Locarno. Germany is determined to resignly over her own territory had over her own the most elementary right of a nation.

Following him, Flandin replied:

"No state is entitled to judge its own cause. I regret the German statement I have already made, and I am prepared, if the German government is willing, to submit the dispute to the highest world tribunal—the International Court of Justice at The Hague."

Von Ribbentrop made no reply.

Stanley M. Bruce of Australia, chairman of the council, then announced the council would meet in private session tomorrow to consider whether any further steps were necessary.

After the League Council meeting concluded, the British Cabinet met to consider a draft agreement reached between the powers on a common line of action concerning German occupation of the Rhineland. Each of the four Locarno powers, it was stated, will submit the agreement under the agreement full liberty of judgment. The Locarno powers are Britain, France, Italy and Belgium.

French Communique

A Franco-British communique, explaining the provisional proposals formulated by the Locarno members, said:

"We have worked very hard towards an agreement between the four powers which will provide satisfactory progress has been made.

"The situation is the following: Four delegations have been working among themselves the text which is the common basis for the working shape in which it will be submitted to the respective governments which retain their full liberty or consideration of it."

Suggestion to Seven Representation Vote on Party Leadership

Windsor, Ont., March 20—(CP) Conservatives in a number of municipalities in North Essex ridings have passed a resolution, one of which have gone out to all ridings of the Province, asking all executive delegates to the coming Ontario Conservative convention at Toronto be recorded in the balloting for a new party leader.

The idea, it was said, is that those who spoke on the resolution, would be to adopt the possibility of having the new party leader largely on the vote of delegates in the vicinity of Toronto.

Rolls at Dominion Textile Plant Are Studied

Sherbrooke, Que., March 20—(CP)—Filing of pay-rolls of the Sherbrooke plant of Dominion Textile was the first thing to occupy Justice W. F. A. Turgeon's Royal Commission when it resumed its sitting here this morning.

The rolls were presented by John W. Barrie, office manager of the local factory. Following this the books, wage scale, and commission's counsel, continued to examine the company's employees with regard to wages and working conditions.

"I did not know why so accurate mechanical record of employees' time was kept," he said. "That was to head office." said Mr. Barrie in his evidence. He had mentioned the matter once or twice to his superiors.

"What was the reply from head office?" asked Mr. McRae.

"Oh you know how you are," replied witness.

That protection has an employee against pure error in the making up of his time?" asked counsel.

"Well, I suppose it is to help the overseer," replied Mr. Barrie.

When you engage an employee has any means of ever knowing the number of hours he is put down as having worked?

Witness replied the worker could check up with overseers and the departmental clerks. He was instructed to produce those records.

"GLITTERING GIRL"

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER I.

Vernon Tyson, a magazine in her hand, sat alone, young and tranquil, on a corner seat of the train that was violently speeding New York-ward. She had chosen the opposite seat to appear utterly, prodigiously unaware of the dark, lean-eyed, extremely good-looking young man who sat directly across the aisle from her.

The train, rent through high, precarious tunnels, emerged into dawn for a moment. Reflected in the pane beside her was clearly defined the face of the young man. Vernon knew, with a thrill that, be it good-looking or—as it almost thought Vernon, thrilled, Her magazine slipped lower so that she could surreptitiously study him.

With a suspicion of tricnia in it, hair was swept back resolutely from his square, broad forehead; his chin was pugnacious and very forceful. He had a good strong jaw. Rather a square face, altogether, modelled bone, excellent in profile. His well-moulded, sensitive mouth did not belie this in her quick nervous sense, subtle, sensitive. His head was beautifully shaped, and he seemed rather tall. Yes, she remembered him as distinctly tall when he left the restaurant ahead of them after luncheon.

As she had passed through this swaying coach with her parents in their drawing-room, Vernon had remarked the game the coach and the number of his seat. Whatever Jake Tyson and his sleek little wife had dropped off into after-luncheon naps, Vernon had stayed back in "Sleepy", and, as though quite accidentally, had dropped into this seat directly across the aisle from the handsome unknown—impelled to that seat by a sudden, inexplicable fascination.

In the darkened window-pane which reflected him, she saw his head turn slowly in her direction, and as she instantly dropped—apparently—her eyes his mouth into a half smile! He had seen through her ruse, then, and was amused. Had understood that she was surreptitiously studying him and thought him! Vernon flushed hotly, hating herself for her "cheap" action—hating him, still more for having seen through her!

Lowering her magazine up, herself high nose in it, even though for the moment it was too dark to read the print clearly, Vernon found "the farce" in the window-pane she saw the reflection of a flash of white, even teeth.... the ill-mannered brute was actually chuckling at her!

Abruptly she rose to her feet, tucked into the crook of her psychological instant the train, reaching a deep corner at great speed, gave a lurching lunge that imagine her from her hand as she fell, with a crash to nothing, in an agonizing flash she found herself practically in his lap!

"I beg your pardon!" She was crimson as she sprang up and made a dive for the fallen magazine. But he was before her. He handed it back to her with a bow.

"I'm all shook up myself, you're saying, Miss. Dizzy kind of knees-knocked." He looked extremely clean-cut, even better-looking at close range, she thought. But he was unmistakably "fresh". Vernon, outwardly showing the composed foil he never had, flashed a look of anger against him.

"No, I mean get back to my poor pals. Our drawing-room's further along." She added hastily: "I only came out for a breath of air. Now it's rather stuffy, you know, in the drawing room."

She turned again. He said: "Please stay. You know you're bored. You probably are."

How very rude he was! she thought. And she hesitated for he was so very good-looking.

"Sit down, for a good girl, and let's not beat about the bush. Let's get acquainted." He gave her what might be termed a very gentle shove. It propelled her into the seat he had just left. He sat down directly opposite her, leaning forward a little, his elbows resting on the small Pullman table between them.

"I saw you in the lunch wagon. You were with your father and mother, weren't you? I rather hoped we would eat."

"Right, Sherlock Holmes." She tried to be dignified, to get into the New York spirit, to carry it off with a flourish.

"You're going to New York?"

"Right-o, Mac," she added—and then with a half-laugh at herself, clearing her "grammar": "My first visit, that is."

"Wonderful. Going to stay long?"

"For the winter. I mean, for the season." She added, with dignity.

He raised his brows. They were straight and rather heavy. She expected: "I'm going to make my debut."—and—seeing him unimpressed—"my sophisticated friend Peter Van Courtne on Park Avenue—Mrs. Wynne Huntington—they're in the Social Register, you know. Perhaps you've heard of them?"

Again that quizzical smile. He thought how naive she was! The girl looked a queer cut party in her purple velvet "travelling gown"—the father a rugged Westerner, a bit gruesome—the mother, reminded of him of a film he had seen, with Will Rogers in the father's part—so called! Funny Had to See Paris!

As though there was telepathy between them, the girl said suddenly, almost challengingly: "We struck oil on our place in Texas."

"Good. And now you're going to take the big city by storm."

"Why do you laugh at me? What do you think's so funny about me?" She had forgotten her rule of proud detachment, and spoke. He a hurt little girl.

He said quickly: "I didn't mean to hurt you. Fact is, I've been out in the wilds for quite a spell, with just a gang of men: no women anywhere. I guess circumstances I must be excused for forgetting the social amenities a bit—" again his eyes twinkled.

"What were you doing out there? Oil, too?" She was ascertaining how to take him.

"No. I'm an engineer, Construction, you know, Bridges and dams and that sort of thing.

She saw then that the tweed suit looked worn, and the blue shirt that brought out so marvellously the colour of his eyes—they were a whole lot darker, though—was frayed round the edges of the collar and cuffs.

"I don't look very Park Avenue-ish, do I?" he grinned, his gaze following hers. "The laundry up there was a hill-or-nine miles from my shabbiness."

Vernon cleared her throat. She was embarrassed. She said, to make things up with him, and because she instinctively liked him, and did want to know: "Tell me about yourself—your work. And are you coming to New York, too?"

He nodded. "But not for any longer than I can help."

Her eyes widened. "You mean you don't like it?"—horrocklingly.

"That's so. I can't abide cities for long. The noise, the rush, the people, the camouflage...." He sighed. "Don't you like it either?"

"I loathe 'em, that enough or 'em in my day. My one idea's to dodge 'em."

"Good gracious! How extraordinary! And you're quite young!" Her eyes searched his face. She thought: He can't be more than a good-looker as he is want to live like a hermit!"

"I'm twenty-five. Sorry" I can't change my appearance. That is the way I guess."

"You're—that's the world—arrogant! Twenty-five is only a boy!"

He laughed outright. He had a hearty, natural laugh. Against her wish, it only served to add to his attraction.

"And you're not so ancient yourself. Come on, let's introduce ourselves. My name's Terry Shannon—called the Irish ancestry—SHANTY IRISH! Might I beg for your calling-card, young woman?"

"Haven't got any," she said. He thought: "God! she's quite pretty when she smiles! I'll make her smile again." She added: "I come from Paloosh, Texas, and my name's Vernon Tyson."

CHAPTER II.

"Go on. Tell me the story of your young life. I'm itching to hear it."

"That's not a very pretty simile!" she smiled again. "Where shall I start? Before we struck oil on our property, my father raised hogs."

"Ah! Richer still!"

She giggled.

"That's all."

"Impossible! Where did mlady go to school? Or, like Topsy, did she just 'grow'?"

Only for this fraction of a second did Vernon hesitate: we she mixed the formula by which she had primed her with for the debutante battle of New York and Hollywood. "I'm ashamed to be educated in a convent. I've just graduated."

And now Cinderella's going to do some high stepping, and grab off a Fairy Prince for herself?"

"Don't be so silly. You men are so conceited. First thing in New York"—her eyes sparkled—"I'm going to get cooties and codies of them all! Then I'll go to the first night at the theatre—they're just starting now—and the opera in October—and visit all the big movie palaces and the art galleries—and learn all about everything and meet all the interesting people that New York has to offer. Then when—where—stores and actors and poets and dancers—oh, the people who DO THINGS!"

He looked gently, kindly at her, his eyes twinkling. "Is that all you're going to do?"

"Why not? Isn't it right to want to experience as much as I can, curious? To learn things?"

She flushed guiltily when he asked: "Don't you want to meet a few convent?"—for the convent was a long, dreary recollection of her mother's—nothing more.

He went on: "Your ambitions are laudable, I'm sure, but I'm afraid Avenue atmosphere—pardon, please, Miss Vernon Tyson—may be what might be called intellectual growth for a young girl. I'm far from being a prude, but I'm well known—but I confess even I, the hardened sinner that I am, was a bit stunned by the incessant round of speakeasies and cocktail-parties. Of course, that's only Society—the picture in the raw but it is just as easy to get absorbed in one's self in one's health, to study it in, shall I say, my construction gang in the wilds of Colorado, or a good old Paloosh?"

"Sorry to disappoint you, but we've already engaged a splendid-looking young architect in a modern Tower of Babel.... the Hotel Splendide on Park Avenue!"

At this moment, to Vernon's dismay, a stout, short figure in a tightly-fitting purple velvet gown with short ermine cape and brown cotton gloves appeared fratefy before them. "So THERE is where you got to when Pa and I were having forty winks! Come right back to your own folks, young lady!"

"Why, mother, we were just having a talk about—about New York—this is Mr. Shannon, mother—"

"Huh!" Mrs. Tyson gave her heavy topee composed of purple velvet and clusters of violets a backward push, off her moist forehead. She nodded at Terry Shannon abruptly, disapprovingly, at the somewhat shabbily attired youth. "Mr. Shannon, you'll excuse my Vernon's pa has a headache—she's got to come right back to the drawing-room and rub his head with camphor ice. I'd do it myself but I confess I'm a bit sick to my stomach on them trains—these trains—I mean, I'm a bad sailor without my—without the parsley she had the embarrassed Vernon off.

"Maggie Tyson. I'm surprised at you! After all your Pa and I have done for you, and bringing you to New York and everything to make your debut, are you all common on the train with a pick-up and all?"

"Huh, mother, he'll hear you!" I have been a lady about—about New York—this is Mr. Shannon, mother—"

"Huh!" Mrs. Tyson gave her heavy topee composed of purple velvet and clusters of violets a backward push, off her moist forehead. She nodded at Terry Shannon abruptly, disapprovingly, at the somewhat shabbily attired youth. "That cheap-looking skate! I have been he does heal! Serve him right!"

"He's a gentleman, mother." Indignantly. Vernon tried to free herself from the clutching hand encased in brown cotton.

"He ain't. I mean, he isn't. Oh, I saw him casting sheepy eyes at you in the lunch wagon. Like as not, he found out from the conductor who we were, and your Pa's fortune, and all!"

She harangued Vernon from the aisle all the way to their seats in parterre.

"Vernon, mirth disappointed, assumed a bored, blank expression, but she felt little. Just when things were promising to be interesting, how maddening to have this happen!

"I'm going out for a breath of air. This place reeks of stale food!" she announced rather disagreeably farmedately after dinner.

"Leave the door open and don't stir from the corridor!" her mother admired her.

"Lawks, Sadie, what's eating you?" asked the surprised Jake Tyson. "Can't a sensible young woman of seventy move an inch anywhere without you nosin' her in?"

"She's not twenty! Her official age is eighteen...She's making her debut, and she's got to be the right age like those no-boo-hoo-lines! You remember that, Jake Tyson!"

"I'm remembering."

Scenes of Havoc Meet Eye As Reporter Peers Into Homes

Story Can Be Told of Hardships of Victims

A scene of wreckage and desolation still meets the eye as flood waters begin to recede from the Moira River for the past week. Wednesday again raised to alarming heights, but the flood water in the low lying areas west of the city scurrying with possessions belonging to upper floors of their homes.

Swiftly opened chasms, grooves wide and deep by the warmer rain earlier in the week were held responsible for the final recession of water and a relief for firemen, pumpers, hopeful again of confining themselves after a few hours nightly sleep down. Where the chasms were opened in the ice of the bay they were being filled in to go past through under the ice, bridging a gap in the heaped piles and a lowering of the levels. But the results are not complete on Wednesday night again, the second shift from the Northern section of the river reported a return of former flooded conditions.

Take Stock of Damage

Along the river above the lower bridges residents were checking up their stock of the damage wrought and hoped preparations were complete for the homes once more liveable. The return of the swirling waters which again overflowed the river's banks made the impossible. Damage will be "pretty heavy" in the area of Station and Victoria streets, Front Street to Mary Street on the west side of the city. On this western portion of the lower part of the city acres of water still covered the ground. From Coleman Street to Mary, But the vast and deep lake of the last week was still visible. Ice loses ice cakes to the deep ground, grounding as the water level bridge culvert Wednesday had become a shallow one easily negotiable for the most part with knee length rubber boots. A few boats, however, were still in use in some of the marooned residents to get to and fro from their partly isolated homes. Ice cakes were being dropped from their upstairs verandahs, as that as Coleman Street today and the flood ravaged lower homes were still engaged in cleaning out of slush and silt that had been carried in by the receding of the first "above" on Thursday. Grocery stores along West Bridge Street and other business places again figuratively hung out the "open for business" signs after cleaned their wrecked establishments, set up the counters and prepared to stock anew. In many cases completed stocks had been removed from the shelves and counters and sent swirling down with the dirty water. Through open doors along the flood area bedding and small articles were hung out to dry as best as possible.

Bush in Dry Clothing

"You don't know what a relief it will be for us to get back into dry clothing," commented one James Street resident whose lower rooms have been inundated for the past many days. During that time the many absentees from the city could not permit a complete drying out of clothing or effects.

"My wife and I haven't had a moment's peace since the first news of the flood. We've been living in the damp house in wet clothing during that time, and during what little we managed to get, and consequently caught a severe cold. But it wasn't that which bothered us most. It was the deadly feeling that we'd another flood and the whole house would be swept away. We knew we couldn't be able to do anything in a case like that, but we didn't want to just go off and leave it."

Homes Ill. Hives

It was in this area of James Street that some of the most severe damages have been reported. Verandahs have been battered and ruined. Basements had their lower rooms completely submerged and floors, doors and other parts of homes have been ruined. Accumulated debris, parts of boats, wrecking lumber, bits of boats, trees, packing cases, all have been carried for a mile or more to pile up along the back and front doors of these residents. In one case by peculiar coincidence, two huge fallen trees have carried against the front and back doors of one home simultaneously, blocking the residents in. With the abatement of the flood, a neighbor, hearing that they were trapped in, chip most of the ice away with an axe.

The Losses

Damage along the ground-cut and other streets in the lower part of the city is not so heavy. Not only because less was deposited, but above the bridge the whole section of land have been carried away in the rear. Bell Sliff Company plant was one of the heaviest losers. Other homes directly above showed gaping wounds, costly to repair. Along the business section, few of trade and those filled cellars and soaked stock will run into thousands of dollars loss.

Many will have to make any reimbursement on our exact loss, but the damage will run into the thousands, in spite of the precautionary measures we took," said an executive.

"No one can place within a couple hundred dollars what it has cost Belleville," declared Mayor Harry Hill emphatically.

Costly Equipment

Costly equipment, electric motors, refrigerating systems in the cellars of many of the larger business places were ruined when ice tore through doors and ripped them loose from their moorings, or completely submerging them for days. Heating systems and furnaces will necessitate heavy repairs before being able to function properly. Many sensitive efforts have been made to keep the seeping water under control by the use of electric pumps, but the job has been accomplished only in part in most cases.

Carried majestically along with the sweep of the flood waters down the old footbridge yesterday had reached a point just below the Victoria Street bridge, so touted reliable rail, took over the task of damaging the ancient landmark of the wood. Floating telephone poles, trees and other heavy drift wood on the same under the observation and the efforts of the salvaging crew from the bridge, failed to check them from the shifting ice.

At about 3 o'clock the pylons on Wednesday afternoon a second little shove occurred, and soon the ice on ice scurrying for safety.

Town Marked

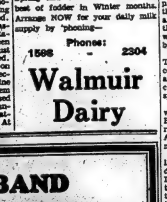
Listed among the damage done by the floating cakes are the maple trees on the boulevard in front of the city hall, and in some cases bent to the ground.

Many were the methods employed by some of the residents of the lower Victoria Street section as the west side to get to and fro from their homes. In one instance a ladder was slung from an upper window was the method of communication with the ground. To save labor, a boat owner living on the flats rigged up a pole on the main water system using baskets and clothes line to get food and other articles into the house. A dog peered glooooolately from one window, whining wistfully to be on the ground again.

First break up of the shallow bay ice on the west side near the marsh, where millions of gallons of water have accumulated and over it from the culvert under the car bridge was released today. Open patches of water could be seen at various locations. This will greatly assist in the lifting of the over supply still on the streets.

At Gas Stations

Gas station employees were taking first steps today to resume their business at their stands which necessitated filling stations for gasoline rather than for land travelling cars. Repairs here, too, are needed. Ice and water have damaged filling pits and other parts of the station. Light standards have been broken and bent. Tanks must necessarily be cleaned and dried.



In one instance at a station on Lower Front Street it became necessary to pump out the cellar and refill with water to hold them down. Such parts of the station that the washing water would undermine them and bring them floating to the surface when empty. At one place it was business as usual for customers when proprietor's attendants clumped around the pumps in high rubber boots through out of water.

Under Walks and Roads

What trouble has been caused by the water washing earth from under walks and roads has not yet been counted by City Engineer Chas. Mott. It is believed that large cave outs have occurred at some locations where water was seen spouting high from cracks and holes in the concrete walks at high flood tide. Foundations of some homes will also be hard by washing away of retaining earth walls.

The fact that the structure or earth through most of the lower section of the city is of limestone has probably saved the city from serious cave-ins of roads which have been known in such as reported in Wilkes Barre where whole trucks and cars have been merged in the gaping wash outs.

ICE JAM BETWEEN OLD POWER PLANT AND PURDY'S MILL

Plenty of Ice Not Broken up in Upper Reaches of River

WIDE AREA FLOODED

Roads in And About Tweed in Bad Condition Due to Rain

Tweed, March 20 (Special)—An ice-jam has formed in the Moira River between the old power plant and Purdy's Mill, held in place by a stretch of three or four hundred yards of still unbroken ice just above the bridge on No. 37 Highway. The water rose on Monday till the river, which is normally about fifty yards wide, became about twice the width, and over the road which run parallel to the river on both sides. The water in some places on the roads reached a depth of nearly two feet, Gardens and yards were flooded and in a few cases cellars were almost completely filled. The Victoria Street section of the C.N.R. crossing were practically submerged as the flood was also under a considerable depth of water. Some houses were completely surrounded by water and one or two cautious householders moved their goods to the upper floors as a precautionary measure.

Jam Moved Down

On Wednesday the jam had moved down about a hundred yards closer to the bridge and the water subsided somewhat. It is not expected that any more consequences will ensue from the pile-up of ice unless another huge jam located at the mouth of the river, should be released and aggravate the situation. It is anticipated that should it come down it will complete the break-up and force the ice over the dam. In the meantime residents on both sides of the river are keeping a close watch.

Heavy Snow Storm

St. Patrick's Day brought the most disagreeable weather of the season, 8½ of seven inches of snow during the night and early morning was followed by an all day rain, which resulted in walking and driving conditions which began decidedly poor. The local grocers and shoe store did a "land office" business in rubber boots. Early those more fortunate were those who were assured of dry feet, Tweed-Belleville road, according to Mr. H. Emerson, driver of the stage, never had been worse in all his years of experience.

Y. P. U. Meets

The Young People's Union of the United Church held an interesting meeting on Monday evening with a large attendance of over fifty young people—the entertainment was arranged by Miss Marion Gordon, B.A., president of the Society, assisted by Mr. Frank Stoyer. Several entertaining contests were arranged suitable for a St. Patrick evening and everyone entered into the whole-hearted enjoyment of these games. A feature of the evening's entertainment was a spelling match, the contestants being required to spell Biblical names. Rev. R. R. Nicholson had charge of this section and a great deal of amusement was caused by the efforts of the contestants to spell some of these difficult proper names. Participant, the only school-teacher present, completely puzzled by the multiplicity of k's in Habakkuk and failed ignominiously, much to the enjoyment of the others. Lunch was served by a committee assisted by Mrs. W. S. Gordon.

The road between Sulpside and Tweed has been under water at certain points for the past few days and motorists have had some difficulty in negotiating the deeper spots.

Mrs. M. G. Dales, who has been visiting relatives in Fergus and Belwood for the past three weeks returned home on Thursday. Mrs. A. Johnston returned with her to make an extended visit.

Tweed and Sulpside were without light and power all day Wednesday due to a break in the line near Ivanhoe, which occurred at some time during the night. Linemen of the O.H.E.P.Co. had some difficulty in locating the break owing to the flooded condition of the section through which the power line runs. Considerable trouble was experienced in making repairs, after locating the break and several planks in town deposited on power were forced practically to suspend operations for the day. Central Bakery, Tweed News Office, Gordon Steel Works and Tweed Foundry were particularly affected by the suspension in service.

Banquet Held

A most enjoyable St. Patrick's supper was served on Tuesday, March 17th, by Orrell's of the Women's Association of the United Church. The tables were appropriately decorated for the occasion. The tastefully conducted Church of young actors have an suitable reputation for the excellence of their plays and excelled themselves in this instance. They were capably directed by Mr. Theo. Calnan, B.A., of the staff of Tweed High School and no small share of credit for the success of the play is due to his suggestions and criticism.

GERMANY PROTESTS RHINELAND SOLUTION

New Buffer Zone Plan Makes Germans Wince, Called Blow to Hitler

HITLER'S REACTION

German Press Calls Decisions "Blow Below Belt"

(By Merrick R. Whitcombe, Copyright 1936, By The Associated Press)

Berlin, March 21.—Germany raised a bitter protest today against the decisions of the other Locarno nations to settle the Rhineland crisis, the spur-power proposals falling into Adolf Hitler's camp with a completely misconstrued third Reich.

Foreign Office officials winced under every one of the proposals heard at a late session of the cabinet in Germany, submission of the Reich's arguments against the Franco-Soviet pact to the world court and calling of an international peace conference.

"Step Under Belt"

The press charged Der Fuehrer had been dealt "a blow below the belt" declaring that Great Britain's assurances of support to France and Belgium in case Germany declined to accept the four-power plan carried far-reaching consequences.

"Germany is ready to withdraw into the seclusion where she has long been content to be," Hitler himself asserted in a speech last night at Munich.

First impressions indicated, however, he would attempt to negotiate about some of the sharpest points, rather than reject the whole program out right and face the consequences of isolation or the possible sanctions threatened by Britain and Italy.

Newspapers declared there was room for debate in the proposals for a non-armed Germany to send its representatives to the council table to hold the sixths of its protests to bring consideration of Der Fuehrer's grievances and for a new security system.

German Suggestions

(By Charles P. Stuller)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, March 21.—(AP)—The German delegation announced yesterday Von Ribbentrop would fly to Berlin today and League of Nations observers would leave Geneva bearing back suggestions for modifications of the four-power plan for a Rhineland settlement.

Chancellor Hitler's acceptance of the plan probably will return to London Monday, German sources said, after week-end conferences with Der Fuehrer amid intense behind-the-scene diplomatic manoeuvres.

Body Recalled

The League Council was adjourned over the week-end, while the other powers awaited Ambassador Ribbentrop to the German capital drawn up by diplomats at Paris, France, Belgium, Britain and Italy for liquidation of the crisis created by Germany's military occupation.

The invocation by Britain, France, Belgium and Italy of Article XV of the League Covenant against any threat of war, with its implied sanctions, sent reactions if Germany rejected the Locarno pact—pertinent being League representatives.

Interlocutional Period

Several Council delegates expressed fear Germany could not accept the proposed treaty without a new buffer zone in Germany under pattern of an international force, and since the once-demilitarized Rhineland pending negotiation of a new treaty or examination of the dispute over the Franco-Soviet pact to the world court.

British officials insisted, however, while their government hoped the Reich would accept the program, it was subject to mutually acceptable changes and Germany would be given time—presumably until after the March 29 Reichstag election—to consider it.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who explained the program yesterday to his House of Commons colleagues and the League Council, conceded it was necessary to envisage a possible failure of the negotiations.

He called attention, however, to the mutual support already provided against that eventuality, by which Britain, France, Belgium and Italy would join in an attack

Two Weeks To Clear Up Ice on Streets

Weather conditions permitting, a total of about thirty men will again be placed on the streets on the job of breaking up the remainder of the heavy ice cakes on the streets which are badly affected.

"We'll be chopping ice for two years yet," somberly stated officials of the public works department, meaning the huge blocks that still remain.

Probe Transmission Of Racing News

Washington, March 21 (AP)—The communications commission called upon the United States Justice Department to investigate activities of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in providing wire facilities for the transmission of racing news.

Commissioner Paul A. Walker said he had communicated with an assistant to J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Bureau of Investigation.

Samuel Becker, special counsel for the commission, charged most of the subscribers to racing news services were "gamblers" or "pool room operators."

He introduced correspondence between A. T. & T. officials which he said showed the company had in one case "taken a firm understanding" with Massachusetts State police for the inspection of telegraph writer equipment seized in raids on gambling houses.

MILLER SCORNS BANDITS' SHOT

Brantford, Ont., March 21—(CP)—Fleeing from a grist mill owned by Earl Baird at St. George, nine miles northwest of here, two bandits fired three shots at William Hillyard, miller, as he gave chase.

None of the shots struck Hillyard who finally caught up to the bandits and fought with them before one struck him over the head with the butt of a gun. He was rendered unconscious and they made their getaway.

Dilworth had surprised them as they were waiting in a dark part of the office of the mill. They had the safe open when Hillyard left. It is the amount of money in the safe was small, police said.

CANADIAN GOV'T TO PROTEST BILL

Act in U.S. Would Deny Right of Distillers to Ship

Washington, March 21 (AP)—The Canadian government has made representation to the United States against a bill pending in the Congress which would deny entry of Canadian distilled spirits into the United States during prohibition.

In making this known today, Wm. Phillips, acting Secretary of State, said the bill would violate the agreement he had given careful attention. The matter, he added, has been discussed with the treasury. Under the proposed legislation, reciprocal trade agreement between the United States and Canada, the duty on liquor entering the U.S. Dominion was reduced 50 per cent. to $2.50 a gallon.

As a result of investigations made by the tax unit of the treasury, the bill would be introduced at the request of the Canadian government to have made large claims for refunds of taxes collected on Canadian liquor firms and corporations and individuals in the United States during prohibition.

So far, it was understood, this government has not been able to obtain no action on the claims.

The bill recently was passed by the House and now is before the Senate finance committee. Officials of the treasury to ban sales in the United States of liquor exported to Canada from firms until they agreed to submit to United States court jurisdiction in such cases.

Canadian liquor interests were said to be particularly opposed to the passage of the legislation interwoven with large sales of Canadian liquor firms and corporations in the United States during prohibition.

Health Minister Faulkner who recently visited Great West in the legislature also attended.

We didn't ground them anywhere, Mr. Crib said.

Emergency Stations Filled With Refugees of Disaster

Flood crests in New England and Ohio poured death and destruction over new localities today with heavy and threats of snow adding to the misery of 260,000 persons in communities in 13 states, charged most disaster.

The death toll in 13 states rose to 168, Edimates of damage neared $200,000,000 mark and property losses a seven higher figure before the waters finally abated.

Water Still Rising

The surging waters of the Connecticut and Ohio rivers created the greatest menace to life and property.

The former, already at a record high of 37.1 feet, pushed into additional sections of Hartford, Conn., paralyzing industry and public utilities and almost threatened the great insurance center.

The Ohio, which apparently spent a sizable portion of its fury at Pittsburgh, claimed a new record high water and flood shortages and threatened.

The central part of New York State also began a readjustment, the Red Cross health agencies distributing typhoid serum, food and clothing. Public health officials in Washington were sent into all flood areas to direct precautions against epidemics.

President Roosevelt once more declared he intended to continue in personal charge of relief activities.

Death Toll Rises

A survey showed the following death toll: 74, New England States; Pennsylvania, 113; West Virginia, 18; Massachusetts, 8; Maine, 5; Vermont, 5; Maryland, 4; Virginia, 4; Connecticut, 3; New York, 3; North Carolina, 2; Georgia, 2; New Hampshire, 1; Ohio 1.

Heavy financial added to the perils at Hartford, where the Connecticut river raged unabated at 1 a. m. C. S. T. The city was nearly isolated and many districts under the flood water.

Electric Service failed entirely last night, leaving only a scarcely small number of telephone lines were in operation.

Many families evacuated their homes, and more than 2,000 persons received food and shelter in school houses or the old State Armory. Several fifty persons were

Flood Victims Forced to Leave by Attic Windows

Residents of Kingston, Pa., just across the Susquehanna river from Wilkes-Barre, marooned in the upper floors of their homes, started on roof-tops and waited patiently for the flood waters to subside before starting their work of reconstruction. The extensive damage to private homes in this area, wrought by two devastating floods in less than a week, may not be determined until the waters withdraw. Washington estimates total flood damage at $300,000,000.

Citizens Urged to Obtain Free Chloride of Lime To Cleanse Properties

Anxious as to the sanitary conditions in the city after the flood, Mayor Harry Hill spent Friday in Toronto and had interviews with the Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Minister of Health, and the Hon. D. Croll, Minister of Public Welfare, regarding the situation here. The result was that the Ministers arranged for Mr. E. W. Johnstone, B.Sc., to accompany Mayor Hill to Belleville, and this Saturday morning in company with the Mayor and Dr. Cronk, M.O.H., he has been making an inspection of the district which was flooded.

It is absolutely necessary that every precaution be taken to ensure that the conditions in all buildings are sanitary and as a precaution, Mayor Hill has arranged for a large shipment of chloride of lime to be shipped to the city and it will be available for free distribution at the city hall early Monday morning.

The preservation of the health of all citizens is a matter of grave concern to the authorities and citizens are URGED to do their part towards this end by taking advantage of this arrangement and obtain a quantity of chloride of lime and use it liberally in their cellars and other parts of their premises where required.

Water Reaches Eaves Of Lincoln N.B. Houses

Appalling Property Loss and Heavy Death Toll in Maritimes

WATERS RECEDING

Angry rivers and streams were returning to levels approaching normal today throughout New Brunswick and Quebec but they left an appalling loss of property and possibly a severe death list as they receded to their outlets.

Great question mark in eastern Canada was the situation in Marysville Fredericton on the Nashwaak River, Grand Falls and Edmundston in Madawaska County, 20 miles from Fredericton on the St. John River, Campbellton on the Restigouche and Chaleur Bay.

Reports had been received since Thursday from the population of 400 but from Lincoln, 15 miles away, waters with field glasses could see water to the eaves of several houses. They could report no sign of life.

Elsewhere three deaths were recorded to add to the eleven lives lost in Quebec last week when ice jams caused disastrous floods in eastern townships in Charlevoix County.

Disastrous Fires.

Latest death was Henri Desjardins. The Gaillenot Power Company lineman was drowned in the North River between Ste. Adele and Ste. Marguerite in the Laurentians Mountains of Quebec when rowing with W. Johnston to make repairs to broken wires.

Their rowboat overturned in the swirling stream. Johnston managed to swim to shore but Desjardins disappeared and his body was not recovered.

A girl was drowned at Canterbury, N.B., and a boy at Verona, Que. Fears were expressed for safety of Sandy Bath boy left Malbaie, Que., on a hunting trip fifteen days ago. It is believed he may have been caught in the break-up of a stream and drowned.

$2,000,000 Loss.

New Brunswick counted its mortal damage at close to the $2,000,000 mark while the Quebec minister of roads said the situation in his province was "the most serious in the past twenty years." It was too early to make an estimate but Hon. P. E. Cote added they "are, unfortunately, considerable."

Recall the loss of the $1,500,000 Canadian National Railways bridge near Fredericton, other damage in New Brunswick included the washing away of a $15,000 dam at Centreville on the Presque Isle River; loss of 500,000 logs on the Magaguadavic River; 40,000 cords of pulpwood to dynamite an ice jam near St. George and; public utility and manufacturing building at Woodstock on the St. John River.

Eastern Townships.

The eastern townships of Quebec counted their damage in the house ands of dollars as the peak of the floods passed and conditions gradually righted themselves. Richmond, Windsor Mills, Sherbrooke and many other centres saw water draining away from streets and basements, leaving scarcely a trace of its stores.

Some 500 families were temporarily homeless in the two provinces but most of the affected homes in Fredericton said, would be habitable after damage caused by water and silt had been cleaned away.

In the Quebec City area early estimates of damage ran into several hundred thousands of dollars but the streams were rapidly approaching normal seasonal conditions. Malbaie and Baie St. Paul counted their losses at $125,000 and $100,000 respectively.

FALSE REPORT BRIDGE FALLEN

Pittsburgh Thrown Into Panic by Story Issued By Police

Pittsburgh, March 21 (AP)—A false police report that the crowded Seventh Street bridge had collapsed, threw Pittsburgh into a short panic yesterday. Associated Press reporters who reached the bridge found it safe, with traffic moving over it.

The story said that automobiles, street cars and pedestrians were plunged into surging waters according to Dorsey's report.

The police switchboard was reported to have buckled and fallen.

Fire, ambulance, police and ambulance in the city had rushed to the span, after Police Superintendent Dorsey's office had released a report the bridge had fallen into surging flood waters with five lanes of traffic.

BRITISH PRESS VIEWS VARIED ON RHINE ISSUE

Morning Post Sees Resemblance to Old Alliances.

EXPRESS IS BITTER

Speaks of British Gov't. "Lunacy" in Being Italy's Partner

London, Mar. 21 (CP)—Opposition to the new Locarno plan is developing. For the moment even are cautiously turned toward Berlin. What will Chancellor Hitler say? The forecasts vary from flat rejection to qualified acceptance.

It is the British view of conciliation falls—the new guarantee in the letter which Great Britain is to address to France and Belgium—that is troubling the man in the street. The letter was a much discussed document than was generally expected.

Defensive Alliance.

"The Locarno Treaty", says the Morning Post, "becomes in the essence of Germany a remarkable resemblance to the old-fashioned defensive alliance and will remain so until Germany shall return and the treaty is construed as taking such precautions as are appropriate under the new circumstances. It is unadventured to predict, is what has come out of this crisis and it is possibly as well, since it brings us up against the realities of the situation."

Italy As Peace Partner

Editorially, The Express says: "The limits of our Government lunacy can scarcely be plumbed. When Germany tears up a solemn plate our proposals and we make our new commitments to France and Belgium, who do you suppose are going to help us? Not Italy, not the north, Italy, Italy and Britain are to send troops to reoccupy the new Rhineland zone . . . the power that the British Government must to help them to punish the offender is Italy, the avowed defaulter number one.

"Paris and Brussels may well be satisfied with this day's work. But what will Germany say? Herr Hitler in offering to rush to the aid of France and Belgium. For we get no guarantees of any kind in return."

STORM DELAYS ROAD CLEARING

Roads From Grimsby To Port Colborne Are Impassable

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 21.—(CP)—Heavy snow fell in the Niagara Peninsula district today and efforts to clear Tuesday's record fall were clogged highways and city streets.

Roads in the 40-mile stretch from Grimsby to Port Colborne were practically impassable. Gangs of men working night and day have failed to make any great impression since the storm began Tuesday.

Snow in Port Colborne today was almost as heavy and water-laden as Tuesday's fall. Many of the mills here normally being made by teams and sleighs.

For the first time since Tuesday, Erie Coach Lines operated bus service from Port Colborne to Welland and Buffalo today and reported a heavy passenger traffic. The line cleared on No. 3 and the Welland-Port Colborne highway.

Port Colborne grocers whose stocks were running low received their first shipments since Tuesday yesterday by transport.

Two bus lines were had fallen at Port Erie at nine o'clock. Railways had a large gangs at work on the work of clearing switches near the International Bridge in order that freight shipments might not be delayed.

Police court at Port Erie was adjourned for the third time yesterday when Magistrate John B. Hopkins of Niagara Falls was unable to get through to Port Erie.

MEISNER IS FREE BUT PENNILESS SERVES A YEAR

Jury Deliberates Over Seven Hours Before Giving Verdict

DECISION REVERSED

At First Trial Was Given Fifteen Years For Kidnapping

London, Ont., Mar. 21 (CP)—Penniless, ready to start his life anew and happier than I've ever been in my life", David Meisner, Ontario-born Kentucky gambler, went to a London hotel early today on borrowed money—free for the first time in 18 months.

"I haven't got a cent in the world," he said soberly, a few minutes after Judge Hyndman had directed the verdict of a Middlesex County jury acquitting Meisner of the armed robbery and kidnapping of John S. Labatt.

Fifteen months ago Meisner was arrested for the sensational crime of August, 1934, and a year ago this month another jury deliberated only one hour and forty minutes before finding him guilty of kidnapping. He was sentenced to serve fifteen years in Kingston penitentiary.

A few minutes before midnight last night the jury foreman spoke these words across the courtroom:

"We have agreed unanimously that the prisoner is not guilty. They had been out more than seven hours.

Meisner grinned, but did not smile as men and women cheered and applauded in an unprecedented ovation. Officials and spectators alike had witnessed a similar demonstration in a Kingston courtroom.

"Serious Affair" Says Judge.

Mr. Justice Hyndman's statement and a declaration that "this is a serious affair," Mr. Justice A. C. Hyndman told the jury: "You are free: I discharge you."

Then, for the third time, Meisner smiled as he was surrounded by a group of more than 100 that rushed forward to shake his hand. More than a score of women, some of them high school girls, were among those who swarmed around him and were greeted by an excited figure.

It was 15 minutes—after midnight before the Kentuckyan was able to leave the courthouse with his counsel, Charles W. Bell, K.C., and Edward R. Cluff.

"You boys can't imagine how I feel," he told them. "I'm going to have a few cigarettes and a cup of coffee. I believe it is going to be a swell day."

He had shaken hands with most of those who were responsible for bringing him his freedom—Crown Attorney Ted Weeks of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who headed the search for the kidnapper, Thomas Cousans of the London branch of the criminal investigation Police and Court and Jail attaches. Labatt's acknowledgement.

Never unfaltering, Meisner bookmaker was emphatic in his statements that he was innocent of the conduct of Labatt, the kidnap victim. "We've been through the addition of a true gentleman, was big enough to face his error squarely and admit it.

At Meisner's first trial Labatt identified Meisner unhesitatingly as the prisoner as one of the men who held him up in a highway east of here in August, 1934, and later picked him for three days in a lonely hideout in the Kingston district.

But when Michael McCardell was brought back from the penitentiary to Meisner's conviction, Labatt was convinced that McCardell told the truth when he said Meisner was innocent, Labatt's guess—and that Meisner had nothing to do with the kidnap plot.

Fair Manner Imposed.

During the five-day second trial that closed last night, the wealthy London brewer stated his conviction from the witness stand. He had come to believe, he said, that Meisner was innocent. McCardell also believed that Meisner had no part in the kidnapping.

Release of Meisner leaves Ontario with only one prisoner in jail charged up in the famous abduction case. Albert Ferguson, believed to be holding near Nashville, Tenn., is the fourth and last kidnapper, police believe.

McCardell is serving 13 years in Kingston penitentiary for the crime. Knowles and John Bannon are serving 18 years each in Kingston for it. McCardell's confession, Pegram is the only other member of the gang.

ROYAL EMPIRE SOCIETY SUMMER PROGRAM

Col. W. R. Fenton has received copy of the summer program of the Royal Empire Society during the spring and summer months. Owing to the death of his late Majesty King George and the fact that next year will be coronation year there will be certain alterations in some of the attractions in this year's program. CITY SWEEPER ENTERS 9TH YEAR

For the ninth consecutive year the city sweeper on Monday will again be put into service on the work of clearing the streets of the winter's debris. This will be made harder this year owing to the deposits of mud, gravel, sand and silt left by the flood. The machine has been completely overhauled and repaired.

WALK AND ROAD DAMAGE LIGHT

Not until the last of the snow and ice has been removed from the streets will the full extent of the public works be able to ascertain by a complete investigation of roads—any wash-out of soil has occurred under either roads or sidewalks where attachment is classed of water flowed during the flood. So far as we know there may be a few here and there, but so far we don't believe the damage will be excessive," stated City Engineer Chas. Mott.

FAST RETURN TO NORMAL BUSINESS

Slightly Handicapped Today by Heavy Snow Storm

Following splendid progress towards the matter of re-establishing business, which has been at a standstill in Belleville for the period of ten days owing to flooded streets, workers today were further handicapped today's early morning snow storm. The matter of heaping, shifting boards and ice menace, that were left in the wake of the flood was being very wisely taken care of yesterday by various gangs of workmen on both sides of the river in the area that had been under water for a week or more.

At the lower end of Front Street, especially around gasoline stations, the matter of cleaning floors and their property many tons of sand and gravel, that had been washed out into Front St., presented a problem hard to solve. Scoops or tins of buckets or road dump scrappers the loose gravel was rapidly hauled into the low portions from which it had been previously washed away. The question of breaking up the large cakes of ice into convenient sizes for handling in with gasoline of the Cap. 191 Theatre and hence southward, in with similar men serving, though these large hulks were finally broken up and hauled away in trucks. The business places affected in the flood took on a more business-like appearance as the day progressed, but today's snow storm again proved a setback. Many are still busy cleaning the debris.

On the south side of the river cities, gangs were busy clearing the ice from the streets to permit traffic. While traffic on the Dundas and part of Murray Ward were faced with the problem of ridding their floors of mud, dirt and grit, some of which was left when the flood receded. The slimy dirt coupled with large cakes of ice, that were left in the houses presented an experience in the matter of returning to normal conditions. All the flood debris of pumpers were pressed into service. Many business places that believe the flooded cellars and give the citizens an opportunity of coming to their assistance. Yes, in the Belleville business section by the normal business centre once again.

NEW QUEENS HOTEL REOPENS FOR BUSINESS

The New Queens Hotel, operated by Mrs. Zila Ryan, daughter of the late Tom Powers, former proprietor, Gordon Theobald, youthful chef's feet under Mr. Mayhee sang at the Lenten lecture. Miss Gifford, Miss Ber. G. G. Wright in Christ Church Parish Hall, on Friday night.

KINGSTON TRUCK IS SIDESWIPED

A truck, owned and driven by John [illegible] Kingston electrical contractor, was struck by a motor car being driven by Mrs. Ethel Gifford Hanley, W. J. Odden, 256 Pinnacle St., on Highway No. 2, about one mile east of Brockville at 8:30 p.m. last night.

The accident is investigated by Provincial Patrolman Sam Erving, who found that apparently Mr. Odden was encroaching slightly to the left-hand side of the road and had struck Mr. Boyd's truck a glancing blow. Mr. Odden's car was travelling easterly at the time of the impact, while Mr. Odden was coming westerly towards Belleville. Considerable damage resulted to both vehicles, but no bodily injuries or running boards.

Special Deputies Guard Against Looting

With his badge of authority pinned to his jacket and a high-powered rifle "at the ready arm" in the crook of his elbow, one of the deputized as a guard, stands watch over flood-wrecked stores in the heart of the city to prevent looting.

CHECK-UP MADE OF FLOODED AREA

Water Consumption Rises in Belleville Since Flood Receded

A check-up of flood-affected families and their homes, commenced on Friday, was being continued today by investigators of the Central Relief Office, with a view toward providing extra necessities for those most greatly in need.

"Many of the families have been greatly affected by the flood, and to these the Flood Relief Fund will be especially welcome in helping them to refurnish," stated Alderman Laurie Lewis, chairman of the Relief Committee.

Many of the flood-affected homes are not yet tenable for the flood victims who have been provided other quarters by the city.

Shortage of Water

Hundreds of private hose being used to flush out sediment filled cellars and extra thousands of gallons of water used daily by the water works department to siphon out still filled basements in downtown business places has resulted in a city increase in consumption of water, now used in the city. At the present time pumps at the filtration plant are called upon to add an extra half million gallons of water to re-make up for the added demands.

More rapid, it is claimed, than the fastest pumps, the siphon used by the departments has emptied the majority of cellars, easily accessible in quick time. Larger business places, banks and other institutions whose furnaces and boilers have been out for the past eight or nine days report basements dry again and their rooms once more dry, where pipes stuck through convenient windows plainly evident during the past several days have now almost entirely disappeared.

February Coldest Since Year 1883

Kitchen stove "experts" were right. Even the weatherman admits the weather in February was the coldest on record in Alberta and Saskatchewan and the records began in 1883. Big meteorological statistics date back to 1873 in Manitoba and last year, but that year was by no means a second place to February of that year, when it was "slightly colder." The frigid spell that lasted from mid-January until well on in February was phenomenal. Records are gone into the records as the longest spell of bitterly cold weather.

The Dominion Meteorological office, in its February report on temperatures, remarks that throughout the spring February 1936, the weather of Canada was almost continuously dominated by a steady influx of polar air, while the moderate weather usually associated with air moving inward from the Pacific Ocean was largely missing, even in British Columbia."

WIND BRINGS DRIVING SNOW

Strong blowing winds driving thick wet snow through the city and district this morning offered little inducement for shoppers and citizens to leave their snug homes. On the hilly streets deep drifts of heavy, pedestrians and motorists a rebel call for rubber boots and heavy rubber coats during the first week of running water. Roads, secondary roads and village drives, are passable but only conducive to pleasure driving through the northern part of the county. No reports of any impassable sections had been reported, however.

A truck, owned and driven by John [illegible] Kingston electrical contractor, was struck by a motor car being driven by Mrs. Ethel Gifford Hanley, W. J. Odden, 256 Pinnacle St., on Highway No. 2, about one mile east of Brockville at 8:30 p.m. last night.

The accident is investigated by Provincial Patrolman Sam Erving, who found that apparently Mr. Odden was encroaching slightly to the left-hand side of the road and had struck Mr. Boyd's truck a glancing blow. Mr. Odden's car was travelling easterly at the time of the impact, while Mr. Odden was coming westerly towards Belleville. Considerable damage resulted to both vehicles, but no bodily injuries or running boards.

Ruts on Pavement are Attributable to Accident

Wet, icy ruts are attributed as being the cause for a motor accident, that happened on Pine Street at 8:00 p.m. last evening, when Lyle Weese, Carrying Place, was proceeding easterly along Pine St., when the wheels of his motor car became wedged in an icy rut just as he was about to pass another automobile, driven in the opposite direction by F. J. Baldwin, Front St. West. As Mr. Weese endeavored to steer his automobile out of the rut, the vehicle skidded and collided with Mr. Baldrey's motor car, resulting in body damage to both vehicles. The accident was investigated by P. C. Arnott and highway traffic reports eventually made out at the police station by both parties. No charges were deemed necessary, however.

Chief Ziad was absent from the police station today being confined to his home through illness. Reports from the police department are to the effect that the chief constable contracted his illness during the recent flood.

Police activities in this city continue to be at a low ebb, no major crime or arrests being noted locally. Only six transients applied at the sergeant's desk in quest of a warm night's lodging last night.

MAD SCRAMBLE FOR WET 'EGGS'

Boys, Chunky Man And Flies Race For Easter Sweets

Scenes of excited delight are being noted. One of the most amusing was seen on Thursday afternoon behind a big department store which was clearing out its basement sale after the rush had passed on. A large stock of chocolate Easter eggs, which had been made, thoroughly soaked by the water for more than a week, was carried out into the back yard, thrown to sugar and come out of the no-shows whenever any of the stuff is exposed—but the flies were by no means the only ones to get busy and men who flocked to the rear of the store in question, where the theater chocolates were being carried out as well as a lot of cheap, flabby eggs of various kinds of which the shell ends.

Small boys themselves attracted the large and a man and a man scramble for the money things at once began to pick up the eggs, cut out a large chocolate rooster and greedily devoured the flesh.

A big hulking chunk of a man seeing the scrapping kiddies grabbing chocolate away and hanging the best of the lot, the fight for which took a large size. He chewed and an expression of pleasure on his wide face, then suddenly turned to the chagrin, and he hastily got rid of the mouthful of gooey chocolate and the shell of the rooster beak at the boy.

The chocolate rooster was a window display piece and made of wax, covered with chocolate.

The boy yelled, "Yah, Yah, ye big bum, take another bit—that's all the ——!"

The treasure seekers worked hard and diligently and were not at all polite or gentle with one another, quickly clearing the yard of all the stuff removed from the basement, spoiled and useless.

Whether anyone got anything worth anything is a question. Evidently the treasure hunt was a crazy one with their arms loaded and sailing off to their homes, which would have been forgotten by a vision of Santa Claus.

SUDBURY FEARS SERIOUS FLOODING

Sudbury, Ont., March 21—(CP)—Unless a large number of sandbags are available to the city engineering department from the city reserve, the city of Sudbury may be threatened with flood conditions, it was said in the spring thaw is accumulating in the streets and the record snow and frost has choked up the storm drains with the result unless they are immediately opened certain low portions may suffer from flooded basements.

Flood, Fire—Now Pestilence

Added to the terrible toll of flood and fire in eastern United States, comes disease. Power lines are destroyed, sanitation impossible, drinking water impure in the flooded areas. To date more than 100 lives have been lost; but this figure is nothing every possible assistance to stricken areas; government aeroplanes are carrying in typhoid vaccine. Above scout drives Red Cross ambulance corps going about their work of rescue under extreme difficulties.

EXPLAIN PLAN OF LOCARNO POWERS

France Will Invoke Security Clauses Of Treaty

Paris, Mar. 20 (CP)—Backed by the unanimous approval of the cabinet, Foreign Minister Flandin prepared to go before the Chamber of Deputies today to explain the agreement concluded in London among the Locarno Powers for solution of the Rhineland crisis.

It was learned from authoritative sources France will demand Germany accept the plan or that French government will invoke the security clauses of the Locarno Treaty which provide for the mutual assistance of the signatories against a violator of the treaty.

This action, it was said, will be reinforced by a "new Locarno" agreement among Great Britain, France, Belgium and Italy.

Under the treaty which Germany denounced, Great Britain and Italy guarantee the territorial integrity of all three of the other signatories, France, Belgium and Germany. The new agreement would guarantee only the French and Belgian frontiers.

FIVE ARE KILLED STRUCK BY ENGINE

Girl in Car Dies Later From Injuries Received

Delhi, Ont., March 21 (CP)—Identification of two of five persons killed in a level crossing collision between an automobile and a Wabash passenger train yesterday afternoon remained unsolved today. Four were instantly killed and a girl died later.

Maurice Vandenbonde, thought to be the driver of the car, and Mary Verbeecke and his 17-year-old daughter, Georgina, were instantly dead. Police believed two others, identified at first as Mrs. Verbeecke and her daughter, Marietta, were Vandenbonde's wife and their 15-year-old daughter.

Police awaited the arrival of Mary Vandenbonde, sister of the dead man, from Tillsonburg. They hoped to obtain positive identification from her. Miss Vandenbonde was reported to have gone to Blenheim instead of to Delhi, as performed of the accident.

Raising of the automobile by the engine brought instant death to Verbeecke and the two unidentified persons. Vandenbonde died while being removed to hospital in the caboose and Georgie died in hospital at Simcoe late yesterday.

Inquest into the deaths will be held Thursday, Coroner W. Zumstein of Delhi announced.

Calm Disturbed In Orange Lodge Over Mixed Marriages

Prescott, March 21—(CP)—Calm which prevailed throughout most of the session of Grand Orange Lodge, Ontario East, was suddenly shattered when Rev. W. Cooper of Brockville proposed to amend the Orange oath so as to permit members of the order to marry Roman Catholics.

Several delegates protested against any move to let down the bars against inter-marriage with Roman Catholics.

Consensus of opinion seemed to be that legislation on the matter was shelved by referring it to the Grand Orange Lodge of British America. It is understood the same proposal was raised two years ago and was then referred to the provincial body. Nothing has since been done to effect this suggested change.

NEGLIGENCE CHARGE LAID

Woodstock, Ont., March 21—(CP)—Charges of criminal negligence against Oswald Weeks, Otiawa, as the result of the death of Mrs. Ada Wilson of Currie who died after being struck by a car on No. 2 Highway on March 7, 1935, was dismissed in County Police Court by Magistrate Hutchinson here today when the Crown failed to offer evidence.

A similar charge was preferred against Abraham Simon, Montreal, driver of a car in which Mrs. Wilson's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson of Currie who died after being struck by a car on No. 2 Highway on March 7, 1935, was dismissed in County Police Court by Magistrate Hutchinson here today when the Crown failed to offer evidence.

Thousands of residents fled before the onrushing waters and relief workers believed others would have to be removed before the peak was reached.

An unidentified man drowned at Pewamo, Ohio. Steel mills, pottery plants and coal mines in the path of flooded streams in other communities reported shortages of food and drinking water. As many persons as possible were inoculated against disease.

Pennsylvania

The river will plus a layer of sandbags around Pittsburgh, where a 55-foot flood peak was expected Sunday. Many of the industrial plants were closed to conserve power for pumping stations. Only a few hundred were permitted to go to their homes.

Danger of epidemic combined with shortages of food and water to bring new anxiety to many floodbesieged cities in the State. Relief forces were rushing to top speed to give aid to 80,000 homeless in the Ohio valley, apparently checking the worst of the flood. The situation in Pittsburgh and its suburbs showed considerable improvement with adequate food and medical supplies and the restoration of public utility service. Threats of a water famine decreased although engineers hoped to start a key pumping station today.

Thousands of workmen cleared away flood debris in the business district and some stores announced they would reopen soon.

Rehabilitation went forward at Johnstown, where 16 were dead and 1,000 were left homeless. Mayor Daniel Shields sought $10,000,000 from the thousands of dancers. Spectacular in its giant effects it was the first time that so many of the most thrilling scenes ever brought to the screen.

The glorious voices of the colossal ring out in such familiar tunes from the Herbert Stothart-Rudolph Friml score, "Rose Marie, I Love You" "The Indian Love Call", "Song of the Mounties" "Pardon Me, Pretty Baby," "Totem Pole" and many more.

A strong supporting cast includes James Stewart, Reginald Owen, Allan Jones, who scored so decisively in "A Night at the Opera", George Regas, Robert Greig, Una O'Connor and Leslie Litchfield. marooned in an apartment building.

The Connecticut River also created flood danger at Middletown where 1,000 were driven from their homes by two oil tanks caught in the flaming current. Two Hartford men watched last they break loose from their homes floating.

100,000 Homeless In New England

Elsewhere in New England flood danger was slowly giving way to grip although some rivers started threatening rises. Property loss had been counted in three days and 100,000 persons made homeless, the damage would exceed $100,000,000 in the six States.

Cities along the Merrimack River —notably Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill, Mass.—were flood bound, although engineers said the crest there apparently had been reached its peak. The river was still rising at Haverill, Lawrence was threatened by a new rise and Lowell fled, Mass.

Eastern Grand Union aided civil officials in preventing looting.

In Maine property losses were white or partially isolated. Rumford, under martial law after being inundated when gates controlling that food supplies were limited and there was no drinking water.

Ohio Valley

The crest of the murky Ohio River left Marietta behind to sweep through other communities. The force of the flood, however, was checked in most places by earlier preparation.

Proctorville, an Ohio village of 1,000, was isolated when the water covered its streets. Seven coast guard cutters at Huntington, W. Va., were ready to give quick aid if conditions became worse.

Thousands of residents fled before the onrushing waters and relief workers believed others would have to be removed before the peak was reached.

An unidentified man drowned at Pewamo, Ohio. Steel mills, pottery plants and coal mines in the path of flooded streams in other communities reported shortages of food and drinking water. As many persons as possible were inoculated against disease.

Pennsylvania

The river will plus a layer of sandbags around Pittsburgh, where a 55-foot flood peak was expected Sunday. Many of the industrial plants were closed to conserve power for pumping stations. Only a few hundred were permitted to go to their homes.

Danger of epidemic combined with shortages of food and water to bring new anxiety to many flood-besieged cities in the State. Relief forces were rushing to top speed to give aid to 80,000 homeless in the Ohio valley, apparently checking the worst of the flood. The situation in Pittsburgh and its suburbs showed considerable improvement with adequate food and medical supplies and the restoration of public utility service. Threats of a water famine decreased although engineers hoped to start a key pumping station today.

Thousands of workmen cleared away flood debris in the business district and some stores announced they would reopen soon.

Rehabilitation went forward at Johnstown, where 16 were dead and 1,000 were left homeless. Mayor Daniel Shields sought $10,000,000 from the thousands of dancers.

Spectacular in its giant effects it was the first time that so many of the most thrilling scenes ever brought to the screen.

The Belleville Hydro-Electric System

COMMISSIONERS
GEO. A. REID, Chairman
M. P. DUFF
OSWALD R. SCOTT, Secretary and Manager.
HARRY HILL, Mayor

March 19th, 1936.

TO THE ELECTRICAL USERS:

Your Commission submits herewith some facts in reference to the financial condition of your System as of December 31st, 1935. The year 1935 has been a most successful one and your co-operation in making increasing use of Hydro service has been an important factor in the satisfactory results obtained.

The year 1935 was the sixth year the system has been operated by your Commission. It was operated by the Ontario Commission for the first nine months having been purchased as of April 1st, 1929 so in considering the report please bear in mind that some figures deal with the fiscal year of 1935 while others deal with the period from the date of purchase.

The surplus for 1935 is $38,887.11 an increase of $8,820.08 over 1934.

The revenue increased $4,209.06. It was $187,674.53 in 1934 and $191,883.58 in 1935.

The cost of power dropped $4,087.13. It was $123,674.53 in in 1934 and $119,475.02 in 1935.

The above surplus and revenue increase was accomplished notwithstanding a reduction in rates was given on June 1st., 1935, and the power purchased cost less although 216.63 H. P. more was taken.

During the year the balance of the debenture debt of $22,000 was paid so your System is free from debt.

The liquid assets as of December 31st, 1935, are greater than the liabilities by $85,412.90.

The domestic consumers have received four rate reductions which has meant a considerable saving. The 1935 rate is 40% and up less than the 1929 rate depending on the use. As an example, a consumer using 200 kilowatt hours per month would be billed $4.98 at 1929 rates. Today the account would be $2.70.

The commercial consumers have received three rate reductions. The 1935 rate has meant a saving of 25% and up over 1929 rate. In the case of an average commercial user, he would have paid $30.68 under the 1929 rates whereas his bill under the present rates was $16.07.

The street lighting cost the citizens in 1935 over 31% less than it would have cost under 1929 rates. The total saving to date including all rebates except 1935 is $23,838.27.

The total saving to date to the Waterworks Department including rebates except 1935 is $2,250.

The Hydro system of Rates is based on the principle of "The greater the use, the cheaper per kilowatt hour."

The plant has been improved during the year by over $4,000.

It is apparent that a further reduction in rates is in order and your Commission is taking steps to bring a reduction into effect as soon as possible.

Your Commission desires to express its appreciation of your support and the loyalty and service rendered by the Manager and Staff during the year.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Signed on behalf of the Commission,
Geo. A. REID,
Chairman.

"Rose Marie"

Sets a New High For Screen Musicals Jeanette MacDonald Nelson Eddy Triumph Anew

No matter how much you liked "Naughty Marietta," a musical sensation of 1935, you're sure to like "Rose Marie," even more. Again co-starring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production is now screening at the Belle Theatre, where it will hold the boards until Wednesday matinee daily.

Like its predecessor "Rose Marie" was directed by W. S. Van Dyke and produced by Hunt Stromberg again combined their talents to give this picture one of the finest entertaining films out of Hollywood for a long time.

Replete with haunting music, a tender love story, magnificent photography and backgrounds, it is truly the film sensation of the year.

Miss MacDonald plays the name role in the film, apparently being lured into the wilds in search of the handsome brute who escaped from justice.

Nelson Eddy portrays Sergeant Bruce, as fine a "Mounie" as ever rode a horse, assigned to bring the culprits to justice, and Jeanette MacDonald, lovable brunette who drifts downward from power to worthlessness. What happens to them in the wilds of the Canadian northwest, where men and women are confronted with life in its primitive form, is the story of the series, of horror in the offing, is present as it should be in a mystery. Back of the English castle, which is the setting for much of the action, lies the Black Dog, a menacing marshland from which come strange and unearthly human sounds. The final solution of this puzzle involves expansion of the mystery and helps which make of the film one guaranteed to blot out anyone's worries.

AT THE CAPITOL

The "Great Impersonation"

Plays Dual Role in "Great Impersonation"

Two new and different Edmund Lowes will be seen Monday and Tuesday at the Capitol Theatre in Universal's "The Great Impersonation."

In the exciting exposure of what is to be behind the scenes of world preparations, Lowe plays two roles. And a muscle is almost his sole means of display in differentiating between the two. Best-known for his portrayal of hard-talking, wise-cracking sergeants, he is neither the one nor the creation of the E. Phillips Oppenheim novel.

Lowe plays the ominous Leopold Von Ragastadt, mysterious adventurer willing to take any man's place for love or power. Nor love of a woman. He is first seen hiding in German East Africa, while his employers, unscrupulous munitions king, seeks to "fix" a murder charge.

Lowe is also Everard Dominey, an Englishman of wealth who drifts downward from power to worthlessness. What happens to them in the wilds of the Canadian northwest, where men and women are confronted with life in its primitive form, is the story of the series, of horror in the offing, is present as it should be in a mystery. Back of the English castle, which is the setting for much of the action, lies the Black Dog, a menacing marshland from which come strange and unearthly human sounds. The final solution of this puzzle involves expansion of the mystery and helps which make of the film one guaranteed to blot out anyone's worries.

the Sailor, in an uproarious cartoon "Brotherly Love", and the Pathe Eastern World News scenic.

Performances start daily at 2.30, 7.00 and 9.10, "Rose Marie" starts daily at 2.50, 7.15 and 9.25. For full enjoyment see it from the beginning.

STUDY CAUSE OF FLOODS

The cause of floods and the difficulty in preventing them are discussed in the Woodstock Sentinel-Review, which points particularly to the section of Eastern Ontario where life has been lost and the material damage has been heavy. The Sentinel-Review says:—

"The communities hardest hit are located on Lake Ontario. They are Belleville, Port Hope, Cobourg and a score of towns, villages and hamlets in that section of the province where several rivers and smaller streams discharge into the lake. There are, of course, many other parts of the country menaced now or likely to be later on. The winter ice was still solid when the floods accumulated by a rain ran on the frozen surfaces until the breakup came, carrying thousands of tons of broken ice on freshets from two to ten feet deeper than the normal. Even the business sections of such places as Port Hope and Belleville were inundated and tremendous damage to mercantile stocks was caused.

"It is difficult to visualise without being on the scene, the disorganization of normal life occasioned by such an occurrence. The water was so rapid that persons seriously ill in their homes had to be removed from upper storeys and it is feared that several of these will not recover. It is suspected that the danger from spring floods is not over and that other parts of the country have yet to meet such hazards. In the eastern United States the damage has been much greater than in Canada and the menace to life there is terrifying. The danger of epidemics following the flood conditions is always serious because of the disruption of sanitary services and power plants.

"Unfortunately, not much can be done to control spring freshets in a country that has been denuded of forests. Engineering enterprise may be of some assistance but in most cases, if winter conditions have been severe and there are extra accumulations of snow and ice, floods of more or less dangerous proportions, depending on how rapidly the thawing processes operate. Human life and property may be protected by intelligent and timely action. Conditions but that is about as far as it is possible to succeed in circumventing these outbreaks of nature's forces. The human mistakes have been in these modern menaces were committed years ago when the watersheds were stripped of forest growth by injudicious lumbering and fire. We are paying the penalty for lack of foresight."

SEVEN MILLION YEARS LATER

A star which burned out seven million years ago, has just been seen in its last stage by scientists, light having taken seven million years to bring the scene of this conflagration in space to us. So there is one story there was no newspaper reporter at hand to report. He had to take it seven million years after.

But it is still news and vital news to those who like to think of the starry hosts, the light of many of the fixed stars being old when it reaches earth. It has made men think of the fate of this earth should our small sun be doomed as was this ancient star. But that possibility is far off, say scientists.

SPRING IS WELCOME

Spring, the darling of poets, and the friend of man, brought the proper atmosphere as it made its bow on Friday, with warmth and sunlight as if the sun celebrated his crossing of the equatorial line.

To this city it was doubly cheering as it combined with man to begin the work of renovation and reclamation in the sopping wet flood section. It came with its great drying power and was a pleasant change from the dark gloomy days when the skies lowered with snow and rain. It is no wonder that some heathen races were sun worshippers, for it is natural in man to love light and heat and the cheer that Sol brings.

RHINE AND ABYSSINIA

With the Rhineland fat in the fire, Mussolini's grotesquerie in Abyssinia is almost forgotten in the world press. Duce's vanture in war has not raised the status of war to that wild time feeling of war as laden with glory. Nations as in predicament in Europe yet do not see "glorious war" as necessary. The definite steering towards peace is seen in every effort to straighten out the latest of international imbroglios.

Only experience can show how salt the savor is of other's bread, and how sad a path it is to climb and descend another's stairs.—Dante.

Poverty palls the most generous spirits; it cows industry, and casts resolution itself into despair.—Addison.

No ashes are lighter than those of incense and few things burn out sooner.—Landor.

Is not prayer a study of truth, a sally of the soul into the unfound infinite?—No man ever prayed heartily without learning something.—Emerson.

THE FAIRY MOTHER'S GIFT

What should I give to you, little girl,
If I were a fairy mother?
A trust in God that would not fail
In any kind of weather.
A heart attune to all that is good
In this wonder-world called Earth,
A task to do as the days unfold
That would take your best endeavor,
A sacrifice that would fit your soul
And show you the path to Heaven,
And a song that would light the way for all
Who hear its joy and mirth.

SCANDALS ARE ALWAYS INTERESTING, and George White's stage "Scandals" particularly so—now they are more so for George White, producer, punched Rudy Valles, leader of the orchestral cast, five times in the nose without a comeback—and there's a scandal for you. Rudy didn't appear at the next performance but George White says if he requires any more treatment he knows where to get it. However, Rudy aint a-going to take those punches sitting down, for he is reported to have asked for a return match, with somebody delegated to hold the friends of both parties so that the belligerents can pummel each other without having kind friends hold their arms just when a haymaker is coming their way. And so, the scandals go from stage to street—here, there, here and everywhere.

THAT TRUCK FERRY SUPPLIED BY THE CITY to convey folks over the river in flood time is a success. The Ogden Point "Belleville Trolley" created by Fountaine Fox, the artist, from an original still operating in Connecticut. On the ferry truck was a placard reading FREE RIDE TO THE OTHER RIVER Trips made at etc. There were no seats in the bus but folks were glad to stand up to get over the waters dry shod.

THE SPRING FLOOD HAS TAKEN THE MINDS OF MAID AND MASTER from the imminence of spring and the necessity of having a complete new rig-out ere Easter arrives. The spring styles are radically different for man and maid so begosh don't let Easter catch you with clothes you have to travel the back streets with, and even the birds won't give you a pleasant look.

THURSDAY MORNING, March 12, very early in the morning while it was yet dark, the flood waters came tearing down the valley of the Moira pushing a great field of gantic ice blocks. Belleville suffered and kept on suffering until Tuesday, March 19, about four o'clock in the afternoon when the ice moved out and the water lowered to safe level, with all further danger of flood damage over. Thursday night on every hour from seven o'clock radios tuned in on 1690 kilocycles, heard this message: "Belleville Police Station, calling Patrol Car No. 1—Notify all enquirers that all danger from flood waters is passed." This message was picked up by a number of people within a radius of one hundred miles, who had relatives in this city and consequently were anxious. It also allayed the anxiety of Belleville citizens who had not heard the welcome news that the ice had moved out and the water dropped.

BELLEVILLE HAS BEEN ON THE FRONT PAGE DAILY NOW FOR A WEEK, and received much mention both on newsprint and on the air. Now that the danger is over the wisecrackers are getting busy pricking humor out of the Belleville flood. Woodstock Sentinel Review sagely remarks that "Port Hope and Belleville streets are covered with huge blocks of ice, but in a matter of weeks residents of those towns no doubt will be hollering for the iceman". Quite so Mr. Woodstock Sentinel Review, but we hope never to have to holler very loud and long for ice when all the other materials are ready. Also age and size would seem to indicate that Belleville should be mentioned before Port Hope—also that "both towns" slightly incorrect—Belleville is a city, while Port Hope is a nice little town. So, brother, grow a little more care like to keep things correct for the record.

PERTH COURIER EDITOR REGRETS CITY FLOODED

Arthur Johnston, editor of the Perth Courier, who was stationed here as a soldier when the 80th Battalion, C.E.F., was preparing to go overseas, expresses in this week's issue of the Courier his sympathy for the people of Belleville in their flood ordeal. He calls to his happy memories of this city. Following is his article in the Courier:—

Having resided in Belleville during the winter of 1915-16 as a drummer in the 80th Battalion, C.E.F., Bugle Band, the editor of The Courier has a keen sympathy for the misfortune the city experienced last week in the disastrous flood which, it is estimated, caused damage to the extent of over a million dollars. It was in the fall of 1915 that the 80th Battalion received Recruiting Order to tour Kingston, to take up winter quarters in Belleville. Napanee and Picton, two companies, the Brass Band and Bugle Band looked after in the former recruiting depot in Belleville, converted into a barracks, and on the arrival around Thanksgiving day to barracks the ladies of the city served a bountiful repast in the large dining room. Belleville afterwards seemed a veritable camp with khaki-clad soldiers strolling the streets after drill hours and night, and it was not many months before the visitors became well acquainted with the city and residents. Mr. John Brown, now of Perth, and Mr. George A. Lee, who still conducts "My Valet" on Front Street, made the Perth boys in Uniform welcome, and the late Dr. Sprague, once of Perth who was living a retired life in Belleville, was always happy in meeting Perth boys on the streets.

Battalion parades and route marches and Sunday morning parades to the armouries for divine service were headed by the Brass Band, with its instrumentation of 46 under the leadership of Lieut. Harry A. Stanley, late of Hamilton, and the Bugle Band, 22 buglers and 14 drummers in charge of Bugle Major Sergt. J. E. Enright of Perth, enlivened Belleville from week to week.

The Battalion spent a very happy and enjoyable winter and spring in the city until, finally, on the 13th of May, 1916, the time came for the departure for overseas to Kingston, and the Napanee and Picton companies leaving assembled in the city. And it was a sad parting.

In England the writer issued a printed pamphlet entitled, "Canadian Soldier's Diary from Belleville, Canada, to Bramshott Camp, England," recording the events from May 15th, to 30th, 1916, and many copies were mailed to friends in Perth, Belleville and elsewhere and it was also re-published in full in the Perth Courier papers.

The opening paragraph in the diary was as follows:

"May 15th. Last day for the 80th Battalion, C.E.F., in Belleville, Canada. One hundred and eighty-nine days in the city beautiful on the Bay of Quinte. If good wishes of the Belleville people got us anything, then we should arrive safely overseas. The hospitality of the citizens will live forever in our memories. In the evening the Brass Band turns were jammed full with people bidding us good-bye. We left them at 10 p.m. for our last parade up Front St., returning to the D.P.R. depot where we entrained on two sections, 18 coaches each. Friends in Belleville—Glad to have met; sorry to have parted."

The following Perth boys were on active service at Bramshott Camp, England, in June, 1916, as recorded in the diary:

Capt. Rev. Donald Mcphail, Lt. R. A. Taylor, Sergts. Geo. Mc-Tom, Fletcher, J. R. Enright, Pte. Everard Doyle, Everard Shaw, Stan Hudson, Geo. Cordick, Jack O'Brien, Gerald Brown, Arnold Fuller, W. F. Smith, Albert Fielding, Will Fielcher, J. Irvin, W. Davidson, Geo. Robinson, Donal Mcbride, A. A. Thornton, Frank McManus, John Sego, Jas. Stokes, John Kane, Philip Cline, Jas. McFalls, and A. M. Johnston.

Outside of Perth there is no spot anywhere that the writer would rather reside in than good old Belleville.

Human Side of News from Ottawa

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Professional candor, as Punch would say, was displayed by Dr. J. H. Blair, medical member for Wellington North, when, on his bill to substitute lethal gas for the scaffold, he said:

"I would suggest this to the lawyers, not to send for a couple of carpenters the next time a man has to be put to death, but send for a doctor to do it, nor for a scientific man, but to get a doctor to tell you how to put a man to death."

My pathology of "Remarkable Admissions" was enriched the same day by Daniel McIvor, member for Fort William, who said:

"When I listen to discussions on tariffs I feel like the Queen of Sheba in the presence of Solomon. . . ."

An Hon. Member: "You flatter yourself."

Mr. W. Neill: "No reply—Mr. Speaker, I accidentally tripped up by a border, as when he lards into a tedious debate with the words:

"I suppose it would be possible for me to waste half an hour of the time of this house. . . ." and some hardy young soul on the other side observed: "It usually is!" with the result that the member for Comox-Alberni was annoyed that he took up ten minutes of the time of this House apologizing for such interruptors.

Around the House of Commons it is just as well to know whom you are addressing before you unstore your heart or even, perhaps, reveal your identity. As two anecdotes told me this week reveal:

"You are not half so foolish as the Long Lake constituency!"

Even the W. Neill, so replied Mr. Blair, complacently sipped up by a border, as when he lards into a tedious debate with the words:

WEST OPTIMISTIC OF GRAIN CROP

Deep-Seated Frost Taken And Indication Of Fine Harvest

Hon. J. M. Sharpe, who has been in Moose Jaw for the past three months in charge of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act, Belleville and will be here for about two weeks before he returns to the west.

"The frost was flying on the streets when I left there," he said. "The weather is all gone. For three days the thermometer had been normal. But this mild weather followed a very severe winter. The snow was as much as four or five feet deep before we came away. The frost went down at least eight feet, many inches being frozen.

"But the West takes this as a good sign. It is hopeful of a very fine grain crop, even though it may reaches a depth of eight feet. It means that there will be moisture deep in the earth, which will even offset any possible drought."

During the past year there was plenty of snow for the first time in some years and a spirit of optimism prevails in the West.

Mr. Sharpe is well known in Belleville and district where he has been in charge of a number of projects.

"Torry" Ackers Successful As Hockey Coach

Stirling, March 21 (Special)—A few years ago, when Bill Whitby coached the latest team to represent Stirling in the days, when hockey was in its prime in these parts, there was a boy, who watched the methods closely and was beside him at every game. Three years ago this student of the game began to exercise his brawn—legs, when he was appointed coach of the Stirling High School team. Under his direction the team went well and captured the group championship. The wise boys said it; was just luck and "Torry" Ackers grinned and took it.

Last year a smart team called Glen Ross needed five straight games to get in the play-offs. Ackers appeared on their bench one night and they started a winning streak, that carried them through to the championship of the Centre Hockey League. At the beginning of this season, "the boy with all the good luck" was shooting orders to a smart team playing in Hamilton—don in the same league, and when the silversmare was handed to Judd McGowan, Captain of the fast Huntington crew by Don Wilson, President of the league, Ackers was standing by with the same grin. Three wins in three starts is a fair average for a beginning with its luck—or ability.

But the season was not yet completed for "Torry" Ackers was also assistant to Jack Ferguson whom he had gained his knowledge, in the coaching of the Stirling Intermediate team that won the Ross Hastings League. This team though directed mostly by W. J. Whitby also went through for a season's winning and the championship of Hastings County flower.

Whether his luck—personal charm or ability—matters little. It begins to look as if Ackers is a good man to have around. He is four leaf clovers—a rabbit's foot or perhaps—a hockey coach.

QUEBEC ACES SURPRISE TEAM

Intermediate Squad Holds Highly Rated Royals To a Tie

(By The Canadian Press)

An intermediate hockey squad—seven men picked as Quebec's standard bearer in the Allan Cup playdowns—loomed today as the surprise team for the Canadian hockey championship of Canada.

Quebec Aces, intermediate champions of the Province, showed no regard at all for the senior ranking of Montreal Royals last night and held the Montreal team to a 3-3 tie in the first game of their total-goal series for the provincial championship.

It was the outstanding surprise of last night's play that saw Hamilton Tigers crowned senior Ontario championships, put Elmwood Maple Leafs in the finals for the junior Manitoba title and gave Port William's Kams an eight-goal margin in their quest for Thunder Bay district junior crown.

A delighted crowd of 3,000 watched the Quebec youngsters come from behind a 2-0 deficit in the first period and rifle shots 30 seconds apart past Patsy Seguin in the second period.

The Maple Leafs of Elmwood got a 1-0 decision over Portage La Prairie Terriers, the second of the series originally scheduled best of three games. Previously each team had won and they took to the ice Wednesday.

Tigers Senior Champs

Hamilton captured the Ontario championship on the strength of an 11-1 victory over Sudbury Falcons, northern champions, in the first game of their total-goal series in Sudbury Wednesday night.

The Hamilton sextet will also meet the Manitoba titlists in the Ontario Canada semi-final for the right to meet Montreal Maroons for the Memorial Cup final berth.

EXPERTS PICKED BOSTON DEFENCE FOR ALL-STARS

Thompson Shore And Siebert Practically Carried Team

CONACHER AT RIGHT

Only Shore And Conacher Are Repeaters on All-Star Team

(By Elmer Dolinger)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

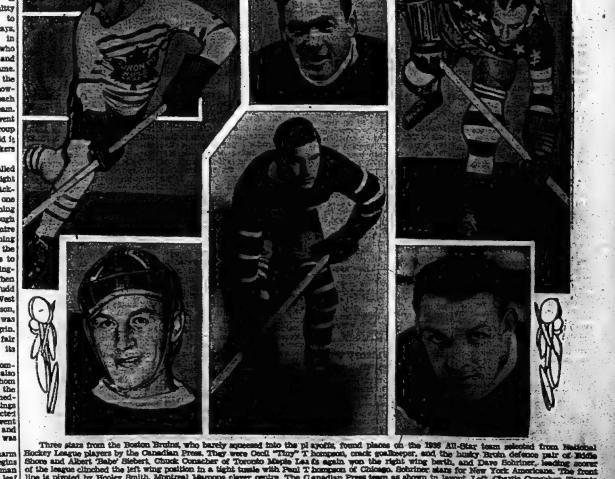
Toronto, March 21.—(CP)—The National Hockey League season, that reaches the end of its schedule Sunday night seems destined to go down in history as the year of the big Boston defence. Nothing more ingenuine came out of the milling about the spectacle of a Great Bruin threesome.

They scored ten shutouts, the year's record. The scoring department lagged more than ever before than any other rearguard. They held up the Bruins, when the machine sagged and kept them in the finish when playoff chances were dim, they engineered a smashing drive, that didn't strike.

The sixth annual Canadian Press All-Star team, announced last night, paid signal tribute to the trio by listing them up on the first team. Sports writers—35 of them—picked the team post Cecil (Tiny) Thompson, goal; Eddie Shore and Babe Siebert on defence, Lorne Chabot at centre position. The complete teams follow:

First Team		Alternate
Thompson	Goal	Gardiner (Canadiens)
Shore	r. defence	Siebert (Chicago)
Siebert	l. defence	Goodfellow (Detroit)
Chabot	centre	Thoms (Toronto)
O. Conacher	r. wing	Dillon (Rangers)
Conacher	l. wing	P. Thompson (Chicago)
Jackson (Americans)		Boucher (Maroons)
Schmidt (Rangers)

Willsee Precedent



So complete was the top-flight picture, changed from a year ago that only Shore and Charlie Conacher were returned from the 1935 first team. Siebert, Frank Boucher of New York Rangers and Harvey Jackson of Toronto.

Selection of a defence unit from the team was without precedent, but the writers had little trouble deciding on the Bruin back division. Only one writer failed to place Thompson in goal on the first team. Five left there out of the circle and Siebert won left defence by a decisive margin.

Not since Charlie Gardiner's day had a goal-tender received such unanimous All-Star support as was accorded Thompson. The veteran of eight N.H.L. seasons, who led on the 1935 second team, beaten out by Lorne Chabot, then of Chicago Black Hawks, by a close vote.

Any close balloting there was involved Red Horner, Skidmor, No. 1 point-collector of the season and the single spectacular rookie to reach the N.H.L. since Conacher and Jackson came up together six years ago with Toronto Maple Leafs, was voted out Paul Thompson of Chicago for left wing.

N.H.L. All-Star Team for 193 6 Has Three Boston Players

Three stars from the Boston Bruins, who barely squeezed into the play-offs, found places on the 1936 All-Star team selected from National Hockey League players by the Canadian Press. Cecil "Tiny" Thompson, outstanding goalkeeper, and the husky Bruin defence pair of Eddie Shore and Albert "Babe" Siebert, Chuck Conacher of Toronto Maple Leafs is again won the right wing berth, and Lorne Chabot, Chicago Black Hawks centre, of the league clinched the left wing position in a tight tussle with Paul Thompson of Chicago. Schriner stars for New York Americans. The front line is pivoted by Hooley Smith, Montreal Maroons centre. The Canadian Press team of writers chose Red Horner, Toronto Maple Leafs, Centre, Reginald "Hooley" Smith, Montreal Maroons, Rig ht. Dave "Sweeney" Schriner, N. Y. Americans, Top centre, Cecil "Tiny" Thompson, Boston Bruins, Lower left, Eddie Shore, Boston Bruins, Lower right, Albert "Babe" Siebert, Boston Bruins.

OUTFITTERS FOR PARTICULAR MEN

Jellal Faces Third

The New York American marksman, finishing his second N.H.L. season, received his first-class votes to Thompson's 14 and got as many second-team ballots. Wetzan Aurel Joliat of Montreal Canadiens, a 19-year man, was schlogged the third position left winger in the league, which was a tribute in itself.

Cecil Dillon of New York Rangers a prolific scorer and the best of Leader Patrick's unsteady forwards, gave Charlie Conacher an argument for right wing with the bomber of the Leafs winning it in. Chabot's pivon scorer in 1934 and 1935, Conacher had less scoring this season but he continued in higher regard than any other forward.

There was no doubt about Hooley Smith's right to centre on the first team, but it was close for the second team between Bill Thoms of Toronto, Doc Romnes of Chicago, Frank Boucher of Rangers and Marty Barry of Detroit. Thoms got the nod.

TRENTON CAGE TEAMS ON TOP

Both Senior And Junior Girls From Napanee Downed

Trenton, March 21 (Special)—In finishing their schedule with Napanee, Trenton High School senior and junior basketball girls defeated the Napanee squads quite easily. In the junior game, the Napanee team were ahead but once, that being at the end of the first quarter, when Napanee had four points to the Trenton girls' two. The forward line of K. Davis, J. Langdon and M. Beale accounted for the entire thirty-one points and their smooth combination plays were a treat to watch. For the Napanee team Marion Rooney looked best, scoring five of the nine points. W. Frotz and V. Pidgeon each scored a basket accounting for the other four Napanee points. The final score was 31-18. Line-ups: Napanee—Jardine, H. Hunter; forward, J. Clarke (captain); forward, M. Rooney; guard, M. Miller; guard, L. Cowley; guard, D. Murphy alternates, E. Madden, V. Pidgeon and G. Frotz. Trenton—Cutler, M. Beale, forward, K. Davis; forward, J. Langdon (captain); guard, B. McCarthy; guard, M. Shenard; guard, F. Fitzpatrick; alternates, H. Minkler, R. Cory, F. Ingrongna. Referee, M. Madden, Napanee.

Seniors Win Easily

In the senior game the Trenton team won 40-8 and were ahead at all times although the Napanee team fought hard, the Trenton girls' combination proved too great for them. It was a very fast-moving game throughout and had the spectators on their toes from start to finish. The Trenton forward line of N. Beale, M. Smithbrin and M. Kinney secured seventeen of the twenty baskets. V. Ferguson and K. Griffith accounted for two other three, the latter getting two points. Doris Chapman of Napanee looked best for the visitors securing three of their four baskets. G. Waiters accounted for the other one basket. Final score: Trenton 40; Napanee 8. Line-ups: Napanee—Griffith, G. Waiters; forward, D. Chapman; forward, H. Madden (captain); guard, G. Green; guard, G. Vickard. V. Simmons. Trenton—Centre, M. Kinney; forward, K. Beale; forward, M. Smithbrin; guard, T. Vanderwaler (captain); guard, V. Ferguson; guard, B. Milliner; alternate, E. Sutcliffe. Referee—Miss M. Madden, Napanee.

Holly Acres Advocates Work Program to Help Unemployment Situation

Addresses Trenton Conservative Association at Annual Meeting

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

Meeting Favors Formation of Workers' Bank in Ontario

Commending the work of the executive body during the past term and voicing a strong note of approval for all that had been accomplished, members of the Trenton Conservative Association at their annual meeting held last evening, by unanimous vote, re-elected the entire slate of officers for the past term to serve in that capacity for the ensuing year.

Mr. H. D. Graham will again head the association as president. He will be assisted by the following executive: Hon. President, Mr. W. E. Ponton; Vice-Presidents, Mr. W. R. Ireland, ex-M.P.P.; 1st Vice-President, Ed Simmons; 2nd Vice-President, Mr. H. Hill; 3rd Vice-President, W. W. Brown, Jr.; Secretary, H. A. Armstrong; and Treasurer, H. McGarr.

The meeting had as its chief speaker, Mr. Holly Acres, K.C., who for Carleton and potential candidate for the Dominion House at the coming convention.

Opening the meeting Mr. Graham voiced in the chair, Mr. Ireland being unwell. Briefly he explained the purpose of the meeting, the annual work of organization to make this possible. He stressed the necessity of building up the membership of the association, not merely in numbers, but meetings in between times which would be more in the nature of social gatherings destined to promote good fellowship, and thus further the cause. Mr. Graham stated the Belleville Conservative Ward associations had such meetings of social meetings as one example of combined and continuous organization and harmony.

May Farm Week's Chat.

The re-election of the association of a women's club, previously discussed, took it further progressive step following the close of the business, that a meeting of the women supporters be called at which an executive chosen by themselves would elect officers to complete the organization. It was pointed out, will be the first time this has been undertaken in the history of Trenton.

"For the first time in my knowledge at least," declared President Graham, optimistically, "as this meeting we are able to report a credit balance in the treasurer's report instead of a deficit, which is generally been the rule." The balance this year was given as $60.63. Receipts were listed at $1,819.99 while expenditures reached $70.27. This auspicious news was received with considerable applause.

Introducing Mr. A. Holly Acres, Mr. W. Ireland took the chair and soon briefly to urge the club to unite in their support, that the present council of Trenton take immediate steps to have the Provincial Government, to which the Trenton bridge as part of the Provincial highway. To assume all costs and to take up the present back debt. "Just don't request them; demand them be," declared Mr. Ireland, "That was one of the promises the Liberal Government made you before it was elected. Now, see that it's carried through."

Speaks On Farmer.

Mr. Acres, as chief speaker, was described as a "two hundred per cent farmer." The owner of one of the largest farms in Ontario and one of the experts in the Dominion on the raising of pure bred cattle."

"And," concluded Mr. Ireland, "he is also going to be one of the candidates for the leadership of our party at the coming election."

Mr. Acres in eulogizing Mr. Ireland, for his work, said he had presented his riding in the Provincial Legislature, swept with characteristic gusto of speech into the position of why he had been defeated at the polls last election.

"I can't say why Billy Ireland was defeated, but I will say that I'm sure he did not remember the ballot box, too. He has set that he did not spend enough time around Trenton and elsewhere. Mr. Ireland was "whipt" in the party. It was a responsible job; a heavy one. You people should have kept him elected. I did Mr. Hanna one day when the blame lay—that Billy would have been a sure winner if he had not been given so much work to do, and stipated to do it. I told him that you had been given a big job and so he wasn't able to get out and mix, why he was working for you all the time."

He Knows Big Depression Cure.

The chief portion of his address to his subject, expressed his complete disgust and disapproval of present day management of provincial affairs.

"Never in history have we seen things muddled as they are by this leader. He has never had any parliamentary experience. He is the man who made all those promises. Now now he is finding it difficult to carry them into effect. History always repeats. It is peculiar to the Liberals that the Province of Ontario pays 27 per cent of the expenditures of this country. But they must know that the same province receives the Conservative government at the one which is headed in by Bridgeburg, Hamilton, Toronto and Ottawa have never heard longer as there is in the province of Ontario.

"Yes, there's no excuse for depression in this country. There's plenty of work for all and not enough at that to do the work if the thing is carried on right."

Mr. Acres opposed himself wholeheartedly against direct relief which he branded as destructive of morale and character, and a sure means of leading to Socialism and thereby finally complete disintegration of social structure of this country. He would commend the present working condition and relief camp ballalions of youth by subsidizing a Works Bill which at first would entail an expenditure of $50,000 annually. This would be spent on reforestation in the country, the extension of provincial highways and the development of the natural resources, and finally through the rural sections, and building programs.

"Why should able-bodied men be handed in order to live?" he challenged.

Building Program Advocated.

Further, he declared, money was spent on relief in this country last year. That, should this be spent $50 million do toward supplying work for these men? I advocated now like a constitute which would start a building program. The present unemployment is not a matter of fault that at present is on record toward the establishment of any kind of a program giving work to men who are willing.

"When the farmer of this country is prosperous," continued the speaker, "then will that industry could be done for him, too, "then the country is prosperous. Then the top of inches of soil that is paying this country's way."

Referring to the attack Mr. Acres labelled the present government as "the most unscrupulous government

"GLITTERING GIRL"

By MAY CHRISTIE

He regarded his stout Billie with a mixture of amusement and pity. "All right, Sadie! Anything you say. But remember, this is your chance—and your last chance, don't spoil our girl's happiness!"

CHAPTER III

"Yes, Miss Vernon Tyson from 36-A-1....? Then here's a message for you. The colored conductor of the 'Limited' has been detained at the open door on that Mrs. Tyson might not see his action, and his voice lowered to a whisper, handed Vernon a folded piece of paper.

The blood rushed to her face, back. Before she opened it she had guessed whence the message....!

"What about viewing the new arrival at once or as soon as he is ready her parents, after their hearty dinner—and hand by the rhythm of the train and drowsy in the stuffy drawing room.

Sh'ed like to run and then slip off to Adams—and the moonlight....!

X I X

"Darling, how utterly devoting to speak you! I'm absolutely thrilled!" squealed plump and pretty Billie Nan Rushington next morning as Vernon phoned from the hotel on his arrival in New York, followed by the former's invitation. "I thought I'd get here, darling, Came home with the milk this morning! Slumming in Adams, you know. And oh! hey! what a hangover!"

The casual, flippant tone startled Vernon, who had never till this moment cast eyes on her dashing Billie New Yorker. To her she was scarcely the word, in view of Nan's plump figure, but she was very young—no more than eighteen—and her big blue eyes and honey curls and round face gave her a her a Mary Pickford-ish effect. Hence was really lovely.

"This is my father—my mother," said Vernon rather shyly.

"Yes, yes! Hello, Sadie," smirked Mrs. Tyson, secure in the knowledge that purple velvet outfit and mink cape and gay violet toque were just "right" for the arrival.

Nan Rushington stared incredulously at her. In this year of 1927, and with all her money, could such a vision be possible? Her face whitened. Laughter died in her big blue eyes. In another moment she knew she would be helpless with hysterical giggles—for Nan had no hilarious.

Fortunately just then, Mrs. Tyson, nobly behind the Tyson party, appeared a perfectly wonderful-looking young man, directing Nan's dis-elder, Sir Gerald her guest's arm unceremoniously. "Who is he? Who's his name? Oh, if only I'd been on the train! What a dead-ive creature!"

"Oh, Mother didn't approve. I'll tell you about him later." Nan saw Vernon blush a bright rose as she bowed to the young man who then become busy picking out some hand baggage. Of all the Victorian girls! thought Nan. Was Vernon all her own way going to be an quaint as her mother?

It took a couple of taxis to stow away their goods and chattels. Nan tried to get alone with Vernon in one cab—but Aunt Sadie gave the engaged girl no chance, but stuck with them. She was going to be a terrific "pill, it seemed, to Vernon. Old Women of the Sea about their neck! But in Nan's present strategic condition, she must be nice to the old girl. After all, they were her relatives, and she mused, how utterly grab the crumbs as they fell—maybe if she minded her p's and q's and was healthy, she wouldn't do so badly for herself....?

It was an interested, excited and gracious Nan, then, who responded to Mrs. Tyson's blunt "pumpkins" and partook of ashbin coffee-cake. Yes, it promised to be a gay enough season, despite the "mourning"—for—she and Dad were not going to Hot Springs! Nan's self-control fairly offered it, alas! Yes, they'd sold the lovely Southampton place—for a song—yes, it was a pretty crushing all!

Vernon—she was indeed lucky to have made her debut before the crash—yet what was the use of having made one's bow to Society, and knowing everyone that mattered, if one hadn't the proverbial nickel?

Vernon felt sorry for Nan, but Mrs. Tyson's cheerful, matter-of-fact, close-set eyes held a shrewd, calculating gleam.

"Yes treat us right and we'll treat you right. Blood's thicker than water, you know!"

Oh! How could her mother talk like that! It was horrible!

But Nan seemed actually pleased. "We'll have the whole of a good time! I'm just thrilled to death meeting you!"

Their cab shot into Park Avenue—once known as the "Gold Coast" but now sadly hit by the Depression—and stopped at the entrance of the Splendide. No sign of any "Depression" there! Apparently money flew! The hotel was truly palatial. Vernon had never stayed in such a hotel. For months she was to live in the magnificent environment.

Bidding as many parcels and hamper as possible, Mrs. Tyson waddled up the stairs and into the gorgeous lobby, resolutely refusing the bellboys' assistance. These little airs of grandeur weren't funny—but she was taking any chances," she declared loudly.

"I feel dreadfully country-cousinish" said Vernon to Nan, leaning back about the large, palm-filled lounge and up at the high painted ceiling. "Just I'm thrilled, of course, It's so new!"

Nan slipped her small hand winningly through Vernon's arm. "We're going to be real pals," she grinned. "I like you.

Up, to Up. Up. The elevator carried them smoothly and silently. Only by the continuous passing of light-spirals through tiny numbers over the door would one know one was moving.

Floor thirty-seven, in the tower. A few paces along a thickly-carpeted corridor—round to the right—in front of them an exquisitely-painted door. A bellboy pulled a key in the lock, and they entered a wide, beautifully-furnished apartment flooded with morning sunshine.

"Isn't it heavenly? I was here yesterday. See—I said in those notes—the flowers must be from the management," exclaimed Nan eagerly. "Hey, Vernon, step out on this terrace and get a load of the view!"

CHAPTER IV.

The Tyson family followed the embarrassed young girl on to a flagged verandah off the drawing-room that hung precariously between earth and heaven. Far below, like baby ants, were the people on the sidewalks of Park Avenue. The sound of the traffic came up in a subdued, subpiscant murmur.

Vernon was enchanted. "How words is congenial, oh, old thing!" said Nan, keenly observing the pale and pretty face of her cousin. Yes, it was pretty—and she would be much prettier if her mouse-like hair was brightened up a bit, and fixed differently! She'd have to speak to the son of Spodick, too. And her eyebrows and brown were not dark enough—nor did she use the correct shade of eyelet.

But wasn't she the lucky divil! dropping him this! A pang of envy for a moment took the smile from Nan's bright face. If only she had wealth like this, she could buy her darling "Sugar's" wife right off—pay the divorce and alimony and be happy—on, not exactly happy, for "Sugar" was a dear—a devil-ing flirt—she was a flirt herself, too—lit for tat—they quarreled dreadfully, but even his unfaithfulness was a charm—she wanted "Sugar"!

Just her infernal luck that a bare week after coming back—a marvelous week—had come the crash—and she, she, Darling, with Dad for ballast—one of them, in fact—weren't of the marrying type—Oh! Why should they be, with half the older women on Park Avenue mad for—yes, they were—Sugar—for all the world like female spiders trying to lure the spoiled fish into their web!—oh! their easiness made her sick! Shoot, show 'em, if only she had MONEY!

Meanwhile, Fate had given her a chance, in this queer Tyson family who seemed—except the old man, who looked rather a decent, quiet sort—to adore her, to welcome to claim relationship with her.

Of course there was a lie—not clear—through old Jake Tyson himself—in that Nan's maternal grandmother had been a Tyson—but it's been stated.

"I suppose we'll have to ask them to dinner and let it go at that," Nan's dad had remarked in a bored voice, but Nan had told him of the imminent advent of the relatives from Texas.

Nan had—snapped back: "Come down out of the clouds, dear boy! Remember that they've got buckets and buckets of dollars out of their beastly bags, or dill! I intend to play the relation stunt for all it's worth; then if you've not dill enough within that doesn't see further than the end of your own nose, I'm precluded!"

Winslow Rushington had regarded the child-woman that was Nan with tired and puzzled eyes. Her directness of speech, her unscrupulousness, her lack of pride in his fortune were little comfort to him.

If Nan could only have had Poor Annie had gone seven years ago, when Nan was eleven years old—just a fashionable boarding-school-goose, lucky woman, right in the midst of the "boom" period!

Well, he'd done his duty by Nan right up to now—he'd had her in a first-class school, had her presented and met important girls in America—and England, for that matter—but it was a joke, when nine out of ten of them came back and behaved like "flappers."

When he was a youth, there were only two kinds of respectable women ladies—and those who were obviously ladies—and you knew by their poise mixed them. At gay afternoon theatre drinking parties, the "ladies" were always there, and there they were, too, in the fast dancing-houses.

But NOW, the so-called ladies, including one's own flesh-and-blood, the "flappers," were indistinguishable from the cocktail-parties and the fashionable roadhouses—"good times for treats" on the upper Real Side....!

Hadn't he himself, to his shocked surprise, been invited to—and only a couple of nights ago—or Sunday afternoon—to a Saturday home in the East Sixties, now a rowdily-gay for a married man quicker than a single one!" he had growled at his exclusive club on Fifth Avenue.

Some of the man had laughed at him and many agreed with him. They had swapped experiences.

But a curious silence had fallen on this window-group when Jacob some "Sugar" Sarrail strolled in, debonair as always.

Did old Winslow Rushington know.... suspect.... that towards his married man his daughter's feelings were evident....?

A mile little was Nan—only eighteen—pretty and plump and playful as a kitten! Too bad her mother wasn't alive to give her a chance, a proper background! Poor old Rushington, with his complaints, his ill-luck on "The Street," was rather a weak-ost "Sugar" Sarrail was a good sort of a cad, though there was some excuse for the fellow, in that Nan flung herself headlong at him and his wife was a termagent!

Did Nan know what was going on? Or was he like most "mockers" fathers of modern children in his own bad luck, ignorant and heedless of his daughter's behavior....?

CHAPTER V.

In the beautifully appointed suite on the fifth floor of the Hotel Splendide, with the sounds of Park Avenue drifting to them in faint cacophony, Vernon Tyson and her mother sat listening—and in fact and firm in this initial exhibition of indignation.

"It's a good idea to have the sellers up as soon as possible and tip them well," she insisted. "They pass the word around the staff here in New York, that's the only way you get good service."

A nod being as good as a wink to a blind horse, Mrs. Tyson subsided. Champagne at half past eight in the morning! Surely Nan was "Society" with a vengeance!

MAIDEN VOYAGE

Antoinette Taft, 23 and attractive is delighted with her job as society editor of the Daily Planet. But she lives with her sister Janet, brother-in-law Lawrence Bond, Janet's niece, and Aunt Meg. On the Call staff is a blonde, married girl, Cecily, who gets a large salary and keeps a fine apartment at which Frank Fitch is a frequent visitor. When Tony asks Tony to make one of a dinner party there she asks the advice of her friend Barney Kerr. This results in a proposal, the last thing Tony wants. She needs no Mrs. Barney and is thrilled to find that her husband Larry's interest, Tony, the handsome young editor of the Journal at Coldwater, who she met, while job-hunting. Mrs. Bellamy is a frail woman, ten years older than Larry. She and Tony become fast friends but there is a stir when Tony unthinkingly mentions to Charles Greenwood, her city editor that Larry had called on Journal and the Examiner had brought disaster to Tony's knowledge this story is played up on the first page, and Ruth tells Tony she has called Larry's attention. Larry cannot see Tony, saying he was all his fault for quitting, and when Tony upbraids about Greenwood's dealings Ruth forgives her. Miranda announces she is going to marry young Dr. Alvin Atwater of Monday's end. Tony spends a week at Santa Barbara as the guest of the Bellamys, Larry's mother living at home when a huge truck thunders out of a cross-road and crashes into the car.

INSTALMENT 13.

Tony was struggling with a door above her head; she was out on the grass, her hand to help him. Larry was beside her. Tony looked up a steep hillside at a fringe of cars and spectators against the sky above; looked down at the crawling gray level of water. She felt deathly sick; tottered dizzily on her feet; was suddenly safe against Larry's heart.

Tony, my darling, my darling—you're all right?"

She shut her eyes, rested her head weakly against Larry's shoulder. Immediately two or three officers were beside them, were talking, were helping her up the hill. From somewhere a taxi appeared and Tony was bundled into it, and found herself alone with Larry again, speeding toward the city.

He kept his arm tightly about her and she rested her head against him; they did not speak for a long while.

"Home, hub, Tony?"

"I—I think so."

"You were a brick; a perfect brick. What did you open the door?"

"I don't remember! I must have. I saw you—all tumbled over the wheel. I'm sure that was all I saw, the feeling of death—death close, and—and horrible!"

"You were a brick," he said again.

When they reached the dingy little doorway he went up with her to the shabby little apartment on the top floor; it was the first time he had seen it. Mary Margaret and Aunt Sally were there; Tony shakily introduced Larry and gave them an idea of what had occurred.

It was one o'clock. Tony washed her pale face and combed the little curls on her forehead. Before they went away she showed Larry her father's photograph and her mother's, and the view that lay below the sitting room windows. Then

Liz took her downtown and they had soup and a thick steak and coffee.

She was still pale; too much excited, Larry thought, but the color was coming back, and after she had ordered her own lunch she looked more like herself.

"I'm not going to say anything about this to Ruth, Tony. The car is ruined, but it's insured, and I'll get a new one. I'll have it by the end of the week and if it isn't I'll just write Ruth that I've crashed down by train; I often do. Tony," said Larry smiling his kindly smile, "it was a kind of nice to see you again, even under these circumstances—something terribly homelike in it."

"You're going to have a black-and-blue mark on your cheek."

"Probably. But I'm all right. You may be more shaken up yourself than you realize. Larry said, "I'll telephone tonight and see how you feel then. What time do you get home tonight?"

"Monday? Oh, for dinner, Around six somewhere. I think I'll rest this afternoon with her young man's father tonight at the Palace, and Bruce is away; he's been on a ranch all summer, you know."

"I'll be in club dinner, worse luck," Larry said, "or I'd invite myself up."

She smiled in sheer surprise.

"Oh, wouldn't that be fun! I never—I was going to say I never thought of asking you," Tony said artlessly. "But we'd love it, some night, if you'd come!"

"I'll do that," he said. "I'll never try to tell you again. Good-bye, Tony."

"Good-bye."

Tony turned into the Call building; went upstairs. She reported to Greenwood's desk; he was not there. Telephone, typewriter telephone again; she scrapped her daily social column in the usual way. Mollie Mackay came in and observed, in a stream of odd gossip that the Journal and the Examiner dear knight go through with it, and she heard that four big offices on the floor above the Examiner's regular quarters were to be turned over to Lawrence Bellamy.

Tony had told some of the men in the office of the morning's close escape from death; she had been mildly unwilling to reopen the whole story with Mollie. Somehow it suffered less in the telling.

Miss Khyl Munny was being painfully and fastidiously sketched under the gallant tutelage of Archibald Bruce. Miss was the newest addition to the staff; Tony fancied that she would not last long. She had appeared a week or two earlier, the blond, blonde ever seen outside of a doll shop. She was good do "feature" stories. Her only interest was in the men with whom she found herself surrounded. Some of them capitulated to her at once; others ignored her, and she seemed to be no middle course with Miss.

Spike Hynan came over to sit behind on Tony's desk. "Say, did they tell you about Bess Cutler, while you were gone?"

"No, what happened?"

"Oh, she came in here and she took Frank Fitch's desk, and she's going to get married! Some girl picked up by the police in boy's clothes, and her father spanked her. See it?"

"They were telling me about it. Miss Munny wrote it."

"She did not. I wish you could see what she turned in! I had to send Van down to get the stuff after she'd been all day on it; and the Bulletin came out with it before we did."

He had glanced at the happily engaged Miss Munny who was in gales of babyish laughter over the intricacies of the typewriter, and elevated significant eyebrows.

"What's the answer?" Tony asked guardedly. The city editor perked his head in the direction of the manager's office.

"Fitch," Tony ejaculated in honest indignation. Greenwood winking his tongue in his cheek, nodded.

"I think—that—is outrageous," Tony said slowly, preparing to rise. She found herself a little stiff when she got to her feet and her head felt slightly dizzy. Just as she was ready to go her telephone bell tinkled.

The anguid weary world came suddenly to life. "Oh yes Larry," she said breathlessly.

"How do you feel?"

The big voice seemed to penetrate to the very depths of her being; everything was all right again.

"I'm fine. But—I feel a little tired."

"How soon are you going home?"

"Now."

"I'm tied up with your friend, Mr. Arnoldson or I'd come take you home. I'll call you about six to-morrow. You're really all right?"

"Yes, but I've been sort of stupid, Larry."

"Me too. Well, I'll call you tomorrow."

"Good-by, Larry." Tony left the office in a dream; and in a dream boarded a street car. She went into the apartment feeling broken in body and spirit; stretched herself on the sitting room couch and lay with her eyes closed, too tired to think of more or even to think.

The familiar scene held her. Her comforting arms, the chintz curtains was set for two; there had been a meal fire and his ashes of it were still glowing. Mother's picture, Dad's picture, the old books and pictures and vases, the old shabby chairs and the tables were all a part of home; it was as if Tony felt her security, her personality restored by them.

In her ears there echoed only one sound; the sound of a man's voice and a woman's laugh.

"Tony, my darling, my darling—"

Brenda came in from the kitchen with a cup of hot soup.

"Stay right where you are, and drink this, dear."

Tony jerked herself up. "I thought you and Cliff were going to dine with Mr. Atwater?"

"I am. I'm all dressed but my dress."

The home routine went on. "She's all right, Cliff," she called.

Tony's thoughts ran. "What excuse have I for not going home? I could telephone and say—what on earth could I say—"

Her chin fell dry and her head was beating irregularly. She went into her room, got out of her clothes. A feverish restlessness was upon her; she must hear Larry's voice.

The telephone again; Tony had the receiver pressed to her ear before the bell fairly stopped ringing. Brenda, Cliff, Ruth, Larry, Mrs. Bellamy, Tony's thoughts ran.

"Cliff said you'd had a bad smash this morning." Then the whole dreadful story to go over again.

"Listen, if I come up could I see you for a few minutes?"

"Come up to dinner," Tony said hungrily. "I'm just Amy sing and me and we've a thick steak and everything smelling."

Barney sat opposite her as she lay stretched on the couch; "It's wonderful to realize how much I think of you, Tony."

She opened tired eyes, dark in her pale face.

"I rather thought you did realize that."

"Ah, well," Barney said in a voice which was faintly reproachful, "You know how I feel, Tony."

Tony was silent.

"I'll be honest," he added, "Some day you're going to be nice to me, you know Tony."

"Well—" she said, not hearing his words, hearing only something in his voice that distinctive. If he would stop talking, in that newly kind, tender voice—

The clock struck nine. Barney looked at his watch and rose. "I did it make you feel faint?"

"Giddy, for a minute." Against her inner will, she put her hand in Larry's brown coat and its comforting shoulder; white sky and brown grass, gray crawling sea; she knew that voice crying out to her: "Tony, my darling, my darling—"

She came back to her senses and to the voice at her ear. "Tony, the phone was ringing."

"I answer it?" said Barney.

"If you would. It's probably for Cliff."

Barney spoke next from the hall. "She says she didn't ring."

"Oh, then it's Arnoldson," Tony sound allin at night, we don't know about my doing some work for him next month, Tony?" she presently asked.

"No, he didn't. Bess. He may have rung Tenny."

DUCE ABOLISHES ITALIAN CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES

Corporation of Guilds To Replace Industries To Create Autonomy

Sufficiency of Italian Industry Aim of Il Duce

ITALY ENTHUSED

Grand Council Will Direct Control of New Chamber

Rome, Mar. 23 (AP) — Premier Mussolini abolished the Italian Chamber of Deputies today.

Il Duce also abolished large private industries, leaving the medium and small private industries in existence.

Mussolini executed this board stroke on the 17th anniversary of the founding of his Fascist party after concluding conferences with the government leaders of Austria and Hungary and calling the grand assembly of corporations into session.

Council of Guilds.

Il Duce described the chamber of Deputies in favor of a Council of Guilds and eliminated Italy's large private industries in a move to increase the nation's economic self-sufficiency, he declared, in preparation for a possible European war.

"When, and how soon, will come, one does not know," he told the National Council of the 22 guilds of the Corporation State, "but the wheel of fate turns fast."

The National Council of Guilds, which replaced the Chamber of Deputies, is composed of the productive, credit, transport, agricultural and professional corporations, or category guilds.

In eliminating the large private industries, Il Duce declared he was leaving the medium and small private industries intact.

Enthusiasm Roused.

Mussolini aroused tremendous enthusiasm among the Fascist's search in industry and labor by declaring differences should be among the masses producing workers alone is lessened.

He asserted the large industries, particularly those working for the defence of the nation, would be formed into organizations called "key industries".

These, he said, "will be run directly or indirectly by the government, which will maintain the right of foundation."

"These industries, owing to their characters, volume and importance for war, leave the field of private economy of action into fields of state economy," Il Duce proclaimed.

The new chamber will be known as the Chamber of Fascists and Corporations.

The rules of the new chamber, Il Duce said, would be determined by the Fascist party.

"This assembly will be political, because fundamental questions are resolved with political aid," he said.

"Matters absolutely not economic, he said, would be assigned to certain technical corporations for the institutions of the Fascist party.

The Caesar Will.

Mussolini drew tremendous cheers from the audience, rising in the corpora chamber, when he said the Capitol Building on Capitoline Hill, when he declared in this month's issue of the Fascist party, celebrating its 17th birthday anniversary, reached fulfillment of its purposes.

Concerning sanctions, applied by the League of Nations as punishment for Italy's war in Ethiopia, Mussolini said:

"The siege now in its fifth month will never bend Italy. Only ignorance could have brought a thought otherwise."

He declared "political autonomy can no more be achieved without equivalent economic autonomy."

He warned Italians Italy would not return to the status it held last November 17—after the sanctions were imposed.

"He who thinks so is mistaken," he declared.

No War Fruits.

Mussolini called it inconceivable in connection with his abolition of large private industries that any profits should be permitted to be drawn from manufacture of war materials.

He declared no more than a scant 100 per cent economic autonomy, but "every nation can be helped to foresight servitude."

Citing a long list of raw materials which Italy has developed in recent years, including the discovery of nine new coal and iron mines, he declared:

"It will no longer be possible to speak of Italy as poor in raw materials. Italy must be spoken of now as poor in some raw materials, but rich in many others."

After the Chamber of Corporations ended its meeting, Mussolini spoke briefly from the balcony of the Palazzo Venezia to cheering throngs of blackshirts.

MONARCH TO RIDE AT HEAD OF TROOPS ON HIS BIRTHDAY

London, March 23.—King Edward will ride at the head of his troops for the first time as Sovereign when he celebrates his forty-second birthday on June 23.

(The King's Birthday is a statutory holiday in Canada.)

It was officially announced today that His Majesty's birthday will be celebrated in London and at all stations of the Royal Navy, the Army and the Royal Air Force at home and abroad.

The principal function will be the trooping of the colors on the Horse Guards' Parade. This was a ceremony always observed by the late King George, and on his last birthday, June 3, he led his escort rode with his four sons in the picturesque ceremonial.

His Majesty's ships will be dressed over for the occasion, and Royal salute of twenty-one guns will be fired at certain stations. Land forces will hold ceremonial parades.

MAYORS CONVENE AT THE CAPITAL

Unemployment as Affecting Municipalities Chief Issue

Ottawa, March 23 (CP)—Release of the municipalities from responsibility for unemployment relief and other burdens and the widening of powers of municipalities to impose taxation will be two main alternatives to be discussed at the Dominion Conference of Mayors, which opened here today.

The mayors, representing leading municipalities from coast to coast, responded to the call of Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal, head of the continuing committee appointed at the first general conference of Dominion mayors a year ago.

It will be the aim of the conference to make recommendations to the Government under four headings: unemployment relief, housing, work and debt problems.

At the first conference resolutions were adopted urging the Federal Government to assume entire cost of unemployment relief direct relief and to make such statutory changes as necessary to enable the municipalities to obtain a fairer revenue position from the Federal and Provincial Governments.

Other resolutions regarding relief have been improved with the decision of the Federal Government last December to increase relief grants to the Provinces, in some instances as much as 50 per cent.

It is claimed, however, that still greater assistance is necessary, and that some municipalities must be either relieved of all social services or given greater taxation powers to open new sources of taxation revenue.

This morning's proceedings were devoted to registration and organization. It was expected about 70 mayors would attend and many more disturbed, including members of the continuing committee who were busy over the week-end preparing detailed briefs.

The mayors proceeded today to split up into five commissions under the headings of relief, finance, housing and public works, extension of municipal powers, and Provincial Creditors' Arrangement Act to urban property owners and the question of making the Dominion Conference of Mayors a permanent organization.

As the road was flooded at that time it is said the map here has been swept off the road by the flood and drowned.

Papa Dionne Tells Monarch Elzire Is Sad Without Children

EXPECTS REPLY

Appreciates All The Help The Government Has Given

New York, March 23 (CP)—Oliva Dionne's long fight for full custody of his five famed quintuplets daughters has been carried to the foot of the Throne.

The slim French Canadian farmer of Callander, Ont., here with his wife on a sightseeing trip under the auspices of a New York newspaper, disclosed yesterday he had petitioned King Edward a month ago in the matter. He said he did not know if the King received it, and could not remember its exact words.

"I told him," he said, "that was in our hearts," he added, "we see the babies only a little of the time, when they are over in the hospital, and we feel that our family life is incomplete."

From time to time since the birth of the Dionne babies on May 28, 1934, Oliva has protested "government" control" of the five "legal" heirs. A board of guardians, including Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, physician to the quints since their birth, supervises their welfare. They have their own hospital among the pines of Northern Ontario.

Appreciate Help

"We appreciate the help the government has given," Oliva said, speaking also for his wife, "and would like to have all our children with us again."

Dionne said he presumed the delay in receiving a reply to the letter was due to the demands made upon the King in inaugurating his reign.

The French - Canadian couple were in the municipal auditorium today. Through the "mike" each sent a message to the quints. Oliva spoke: "It is your papa, who is speaking." Elzire addressed them by names and said, "bon jour."

RECIPROCITY PACT BECOMES BILL 13

House Expected to Bring Down Budget in April

Ottawa, March 23 (CP)—Unsuperstitiously the House of Commons today turns to second reading of "Bill 13", embracing provisions of the Canada-United States trade agreement. It was expected passing of the bill would be accomplished without further controversy.

If the House makes good time on the bill it will consider two others, both necessary to conform the five per cent civil service salary cut imposed during the depression with the present administration. One deals with the civil service itself, second concerns salaries of the ordinary luminosity of the judiciary and permanent defence forces by imposing a special income tax to effect the reductions. Both apply to persons whose salaries exceed $1,200 a year.

Passage of bill 13 will not end trade discussion in the House. Standing for second reading Conservative Minister Ilsley's bill to amend the Customs Act, to give effect particularly to Tariff Board and duty valuation undertakings Canada made in the agreement with Washington. Another amendment to the Act will be necessary to give effect to the plan allowing Canadians residing from the United States to bring home duty-free merchandise valued at not more than $100.

Budget in April

Two House Committees, one on the Canadian Radio Commission, the other on wheat marketing, will meet Tuesday in private. By the end of the week, it is expected, all preliminary to the standing committee will be ready to go to work.

With a 12-day Easter recess little more than a fortnight away the government now has placed before the House a large portion of its legislative program, including such things as that to establish a National Commission on unemployment and relief, one to establish the already-created National Harbors Board, amendments to the British North America Act, one to nationalize the Bank of Canada and one to reorganize the pension department.

The Easter holidays will extend from April 9-20, according to a resolution on the order paper in the name of Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Albeit Easter, it is expected, the nation will know the ruling of the Supreme Court of Canada on the constitutionality of "new deal" social legislation passed at the last session. It is expected the budget will appear late in April.

Traffic on the Niagara Falls-St. Catharines and Toronto Railway between Thorold and Port Dalhousie is back to normal and the Welland-St. Catharines Railway is reopened in spots, is being travelled.

1,000 Khaki Guardsmen Patrol Flooded Hartford

Hartford, Conn., March 23.—A thousand khaki clad national guardsmen placed Hartford under strict military discipline today as a safety measure during reconstruction of the flood-battered area.

With the Connecticut river dropping an inch an hour the crippled city began the paraguatan task of repairing damage estimated at $25,000,000.

Two or more guardsmen armed with batons and sabers, stood at nearly every intersection turning back persons without passes to enter the flooded districts.

4000 Are Fed

Four thousand refugees were given food and shelter by the Red Cross. Another 4,000, it was estimated, found temporary shelter organizations or were receiving succor from relatives and friends.

Governor Wilbur L. Cross, Welfare Commissioner Frederic C. Walcott and State Works Project Administration Administrator Matthew A. Daly went to Washington in an effort to obtain $6,000,000 for rehabilitation.

Twenty five hundred WPA workers were being inoculated against typhoid fever.

29 Persons Missing

Robert T. McGee of the Red Cross gave police a list of about 30 persons reported by relatives or friends as missing. Officials believed, however, most of those listed would be found at relief stations or homes of friends.

The flood has brought only one known death here although for New England the toll stood at 22.

Stanley H. Osborne, State Health Commissioner, reported health conditions in the inundated region were excellent.

The flood waters receding here, swept on through southern Connecticut into Long Island Sound.

More than 200 Middletown children made homeless by the flood were quartered at Wesleyan University.

FREDERICTON MAY LOSE POWER, LIGHT

Flood Threatens Loss of Services in N. B. Capital

Fredericton, March 23.—(CP)—Industries, business houses and homes in North New Brunswick faced the prospect of losing power and light services as flood waters threatened Grand Falls dam and power station, 140 miles from Fredericton on the St. John River.

The dam, a modern structure built within the last ten years, but above the 225 foot drop of the falls, was reported to be cracking, reported the situation was grave. It is the scene of the largest water conservation unit in Canada and the power plant supplies electricity as far away as Dalhousie, 100 miles to the east.

Saint John, 65 miles below here, was experiencing its first touch of the floods which had ravaged lowlands and cities as a flood crest last Wednesday. At high tide this morning water had crept up to within a few feet of the low level business section of city. Highest tides of the year occurred Wednesday and should any quantity of water be released from the dam at the same time, the situation might become serious.

Officials of the New Brunswick department of Public Works stated today more than 25 bridges had been washed out in the province. Loss will amount to nearly 200,000 in that department alone.

A government relief expedition sent into the inundated Maugerville area Saturday found cattle drowned in their stall and valuable farms floating in their pens but reported all lived but in the district, cut off from the outside world since Thursday.

QUICK ARMISTICE IN EAST AFRICA IS LEAGUE GOAL

Plea For Solution of African Problem is Made

HITLER STANDPOINT

Strongly Conditional Acceptance by Hitler is Forecast

The Associated Press

London, March 23—The committee of 12th of the League of Nations' Council entered a new, direct plea for peace transmitted to Italy and Ethiopia today.

The committee, which comprises every member of the council except Italy, made this effort toward a quick armistice in Africa while it awaited a reply from Reichsfuehrer Hitler of Germany to proposals for ending the crisis precipitated by Germany's remilitarization of the Rhineland.

Informed sources said the League expected Hitler to accept the proposals—but with strong reservations.

Bid For Peace

At the same time the council of 12 hoped for peace in Africa, it decided to send to the Italian government a new Ethiopian protest concerning the use by Italian forces of asphyxiating gas.

The committee's meeting of the League Council, scheduled for this afternoon, was postponed to 4 p.m. Tuesday.

The committee faced this situation:

Both Italy and Ethiopia have accepted the League's peace appeal and have agreed to undertake negotiations.

Italy, however, latest reports from the war zone, said, has launched a new offensive on the northern front, including heavy bombardments of the vital city of Dessie.

Ethiopia's Protest

Ethiopia protested against the bombings and alleged gas attacks, declaring, "we remain unconvinced. There can be no peace until Ethiopian territory has been freed from the invader."

London, March 23.—A quick armistice on the East African front was believed authoritatively to be the goal of the League of Nations Conciliation Committee of 12 which met in secret session at St. James' Palace today with hope of ending the Italo-Ethiopian war.

At the same time, informed sources said, Hitler would probably make acceptance by Adolf Hitler of the terms of the old League machinery for settlement of the Rhineland crisis.

The full council was called to meet in a private session later today, but the committee, headed up by Britain, France, Belgium and Italy to meet the situation arising from Germany's occupation of the Rhineland and denunciation of the Locarno Pact.

No Linking Given

Hitler's latest election speech gave no inkling of his reply to the League proposals. He asked colonial powers, beyond a reiteration in his address at Bremen last week-end that Germany "Germany will not capitulate."

Hitler's services reported, however, Der Fuehrer probably would reply with a qualified acceptance.

MAYOR HILL WILL REQUEST AID OF FEDERAL GOV'T

PROMPT ACTION

Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner Praises Officials For Work Already Done

"We haven't given up the fight yet—in fact we have just begun," was the firm statement yesterday of Mayor Harry Hill upon his return from Toronto on Saturday where he conferred with the Hon. David Croll in an effort to secure a substantial grant toward flood rehabilitation in this city.

Today Mayor Hill who left for Ottawa on Sunday with Mr. C. A. Cameron of this city will press his request for aid to the federal authorities.

Briefly Mayor Hill spoke of his interview with the Hon. David Croll on Friday. At this interview the Mayor and Alderman Jack Donnelly were accompanied by the Hon. Dr. Faulkner, local representative.

Ushered into the executive office, Mayor Hill put forth his plea, graphically drawing a harrowing picture of conditions which actually and admittedly prevail in this city. Interesting intently, the Hon. Mr. Croll listened attentively from time to time.

"Certainly, we'll be glad to help. Now if $75 or $100 will alleviate the—"

Requests $50,000.

The Mayor made it plain in stating in that city at the present time call for a real donation, a donation of say $50,000. This will just part of the loss we have sustained.

"But," said the Minister of Welfare, "admitting that Belleville is the most seriously affected city in the province, we're hardly able to assume the major cost of the flood damage. The province's appeal to be wholly a provincial matter."

"Well, Ottawa. Tell them your story. Ask them to help you. Whatever they give you we of the province will try to pay in like proportion. They'll help."

Then turning to Mr. Croll, more serious consideration would be given a request for aid, although no promise was made.

High credit for the manner in which Mayor Hill, his colleagues in the city council and public servants of all departments have acted and acted during the flood was lendered by Mr. Croll.

"I've been keeping in close touch with Belleville during the flood and with the manner in which the men and affected have been cared for has been the subject of comment throughout the province," declared Dr. Croll.

"The manner in which Belleville has recovered itself has been remarkable, particularly in the matter of drainage and pumping. That is the vital work I have ever heard of."

Thanks Dr. Croll

"There's just one thing now I'd like to advise and request," continued Mayor Hill. "Now, while all collars and basements are fairly dry but with dampness still in it is sprinkled in them in liberal quantities, otherwise Mr. efficiency will be lost."

Keenly alert to the possibilities of the meeting following Mayor Hill, Mayor Hill had previously requested Dr. Faulkner to get in touch with the Department of Health to proceed with the work of typhoid and other first-hand survey of conditions.

"We will," agreed Dr. Faulkner, "and I'll see Dr. Hastings about it."

"Today is Friday," pointed out the Minister of Health, "and yesterday is a short day—say Monday."

"Well, I'll be in touch with you" going right back to Belleville now. Get a man from the department here and I'll be with him. He can be with me in the city all day Saturday. Let me know the time in advance," pressed Mayor Hill.

Early Wednesday it was secured at the request of Dr. Faulkner, by four o'clock had packed, drove home and Dr. Hastings, Dr. Faulkner's colleague was engaged in a thorough checking of the situation locally, arising from first hand knowledge, what immediate steps should be taken.

Obituary

MRS. ALFRED B. SYMONS

Mrs. Alfred B. Symons, which occurred at the family residence, Bridge Street East, early this Monday morning, has brought feelings of sorrow and regret to many friends in this city and elsewhere. She had been in failing health for about time.

SWOLLEN WATERS SLOWLY SUBSIDE

181 Lives Lost And Thousands Made Homeless

(By Theodore F. Koop, Copyright, 1936, By The Associated Press)

Unchecked flood waters of the Ohio River took another grim toll of human misfortune in Kentucky and Ohio today, the last menace of the 13-state disaster that took 181 lives and made thousands homeless.

In New England and Pennsylvania, swollen waters gradually subsided, leaving behind a tremendous job of relief and rehabilitation.

While Cincinnati and Portsmouth, Ohio, were battering down the last imminent approach of the Ohio flood crest, Hartford, Conn., went under strict military discipline to prevent looting of its waterlogged homes and stores.

The National Guard, under proclamation of a state of emergency, kept all cars off the streets until the Connecticut River, which inundated one-fourth of the city, should return to its own channel.

Troops Aid in Relief

The baton and saber-armed troops aided Red Cross and Works Progress Administration workers in caring for 8,000 refugees. Other forces set to work to begin repairing damage estimated at $25,000,000.

As in all the inundated communities, refugees and relief workers in Hartford were loosing their fight against typhoid. The water supply was pronounced in pure condition.

Six physicians were reported to Hartford police as missing—there has been only one positive case of typhoid—and confident most of them would be located at relief agencies or at homes of friends.

Conditions were still bad in Lowell, Lawrence, Springfield, Mass., and Nashua, N.H. Damage at Haverhill, Mass., was placed at $3,000,000.

Fall of Susquehanna.

From Wilkes-Barre came word the Susquehanna was dropping rapidly. Engineers declared the fall in the river, received needed food supplies from Philadelphia and Berwick. The situation at Pittston was relieved as watchful eyes of National Guardsmen.

Families in western Ohio, as their eastern cousins had done, ran to the hills as new flood approached. Village after village was submerged. Along the crest of the Ohio's fall was below that of the 1933 Ohio flood.

The crest probably will reach Cincinnati tomorrow, but the city was prepared for any emergency.

Flood Grip Eases.

The grip of the flood eased to a greater degree in Pennsylvania where Pittsburgh, Johnstown and the other stricken communities sorrowfully hailed 12 days.

Physicians called health conditions good in most mud-caked towns and cities, and not a water shortage was ended. Utility service in the flood centers was operating on nearly a normal basis again.

Relief agencies still were taxed to the limit. The Red Cross in Western Pennsylvania was providing food, clothing, and shelter for 110,-160 persons. Two thousand refugees at Wheeling, W. Va., had returned to their homes.

Rehabilitation in the upper Ohio valley where damage was estimated at $10,000,000, already was well under way.

FIVE TEAMS ENTER C.O.B.I. RACE AT MEETING IN CITY

Possibility of Sixth Club From Airport Being in Race

MEET IN APRIL

By-laws of Loop And Question of Umpires Will be Taken Up

With five teams entered and a potential sixth club in the making, the C.O.B.I. held its semi-annual meeting in the local Y.M.C.A. on Saturday with a very representative crowd present from Cobourg, Napanee, Kingston and Belleville. The Trenton delegation along with President Matt Swanston were unable to attend owing to impassable roads, but Secretary Inkerman received word from President Swanston assuring the meeting that Trenton was definitely in the loop and ready for baseball. The possible sixth entry was considered by Secretary Wes Thompson during Saturday's interval when a telephone conference meeting, when he intimated, that had the Trenton Airport club the idea in mind of fielding a team at that point among the M.C.A.F. This information, however, failed to reach the meeting by time. McCarthy, ex publicity agent of the O.B.I.A., who is at present residing in Trenton, who stated that certain flyers now residing in Camp Borden were slated to be moved to the Trenton base, thereby making the Airport of a senior team for C.O.B.I. competition, if the moves are completed this spring.

Kingston, Napanee, Cobourg, Oshawa and Belleville were all fully represented with the former three and Peterboro also signifying they were ready for action, while the Belleville bunch entered a team only, making no comments pro or con regarding the future activities of baseball in Belleville for the ensuing year.

Meet Again in April

The meeting was called for the purpose of settling constitution and amendments to the O.B.A.A. constitution and also the by-laws of the C.O.B.I., regarding the latter, however, the executive were given copies of the C.O.B.I. constitution and by-laws by Secretary Thompson and asked to scrutinize them carefully and to make any amendments or notices of motion in writing and forward the same to his office, following which another meeting of the league will be called in Belleville about the middle of April at which time league amendments will be thoroughly dealt with. At this subsequent meeting also the question of league umpires and schedules will also be discussed in April.

The Kingston interests objected to the long lay off during the preliminary period prior to the provincial playdowns in the final, last fall, that club having to wait over five weeks following the C.O.B.I. finals before opening their Intermediate play-downs. Their objections will be considered at the annual meeting of the O.B.A.A. by the C.O.B.I. with the suggestion in mind of not having this situation in the future.

In the absence of President Swanston, Vice President Cameron of Kingston, ably conducted the meeting with the assistance of Secretary Newton Thompson. The league went on record as being in favor of allowing the T.A.R.A. to return to the senior group of the O.B.A.A., and that at least one half of the T.A.R.A. league winners be sent entered in first or second round senior O.B.A.A. play-downs next autumn. This suggestion was made in order to assure the C.O.B.I. of more play-offs after having competition and not having a repetition of last fall, when Kingston moved directly into the provincial finals.

Slate is Named

The C.O.B.I. named its slate of officers to support at the annual meeting of the O.B.A.A. in Toronto on April 4th with the following to be supported: For re-election as President, Joe Walsh of Toronto, for 1st or 2nd Vice Presidents, Jack Gibbard of Napanee and for the executive body Mac Swanston of Peterboro, all to be nominated to the O.B.A.A. by the C.O.B.I. Delegates to represent the C.O.B.I. at the provincial meeting in Toronto were President Swanston and Secretary Thompson and one delegate from Oshawa yet to be named.

A feeling of optimism was noticed throughout the meeting, the delegates except those from Belleville, the local attention being rather in doubt as to the Secretary's previous announcement of a possible sixth team at the Trenton Airport was met with a splendid reception, as a sixth team would round out a very strong senior league in Central Ontario, doubtlessly the strongest senior league in Ontario.

Besides Vice President Cameron and Secretary Thompson the official delegates present were—Kingston, Howard Brown, Wally Hinch, Gibbard; Napanee, Lorne McDougall, Lane and H. McCallum; Napanee, Messrs Walker Gerow, Frank Brennan and M. Reynolds; Belleville, J. Yarowoy, H. Townsend and F. J. Colling. Other interested baseball personages also attended from the various districts comprising the loop.

Toronto Leafs Finish Second And Meet Boston Bruins in Two Game Series for Trophy

Maroons Finish First in Section And Meet Detroit

HAWKS THIRD

They Open Series With Americans on Tuesday

(By A. E. Fulford)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Because Mike Karakas couldn't hold out forever against the sort of attack Montreal Maroons mustier, when playoff money is in the offing, Tommy Gorman's team will m\1 Detroit Red Wings for the National Hockey League championship.

Young and making a good job of handing Toronto Leafs their first place in the Canadian Division at Montreal Saturday night until Maroons ganged up on him in the second period to overpower a one-goal lead and finally win from Chicago Black Hawks 3-1.

Leafs were doing their best to make first place by beating New York Americans 6-1 in Toronto, but all Maroons needed was a tie to win the section. Detroit beat Americans 7-2 and New York Rangers defeated Boston last night in games, that closed the regular schedule but didn't mean anything apart from that.

Rangers win over Boston brought about an unusual ending in the American section with Boston Chicago and Rangers all finishing with 50 points. Boston took second place because they won one more game than Chicago and Hawks edged out Rangers with two more victories than the New Yorkers.

Line-up For Playoffs

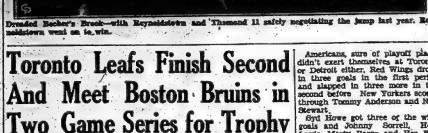
So Tuesday night they line up like this in the first playoff games:

Detroit at Montreal Maroons in the start of a three-or-five game series for the League title, the first two games in Montreal.

Toronto at Boston in the first game of a total-goal series between second-place teams, the second game to be played in Toronto Thursday.

Chicago at Americans in the first game of another total-goal series between the third-place teams, the second game at Chicago Thursday.

Winners of the second and third place series will meet in another two-or-three game series and play Detroit or Maroons for the Stanley Cup about two weeks from now.



Maroons had no less than eight men in their game with Hawks Saturday night until Johnny Gottselig scored in the second minute of the middle period. Toronto were leading Americans then and it looked as though they might take first place but Maroons bagged some goals.

Leafs Coast to Victory

So they fired 19 shots at Rookie Mike in that middle session and near the end Charley Northcott and Joe Marker beat him for goals that made the game safe. Northcott and Joe Marker beat him for goals that made the game safe. Northcott scored two goals in Leafs' 6-1 win from Americans, sure of playoff place, but didn't exert themselves as if Toronto or Detroit either. Red Wings drove in three goals in the first period and slapped in three more in the second before New Yorkers scored through Tommy Anderson and Nels Stewart.

Syd Howe got three of the wins goals and Johnny Sorrell, Herb Lewis, Marty Barry and Hec Kilrea the others. The Barry goal and an assist tied him with Paul Thompson of Chicago for second place among the season's point scorers.

Bruins kept most of their regulars out of the game with Rangers, using players from Boston Olympics their farm team. Paul Runge got their only goal in the first period. Bun Cook and Lynn Patrick scoring for the New Yorkers in that session. Frank Boucher got Rangers' third goal in the final period.

SURPRISE TRACKMAN — Frank Wordell of the New York Athletic Club, raked a rank outsider, and on his record decidedly erratic, sprang a surprise in a Newark track meet by whipping Glenn Dunningham of Kansas and Joe Maugeri of New York in the 1,500 metre event. Wordell, shown here, passed the two more famous milers in a last lap spurt, finishing three yards in front of the celebrated Kansan. He was billed to oppose Gene Venske and Maugeri in a Toronto meet.

with a third period marker.

Leafs had something the same sort of scare in Toronto. Carl Voss scored in the second minute of the game and sent the crowd into a hit of a panic until Charlie Conacher and Buzz Boll put the Leafs in front late in the period.

A penalty to Al Murray, Americ defenceman, gave the Leafs an opening in the middle period and Art Jackson scored twice. The Montreal result came in soon after that and, realizing they had no chance to win the section, Leafs coasted for the rest of the game.

ROYALS DEFEAT QUEBEC ACES IN ALLAN CUP PLAY

Meet either Brockville or Moncton in Next Round

WEST TORONTO WINS

Good Junior Squad to Battle South Porcupine Porkies

(By the Canadian Press)

The Dominion's finest amateur hockey teams prepared today to resume the business of eliminating each other from the Allan and Memorial Cup playdowns.

In a week-end flurry of intersectional and interprovincial playoffs, Montreal Royals emerged as senior Quebec champions, Port William Westerns as champions of the Senior Manitoba-Thunder Bay district West Toronto as Junior Ontario Hockey Association titlists and Quebec Aces as junior Quebec champions.

The Royals, backed onto their home ice with a 3-2 tie against Quebec Aces, intermediate provincial champions, fought from behind with a pair of third-period goals for a 4-2 triumph and a round margin of 6-4.

The surprising Aces had the lead twice by the end of the second period on shots by Frank Stangle and Tim Hamel but Royals, bolstered by the Olympians Ralph St. Germaine and Dave Neville, had all the finish. St. Germaine and Neville each bagged a goal.

Hugh O'Leary and Joe McArthur fired two goals that gave Port William a 3-0 victory over Winnipeg in the final game of the best-of-three series. The triumph qualified Westerns for a total-goal series against Flin-Flon Bombers starting in Port William tonight.

West Toronto in Finals

The victors of that will meet Kimberley Dynamiters or Prince Albert Minton in the Western Canada final. Minton tied the Dynamiters at one game each while a 3-1 triumph at Calgary Saturday.

West Toronto eliminated Kitchener Greenshirts by taking the final O.H.A. clash 5-3 and qualified to meet South Porcupine Porkies, Junior Champions of Northern Ontario, for the Ontario title. They battle in the first game at Toronto Wednesday night.

Moncton Maroons, attempting to hold the championship the Hawks of the same city won two successive years, dropped the first to Brockville Maple Leafs 5-3. Ottawa Valley fans expected tonight's second game to be the last.

Brockville Lowther bagged an overtime goal. Last gave Amherst Canucks, Junior Maritime titlists, a 2-2 victory over Pembroke Little Lumber Kings and sent them into the third game at Moncton tonight all even. It was Lowther's second goal of the night.

Montreal Vics defeated Quebec Junior Aces 6-3 but the margin wasn't enough to wipe out an 8-2 beating in the first game and Quebec Aces were crowned Junior Provincial champions. It was the first time Montreal Vics had a Montreal team dropped the championship.

HOCKEY'S BIG SEVEN

(By The Canadian Press)

Marty Barry's goal and assist against New York Americans last night gave the Detroit Red Wings a tie with Paul Thompson of Chicago for second place among National Hockey League scorers as the schedule closed. Syd Howe, Detroit, held Leader Sweeney Schriner's mark.

Tied behind them in the Big Seven were Bill Thoms, Toronto, Don Roche, Chicago, Art Chapman, Americans and Hooley Smith, Montreal Maroons, 38 points.

Thoms finished the season in a blaze. Charlie Conacher, Leafs' teammate, in actual goals scored. They both had 23. Chapman was top assist getter with 25.

It marked the first time, that St. Michael's had won major honors in the basketball field and the initial year of competition, which speaks highly of the efforts of Coach Eddie Schrieder and his charges.

Tommy Jones was the big marksman for the "Irish" during their drive for the group championship, Tommy dumping 24 points on Saturday. Haslip, Langton and Schrieder followed in scoring order, however. Lockyer, Mallett and Elmer were the big threats for the defeated Picton squad. The game was fast and saw the "Irish" score 41 points in the last half to defeat the Picton squad handily.

St. Michael's successfully threw seven of their 12 attempted foul shots, while Picton tossed four out of seven free tosses via the foul shot route.

Detroit Redwings Think They Can Take Montreal

Detroit, Mich., March 23.—(CP) —Red Wings, who meet Montreal Maroons Tuesday night in the first game of the series for National Hockey League championship and a crack at the Stanley Cup, heard a little sermon from their boss, Jack Adams, in the dressing room at the Olympia last night.

"You remember, fellows," said Manager Adams, "what I told you after we played Montreal at the start of the season? You remember don't you?"

The 15 members of his squad indicated that they remembered but Adams repeated it anyway.

"I told you," he continued, "that if they (Maroons) are the Stanley Cup champions, then we're in. We're better than they are."

"I know I have a good club," he said. "A team good on its own matter and it is within our power to win."

That is as near as he would come to crystal-gazing.

The players are eager as schoolkids at the prospect of bringing home for the first time the big trophy donated in 1893 by Lord Stanley of Preston, then Governor General of Canada. At present, battered and slightly tarnished, the Stanley Cup rests in the shiny case of a Montreal jewelry shop.

Most of the players possessed joy over the fact they meet Montreal, defending Cup holders in the first League championship.

From a money viewpoint they want Toronto. Their end of the Cup series would be greater but in the dressing room Sunday they all expressed the viewpoint of their little spark plug, Larry Aurie, who has said:

"That will be swell to beat the Stanley Cup Champions in the penultimate game. We can do it."

Every man on the club is free from serious injury.

Little Benny's Note Book

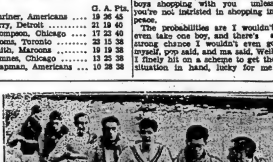
Saturday afternoon ma took me and my cumeen Artie downtown shopping with her, and we left Artie at a big store on the way home and we was eating supper and ma said to pop, if you want a lip from the wise, Willyum, never take 2 boys shopping with you unless you've been invited to shopping in peace.

The probabilities are I wouldn't even take one boy, and there's a chance I wouldn't even go myself, pop said, and ma said, Well, I finely hit on a scheme to get the situation in hand, lucky for me.

The toy department at Hookbinders is in the basement, so I gave them each 25 cents to pick up some little nicknack and left them down there by the escalator while I went and finished what I had to do, she said.

O, ma, we certainly had a swell time, I said. There's a counter down there where they sell hot dogs and we each ate 2 dogs sawnwitches and buttered popcorn and different things for 5 cents, and they leave you put on your own mustard on popcorn for free, and after we finished shopping in peace.

No sir, on the doggy sawnwiches, I said. We didn't think of putting any on the popcorn, but we put it I for goodness sakes now keep quiet on the pretzels, I said, and ma said, or my lands, pretzels too?



Yes mam, big fat ones that hold a swell kit of mustard, I said, Me and Artie each ate 3 pretzels and 2 doggy sawnwiches and then we took about 10 rides on the escalator, I said, and pop said, Yes gods we'll take your word for it.

But your supper, we've had enough, ma said, and I said, But boley smokes, ma, that was just the beginning. After that we had a race eating buttered pop corn and we each ate 2 five cent bags of it and 2 little cakes all covered with coconut and mixed yellow and then we took 10 more rides on the escalator, I said.

Look here, I want to enjoy this meal, pop said, and ma said, So do I for goodness sakes now keep quiet or leave the table.

Well O wimickers what did I say? I said.

Being a question without a answer and the end of the subject.

"FEMININE DAY OF REST"

Observance of a "feminine day of rest" by the 10,000,000 working women of the country to prove to the men that without their services the wheels of business and industry would cease is proposed by Miss Charl O. Williams, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, of the United States, says Christian Science Monitor.

Miss Williams' suggestion, made in connection with the present celebration of National Business Women's Week, would, she believes, settle "for all time" the oft-heard argument that unemployment would be eased if women would vacate their jobs in favor of men.

"Suppose," said Miss Williams, "that the women of the United States should all stay home next Monday for a sort of feminine day of rest." Her gloomy picture of what would happen was this:

"The telephone exchanges in / every town would be obliged to close. Nearly half a million women are employed by one national telephone company alone.

"Carrying on business today without the telephone is almost impossible so we can see how the withdrawal of women from the telephone business would cripple business.

"Many men would have difficulty in securing a comfortable breakfast if they awoke to a maidless household. The majority of restaurants would have a difficult time serving their patrons without the help of waitresses. Many women operate elevators, others "man" the stores and shops.

"Pity the struggles of a man executive without his faithful secretary! The banks and stock exchanges would find it hard to 'carry on' without women. In 6969 communities in this country where there are women postmistresses the mail service would suffer. Fancy the plight of airplane passengers without the comforting ministrations of the stewardesses.

"The public schools would be forced to close for lack of teachers. And so the picture grows as we imagine what a terrific social and economic upheaval would come about by the comlete withdrawal of women from the workaday world.

"Isn't it time," Miss Williams asks, "that men realise not only that women must work to help in carrying on the world's activities but that no person or group of persons can jeopardize the positions of others in the long run unless the people holding these positions are unfitted for them? Men of well-balanced judgment, trained to meet the problems of the world, know they do not need to be afraid of women in the business world. The time will come when the business woman need have no fear either if she is trained and competent.

"Figures from the 1930, or last census shows us that there are 10,700,000 women and 38,000,000 men in occupations and professions in this country. Throwing these 10,000,000 women out of work, many of whom are trained and equipped for special work, would not solve our unemployment problem. It would merely put more unemployed men to work and place women and their dependents on the relief or public works rolls, so that we would be just as badly off as ever."

FLOOD LESSONS

The Belleville boy who needed a geography for school and next day seeing a book floating down the flood stream on a west side street gave chase forgetting he had not his rubber boots on and finally caught the escaping literature opening it to find it was a geography, may be taken as a symbol of the opportunity which the flood has brought to the doors of the teachers of this city and countryside to explain the workings of nature and the mysteries of geophysics.

Cities built on level ground at the mouths of rivers will prove an interesting study for every boy knows the facts. It just requires the teachers to point the significance and elucidate the natural law involved.

The schoolboys and school girls will herein prove fine students, for they have seen, they have played among the ice cakes, have waded in the water some of them have had to be carried out of the waters at midnight and had to spend weeks in others' homes. They are little engineers and may be able to correct any teacher who has not been any too observant.

Then what a chance for brilliant young minds to write compositions on the flood!

Education has its work made right to hand for it. The teacher does not have to go foraging into the far-off for subjects and evidence.

Then the flood has taught the children something of the laws of economics, the effect of rivers on settlements and on history.

The lessons learned in the flood will leave an indelible impression on the minds of the young.

THE HOME FORUM

Discussing the events of the day, the people who have been in the news, revealed by the latest newspapers—under the evening lamps and comments Grave and Gay.—Prepared by The Intelligencer.

TWENTY YEARS AGO LAST AUGUST the steamer Alexandria was wrecked in a gale off Scarboro Bluffs in sight of Toronto. All hands were saved but the bones of the old ship are still visible on the sand bar where she struck. A writer in a Toronto newspaper recently recalled the life and death of this gallant old craft once a familiar figure on the Lake Ontario, Bay of Quinte, St. Lawrence route. The Alexandria was originally a wood burner and thousands of cords of wood went up in smoke from her boilers. Belleville old-timers will remember when it was a daily habit to be present at the wharf when the mailboats came in, including the Alexandria, Passport, Casplan, Corsican, Corinthian and Magnet. If memory serves right—even though it happened to be midnight. Then there were the excursions from Hamilton to the Thousand Islands over Sunday, the boat running to Rochester, then back to the Bay of Quinte calling at Belleville for the final quota of passengers—and back Monday morning after having had a couple of days of fun—no dust, no dirt, but plenty of scenery and muchy-much lager beer.

THE CHURCH BELLS RANG FOR JOY! CROWDS ON THE STREETS! crying a moment before? broke into tears? factory whistles shrieked?—pandemonium broke loose, another Armistice Night!—as all Belleville overcame with delirious joy celebrated the going out of the ice and the subsidence of the flood? So we read in the daily papers with heavy headlines. Where were we when all this joy celebration took place? S'all right except there should be a Johnstown date line on such paragraphs —the correspondents simply got their geography mixed, that's all. While we're on the subject it might be remarked that the Belleville flood was pictured ten times worse than it really was—in outside newspapers—and how those rookie press correspondents fresh from journalistic college and the great cities did juggle their adjectives, and pile word picture on word picture, whether they had any existence in fact or no. Fancy certainly scored a high percentage in those news stories. Belleville folks reading the Toronto evening papers had to pinch themselves to see if they were awake and had missed so much of flood horror and heroism. However, allsswell that endswell and we enjoyed the visit of the boys from the schools of journalism in Toronto—and we are only glad that the flood was not nearly as serious as they painted.

DOWN IN BRADENTOWN FLORIDA LAST THURSDAY a bunch of ball fans from Belleville might have been seen rooting for their favorite players of the big time engaged in a game in which the players represented the New York Yankees 1936 team and the St. Louis Cardinals spring offering to sportdom. John McKeown was there, of course, and probably Fred Smith, Charlie Reid, Walter Patterson, Percy Allan, Harry Ackerman, Johnny Spencer, Big Game Hunter, Dave Barrigar, on his way back from the Mardi Gras at New Orleans, and others who ran away from the snow and ice to spend a day in the salubrious sun of Florida while Old Sol was getting ready to turn the heat on in Belleville and points adjacent. If these kids weren't all at the game they were playing hookey and should have been eating peanuts on the stand and telling all about the great plays they saw with the Indian in the box and Feeney Mills catching in that li'l old city of Belleville, not so far away. Jack McKeown says his favorites the Cards won of course, downing the Yankees by 6 to 5. It would have been a heresy to permit any Yankee victory in dear old Dixie. Among those present were Frankie Frisch, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals; Pepper Martin, Will Bill Hallahan, Medwick and others. Gosh, all hemlock, some folks have all the luck. Here we were up to our necks in flood water while those boys were sitting in the sun watching two of the best ball teams on earth bat out homers, doubles and singles.

MARK HELLINGER TELLS A GOOD ONE about a Wall Street broker and a bum. The broker always smoked fifty cent cigars, a fact which the bum got to know from picking up the butts. The bum used to wait for the broker every morning as the broker walked down the avenue to work, had his breakfast, walked to his favorite cigar store, bought his favorite brand, lit up and walked on. Ten blocks down the cigar was half smoked on the day of the yarn, and as usual was thrown into the gutter. The bum made a dive for it, but after a few puffs he ran after the broker and exclaimed, "Say, what's dis, a double-cross—dis aint no four bit cigar." "No," said the broker to the bum, "I'll have to apologise, business hasn't been very good lately and I had to buy a dime cigar this morning." "Hmm—you and your dime smoke!" said the bum as he threw the butt contemptuously in the gutter.

Ontario's Coat of Arms this morning was a snow shovel rampant.

The poor confiding robins will think they have been deceived.

Three old fashioned winters make us tired. But cheer up, there are only eight days more March.

Mr. William Day stopped a runaway horse on Front Street shortly before 4 o'clock last evening and thereby probably saved a small boy from serious injury. The horse had started to run away on Mill Street with only the small boy in the sleigh. One of the bolts which held the shafts had fallen out and the shafts were in contact with the horse's heels, frightening him more and more. When opposite the Ritchie Store Mr. Day saw the runaway coming and seizing an opportunity he jumped into the sleigh and took the lines from the boy's hands and soon brought the horse to a standstill. The many spectators who witnessed the affair were loud in their praises of Mr. Day's plucky act.

Mr. John Mallin went to Toronto today on business.

The recent rains have caused the water in the river to rise. The ice is fast going out generally. No trouble from further flood is expected.

The "Three Little Maids", Messrs. Merrill, Bellwill and Chaisley, were the hits of the Belleville Amateur Minstrel performance Wednesday night. Their costumes took fine. Mr. M. Ryan deserves much credit for their artistic make-up.

Trenton and District

TRENTON, March 23.—(Special)—Mr. George Wannamaker on arriving Saturday morning at Loakin's Meat Market of which he is manager, found the premises had entered during the night and taken eighty-five dollars in bills from a box, which he had hidden. Whoever made the entry did not bother about the money in the cash register as after a check-up it was found that only the bills, which had been hidden were stolen and a considerable amount of change in the till had been overlooked. It is thought that the robbery happened between the hours of six and eleven-thirty. Not knowing that the manager had hidden the deposit in a box, the constable checked the till and as there were no signs of anyone having been around, he left a note and locked the rear entrance, and reported the incident to the station. So far no trace of the robbers have been found.

Unusual Funeral

On March the nineteenth one of the most unusual funeral services took place from the home of the late George Murray in the Township of Cession of Murray Township that he has even seen or attended, when Mr. George Colling, undertaker, funeral director. Instead of using the hearse and cars he used the farm teams and pallbearers and friends to Carmen Cemetery, a distance of five miles, sleighs were used as the snow drifts were so high, that it made it impossible for any other means of live. The remains of the late George Murray were taken in the sleigh of the grave by the sleigh and from the pallbearers lifted it down to the grave. The deceased was in his forty-eighth year and leaves to mourn his loss his wife, Mrs. George Murray, one daughter, Mrs. Alice Mortorff, Geneseo, N.Y., and three sons, Clifford of Portsoy, Harry at present at home. Manzer, A. Rose.

On Saturday afternoon McDonald's Hardware store was partitioned off from pedestrian traffic as the building has fudged from the front and excess water and ice indicates that it might collapse at anytime.

Residents of the town were without their spring water supply for several hours on Saturday afternoon, as a large main broke on Quinte Street.

Teach Child To Defend Itself

If You Don't Repress It, The World 'Will, Genelle Points Out

By LISA GRUNDELIUS

FRANKIE WAS an emotional child. He was naturally demonstrative and carefully unrepressed. He adored his feelings full stop. When angry he bellowed, when hurt he cried, when happy he sang and shouted when he was happy. He knew he'd been hurt long before any one's mind as to whom he disliked and who was fortunate enough to draw his fire.

Frank's parents, like many modern parents, were puzzled and not satisfied with their "natural" child. They had a theory. From experiences they had undergone when young, of repressing children. All subsequent evils resulted, they were convinced, from the repressed child.

Then Frankie came. George, who had been away to school, didn't approve of Frank at all.

"At school," he said, "they don't allow fellers like Frank to live."

Frank's mother was outraged. Frank's father tried to pacify his son at a school such as he had attended, and didn't like the picture. But, of course, Frankie was different nowadays.

Loved Is Accepted

Schools were different, perhaps, he argued, but the boy who couldn't control his anger, his grief, or less fortunately, his joy or his affections is scorned at by schoolmates. He isn't actually killed, as George's generation was, but he is ragged unmercifully and if still living, rather wishes he weren't.

Frankie, on coming, had given their offspring let off steam, and make allowances, but their schoolmates will not. Boys demand of each other qualities of fortitude and reticence from all alike, without exception, acceptable.

So, in fact, we repress your child the world will. In other words, his world demands self-control.

Children were too much repressed in the old days, and much harm resulted from it. But there is a line, though sometimes thin, between control and repression.

Consideration for others demands that we control our feelings, express them, to a reasonable extent, and that should not mean a lack of frankness, a fear of showing affection or enthusiasm.

A modern child must have some outlet. If his schoolmates allow him none, his parents must provide some compensation for him, or the danger of his repression most certainly will be realized.

No parent, however, can fight the standards of the world. A child's dilemma is how foolish and even destructive those standards may appear. If Frank's contemporaries demand that he be a spartan, he must at least appear so or his life will not be worth living.

JINX PICTURE STOPPED AGAIN — The picture, "Hotel Imperial," formerly called "I Loved a Soldier," now being produced in Hollywood, has been a jinx to producers. After squandering $9,000,000 to get it on the screen, Paramount shelved the picture. Then efforts were made to Merle Oberon; who finally turned it down. Margaret Sullivan accepted the main role, only to meet with injury in the early scenes. Production will be held up another six weeks.

Natalie Clamps On the Lid

By Edward E. Montrop

DICK NEWTON'S heels came down on the pavement with the staccato clip of a man either in haste or suffering from some mental disturbance. He turned the fretful clang scowl on his usually too serene, handsome face. It was obvious by anger that was driving him along the street. And anger it was! His face twisted at himself—not his fiancee, Natalie Waverly—and more especially at his future mother-in-law for he had felt that something was wrong the minute he had entered his fiancee's apartment that evening. Fired out from a hard day at the office and looking forward to a pleasant social evening, he had found Natalie with her blue eyes and dewy from his flattery.

Prepared, what's the matter?" he asked, kissing her eyelids gently.

"Oh, Dick, it's mother," she wailed. "I'm so worried about her.

"Is she worse?"

"N-no, but she isn't getting stronger as she should and the doctor said today she needed a complete change and that she should not attempt to spend a long and severe winter here. He suggested Florida."

"Haven't you—have you enough money to manage it?"

In reply Natalie only burst into tears. His brain a working model today as he comforted her. He had had no idea that his fiancee and mother were in financial straits.

"Ah-hhh, Natalie. We must do something. Don't cry. It breaks my heart. I can't bear to see you so miserable. Of course they can't let her stay here if there's any question about the money. You can, Natalie darling, I haven't saved a cent toward our little home yet. Lord knows where the money goes and this will mean that I'll have to wait that much longer for you."

"Dick, would you really be willing to help? You're an angel—you've been good!" Then she flung to him now in an ecstacy of joy. A little sigh escaped her, a sigh of sheer relief.

"I've been so worried. If I could only get out and work. It would be different, but that would mean hiring a trained nurse and that would cost more in the end than I could ever earn. I'm no good."

"Hush, Natalie. I won't let me hear you say that again. How much will it take?"

"If only, she could go alone, but there'll be two of us, you see."

"You're going away—with me?" he asked, stunned. It was the first time he had really taken in the situation.

"But it'll only be a few months and I'll write every day. I'll be besides it'll be just as hard on me. One good thing, you won't have me near to spend so much money on all the time in your dear generosity. Four dollars for one evening's entertainment and flowers nearly every day. It's ridiculous!"

"But I love to spend it on you. You've been so wonderful," he said, his voice breaking. "I can't let you go, Natalie. It's asking too much."

When he left that evening and went to bed he knew that it had all been settled. He was to send every cent he could spare and more clearly to him. He was to live on the barest minimum himself every little comfort in order to keep his fiancee away from him. The following morning he stood under the trainshed and watched the train crawl out, Natalie and Mrs. Waverly and her mother on board. Then he hurried back to the office and went to work on a plan for increasing his sales so that his commissions would help meet the added expense. He would not have his future mother-in-law thinking he wasn't able to support her. He worked night and day until he could double the amount Natalie had said they would need.

At last a bright spring day brought them back to him.

"I can't believe you're here," he said at the station. "I'll take you home, then have a little spin."

Out on the highway together at last Natalie said excitedly:

"Dick, darling, will you be very mad if I tell you something?"

"Good God," he thought, "I guess she wants to take her mother to Europe this time," but he merely answered:

"You couldn't make me mad if you tried."

She took a slip of paper out of her bag and held it toward him.

"It's a check for $2,000!" he exclaimed. "Natalie, how'd you get it? Who—"

"Mother's brother died and left me it. I'm so happy, Dick, I'm so happy!"

Good Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

WHO GOES FIRST?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it proper for a gentleman to precede a woman getting off a street car?

2. When a woman is with two men, who should go first....when going to a ballet by a restaurant?

3. Who should go first when walking into a theatre, when the seat is about the sixth seat in from the aisle?

L.

1. The man precedes the woman as they get off a street car. This means that, as she is about to step down from the car, he will be in position to help her.

2. Usually the woman follows the headwaiter as he leads them to a table. I must confess that I am not very enthusiastic about this custom, for I like very much the idea of having the host go first, tell the headwaiter his preferences as to position of table, and follow the headwaiter to see that he is given the most desirable location. However, in this case as in many other similar circumstances (such as in a theatre), the woman must be alert to take her cue as to what is the man's decision concerning this, after he has said to the headwaiter, "A table for three, please", inasmuch as he does not always include the hostess in the "we" in such instances.

3. The woman goes first into the row in which the seats are located.

GIFT TO GIRL GRADUATE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Last summer we went on a trip and while there we met some of my father's friends. There is a young girl in the family who is to graduate this month. I would like to give her a gift appropriate for a graduation gift, and whether to give her that it is from the whole family?

2. What sort of gift would you suggest?

L.

1. It would be a charming and thoughtful and thoroughly correct thing for you to send this girl a graduation gift. And I am sure that she would like to have the gift from the remembrance from the whole family.

2. Books, are, of course, always one of the things we think of as appropriate for graduation gifts. Or graduates usually like something that is different. Handkerchiefs are also too....she would love one or two especially delicate ones, small while ones for evening wear. A purse, too, either for day wear or in evening, be it a matching beret, scarf and bag for sports wear. Or a pen and pencil set, with her name embossed in full on it. Or a writing-portfolio. Or a clock for her desk or dressing table, perhaps one of the travelling-clock variety. Or an accessory for her traveling-bag.

HOME WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is planning to be married in the Spring. We favor a simple home wedding, but our home is not large enough to accommodate more than the immediate families and a few of our closest friends. Would it be good form to have the small home wedding with a larger reception, immediately following the ceremony, at a club or some such place, to give a larger circle of friends, as well as the wedding guests, the opportunity to extend best wishes to bride and groom?

Puzzled.

Yes, this plan would be correct, under the circumstances, and I am sure that your relatives and friends will appreciate what it must necessary for you to make this plan. It would be well, since you are to make this arrangement, to keep your list of guests for the ceremony very small.

INTRODUCTIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me if I knew exactly the correct thing to say when introducing a friend to another, life would be much simpler. I have people say so many different kinds of things when I am making these introductions, that I am thoroughly confused. Will you tell me?

Grace.

Life can indeed be much simpler if we know just the correct thing to say when we acknowledge an introduction is "How do you do." That is all we need to remember. So just relax and stop worrying. If we are alert about "catching" names, it is an excellent plan, and a great help to add the name in the "How do you do"....."How do you do, Mrs. Allen".

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

American Girls Lost Individuality, to Unswerving Devotion of Stars—dardised Styles

Do American women, with their lightly penciled eyebrows and neatly-waved hair, look all alike, in their identical pattern, really look like playing cards?

As queens of hearts, clubs, spades or diamonds, aren't they, too, too obviously alike? And pretty girl with freckles and hair has standardized as refreshing a sight as olive after too many sweets?

When a certain brilliant Englishman, Max Beerbohm comments on more subjects perhaps than any living author, said these things about United States' drama a year ago, they fell justly peeved. But now comes a French portrait painter —a woman, at that—who finds the same fault, deplored at beauty parlors as those of the American girl, and she thinks the American girls are afraid to be different.

Make-up? If the Countess goes in for it, it is applied so well and sparingly that it doesn't hit you in the face. Hair and clothes, likewise, are too standardized.

And here's where her comments will draw down the wrath of the prairies, as well as Park Avenue.

"Americans are the prettiest women in the world. Seriously, I don't know anything above those well-arched eyebrows."

"Too, too much alike."

The mink coats wandering rather aimlessly through Madame Iguita's one-woman show in New York, one day last week, and picked up those shell-like ears to listen. Perhaps there was something in what this successful painter had to say.

Every eyebrow of the mink-coated ladies was plucked to perfection. Every hat was blocked on the same model, and from the same angle. One could almost hear the head woman say: "This shape is much too becoming this season."

Sweetly pretty as a box of bon bons, the Countess Gravina. She is, have an olive, or even a salted peanut for that matter.

But the American girls' lack of intelligence, according to European eyes, has driven us the open door over, seems to be that good points of individuality in the passing fashions, while the type is disregarded. It is something this is worn. American women are not individualistic enough in dress.

Maybe we are so ago back, all the apple-cheeked girls were reaching for those little brimless hats that look like bowls, and the taller three over. And the Greta Garbo haircut with the long bob, or overnight bending into an ugly duckling. What was piquant for Garbo was sauce for the goose, but not for the gander.

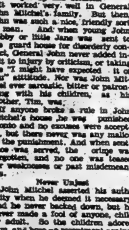
"Know Thyself!" In the case of girls, the wisdom means knowing your good points and making the most of them.

Only Friend Can Punish Child

Status of Relations Decide If He Will Accept Discipline

By Lisa Grundelius

The children's teachers were sidelined by trade and choice. Three army men, they believed in discipline for young and old alike.



Modern children, the brothers believed, were spoiled by sentimentality and pests, headed for no good end. Their methods, they decided, would be brought up like soldiers.

It worked very well in General John Allen's family. The children of John was such a nice, friendly sort of man, even when young John broke his toys or his Jane was sent to bed without supper for disorderly conduct, General Jerome added insult to injury by criticism, or taking the "I might have expected it of you" attitude. Nor was John Millard ever rewarded, bitter at not agreeing with his children, as his brother, Tim, was.

If anyone broke a rule in John Mitchell's house he was punished pronto and no questions accepted, but there never was any malice in the punishment. And when someone was served, the cringe was forgotten, and no one was teased for weeks on the past misdemeanors.

Never Unjust

John Mitchell asserted his authority when, and because, he was loved and he never backed down, but he never made a fool of anyone, child or adult. The grown children loved him, and bore no resentment against him when punishment came. Indeed, he became he was their friend and good sport. He proved that every day of duty. He never was unjust, cruel or unreasonable. He never took advantage of them.

Mrs. Tim Millard's was different. Though no stricter a disciplinarian than his brother, his children considered him a tyrant. Each one hated him, and each counted the days until he left, so that he could be independent of him forever.

I think you understand the difference—the same principle, if not carried out so differently.

There were two families of strictly-disciplined children. The one was happy, unrepressed, reposative—respecting but not fearing authority. The second was repressed, resentful, deceitful, not respecting and fearing and hating authority.

We can all forgive being "told where to get off," if it is by a friend someone who likes us, believes in us and respects us. But we resent bitterly a rebuke by anyone we feel is not a friend, who we feel despises us, and therefore is unfair to us.

DAVE AWAY BABIES—Facing a seemingly hopeless fight against poverty, Mrs. Linda Jones of San Francisco sent a neighbor into a public park to find volunteer foster parents for her two baby children. The neighbor's mission was successful. Soon after Mrs. Jones' husband has taken the matter to court.

Why do capable individuals sometimes fail? Why do persons who are well prepared, whose spiritual and industry are above reproach, still achieve only a moderate degree of success?

Little things discourage others. They make people cynical and give them a feeling that they can't succeed. However, there is a cure for everything, and these types of individuals, those who ought not to fail but do, are no exceptions to the general rule.

One of the commonest causes for failure is lack of punch. You may remember that in the days of the old prize ring, the punch was the most effective and decisive blow.

No prize-fighter, for example, ever made mighty headway if his hands did not strike hard at a vital point. He will not deliver a telling blow.

Proper Care of the Hair Has Beneficial Results

(By Helen Follett)

Scalps should be rubbed and hair should be brushed often as a hair care produces results. It's not pleasant to realize that as the years go by more and more people lose vitality and tresses thin out. One might as well keep that fact in mind. Thank goodness women are not bald! That is man's share of inheritance.

While healthy hair is closely associated with physical well being, there are simple laws of hygiene that apply to it constant and in hair spirits. Hair that is neglected looks neglected in life. Hair that is groomed shows the effects of careful attention.

Between the scalp and the bones of the skull is a layer of fatty tissue which is full of blood vessels. Nightly massage helps to keep this padding in form. Spread out fingers and thumbs, give your brain roof a vigorous mauling. There is no need of upsetting the splendor of the finger wave.

Massage of hair work acts as a scalp treatment. Brushing is stimulating, but use both applications. Felt hats should not be worn long at a time. Diet has something to do with hair health, too, so drink milk with your meals, eat lettuce and take orange juice before breakfast.

Smooth and lovely arms are the result of exercise. Soft skin surface is rough or speckled, massage with cocoa butter. Have a bath, slap briskly with hands dusted with talcum powder.

Broadening the back, high, wide and handsome will make large ones appear small. Exercising this muscle causes exercise of that character. Graceful movements are gained. Even better is it to swing Indian clubs.

Graceful movements of the arms, a straight back, a flexible wrist is important if one is to make the beauty grade.

"GLITTERING GIRL"

By MAY CHRISTIE

Sue B was an hour and a half late for work. She had had breakfast on the train, and she did feel rather thirsty. Really, it was a shame to work and the mother of a baby thing one-months-old. Sue B was known as the Sue-Be—she must have been christened "Sue" with the same train of thought—"and a half."

Thought Nan, unkindly, "once the old trout's powdered a glass of water she'll read her the riot Act that's what she needs. Or AND BOTH! Yi, yi, her off and baby have to pay!"

To: This little cousin of Pat Arden's can be PLENTY!"

She waited till the necessary formalities had been commenced, and Miss Sue B. had departed for the paper store in the lobby.

"Well, I'm going to talk quite frankly to you, auntie dear! You're not to flip out burp, but I know it from A to Z. Nan, you're bright and determined eyes going on from Mrs. Trevor's Dicked complexion to that of her daughter. "You've got to spend your whole back of money on the latter my little or a lit here. You see, the corrupt'ation's increasing."

"Corruption?" What kind of corruption?" hiccoughed bubbled Aunt Sadie, the champagne—so which she was unaccustomed, but wouldn't be for here she had had the sail—nothing was too good for the Trevor family now!—working upon her rapidly.

"Every possible kind of corruption. Don't you realize that today mothers from all over the world flock here, trying to get away from the influence?" Cue! got to be absolutely outstanding to make any kind of hit in New York now, and especially so on Park Avenue!"

"We've got the dough," sentried Mrs. Trevor, then hastily corrected herself. "I mean, we've got no need to worry about our bank-account. This is a missing money."

Nan had great difficulty in preventing a rainbow of joy from shining over her face at that piece of news.

But get tactfully. Better start. This a nice little cousin, with Vernon then.

With what looked like an unstudied impulse, she caught Vernon's head in both hands and kissed her. "Right from the beginning. Vernon's got to strike 'em dead—that's why I turned up at the train at such an ungodly hour. That's why I called all the newspapers and told 'em you wouldn't be arriving before seven o'clock tonight," declared Nan cryptically.

"But why? Why? Why couldn't we meet the American right away?" Is he's best a true "publicity hound," Stella Trevor erased her upset neck forward expectantly.

"Because I wanted to do one of things—to give you a kind of private once-over. Forgive me darling, but if Vernon's going to make a hit—to howl 'em over from the word 'go'—there's quite a lot of things got to be done to her appearance."

At this, Vernon flushed deeply. "How don't get rattled, darling, you've really simply no need to, but you've got to live up to the gorgeous pleasure I painted of you on our cable. In a word, you've got to glitter!"

Mrs. Trevor looked uncertain whether to register offence or not. "We can buy Vernon all the jewels and the gorgeous mad she wants, if that's what you mean," she said sheerly.

"No." Nan had her ground. "I mean something different for a start. Take her hair—well—it's kind of mousey. If only it had a little shade of rosy with her pale skin and the proper make-up on her she'd be heavenly—a regular

"Good hair! Oh, I couldn't!" Vernon drew back.

"Don't look so shocked. In our set, you simply make people, darling, we all improve on Nature!"

Stella Trevor looked at her. Undaunted, Nan warmed to her fascinating theme. "If we don't paint the lily—and of course it's silly when the men don't notice us, I tell you, a girl's got to paint—we'll let 'em in the eye from the start, or they won't even see her. I assure you that's signs are spoiled. There's such oodles of parties and girls to choose from. Why in one afternoon, you'll find yourself at maybe five or six cocktail parties on Park Avenue—life's just frightfully staccato! You talk to a man for three minutes, and the next thing he's swept away from you! If you don't register at the first—have something outstanding about you' to make him remember—you've finished before you've begun!"

CHAPTER VI

Mrs. Trevor interrupted anxiously: "But ain't there serious, matrimonying fish on Park Avenue? Mr. Right? Men of Money?"

Nan laughed her laugh was typical, in one so young.

"They don't grow on every bush. I tell you, dear men are getting rarer and rarer—kind of crazy in this world. We're all kind of crazy in this

Before the ink gets dry on Pat's "I Am", Through pathways when we get her all fixed up, and then we'll get her the Trevor touch and a culture to suit, she could get away with the Vanderbilt set of cheese straw sizes."

By this time, poor Mrs. Trevor was thoroughly bewildered. Luckily that Jake wasn't here to hear Nan's slang talk—he might strike a "right shoot-fire" and back to Texas!

Still and all, this girl did know her onions—Nan might be lots of common sense in this odd advice of hers.

Nan said now: "I'll fix for a maid to join you myself, and I'll take Vernon right away with me to my beauty specialist."

She picked up a small French telephone in the drawing-room, and called Miss Mrs. Trevor could see, had called the beauty-hauge's office.

Vernon's eyes twinkled as the two girls shot down in the gray, golden-brown mid-afternoon.

"I'm not so prim, as I look," she mutter. Her mother were on confidence Terry Shannon. She wanted to be as lovely as possible—for him—for Pat Arden!

Nan gave her a sharp glance. When Vernon smiled and her face lit up one really could see the possibilities of her beauty.

Yes, by Nan, telepathy!

For suddenly she said: "I'm dying to meet that gorgeous handsome boy that was on the train with you today. Tell me about him, Vernon. Seems to me I'm into him somewhere before. What say we cultivate him?"

The clock over the desk in the gilded salon of Monsieur Bonaire on Fifth Avenue registered exactly 6 p. m. as Vernon—a transformed and undeniably striking Vernon—inspired her hat.

In an oval mirror on the wall behind the cashier's cage she stared, fascinated, at her own reflection. Soft little baby curls of a rich russet tone clustered about her cheeks that had bloomed deliciously with the "right" shade of peach-blow powder, and a hint—a mere hint of cleverly blended orange rouge at the cheek-bones.

Her eyebrows had been arched and plucked—not too much, for that wasn't the mode—(it they looked like the wings of a Mercury. Dark, green mascara had been applied to her lashes till each one stuck out straight and separately. Blue shadow-paste on the lids lent depth and mystery to her wide grey eyes.

Monsieur Bonaire himself had elegantly inserted himself into the small booth where the transformation was being one, and—staring wistfully at grande-artiste at Vernon's face had insisted that the operator accentuate the curve of her lower lip when the lipstick was being applied—"that is her type"—he pronounced it "her"—"she must look exotic!" he had murmured.

And exotic Vernon did look. Excitingly beautiful, too, in this dim golden light, in the rust-red hair curling about her delicately made-up features.

"Let me see. You had a permanent—and a henna application. Now, a facial—and your eyebrows plucked—and a manicure. That will be $17.50, Mam'selle," said the cashier.

"Darling, you look TOO 'gorgeous for words!" chirruped Nan, who had passed the time most sublimely in the Rotating Chair-couch of Monsieur Bonaire. Half-an-hour of exercising on an electrically-driven mattress on the floor, followed by pummeling and slamming of the "rollers" (couch), ditto the electric vibrators which rubbed the excess centrifugals away—and then a half hour in a swivelling cabinet, followed by a good pummelling by a Swedish-trained maid.

Although but eighteen, Nan then enjoyed a facial with all those delicious-smelling creams and lotions. She had slumbered tranquilly while the brutal beauty-coach was doing its good work on her face. And last night with "the girls"—enjoying the thrills of gay Harlem, even at eighteen, it has cost one dear to fatigue, and thy lines come visibly to the eyes and mouth.

Her shoulder-length "bob" had been shampooed and waved, and her face had been treated with the newest garnet color. Nan had used the word about Vernon's hair that she, too, simply MUST have "bobbed"—but with a half-chignon and the lips of the nails—it is the newest style from Paris!

"Darling, isn't it too gorgeous? I've come out with only about a dollar!" Vernon cried, rushing now at the desk, at Vernon's elbow. She hunted disconsolately in her large muff-bag and fished up, from the depths, but a dime and a few pennies. "Al-ready I've spent everyone here, this is all that's left."

Vernon said coolly: "I'll pay your bill. I had taken a liking to Nan, though she did not quite understand the difference between a

Nan drew a deep breath of relief. "Oh, and I almost forgot! A box of that de-vine green powder—one's face does get so red with all the excitement—and a bottle of cologne—you're reducing! I ought to put on the weed for a bit," Nan sighed. "Cocktails are really very fattening."

"Why do you take them?"

"To get a kick, of course. Everything's dreadful when you're looked on as a deadhead."

CHAPTER VII

They were passing a large and elegant store on the Avenue, and Nan abruptly halted her cousin with an ecstatic squeak.

Conscript Romance

By Thayer Waldo

By THAYER WALDO

It should be understood at once that Loretta Barnes is not typical of her profession. There probably never was another script girl in Hollywood quite like her. In the middle of fact, she was alien across Lorraine's kind all all these days.

She was cautious, timid, and irredeemedly romantic when she went to work as a stenographer at Zenith Studio. A year later only her age and her job had changed. Some one had noticed soon after her coming that she spent most of her time reading scripts instead of typing them. A little questioning disclosed that she already knew by heart a good half of all the stories on file. Things it happened that she was given a chance as a script girl to sit all day on a sound stage at the direction of the following intimately each detail of a scenario. Her concentration was intense. In the end from the very start she handled the job perfectly.

Now Loretta had a boy friend who had been a steady suitor for some while. He was the son of the family next door, out in that small suburb where Loretta lived with her widowed mother. Harry Steele was hardly the type you might expect her to care for, but certainly Loretta liked him in a gentle, friendly way.

One Friday evening shortly after she had won promotion, Harry came over to her home.

"I thought," he said, "that I might like to take in a movie. There's a double bill at the Superba."

She smiled and put on her hat, and they went. On the way home Harry said rather coolly: "I made a big sale today. Will you marry me?"

Loretta was taken aback. "Why, Harry, I—I don't know what to say. I—I never thought of you that way. I can't seem to make you understand how I feel. This selling insurance is new, and just that's what I want. I—oh, it's so hard to explain! All my life I've longed to meet the men of wonderful people that writers put in their stories. They always are splendidly and do fascinating things. But somehow the people I know all seem to lead pretty-much Gall existences!"

Harry Saturday forenoon was a busy one on sound stage 6 at Zenith. They were shooting the final sequence from "Tempting the Duchess", and it didn't go any too well. Toward noon Loretta was glad of the respite when lunch hour came.

"Let's go out somewhere," suggested impecably dressed tall man with a little dark mustache flopped up to her table.

"Pardon me! I believe you're the young woman I met last night. Might I see it just a moment, please?"

Wonderingly, she gave the bulky volume into his outstretched hand. He opened it at the middle and began to read off some dialogue in a low, carefully modulated voice.

"Very nice," he said at length; "very nice indeed."

He turned to Loretta then, gesturing apologetically.

"Your employer wouldn't mind if I just dropped in to watch the filming for a while, would he? I—I thought I'd like to have a look and see if they'd done me justice."

"Done you?" she echoed vaguely.

"Why yes. I'm a friend of the author, you know, and he specified this character Frans, after me."

The look of outdazzled awe was there on Loretta's face for anyone to see. Fortunately, it was not there for long. Her employer, Mr. Ralph Stanton, had ordered a little dull, and the afternoon was given over to discomfiture. She tried at last to establish a lull, but the tall man's order seemed not only to increase, but to grow in intimacy. At last, in desperation, she led him across the table and seized both her hands.

"You're lovely!" he exclaimed, "and you're just the sort of a lady dynamic man like me needs. So charming so restful, so—"

She tried to draw her hands away, but he merely held them, heedless of chairs. In the throes of the struggling pair, Loretta struggled to be free. Then, with a sudden upward surge of fury, Harry Steele was standing beside the table.

Harry grappled the man, the fifty-dollar suit upper-cut and the script girl was over. Loretta huddled in her chair, weeping and trembling.

"Harry darling! I'm so glad you came! Let's get away from here!"

The last I heard, Harry and Loretta were planning their marriage for the near future. I happen to know, incidentally, that he has never told her of the little scene that was to turn the scene he punched. Also, I know that Loretta is wondering and Harry feels rather guilty about the whole thing.

But of course, that doesn't matter at all, because Loretta has her man, and that is the thing she guesses that she suspects, it was a big-up job. I think she suspects very wisely, that he just wouldn't understand how she could find it in her heart to be interested in Yesterday the House passed the third reading and it is now before the Senate. When the Upper House passes the ratifying bill the treaty will be formally in effect although for practical purposes it has been operative under executive powers since the beginning of the year.

Conservative Leader Bennett summed up the opposition to the pact just before it received its third reading and argued it was a bad bargain for Canada. The concessions obtained were not great enough to justify the concessions granted, he said, and it would result in loss of employment in Canada.

Bennett Does Not Agree

Conservative Leader Bennett said everyone agreed there should be better relations between the United States but he could not agree with the terms of the treaty.

"In his opinion, the treaty would not give "an opportunity for a single dar's work for a single Canadian." It would not di-

Belleville Municipal Band was then introduced and received with a splendid reception by an appreciative audience. The band rendered some five numbers in all. One of the outstanding musical presentations of the night was a concerto, the cornet solo by the band and Mr. Leo B. Riggs at the piano, which was the first number on the program, number the overture to the "Poet and Peasant." The manner in which Mr. Riggs rendered the concerto and later harmonized with the band in the louder tones was inspiring as the music blended perfectly throughout, applause following each number by the nine year old Ruth Hagerman brought an encore as this little songstress responded with a response in rendering difficult contortion dance steps.

Musical Program

One of the most appreciated numbers on the program was a [illegible] Medley, "Memories of Doctor's Journey" by Ian MacLaren while for the encore Miss Tubb gave a most pleasing rendition of Miss Leona Riggs in her usual masterly style sang "I'll Be Dif ferent" "Madame Butterfly" and "Passaglad" by Lely Delibes, Miss Riggs' accompanist. Both solos were highly appreciated as they gave range for Miss Riggs splendid voice. Leaf, but not least, were the pianhero rendered by the Belleville Male Quartette, Messrs J. Beckler, A. Thane, H. Howard and D. Moorcroft. The quartette capably rendered four numbers, all being well received and perfectly accurate. The songs were "Boys of the Old Brigade"; "He

ROAD DAMAGE ON WEST SIDE HEAVY

Parts of Asphalt-Macadam Surface Are Torn Away by Flood

Road damage all through the flood affected area of the city will be great, considerable total will result, all much expense this year, it was stated by officials of the Public Works Department after their first survey carried out this week. Most of the damage will be sustained by the Coleman-Colborne Streets area, where the force of the heavy current rippled up and due largely to the heavy protective coating of asphalt macadam surface, the roads are sections away and washing sub soil to the limestone base, more distance under. Even on Front Street, soft patches in the not-yet-dried road have been noticed, and a fair present heavy traffic is being declared to have caused the damage. Any drying permits boring and excavation at suspected spots in order to find the approximate damage.

SUCKER RUN WILL SOON COMMENCE

River All Clear And The Vanguard Has Arrived

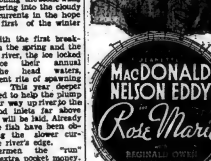
The "sucker run", from time immemorial a signal for members of the fishing fraternity of the city and district to stand by in order to commence, Word has been spread through the ranks and already men have been patrolling the lower reaches of the river, peering into the cloudy depths of the waters in the hope of landing the first of the winter fattened fish.

Coincident with the first breakup of the ice in the spring and the clearing of the river, the low bush cod commences their annual migration to the lower reaches, where the ancient rite of spawning is carried out. This year, longer than expected to help the plump fish breast their way up river to the shallow water and inlets far above where the eggs will be laid. Already the first of the fish have been observed following the slower currents along the river's edge.

For the fishermen the "run" means a little extra pocket money. The residents of the district, with Lent not yet finished, it means a welcome variety with the home caught fish as the chief item on the menu. Although despised by some owing to the number of bones per fish, when properly cooked and served, older and more experienced inhabitants in many cases prefer the flavor of the sucker to the pike or many other fish of the not so called "coarser" species.

POLICE BLOTTER

Mischievous youths are reported to have broken two street lights on Charlotte St. early last evening. The complaint was registered at the police station by Mr. John Parks, 36, Charlotte St., who informed authorities two boys were seen in that neighborhood following which the street light bulb had been broken. P. C. Arnott investigated and reported, that although no person had actually seen the boys break the lights, it was apparent, that had been the case of deliberate destruction. This is not the first occasion of similar wilful breaking of street electric light bulbs, which is creating considerable annoyance.



Miss M. M. Lloyd, R.R. 3, Belleville, complained to the police her automobile had been badly damaged by an alleged "hit and run" driver last yesterday afternoon. Miss Lloyd parked her motor car on the south side of Campbell St. while shopping, and upon her return found the left side of the body and the fenders badly dented and scraped. Constables Officer Fred Izard assisted in the investigation and reported the sideswiping had doubtlessly been done by a passing truck or large motor car, but regretted to say that the rack of the truck had crashed into the side of Miss Lloyd's automobile. No reports of such an accident were received at the police station, making the accident a "hit and run" collision. This accident will be thoroughly probed.

Picton police seized assistance to the possible location of a motor car stolen in that town early yesterday. The vehicle was described as a 1929 model Ford coupe, green painted blue. It bore Ontario license plates number [illegible].

No arrests were made in Belleville, as the result of the search, during the cell block clear for the 21 transients, who appeared at the police desk for a night's lodging last night.

BRITISH ISLES ENJOYING SPRING

250,000 People View Giant Liner Queen Mary

(By Thomas F. Champion)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
London, March 24.—(CP Cable)—Spring-like weather came to Britain today and over the week-end and attracted thousands into the countryside.

Similar conditions prevailed in Scotland. A quarter of a million people went to the Clydside to see the giant liner the Queen Mary. The new ocean giant is scheduled to leave tomorrow for the open sea on her first trial run.

Her great hull slides out miles of countryside, and crowds on the high-roofs of surrounding buildings. Wednesday 14,000 Glasgow engineering workers went aboard the 79,000-ton ship. With thousands of relatives of the 1,000 men in the built liner 1,000,000 people are expected to line the banks of the Clyde, Thursday when the Queen Mary takes her 13-mile river trip.

At some points the Clyde is little more than 300 feet wide. The Queen Mary has a breadth of 118 feet. Should a gale arise, her designers will probably be postponed. Right tugs will have the task of guiding her down the river, which calling several hands calling for carefully-calculated manoeuvering.

Those who journeyed into the country over the week-end beheld crowds and prisoners in full uniform and hedgerows bursting into green almost overnight.

"Jump Monday," as the Sunday before the Grand National is known at Liverpool, saw one constant stream of variegated humanity totalling around 200,000 wending around the course at Aintree, inspecting the fences and ditches which help to give the sweep of title of the world's greatest steeplechase.

The highest jump is a thorn hedge, five feet two inches, near the stands with a six-foot ditch on the take-off side. The water jump, immediately following the thorn fence, is 15 feet over all, including a two-foot six inch taken time.

Knowing ones pronounce the course just right, neither too wet nor too dry.

DUCE PREDICTS NEW WAR AHEAD

Claims Italy Has Enough Iron For Peace or War Needs

(By Andrea Berding)
(Copyright 1936 the Associated Press)

Rome, March 24.— Premier Mussolini, predicting the coming of a new war has abolished the Chamber of Deputies and all large private industries in Italy.

It Does Not only machine and small private industries intact and said of large private industries: "We are going forward on the principle of 'election' campaign. Only Nazis will run for office and only Nazis will count the ballots. Hitler is showy here making a speech at Karlsruhe. The voting, which takes place to approve Nazi activity for the past three years, will be held March 29.

HITLER ON "ELECTION" CAMPAIGN.—While nations of Europe, signatories to the Locarno pact, negotiate for settlement of a brought about by Germany's re-entry into the Rhine, Adolf Hitler hurls defiance at them as he stumps up and down the country in an "election" campaign. Only Nazis will run for office and only Nazis will count the ballots. Hitler is shown here making a speech at Karlsruhe. The voting, which takes place to approve Nazi activity for the past three years, will be held March 29.

In further explanation of his drastic move on industries, the Italian premier declared it was inconsistent able profits should be made from the manufacture of war materials.

Standing under the shadow of a great statue of Julius Caesar, the Italian dictator declared images of Nazi sanctions "will remain a mark of infamy on the ideal Duce of Europe, just as furnishing material and moral aid to Ethiopia will remain as a page of dishonor."

He said Italy had had enough from for either peace or war needs.

Mussolini scornfully also asserted, is "dominated by the money powers of the inescapability of the fact that the nation will have to take to the task of war."

"This dramatic eventuality must guide all our actions," he proclaimed. "In the present historical period, the fact of arms, together with the doctrine of Fascism, are the determining elements in the relations of the state with regard to the economy of the nation."

Il Duce concluded his speech by declaring:

"The indomitable will of generations is now coming up to capacity for the fulfilment of the destiny that of blood, which, it has been demonstrated time and time in the first period of the century, are sufficient elements to raise our faith and to open the gates for our future."

Fakes Kidnap Plot, And Gets Four Months

Manchester, England, March 24.—(AP)—Arthur Molyneux, 31, Lancashire, was sentenced to four months imprisonment on a charge of attempting to extort £200 (about $1,000) from Countess Barbara Hutton, Bluguelle-Revelstoke.

Molyneux admitted writing a letter to the Woolworth heiress, offering to disclose a plot to kidnap her new-born son, but declared his story of such a plot was "pure invention."

FIRE IN MILL MAY BE PROBE

London, Ont., March 24 (CP)—The Ontario Fire Marshal's office may be asked to investigate the fire in the old Mining Corporation of Canada mill here over the week-end, it was announced Monday, official of Cobalt Properties Ltd., and Fire Chief Thomas Belanger here there are suspicious circumstances about the origin of the fire.

Mr. Brodekirk was in Toronto today in connection with the fire. Estimates of the loss are unavailable.

Town officials investigated failure of the Sasagiaga Lake pumping station to function during the fire and learned the engineer did not hear of the fire until two hours after it started. Two alarm boxes were not functioning. It was found

...ndits SOUGHT IN THEFT PLAN
...ght Operator at Oakville Seizes Thief's Revolver

Oakville, Ont., March 24 (CP)—Search continued for the bandits who held up the night operator of the Oakville Canadian National Railway station Sunday night.

Frank Howard, night operator, fled the bandits when he secured a rifle their owners and first line Mr. Howard had been forced to hold kidnapping. Howard believed it was not better about the 18 months he served in prison for arson before him late Friday night.

"The trouble I was in shadowed her life at the end," he said today after the home of Mrs. Wm. Davis, his sister, to which he came after a visit at his mother's trial acquitted him late Friday night.

"I was locked up and I couldn't get to see her."

Now Meisner — always dapper throughout the court proceedings that followed his arrest on the kidnapping charge — has settled down to take up in some little business here.

"This is my home town," he said. "I think I have a family for picking chickens and selling things like that. If I had the money I'd like to open up a little haberdashery place."

Lounging in a black-and-white checked suit, Meisner, who sometimes wears the slender former Covington, K.C.P. gambler man, admitted his haberdashery plans were not definite.

He is thinking over some other ideas as well.

He had nothing to say about seeking reparation for the year-and-a-half he spent in Kingston penitentiary. This action is by the bank of Charles W. Bell, K.C., veteran Hamilton lawyer who defended him at both his trial and the hearing of John Labatt London brewer.

Meisner does not intend to try to get back into the United States. No definite arrangements have been made for his wife to come to Windsor from Covington.

He found out definitely during the past few months, he said, that Jack Peterson, Windsor man serving 15 years for the kidnapping, had nothing to do with Meisner's being named as a suspect in the case. "I thought so at first, but I found out from him that one day back to me when I was in there, that Dunmore didn't have a thing to do with my going to jail," he said.

He plans to relax for several days. Describing his feelings when Mrs. Jury was out Friday night he said:

"When they came back about 9 o'clock from the show I more confidence I thought sure I was going to be released. But when they didn't come back at 11.45 and said they found me not guilty I nearly jumped out of my skin."

BOYS "GONE CAR CRAZY"

Chatham, Ont., March 24.—(CP) "They have just gone car crazy," said W. Carnegie, Crown Attorney, pleading for saniency for his son, Thomas, 17, and Keith McTavish, 18, arrested for the theft of gasoline from the Imperial garage at Muirkirk, March 13. They ran out of gas seven miles from home and were arrested. Sentence was suspended in the case of the fifteen licenses being cancelled.

RUM FROM FRANCE DOWN $3 GALLON

New Agreement Between Canada And France Completed

OTTAWA, March 24.—(CP)—Rum from France and the French Colonies will enter Canada subject to a duty of $7 per gallon instead of $10 under a new arrangement between the two countries the British preferential rate on rum is $6 per gallon.

The statement said:

Under the new arrangement, which comes into force March 31, rum from France and French Colonies will be dutiable at the intermediate tariff less, 30 per cent. i.e., $7 per gallon compared with the present rate of $10 per gallon. The present rate, under the British Preferential tariff, is five dollars per gallon.

Cigarette paper, gummed or not, per cent. and velorem will be dutiable at 15 3-4 per cent. Cigarette papers, rummed or not, in folder booklets or packets, hitherto dutiable at 27.42 per cent, will be reduced to 22.75 per cent. The British Preferential rates on these items under the bridge of last year, is respectively 10 per cent and 17 1-2 per cent.

The French Government, on its part, has undertaken, during the present quotas for the future, to accord sympathetic consideration to Canadian products. Canada is accorded new quotas, covering the final half of 1936, on the following products in addition to those on which specified quotas are granted under the modus proposed signed at Ottawa, February 26, 1935—Vacuum cleaners, porcelain and metal electric heating and cooking apparatus.

Canada is also accorded the benefit of the French minimum tariff on selenium, needles for knitting machines, hairpins and outboard motors, the latter subject to an import quota of 1,500 pounds per annum. A number of items had substantial reductions in duty, while being substantial in each case as previously these goods were subject to the rates of the French general or maximum tariff.

TWENTY CHANGES IN NORTH TREATY

New Pact Leaves Way Open For Japan And Italy

LONDON, March 24.—(AP)—The drafting committee of the International Naval Conference, in its final session, made about twenty or more changes in the text of the new Naval Treaty.

The Treaty will be signed Wednesday at St. James Palace, the delegations hoping it will go into effect on April 1, 1937, when the Washington and London Naval limitation Treaties expire, and remain in force for a period of six years.

Although now only a tri-power Treaty between Great Britain, the United States and France, it will be left open for adherence later by Japan and Italy.

The chief difference between the existing treaties and the new Treaty is the fact that limitations in the size of fleets is abolished. Limitations in sizes of ships and guns are retained however.

The ratio of 5-5-3 between Britain the United States and Japan is no longer mentioned. The ratio was established in 1922 at the Washington Conference.

Limitations on the size of battleships remains as at present 35,000 tons. The powers agree, however to consider in 1940 a possible reduction in size after that year if experiments on new ships, which each power plans to build, show that such reduction is feasible, from the standpoint of their naval needs.

Gun calibres are set at 14 inches, provided that the final signatories of the existing Washington Treaty must all agree on 14-inches by January 1, 1937, or the present maximum of 16 inches will remain effective.

FUTURE VETERANS

Veterans of future wars, otherwise known as college youth, have been forming organizations all through the United States, with the idea of preparing the way for a bonus for the next war in which the beneficiary may participate. Their plan is to have lots of fun before they do any fighting with guns and bayonets.

One writer calls this organization the opposite of Tennyson's thought of stretching a hand through time to catch the far-off interest of tears, for it is going to cash in on future tears and sorrows.

If there are any munition men who want war and strive to create war, this organizing in advance must be extremely distasteful and irritating. Wars should make armament men rich if anything does but to think of the prospective soldiers getting something out of future wars is not to be countenanced. Why these young men will next be asking that warlike powers present the units of the future veterans' organizations with a detailed statement of how many men will be killed, how many wounded, how many missing and then to cap it all they will ask a pay in the final settlement before the war begins. Will the diplomats agree to anything so revolutionary? It is not to be thought of.

However the organizing of college youth teaches a great lesson. It will make people think. But unfortunately it does not make those think who live in other lands where democracy is not as free as it is in the United States where prospective soldiers will be permitted to organize. In dictatorial countries such inferences and suggestions that war and war settlement are not all that they are thought to be would not be permitted.

REAR LIGHTS

A Tilbury clergyman has made a name for himself as one who would willingly go to jail before he would pay a small fine for driving his car with the rear light out, his contention being that he did not know it was out and that it was burning when he started his trip. But according to the last heard of this case, his plans was to be foiled, as he was being given the opportunity of being put in jail. It was said a friend was to buy the piano at the auction and return it to him as a symbol of his appreciation of the minister's services to the community.

Why should not there be a light on the dash to indicate that the rear light is burning? Is there any mechanical objection to this?

Many persons naturally sympathize with the man who drives a car and too late finds that the rear light has gone out, and he is brought to court and found guilty and ordered to pay a fine. To them it seems unfair that the motorist should not be warned. On the other hand absence of rear lights may cause an accident. It would seem natural that the best thing when a car is driven without a rear light out is that it should as soon as possible be got off the highway or road until the light is repaired. And how is the man who drives the car to know he ought to be off the roadway as his light is out?

It is stated that many a man without a light on his car has been warned and that these warnings have brought forth the natural response one would expect and that hence officers have to lay charges as it is their duty so to do when they discover an infraction. Then others place the onus on the magistrate in such cases.

Owen Sound Sun-Times thinks the minister did not set a good example in this case as he possessed the right to appeal if he were dissatisfied with the magistrate's judgment. "Instead of that he plays the martyr and by his act one practically tells the world that the law has no business to interefere with him. He should remember that many other men have had to submit to what they considered unjust treatment, that many have been penalized for offences of which they were only technically guilty. At the same time we may suggest that the traffic officer and the magistrate might have considered the clergyman's good record of eighteen years without any trouble."

Woodstock Sentinel Review thinks the magistrate need not have imposed the fine even if he imposed the costs on the cleric.

Ottawa Journal expresses the view that the parson should pay his fine and forget the incident. "Admitting that his offence was not his fault still he had no case. Were a court to rule because a defendant did not know his light was out, and anyway carried a spare bulb, he was innocent of the charge, this section of the law—which has every justification for existence—would become in effect a dead letter. It then would become necessary to prove, before a conviction could be obtained, that the driver knew he had no tail light."

So let the engineers come forward with device to indicate on the dashboard whether or not the rear lamp is burning. If with that no such plea could be made as this of the Tilbury man against conviction.

SERVICE

I have so many servants
Wealthy am I,
From by-gone days
And far-off lands
They dig and dip
And bring me riches,—
Wisdom of priests and prophets,
Knowledge of science,
Invention and the arts.
And today,
All East and West,
Both Tropics and the Arctic zone,
Combine to serve me
With their choicest gifts.
From dawn to dawn
They bring with cheer
My sustenance,
Wars I alone,
No helpless infant
In a worse estate
Than that, would be.

'Tis mine to greet each servant
With a comrade's sign,
To pass along to others
When my turn has come,
Nothing is mine to keep
But for a fleeting moment.
I live to give.
It is inevitable.
But what and how I give
Is somewhat mine to choose,
I cannot pass another by,
But what virtue or ill,
Exceeding small or mayhap great,
Does pass between.
I, too, must serve,
So let me ever keep
"God bless you"
Written clear upon my forehead,
Thus to cheer
Another server
As he passes on his way.

HARVARD AND YALE EIGHT OARED CREWS have begun spring training but the crimson was chased off the Charles by flood waters, while the blues had to leave the Connecticut for the same reason. MONEY'S SCARCE SAY SOME PEOPLE. How come? The world is full of money and running over. Jack Benny, who makes people laugh, assisted by Mary Livingstone, his wife, has an annual income of $400,000. (Laugh that off).). Joe Penner, another laugh maker, got $50,000 for the radio right to "Donald of the Navy," which shows that Joe's silly patter about "Wanna Buy a Duck" wasn't so silly after all. Major Bowes says he is not taking in over a million dollars a year with his amateur hour racket, although some folks say he is, plenty more. A good hockey player is worth $10,000, more or less, and baseball players are paid for $100,000 and up per player. Take it by and large there is no scarcity of money. Why, several million dollars a year is spent in North America on a commodity like the cosmetic bill of Uncle Sam is unbelievably up in the millions per year. So, mister, can you give me a dime for a cup of cawfee", is only one of the minor rackets, after all.

THE JOHNSTOWN FLOOD OF 1889, is being repeated, but on smaller scale. The flood of 1889 caused in the neighborhood of 2,000 deaths, when a large dam suddenly went out and submerged the entire valley which contained the community of Johnstown, Pennsylvania. Many heroic stories came out of that flood, the most interesting, perhaps, being the little telephone girl who staid at her post ringing up and warning everyone within the path of the flood who had a telephone— the first of the switchboard heroines. The Johnstown flood of 1936 is costing lives but not in any proportion to the other, and plenty damage to property. Present day public calamities are easier to cope with than those of a couple of decades ago when telephones were a toy and transportation was without motor cars and aeroplanes.

GLASS THAT BENDS BUT WILL NOT SHATTER, that cracks but will not sliver, is now possible. Tests recently made of a new safety glass indicate that the goal of glassmakers for years has apparently been reached. Glass that stretched like rubber and rolled up like a rug is now being shown in New York City. Various tests have been made of it—a mule was permitted to kick a panel out of a frame—it came out all in one piece. A football player bucked a sheet of it and it bulged six inches but would not break. A baseball player threw baseballs at the glass, and a strong woman from the show "Jumbo" tried her tricks on it but the glass survived. And so folks that live in glass houses will soon be able to throw stones, if the advance notices of the new glass are supported by performance.

LICENSE FEE IN BUILDING

Proposal Made to Legislative Labor Committee

Toronto, March 31.—(CP)—Proposal for a licensing fee for employers in the building industry and a recognition by regulation for machinery was made to The Ontario Legislature Labor Committee by R. A. Pilkington, chairman of the Advisory Board of Toronto Building Connections. The Labor Committee at its first meeting heard representatives of Labor and Industry on various problems affecting the workers.

John W. Bruce, representing International Labor Relations Board, was imminent. "You've got to put people to work and give them a decent standard of living," he said. "If you don't they will take it."

W. J. Fagler, chairman of the Toronto Home Builders Association, said building operations in Toronto, were less than last year and he attributed this largely to the Industrial Standards Act passed at the last session of the Legislature. Because of this Act, he said, the cost of a $10,000 house was increased by 17 per cent. because of the Act.

DAPPER ITALIAN IS IDENTIFIED

Witness Says He is One of Men in Hold-up Slaying

Montreal, March 24.—(CP)—Joseph Carwel, dapper little Italian, brought back from California to stand trial on a double charge of murder arising from the 12-year-old bank of Hochelaga holdup, was identified in court today as one of two men who drove the bank messenger and escaped with about $160,000 in currency.

The identification was made by Adam Parillo, 58, serving a life term for his part on the holdup of April 1, 1924. Four others were named and one of the bandits, Ad Stone, was left fatally wounded in front of the bank car.

Parillo recalled how he and his accomplices had set out that afternoon to hold up the bank as it drove under a railway subway. He said Carwel and another gunman also had been summoned to court as witnesses in another holdup trial but left the courtroom to stage the bank car robbery.

"The man from the fish and bird store brung me a goldfish today, for bring a time of a round goldfish in a square aquarium, and ma couldn't hardly wait for pop to get home for him to see it, saying, Isn't it a beuty, Wiliyum?

I must say no fish has ever impressed me more, pop said.

And saying any had ever impressed him any and other support ma said, I've been trying to think of a name for him all day, Wiliyum, but it must be a name appropriate to a fish, that's the first and last consideration.

I see your point, pop said. For instants Bruno and Fluppo and Otty are appropriate names, but not to a fish, so suppose we eliminate them, he said, and ma said I never even considered them.

I noticed you alluded to the fish as him, pop said. That's too bad, because if it was a her I could suggest a appropriate name.

I mean fanny, short for Josephine, he said, and ma said, I like the very much, Wiliyum, it shows thaught.

And after all, the chances are even that it's a her, pop said, as the other feminine name is Goldy, short for goldfish, he said, and ma said, Yes, but suppose it's a him after all? I mean, if it's 6 to one that it's a her it must be half a dozen of the other that it's a him, she said.

Very well figured, Professor Einstein, pop said. The only appropriate name I can think of is Fuppy. As fish are more or less pop eyed, aren't they? he said and want to see if I can't get a rise out of him, he said, and he said, I suppose you wouldn't consider Poory, for poor fish, he said, and ma said, certainly would not and you know it. I think while I'm waiting for an inspiration I'll just call him Fishy, she said.

Being what she's been doing.

Carrying Place

Carrying Place— Slipping on an icy doorstep last Wednesday morning, Mrs. John Quackenbush suffered a fractured ankle and other leg injuries when she fell heavily. The injured woman was attended at once by Dr. F. L. Reid of Trenton and later removed to Belleville General Hospital. An X-ray disclosed a triple fracture just above the ankle joint while the bone itself was dislocated. Mrs. Quackenbush was allowed to return to her home the following day where she is reported comfortable now. The sympathy of the community is with her in her fever and her family. The second and equally unfortunate in view of the fact that winter with its ice is by no means gone. Mrs. Ross Hennessey of Trenton is attending her mother at present.

At a time when every newspaper on the continent is awash with flood news this community is happy to have none, although a great share of the section is almost perfectly flat, the location so close to the Bay of Quinte and Weller's Bay lessen residents high and dry or nearly so. Meanwhile many curious sightseers have visited Belleville and Trenton to observe the marks of flood damage there and to give thanks for their immunity. The only excitement here has been the danger of wet feet; and rubber boots have become the leading spring style in footwear.

The boys of the Carrying Place Hockey Club, runners-up in the C. D.H.L., held their St. Patrick's day dance in the Parish Hall on Tuesday evening last. The unpleasant weather had little or no effect on the attendance, and a jolly crowd turned out. Tickets had been sold well in advance and this fact no doubt added to the success of the affair. Music was provided by a well-known Wellington orchestra and the dance was greatly enjoyed until a late hour. Delicious refreshments were served at midnight, and following the draw for the handsome mohair rug was made. Fortune kicked Mr. and Mr. Harry MacCluskey of Cumberland Road. Represented in the crowd were dancers from Picton, Wellington, Consecon, Trenton, Brighton, Belleville, and many localities also attended.

Mr. Jack Westfall with a number of local men, to assist has begun the ice harvest. The ice is being taken from the Bay of Quinte near the east end of the Canal, and is of good thickness and quality. Friday was storage day at the Will Corrigan farm.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hazlhorn are planning to leave the community soon to take residence on a farm a few miles south of Smithfield and not far west from this community. Those who tendered them the fun-fest will join in wishing them every success of snow and ice; but the storm as it reached us was far preferred to the recent snowfall that paralyzed the western section of the traffic.

A new door was fitted this week to the main entrance to St. Saint's Anglican Church. For some time the entrance has been boarded up while the congregation used the vestry entrance. Now the handsome new door restores the quaint dignity of appearance which this church has so long possessed.

Mr. Frank Harris has almost completely recovered from a serious foot injury received in the early winter. It will be remembered that while working in an orchard on the Yost Road an axe in Mr. Harris' hands was deflected from the shoe and food indicating a serious wound. The wound has been slowly healing. Frank is ready for school again.

During a winter when disease, especially of the epidemic type, has been rife in every school around the country, the local institution has escaped without a single reported case. This record is unprecedented, sort of record, and it is to be hoped that such will continue to be true.

Tom Hall Trenton visited for a week-end guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hazlhorn of Gardenville, returning to the city Monday morning. Miss Hall and daughter early on Monday morning. A jolly gathering of friends gathered at the Dymond home on Saturday evening to welcome this popular young couple. Among the guests both of Gardenville and of Smithfield were Mrs. Lunn, Mrs. Marilyn have spent some days as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dymond.

Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hazlhorn included Mr. and Mrs. Alex Campbell and children and Mr. and Mrs. Orr-Albert Baker and family.

Community League was held as usual on Thursday evening in the Smithfield Church Hall when the attendance so deep as to render walking impossible without high rubbers. A number of guests were attending from Gardenville made the trip with rubber boots, a fact not to be wondered at. Unfortunately due to illness and traveling conditions, the various performers for the evening's program were not able to be present at all and therefore his program was given which proved very enjoyable. The meeting was opened with the usual scripture reading, repetition of the Lord's Prayer, minutes, roll-call and discussion of business. The chairman then announced the order of events for the evening, warned each person to be ready to give some number on the program, and started the "ball rolling" with a short humorous story. Six persons were chosen to deliver two-minute impromptu speeches, Mrs. Harry La Tour, Mrs. D. Stapleton, Miss Marion Hazlhorn, Messrs. George Lyons, Ted Young and Willie MacDougall, after which each remaining person supplied either song, story or recitation. The meeting closed with the singing of a hymn, followed by delicious refreshments. Two very enjoyable contests were given by the organizers of the evening's program, Mrs. Will Taylor and Mrs. D. J. Stapleton, one a St. Patrick's contest. Organizers for the next meeting are Mrs. R. La Tour, Mrs. C. Weller and Mr. W. E. Wessy.

Mr. and Mrs. Ewart Hennessey and son of Trenton spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Hennessey and family.

Maintenance men on the Trenton highway have had work a-plenty during the past week clearing ditches in time to accommodate the flood of melting snow. Last week one day they planned to work all night on the job but the arrival of a storm of snow and rain caused a change of plan.

Mr. Will Black purchased a new Chevrolet sedan last week.

Mr. Will La Tour together with a party of Trenton friends saw the hockey game in Trenton last Sunday evening.

Mrs. Amanda Norrington has returned to her Picton home after spending the winter with Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Norrington and Barry Bay.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Baker and members of the Hamilton family were called last Sunday at the Hennessey home.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Way have taken residence in the former Elliott home on Consecon road.

Friends of Mrs. Harold Herrington were shocked last week-end to hear of her critical illness. For some time Mrs. Herrington has not been in good health but her actual relapse came as a surprise on Saturday last she was taken to Belleville General Hospital where she lies in a critical condition suffering with lung trouble complicated with pneumonia. Mr. Herrington had been employed for some time at Colborne and was pulled back to Belleville early in the week. At present the patient is improving slightly. Her friends wish her speedy and complete recovery.

Mrs. Nora Hennessey, enlisted in the Trenton, Quinte Sun subscription contest, is working consistently and is standing fairly high. Only two weeks remain in which to get points.

Mr. F. H. Hennessey has gone north to his farm at Tudor for a week or two. He made the trip by train on Tuesday.

Evening papers did not arrive on Wednesday due to the failure of Trenton buses making the trip on schedule. The papers were delayed the following day.

Mr. Robert Burris is ill at his home and after several weeks of illness is recovering slightly.

INCOME TAX BILL THRU COMMITTEE

Bitterly Opposed by Henry, Kidd And Duckworth

Toronto, March 24 (CP) — Opposed continually by Conservatives, who demanded incorporation in it of details of payments, the bill providing for reimbursing municipalities for revenue lost through provincial assumption of the income tax, passed through committee stage in the Ontario legislature and awaits third reading.

Amendments by three Conservative members, Premier Henry, George S. Henry, T. A. Kidd, Kingston, and Colonel Duckworth, Toronto Dovercourt, were defeated last night before the bill emerged from the committee stage.

Consideration of the bill, coming on its tail end of a budget debate, followed a dull period of plodding through routine matters of various measures and precipitated the only prolonged debate of the night.

The income tax bill, Council legislation that any province in Canada had collected, and then "booked."

Leopold Macaulay (Conservative) member for Toronto South, "It's a colossal blunder."

The bill provides for reimbursing municipalities, revised an income tax, for a sum equal to that collected last year. Permission is given to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to make such payments to other municipalities, the amounts being apportioned by the municipality, and school boards.

Premier Hepburn indicated that legislation will be brought at the next session providing for more equitable treatment of municipalities. Halibut concessions for British Columbia were more considerable.

There were mining concessions but they were outweighed by what they would gain in industry.

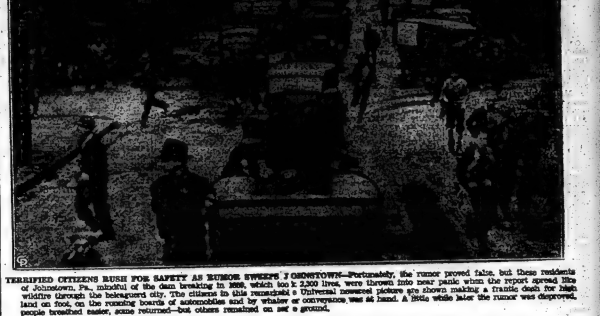
Nothing For Industry

Canada was an industrial country and had more people in cities and towns than on the farms. There was nothing in the treaty for Canadian industry. Nothing was obtained to help the secondary industries of Canada to the United States.

We have given away for what we have got than we could afford to give. Mr. Bennett, in recognition of these differences of opinion about the value of the concessions given, had reserved and time and experience alone could determine which opinion was the correct one. Judging the future in the light of the past he believed the concessions given were too great for the concessions received in return by Canada. Only experience could settle the issue, were denied entrance to American markets.

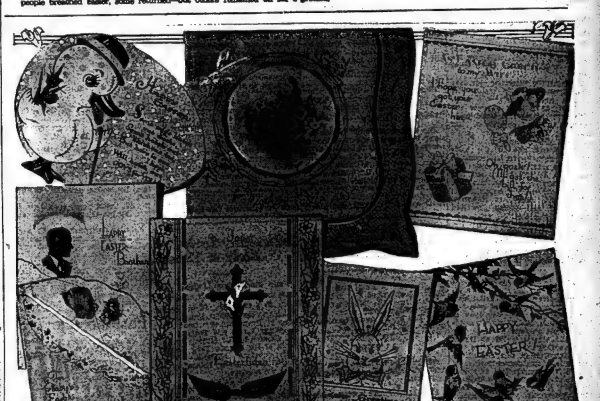
Liberal parties on the treaty, said Finance Minister Dunning, A year or two from now everyone would be a lot wiser. The government believed its treaty would be to the advantage of both countries while the Conservatives believed it was advantageous would go to the United States.

"There is no evidence that the industrialists of Canada view future with quite the alarm of the leader of the opposition," he said, as he detailed a long list of specialized industries reporting new factory projects and plant extensions.



Throughout Empire

In one case, said Mr. Dunning, that some workers had been laid off since the treaty came into operation. In some cases at least the government was satisfied the treaty was being made the excuse, where the real reasons were other factors, such as competitive conditions within Canada.



Canada's exports to the United States for February, 1936, were well ahead of exports of February, 1935, and the weights only slightly behind, the value of the treaty effect so far on record.

T. F. Reilly (Lib. Temiscamata) proved a storm centre last night when he clashed with Mr. Dunning and attacked Hon. J. G. Wilson, Postmaster-General. Premier Hepburn ruled out of order at Mr. Dunning's insistence when he made a long speech on the bills in committee the five per cent deduction in pub. lic service salaries, which were under third reading. Sir Eugene Fiset, chairman of the committee of supply, ordered the threatening letter member to the Speaker.

Later on, post office department estimates Mr. Reilly spoke for an hour complaining of the alleged tardiness of the department in dealing with a request for dismissal of a Postmaster in Temiscamingue County, by which we charged with opening two letters. He said the department was "a chamber of mysteries full of frozen assets."

TERRIFIED CITIZENS RUSH FOR SAFETY AS RUMOR SWEEPS JOHNSTOWN—Portunately, the rumor proved false, but these residents of Johnstown, Pa., mindful of the dam breaking in 1889, which took 2,500 lives, were thrown into near panic when the report spread like wildfire through the beleaguered city. The citizens in this wonderful Universal newsreel picture are shown making a frantic rush for high ground—but others remained on sur e ground.

Particularly ingenious this year are c ards with religious texts.

minish, on the other hand, unemployment in industry.

The Canadian farmer, Mr. Bennett said, would draw few benefits from the treaty. In addition, he would be subject to competition from American farmers in vegetables and other products.

There were advantages to Canadian lumbermen, Mr. Bennett continued, but they were limited to a small percentage of the American market. Halibut concessions for British Columbia were more considerable.

There were mining concessions but they were outweighed by what they would gain in industry.

IRVINE—BELCOUR

On Saturday, March 21st, at the residence of the bride, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Belcour was the scene of a pretty wedding, when their eldest daughter, Marjorie May, was united in marriage to Mr. Roy Irvine, Rednersville, eldest son of Mrs. Ulman and the late Mr. Thomas Irvine, Rednersville. The drawing room was tastefully decorated in pink and white, the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreen, with white bells and pink and white flowers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, entered the drawing room to the strains of Lohengrin wedding music played by Miss Vivian Reddick of Belleville, whose gown was of navy lace. ROSLIN WEDDING COMMEMORATED IN MANITOBA

Twenty-five years of married life—pleas was commemorated at a silver Wedding Anniversary held at Little Birdale, Manitoba, of considerable local interest in that the principals were married at Roslin Hastings County. The bride was Miss Cora Dunean, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Duncan, of Roslin, Mr. Duncan being very well known and popular as he took a deep and active interest in all community movements and occupied various positions of trust in connection therewith. The groom was Rev. J. A. McConnell, at the time pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, at Roslin. After serving seven years in Roslin and taking to himself a wife there Rev. McConnell left for the West. The groom is a brother of Mrs. Donald Leslie and the bride a cousin of Mr. Donald Leslie.

In the Picton Record, decorations considerable space to the event.

A beautiful silver service was presented by Rev. Mr. and Mrs. McConnell, the gift of Little Britain and Cloverdale districts, also a bouquet of roses from the Dominion Creek. A three-tiered wedding cake" added color and beauty to the occasion as well as zest for appetites.

How to Keep Colds
UNDER better CONTROL

Catching Cold?...
Vicks Va-tro-nol helps
Prevent many Colds

At the first warning nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze, use Vicks Va-tro-nol—just a few drops up each nostril. Va-tro-nol is especially designed for the nose and upper throat—where most colds start. It stimulates Nature's own functions to ward off colds—to help prevent colds, and to throw off head colds in their early stages. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps avoid many colds.

Caught a Cold?...
Vicks VapoRub helps
End a Cold Sooner

If a cold has developed, rub Vicks VapoRub on throat and chest at bedtime. VapoRub acts direct—breathe as it rubs! (1) By stimulating deep at the skin like a poultice or plaster; (2) By inhalation of its medicated vapors direct to inflamed air-passages. Through the night this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm, soothes irritation, helps break congestion.

Follow Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds

A helpful guide to fewer colds and shorter colds. Developed by Vicks Chemists and Medical Staff; tested in extensive clinics by practicing physicians and nurses; proved in thousands of homes. The Plan is fully explained in each Vicks package.

Wedding Anniversaries

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me the wedding anniversaries — all of them?

M.

There is a difference of opinion about the symbols for the tenth and second wedding anniversaries. Sometimes the first one is given as copper, and the second as cotton. Sometimes the first is given as cotton, and the second as paper. We must take our choice about this. The third, wood. The fourth, linen. The seventh, wool. The eighth, bronze. The ninth, pottery. The tenth, tin. The twelfth, linen. The fifteenth, crystal. The twentieth, china. The twenty-fifth, silver. The thirtieth, pearl. The thirty-fifth, coral. The fortieth, ruby. The forty-fifth, sapphire. The fiftieth, gold. The fifty-fifth, emerald. The sixtieth, platinum. The seventy-fifth, diamond.

You will find variations in this list, but these are the generally accepted symbols. However, except for the important anniversaries, symbols are not used very frequently. The gift that is given for an anniversary is now in accordance that we think those being feted will appreciate for the home or the object nearest to their choice of gift to any special material.

BRIDAL ATTENDANTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me if a bride's brother can be the best man and the bride's sister the maid of honor at the wedding?

M.

The bride customarily has her sister as maid of honor and her brother as her wedding. But it is not the privilege of the bride to suggest to her groom them he is to invite for his best man. Usually the groom wishes his best friend to be his best man, or, if he hasn't a best friend, he invites a cousin or his best friend. If it so happens that the groom hasn't a brother and that his best friend is a brother of the bride's brother, then it would, of course be appropriate for him to invite the bride's brother to be his best man. But the bride shouldn't suggest this.

WEDDING GUEST

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I have received an invitation to a wedding reception. I should like to know the form of reply to this invitation. Invitations to whom it should be sent?

2. Should a man treat a woman, and a woman a man? Of course he does not ask himself as chaperon, but does he ask his father and his mother together, the two sisters of his mother together, one day he watches every little thing she does and he forms an opinion of how they feel toward each other, toward life, and their rules of conduct. Which, of course, is the only example he has, must be the right one. So he thinks, and he's taken it, without analyzing, or questioning it.

Becomes a Habit

Later on he does analyze it, of course, but he doesn't see it, but, by that time it has become such a long established habit that his instinct retains it.

Parents did not think women inferior fools as his father did, but he treated them as such instinctively because his father did.

Pretty, charming girls, from whom he could have had love, he met in the same handicap. They treat their wives as their mothers treated their fathers. They try to dominate or reform them, and insist upon possessing their every thought.

Parents' Attitude Influences Child

By LISA GRENELLE

IN THE presence of the opposite sex, Sherwin always has been accommodating, but always was interesting to the girls.

The girls didn't like it, and showed it. A handsome child and a handsome man, but they didn't compensate, not for long.

Things became a bit uncomfortable for Stewart, especially when the Raymond girl turned against him. Stewart liked Rosie Raymond more than a little, and she liked him until he started entertaining her and acting as if he thought she were a fool.

It wasn't that he thought her a fool, far from it. It was just Stewart's manner. It was something he didn't seem able to help, even when he knew it was unsuited to him.

It's hard to improve a manner you've had for a long time, a manner that's partaken you picked up unconsciously when you were small and unattractive, through the slights your self-conscious mother gave you.

Such was Stewart's case. His mother didn't think much of women, and thought they were all fools, especially his own mother. Ever since Stewart could remember, his father's attitude toward his mother was superior, rude and sarcastic. His forever was interrupting her to tell her stories of her lack, as if what she had to say could not possibly be of interest or importance to anyone.

Child Imitates Parent

And Stewart had picked it up, long before he understood what was behind it. He had watched his father use long words like Esther without knowing what they meant, or their meaning quite right. He used them just for the sound, and to appear grown up and masculine.

Reasoning it so hard and slow, Stewart was dead, and all the fine and right is keen, hungry and intelligent, and he has a good mother. How much adult manner, instinctive condoned, prejudiced attitude, is he picking up from his mother's reverence and beloved, parental example?

Not a lot. Wisdom and the knowledge of human relations. He knows no rules of human behavior from which he lives. How do you treat him? What is your attitude toward him? Sometimes it is right to him.

Should a man treat a woman, and a woman a man? Of course he does not ask himself as chaperon, but does he ask his father and his mother together, the two sisters of his mother together, one day he watches every little thing she does and he forms an opinion of how they feel toward each other, toward life, and their rules of conduct. Which, of course, is the only example he has, must be the right one. So he thinks, and he's taken it, without analyzing, or questioning it.

Care Avoids Signs of a Double Chin

By HELEN FOLLETT

STRAIN of almost any sort shows on the face in beauty lines. They wrinkle and protect their pretty skin by making tired pretender's care is almost necessary if they are to keep onto the appearance of youth.

One disfiguring sign is a little fullness under the chin. It is disturbing. Fluent chins mean that the profile is ruined. They are worse than seeing the new moon over your left shoulder. Lots worse.

If it has come under your observation when you have been talking with a girl you were proud of in the mirror, get busy at once. Trouble is brewing and it can be thwarted by prompt action. Do not begin shoving the forward with fingers spread wide apart. Push the muscles and the flesh between fingers and thumb. The low jaw necessary will loosen from getting flabby. A tendon chin taken in time can be prevented. Get it by your self start and only professional treatment will help a double chin into a state of single blessedness.

Enlarged pores are a maddening blemish. They creep up on one gradually, for one does not see the changing from a fine fabric to a coarse, ugly skin.

Out down on oily cosmetics. Use cold water freely. After exercising and bathing, dry the skin and touch it with witch hazel. Go slow on protein foods. Eat a little meat only a day, take orange juice before each meal. Vitamin foods and facial tissues are helpful because they rouse sleepy blood vessels and get them busy.

"QUEEN MARY" IS POINTED TO SEA

ortionated at 1,000,000 persons, watched and cheered from the channel.

Glistening with fresh paint—the hull from the submarine white, the three enormous funnels red — Britain's rival for the world's sea supremacy Commandle was backed out of her resting basin shortly before 10.

While crowds gathered after a fashion to watch the passing of the automobiles, a special force of seventeen thousand police were on overall, patrolled the docks of the liner and shipyard police searched carefully for glass containers.

The Clydebank celebrated the occasion with a holiday.

After a series of manoeuvres in the Firth of Clyde, the liner moved by inches, with a squad of tugs pushing and hauling, the bow of the liner, of 80,773 gross tons, was pointed down the 300-foot wide and Dominion Sugar Company. He pleaded guilty and elected summary trial.

Comer said he had to pay his rent and milk out of the relief allowance.

Comer has a previous record in Kingston Penitentiary and Ontario Reformatory and has been deported from Canada, but is stated a native of the United States.

"It looks like that if I could pay my grocery bill," he declared. He was remanded to jail for a week.

Daily Walk Is A Benefit to Beauty

(By Helen Follett)

If women could realize and appreciate the benefits of the daily walk they wouldn't need to be bored, they wouldn't lose the lovely suppleness of youth, they would not grow a nettle down. A terrible expression is settle down. No matter how many years have gone by, if an old girl has sparkle in her eyes and lightness in her toes, she's not old, she's young.

Now that beefs have come to exile and the Cuban style is in vogue, there's no reason other than laziness why every woman living in the land shouldn't be out hoofing it. It is the best way to keep down and pinking the cheeks. It is grand for the purpose of keeping down enormous lady. The meal, good for the digestion, and appetite and fine for making sleep come quickly.

Cosmetics have their place and they are important, but they don't do much for anyone who hasn't health, vitality and the endocrinology to push past the trimmings. The sun and substance of beauty dwell in a good digestion. Which comes only to those whose blood corpuscles are healthy, whose nervous systems are sound and steady.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

(Copyright 1930 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Don't stick to one color in a frock in the advice of some designers. Thus we find a lovely evening gown with the bodice of fresh pink chiffon and the skirt of smoky taupe gray. The deep frock designed by Molyneux is of the flat pink spear and emerald clips.

It won't be long before we will be thinking in terms of warm weather clothes. An advance model for daytime wear, of white silk crepe, is three-piece pleated and has a neckerchief and belt as bright crimson as Parisian fancy could be. Or be a pet color scheme this season.

X X

Added emphasis is given to a gray suit by a loose, open, knee-length cape of satin brown Alaska seal. The cape is lined with ocher, finch a cape makes it easy to wear the suit in cool weather, and is graceful to look at.

X X

No arguments about the new frocks by Junior Miss, youthful yet with grown-up touches. A frock of navy blue crepe has the bodice and cape down the front in redingote suspension. The panel is embroidered in white and the collar is also scalloped at the edges, as are the cuffs.

X X

Veils disclose their importance in the Spring millinery scheme. A turban of novelty braid straw has a veil of the same, posed at the top of the crown and has a veil, dotted with blue, drawn down and tied in a big bow at the side back.

X X

A good bet for wear now under a coat and later on with no coat is a navy crepe frock with a bolero jacket which is outlined in fabric beads.

Optometrists' Act To be Amended

Toronto, March 24.—(CP)—Premier Hepburn has given notice he will introduce a bill at the next Ontario Legislature amending the Optometrists' Act. The principal object of the bill would repeal special powers held by the Optometrists' Association.

Decision to introduce such a bill followed the Premier's recent announcement the government would repeal the powers of an Act one organization having special powers of disciplining and licensing the membership. At the time of the announcement Mr. Hepburn promised a complete study of such special legislation by various bodies.

Advice to the Lovelorn

WOMAN'S GUIDANCE DESIGNED TO RELIEVE LIVES OF MANY UNNECESSARY ILLS

Attention, please! All you boys who write and tell me you're unemployed, in love, have no prospects, and are generally crossed in your own wrecked lives.

When you feel that way, and don't know what to do next, accompanying your mother's thoughts to bed upon the advantages of the skyscraper or the river as an exit, consider the case of "Little Charlie Curtis," late Vice-President of the United States.

Have you the stuff in you to learn to speak English correctly, when the first language you spoke was not an alien one? In Charlie Curtis' case it was the patois of Kaw Indians and French. Would you have the patience to study law, between times as you drove a truck round the windy streets of Kansas City?

As your back widens, and your shoulders the railroad station, would you have the business instinct to handle fruit in a wholesale manner? And would you have the self-control to cut your feet down in a cobbler's shop, could ride as a jockey in races—for Charlie Curtis not only rode the Kansas plains, but got, too, long-winded and irrelevant, he had ridden on horseback the fastest—the trick of "making it snappy" for the statesman who followed the "die in the side curve of a race track."

And, last, encouragement to be found by the average man or woman from considering the story of the late Vice-President, is that he wasn't a genius, a superman, or one to whom the acquiring of knowledge comes as easily as breathing. Curtis was a man who had to dig, and dig hard, for everything he got.

In the life of every man who has arrived, there is always discernible a woman's hand that gave a push in the right direction at the right time.

In Curtis' case, it was his old Indian grandmother. His mother had died when he was a baby, and it was Charlie wore the blanket in his youth. But his grandmother out on the Kaw Reservation had watched the way of the white man, and she saw that if she got to her grandson early enough she could help him.

So she advised little Charlie to go with white relatives. He did, but his heart ached for the plains, the campfires, the Indian powwows, and mostly for the Indian ponies. So he came back. The was old grandmother said nothing for many moons. Then one night she woke her grandson, told him he was a big man, and to go back to his father's people—and make good.

Which he did. The old woman struck the little picnic with a quirk, and saw the dearest thing in her life she had. Indian dramas are played in the heart; the Red people do not weep or bring their troubles to the world to see.

Many years later, this writer attended an Inaugural Ball. Curtis, as Vice-President, was the star of the evening. Grandmother could not attend. And you should have seen the Indians—not only the Kaw, but others, invited him as a tribesman, but other Indian braves were there in dress parade, travel-series, feathered war bonnets, beating drums, and playing the mystical music of their forefathers.

As they greeted "little Charlie" with a burst of their music, perhaps they thought: "Then pale faces are giving us a show at last."

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, March 24.—(CP)—At the local egg market continued yesterday the downward trend in commencing last week. On that day the market dropped two cents per dozen; on Saturday prices tumbled another three cents, and yesterday a further decline of three cents occurred. Heavier receipts, as usual with the more spring-like weather, and less demand are responsible for decline, wave factors cited for the continued drop in prices. Local butter market was steady to firm. Cheese also showed no change from levels. The potato and poultry markets were unchanged. Receipts were reported at 1,450 cases of eggs, 29 boxes of butter and 1 box of cheese. Shipments for the week past show the week's aggregate in line somewhat with corresponding week Saturday.

On the egg market graded shipments ranged from 24 cases or 1,440 dozens generally averaged 24c. for A-large and 23c. for A-medium. Quotations per dozen on each side of this general level were reported.

The butter market was generally 23c. per lb. for No. 1 cartons or 1-lot, lots.

SIX TEAMS START BATTLE FOR THE BATTERED MUG

Games Played Tonight in Montreal, Boston and New York

LEAFS ARE READY

Have Best Record Over The Bruins For The Season

(By the Canadian Press)

Six teams that have been battling since last November for the chance tonight open the National Hockey League playoff season in Montreal, Boston and New York. It will take them three weeks or so to decide a Stanley Cup winner.

Because they are playing at home and any little edge they can get is valuable in post-season contests, Montreal Maroons, New York Americans and Boston Bruins are slight favorites to take opening games in the three series.

Stanley Cup winners last season, the Montrealers have beaten Detroit Red Wings in all three of their games in Montreal this season. Tommy Gorman and his men figure they will be well on their way to their first N.H.L. title when they take tonight's and Thursday's game at home.

Bruins Strong Defence

With their Shore-Siebert defence and Tiny Thompson in goal, Bruins may not need much encouragement of a rinkful of rabid Boston fans but they will have it nevertheless. Boston Gardens is sold out for their first meeting in a total-goal series between the Americans and Bruins in the two divisions.

Three New Yorkers given to flirting with the Goddess of Chance were willing to bet 5 to 4, that Messrs. Lester Patrick, Conn Smythe, etc., of the Americans will shoot down Chicago Hawks.

Not so, however, on the home-and-home series three third place finishers in the N.H.L.'s twin sections may play. The odds on the series evolved as the so-called Broadway Bosses, favored the black and white striped Hawks 11 to 10. The second game of the total goal series, will beat Chicago Thursday.

Dutton May Not Play

Along with the usual works of confidence, which preceded the two opposing camps was the information that both squads were primed for a full strength. The uncertainty was the availability of Manager Morenz Red" Dutton of the America.

An old toe injury Dutton suffered in a Wanders' Trench, along with two sprung ribs, have had him on the doubtful list. Joe Jerry Gottlieb, prodcer of Niagara Falls, Ont., has been filling in and bossing rushers around with almost as much agility as the Calgary boss flashes himself.

Dutton said he wasn't "absolutely" certain he would be able to start and to remain on the bench if things got too tough on the Madison Square Garden ice. Pilot-ing the Americ into the playoffs in his first year as manager has been satisfying, but he would like to finish them off and seal the first round. Too, it is the first time since 1928 that the star-studded brigade has made the championship round.

The line-up is perfect and the incentive is there for the old war horse" to jump into the battle if he heal is on.

Leafs at Full Strength

Leafs were expected to be at full strength for the tilt with Bruins. Boston had two injured players but neither was expected to be hobbled to any extent.

The wounds were memories of the two-goal c'ear these same teams fought in Toronto last Thursday. Tiny Thompson, in losing spite-ful goals named a bruised hip, while forward Peggy O'Neil had an ankle, that still pained a little.

Manager Conn Patrick expressed his opinion of the series. He pointed to the way the team tore through all opposition in the closing stages of the regular season and said the players were now travelling at top speed.

Doubting the Leafs was the record they compiled against the Beantowners during the long schedule. They scored three victories and two draws in the six games played with the Bruins. They also succeeded in nudging the Bostonese out of the playoffs in 1932 and 1933, the only other occasions, when they met with the championship the goal.

PEMBROKE JRS. TAKE AMHERST

Qualify For The Semi-Final Round of Memorial Cup

Moncton, March 24 (CP)—A goal from the stick of brilliant Roy Chadwick gave Pembroke Little Lumber Kings a 4 to 3 victory over Amherst Canucks here Monday night and advanced them to the Valley Junior championship to the semi-finals of the Memorial Cup playdowns.

The blond Pembroke centre broke a 3 to 3 tie just before the end of the third game of a sizzling series that recalled days of the Big Four league fo Moncton fans.

Valiant Canucks had recovered from a 9 to 4 licking in the first game to take the second 5 to 3. Last night the Maritime champions shut out the visitors in the opening period and held a one-goal lead at the end of the second, only to fall before a terrific last-period bombardment.

The Ripley brothers—Carl Frank—opened Canuck's first period attack, each scoring unassisted while Alfred Dionne completed citadel like a veteran.

Already the hero of the series Giesebrecht gave the Lumber Kings their first win early in the second and snapped in another after Lowther had added one to the Amherst total.

Entering the third period one down, the visitors let loose every-thing they had until Garrow deadlocked the count on a long drive by McBain. It looked like an overtime battle but Giesebrecht took the uncertainty out of it with a spectacular rush through the Amherst defence and a smart shot that didn't give White a chance.

DR. DAFOE REFUSES COMMENT

Woodstock, Ont., March 24—(CP)—Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe of Callander, interviewed here as he stopped over enroute to London to address a Red Cross meeting on Monday evening, refused to be drawn into any discussion of Olivia Dionne's latest move to regain control over his five famous daughters. Dr. Dafoe asserted he was "merely doctor to the family" and he had nothing else to do with their care.

APPEAL SET FOR APRIL 7

Toronto, March 24 (CP)—Appeal of Harry O'Connell against his conviction on a charge of having murdered Ruth Taylor in a Toronto ravine last November will come before the Ontario Court of Appeals April 7, it was decided. Miss Taylor's ravished body was found in the ravine Nov. 5, the day after her death.

C. R. Magone, acting for the Crown told the Appeals Court the Attorney-General had decided to pay the $800 costs for transcription of the evidence at the Assizes trial.

ONE GOAL LEAD FOR WHITBY TEAM

Two Goals by Randle in Third Period Gave Team Victory

Oshawa, March 24 (CP)—Whitby Red Wings began their defence of the Intermediate "B" Ontario Hockey Association championship against Bowmanville-Oshawa Lions here Monday night with a 5 to 4 victory in the first game of the total goals semi-final series. Two goals by Art Randle late in the third period gave the Whitby team its margin.

The game was a typical Inter-mediate playoff contest, with the lead see-sawing back and forth, the winning counter coming with only 10 seconds left to play. Whitby ran up a two-goal lead in the first period, only to have Niagara tie up the game with a clever exhibition in the second period. The Falsetto appeared headed for a victory when, after Whitby took a lead, Bishop tied the score again, while a few minutes later a great rush by Wally Grabosh put the Niagarans in front. Price Good in Goal

For the losers the work of Price in the nets was outstanding. He saved many difficult shots from close in, while the two Shrilocks and Bishop turned in stellar efforts. For Whitby, Bignal was his usual brilliant self in the nets, while Walter Brown, Randle and Ernie Knightshon were the best out front.

MAKE DECISION FRIDAY NIGHT

Question of Having Team in C.O.B.L. Will be Paramount Item

Owing to flood conditions in Belleville last week, the adjourned baseball meeting from the week prior was postponed indefinitely. Today, however, it was announced this meeting would be held in the Y.M.C.A. on Friday night of this week at which time the destiny of senior baseball in Belleville will be decided once and for all, more especially the question of continuance in the C.O.B.L. for the ch-ming season.

On Saturday last the local entry was accepted into the Central League at the semi-annual meeting of that organization, but it now remains for the organization meeting of local citizens to ascertain the future of baseball in Belleville. At the present time there is no senior baseball club or executive body functioning in Belleville and it is with expectation of filling these vacant posts, that Friday night's meeting has been announced.

The meeting is an open affair with invitations being issued to every interested citizen in this community. The entire 1935 executive of the Belleville Association resigned in a body at the annual meeting of the B.A.R.A. last November leaving Belleville without an organized baseball association for the elevation of senior baseball for the coming year.

At a previous meeting Mr. Raymond Carr, of this city, was chosen as the chairman pro tem following which it was voted to adjourn for one week during which time a consensus of opinion of the citizens and fans would be ascertained and presented at a subsequent meeting. At present there is no official senior baseball organization in Belleville and the attendance and interest shown at Friday night's meeting will be the verdict on the future of senior baseball in this city. A good team can be assured, providing the citizens get behind the team and put it over in a sporting like manner. It's either "we're in or we're out" on Friday night, so if interested attend the meeting and voice your views.

FIFTH PLACE IS GOAL OF BROWNS SAYS THE RAJAH

(By Paul Mickelson, Associated Press Sports Writer)

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 24 (AP)—St. Louis Browns will cooperate the stop and go signs of the impending American League road race.

As last season, when they detoured the Yankees out of the lead and placed the Tigers on the four yellow highways to the pennant, Rogers Hornsby and his crew have no hopes of winning the flag, but they expect to have a lot to say about who will.

Fifth place is Hornsby's goal and he genially gets what he's after. Ralph Winsett money to spend for ball players, began his clean-up campaign for 1936 as far back as last July. He got cash and outfielder Jim Bottomley and a few greenbacks, and bought second baseman Tom Carey of the St. Louis Central farm at Rochester.

The deals, raised by baseball men as the richest assortment of the year, gave the Rajah what he needed most. Fair, sure-working infield and a good hitting outfield.

Ivy Andrews, a veteran at 29, is rated as the Rajah's pitching ace. Working with him will be Jack Knott, Cuban; Roy Mahaffey, who is tried from the Athletics, and Elton Wa'kup.

WOULD CUT BILL

Toronto, March 24.—(CP)— Attorney-General Roebuck in a letter to Mayor McBride of Toronto, said the bill of Norman F. Newton, counsel for the Royal Commission inquiry into the Toronto police force, was for $5,700 and expenses of $750. Declaring the bill "should not be justified", Mr. Roebuck advised payment of a total of $3,336.

LIVER OFFICIALLY "WEIGHED"

She was tonnage of the Queen Mary was celibrated at 20,773 and her length at 1,018 feet.

The French liner Normandie has 82,000 gross tonnage and is 1,029 1-2 feet long, following recent alterations, according to French Line officials.

MAGEDOMAS WIN OVER MONCTON

Second Game Only Worke Final Score Being 7-1

Ottawa, March 24.—(CP)—Brock ville Maedomas defeated Moncton Maroons 7 to 1 here Monday night in the second game of the Mem Cup playdown series. The Ottawa Valley defenders won the series in two straight games and will get either Montreal Royals or Mam ilton Tigers in the next series.

Magedomas outplayed the Mon time champions in every department and were never headed in while game. They had too much speed and experience for the Maroons who are one of the youngest and lightest outfits ever to appear on the Allan Cup trail.

The loss for the Maroons was a three-year domination by the Maritime over Canadian amateur hockey and meant the Allan Cup will travel to Quebec, Ontario or the West this Winter.

Leading the Brockville attack was Jo-Jo Gratland, the two-goal ace in territorial play but could not fathom the heavy-hitting Brockville defence they lacked experience when they worked in close and the shooting was weak most times.

A small crowed under 2,000 people saw the game and Saturday's many friends by their backing spirit.

"PUD" KITCHEN WILL NOT TALK

Toronto, March 24.— (CP) — Walter "Pud" Kitchen, Toronto athletic star in the Canadian Olympic team, which lost the hockey title to England, had nothing to say regarding the management of the team.

"If the other players want to talk let them," said Kitchen, who came home during the week-end. "I've nothing to say. I had a good time and got along with everyone."

The big gentleman from Kitchener was a right believer the play ers during exhibition game in Paris after the Olympic series. In telling came to a head, when the name "Bear Cats" was placed on the team instead of "Canada." Port Arthur and Montreal players then staged a fist fight on the bench.

Kitchen intimated things did not go right during the games in Germany but refused to say anything against Canadian amateur Hockey Association representatives.

"There has been too much said already," said Kitchen. "It will all come out at the C.A.H.A. meeting in Ottawa in April when I'll be there."

"Pud" declares the Canucks should never have lost their game against England. He said any high class senior club in Canada could beat the present Olympic champions.

Townsend Likes Borah, Borah Opposes Bonus

Washington, March 24 (AP) — The United States capital sought to figure what effect the endorsement of Dr. F. E. Townsend, old age pension leader, would have on the Borah presidential drive.

Dr. Townsend announced his support of Senator Borah (R., Ida.) on the ground "he has moved a great deal further towards our ideals than any other candidate in office in either party."

Borah, on the hustings in Chicago over the week end, listed old age pensions as a part of his platform. But he said flatly he does not believe the Townsend plan of $200 a month payments to the aged is practical.

"GLITTERING GIRL"

By MAY CHRISTIE

The taxi was brought from the window. It was marked 230.

Vernon tried it on. She was a little nervous about the price. But when the French milliner placed it on her head at a fetching angle, it was terribly becoming to her.

When they were seated in a taxi, and Nan had given the driver an address in the Rue Pitties, Vernon could see herself reflected in a little mirror, enchantingly pretty behind her new shade of hair whose tendrils curled around the brim of the tiny model hat.

Several taxis and private cars were lined up before the grilled entrance of the Pretty Cafe. Magnificently dressed girls and smart-looking men were entering its portals—one by one, or two by two, as Nan had admitted. A tiny observation window was set in the door from which a pair of keen eyes scouted the customers before they were permitted to enter.

But Nan and Vernon didn't have to wait. They were admitted, immediately. "Nan, Mac, old scout! How's trade?" Nan winked at the doorman impudently.

The little foyer was so dimly lit that for a moment Vernon could see nothing.

Nan, however, was throwing greeting right and left into the intriguing gloom. Gradually the figures of very smartly attired young women shaped themselves. "They're waiting for tables, or for men. Place full up as usual," whispered Nan importantly.

She kissed her way about, she piloted her cousin through heavy swing doors into the "genuine" Little Marseilles. It was crowded.

People were lined three deep in front of a long counter, behind it were three men in long white coats, like surgeons. Their hands flashed with lightning speed as they jerked the ice into long glasses. Cocktails were shaken nimbly in big metal containers. A splash from one bottle, a dash from another, then some slice of orange, of lemon, of pineapple, a couple of cherries.

Around two sides of the room, which was not large, were set little tables for two, covered with cloths in red and white checker. More than twice as many people as there was space for, crowded there too. Smart, bejewelled young girls and young men whose appearance suggested there wasn't care in the world. Many of them greeted Nan, but their eyes curiously appraised the newcomer, Vernon.

"You're making a hit, old dear," vouchsafed Nan, boldly thrusting her head through the phalanx by the bar, and ordering a couple of dry Martinis. "Three-quarters of the gang are upstairs. We're a bit late for them."

As she spoke, her eyes were on the door. She was evidently expecting somebody.....

Vernon made a pretence of sipping the bitter poison in her small glass. Was this what handsome Terry Shannon had meant on the train yesterday, when he had slammed the wave of Park Avenue?

But she wasn't a prude. She was quite enjoying this new experience. The beauty that Monsieur Boraire's operators had bequeathed her this morning was augmenting the thrills.

Who was that long, lithe, aristocratic-looking man who had just entered? He wore faultlessly-fitting English tweeds, and had sleepy black eyes, which widened in a kind of surprised pleasure as they lighted on Vernon....

They were bold, handsome eyes. "They seemed to say: 'Hello! Who are you? You're beautiful!'"

Nan swung around, following Vernon's glance. She darted forward, giving a little squeal of excitement. "Why, Sugar! I haven't met in the—ick of time! Have a spot with us!"

The man with the bold black eyes and the smart English tweeds contrived to give Vernon a second meaning look as he shook hands with her at Nan's introduction. His name was Sarrail. He had small hands. His head was too small for his height. Vernon had felt, somewhere there was something a little furtive about him.

But Nan was excited, and—despite the weakness of his chin—Sugar Sarrail was very "in" just now. Shannon's class—not forceful or magnetic—but Nan seemed to like him.

"You'll lunch with us, of course? Didn't we have a divine time last night? Wasn't it gorgeous, Sugar?" "Enthusiastic child!" He turned to Vernon. His eyes, incredibly dark as they were, caressed her. "I knew Nan's pre-bellum, but nothing as flowerlike as this—"

Nan frowned, then giggled. "Sugar's a great kidder." She drained her cocktail, then ordered another. "We'll go up to lunch in a minute. I've ordered a table."

"She's a masterful child," Sugar said to Vernon. "Isn't she, my lady?" he ordered an "old-fashioned" for himself, crushing the cherry in the bottom of the glass.

"Like fishing for truth in the bottom of her well, that is, when there's much of that commodity to be found in this old town," he said as he embedded the cherry on a tiny wooden stick and passed it between Nan's lips. "She's like Galesworthy's spunky, grabbing the fruit of pleasure and drinking all the juice out of it."

"Or like Eve offering the fruit to Adam—or better still, you're the old serpent, Sugar!"

"Just as long as I'm not chased out of Eden." His eyes turned sleepily, yet with a smouldering expression in them, from Nan to Vernon.

CHAPTER VIII.

"You're coming to the Suydams' penthouse tomorrow tonight, old thing?" Nan asked of him, swallowing the cherry. Her eyes were bright with anticipation. "Say you are!"

"Perfectly." Nan nodded. She loathed Myrtle—Sugar's "superior" wife—she loathed Myrtle's "airs"—the manner in which Myrtis either ignored or snubbed her. She makes me feel like a kitchen-maid having a backdoor flirtation!" Nan was furiously to confide in Vernon later. Myrtle, it transpired, never gave any sign of not liking or being hurt by Sugar's "straying."

She came of a fine old family, and was quite a leader in her own set. Nan couldn't forgive Myrtis for her absolute poise, for the hatred way she ignored Nan—but most of all she hated her for being Sugar's wife.

"Good grief! Here she is!" breathed Nan at a tall and ultra-slender woman in a dark red suit heavily trimmed with fur walked into the crowded bar, an elderly man at her side.

"And my father-in-law with her!" murmured Sugar, his eyes no longer sleepy, but uncomfortably alert. "What in heaven's name is the old boy here for?" He slipped his glass back on the counter and nervously crushed the stub of his cigarette.

"I'll keep take on the black sheep of the family! Bah! Bah!" jeered Nan.

Ignoring Nan in the throng at the bar, and unaware of Vernon, Myrtle Sarrail came directly up to her husband. "This is a piece of luck. We thought you might be here. Father has some important business to go over with you."

Murmuring low excuses to Nan and Vernon, Sugar vanished through the door with his wife and father-in-law.

People around were grinning at Nan's discomfiture. "Hard luck, old girl! Myrtle's got a nose like a sleuth-hound! She's on to you!"

Vernon paid for the cocktails, then followed Nan out of the bar and upstairs to the restaurant. Their table was a tiny one against the wall. Nan lavishly ordered food.

Numbers of girls and their escorts stopped to speak to Nan, to be introduced to the lovely cousin from Texas. Some of Nan's good humour was restored by these continuous attentions. She was a vain little thing, and loved the limelight. Why worry about Sugar and his detestable wife, when she could see him tonight at the Suydam's party?

A very gushing woman whose hair was sleeked back from her face in a short-clipped coiffure, came over and sat with them for a little. Vernon she made herself particularly charming.

Mertina de Bray was her name. She was a widow. Anywhere from thirty-five to forty-five her age might be! She was what the French call "bien soignee"—well-groomed and striking, but not pretty.

It transpired she was anxious to go to the Suydams' party.

"My friend, Prince Ivan Karinoff knows them. He wants to take me, but I wouldn't dream of going unless it was directly arranged by the hostess. You know, Nan darling, no matter what other people do, I'm not Bohemian!" Mrs. de Bray pushed.

"Oh, I'll fix it for you, if you'll bring Prince Karinoff along tonight," unclouded Nan in a blase tone. "I may need him to flirt with. I want to give Sugar a lesson.

"Isn't she a perfectly priceless little darling? We all adore her!" Mrs. de Bray departed.

Nan looked absently after the retreating figure. "She's quite a decent sort. I've found her useful lots of times. She's good as an alibi. She made a great play for Dad before the crash, but I don't think he ever got as far as popping the question to her. Of course when he lost his money she dropped the chase—and who can blame her?"

Vernon was amazed at this frank analysis.

"It's awful to be short of money in this burg. Tina's not so young, and there's so many women on Park Avenue who haven't a penny. But the men are much of a price package when you get hard up. Cheap. Old Numan, nobility. Divine manners. Down on his luck too. They say he drove a taxi-cab in Paris for months after he got out of hospital when the Bolsheviks took him. Sporting spirit!"

Vernon had never met a friend of the blood. She was greatly intrigued.

Nan looked knowingly at her. "I'll say your mother would fall for him, hook, line and sinker! It's clear she's keen on you, Vernon. Well, it mightn't be a bad idea!" She giggled as she added: "If I do fix up with Karinoff, will Aunt Sadie pay me commission?"

"That's horrid of you, Nan."

"I was only kidding, dear child. But honestly Vernon, I loathe being poor. Quick scars flashed in Nan's bright eyes for a moment. "It's vile, after you've had everything!"

Vernon felt truly sorry for her cousin. It did seem unfair that the Tynan family who had a million and an old name to keep up, should have so little.

THE TARZAN TWINS

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Tarzan's piercing war cry was answered again and again, as by some garrulous echo. Soon a host of Kalwari ebony warriors began to appear magically from the deep forest. These were the Jungle Lord's faithful Waziri, ever ready to fight and die for their beloved master.

Tarzan spoke to their headman Muviro as he pointed to the exhausted courier who knelt at his feet. "He brings news that a strange tribe has raided Kudamo's village and stolen five maidens. These who invade Tarzan's country must feel the iron hand of Tarzan's Justice!"

As the Waziri followed him into the jungle, Tarzan turned to Muviro. "When our task is completed, we shall hurry on, for I must not fail to be at the rallbeed when the two young brawns arrive. They are unacquainted with Africa's perils. Their ignorance makes danger!

Now the courier from Kudamo's village, too exhausted to follow, called after the ape-man: "Take care, O Great Bwana. The strange raiders are evil people. I saw well their filed teeth. They are eaters of the flesh of men!" Tarzan heard, but he did not slacken his pace.

Tweed and District

Tweed, March 24—The choir of the United Church had a most enjoyable social evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Connor on Thursday evening. After a short interval devoted to choir practice, the election of officers for 1936 was held. The following constitutes the executive for the present year:

President: H. A. Grier.

Vice President: Mrs. W. J. McCutcheon.

Sec. Treasurer: Miss Margaret Kerr.

Asst. Secretary: Miss Grace Beaver.

Organ Committee: Mrs. M. C. Dales, Mrs. S. H. Connor, Miss M. Kerr.

Social Committee: Miss Lois Richardson, Miss Isabella Campbell, Miss Grace Hougton.

Membership Committee: Miss Dorothy Sager A.T.C.M. (choir director), Mrs. H. A. Grier, Mrs. W. A. Beatty.

A motion was passed to continue the annual membership fee of one dollar per family representative in the choir. At the conclusion of the business meeting Mr. S. H. Connor expressed to Miss D. Sager the appreciation of the choir for her capable leadership. A number of interesting musical contests were arranged by the social committee which served a delicious lunch at the conclusion.

A number of travellers were forced to remain in Tweed for a day or so last week owing to the impassable conditions of roads leading from Tweed. Water overran the roads in places, and deep ruts created a hazard which forced all but those motorists who were compelled to go, to keep off the roads.

The ice jam which had formed above the bridge on Bridge Street and remained the greater part of last week, flooding North Victoria Street above the C.P.R. tracks, went out on Sunday afternoon without causing any damage to the bridge or to mill dams. A strong northwest wind blowing against the ice on Monday aided in the final push.

A large crowd gathered on the bridge on Sunday afternoon to view the final break-up. A huge mass of ice jammed against one of the piers of the bridge held up the final plunge for some time. A number of men with the aid of a stout pole finally succeeded in dislodging the "key piece" and in twenty minutes the entire field of ice, about one hundred yards square, went over the dam.

Stoffel's "Falcons" which lost to Hamilton "Tigers" by a score of 10 to 3 on the rooms, are managed by Mr. Ernie Craig a former Tweed resident.

The measle epidemic has developed in Tweed and this fact is reflected in the proportion of late spring classes approximately fifty per cent of the school population is now absent. Fortunately the epidemic is of a mild type, although some are left deaf after effects.

Mr. Lelo Airey of Kirkland Lake passed away last week following illness with pneumonia. The deceased was a brother of Mrs. Wm. Pigeon of Tweed, and formerly lived in Arden, but has spent the past few years in the northern section of the province.

The Mission Band of the United Church met on Wednesday afternoon with an attendance of twenty-five. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Amy Gerald. Short papers were given: Advice, Shirley Leal; Japan, Margaret Keenan; China, Helen Long; India, Olive Reynolds; Canada, Marjorie McTaggart; Temperance, Alice Robinson. Mrs. Gerald told an interesting story entitled "What Jesus Did," while Mrs. D. Hay gave a synopsis of a chapter of the Study Book.

Hydro users of Tweed are to receive a rebate of $1,097.20 from the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission according to a communication received by the town council on Monday evening last. The local body has not yet decided what course to pursue as to use to be made of the rebate, whether to use it in the form of a reduction in the rates or as a credit on the bi-monthly bills. It is thought that there was a reduction of one half cent in the rate, and the rebate is a credit of approximately ten per cent on the annual hydro bill, deducted from the final bill of the year.

St. James' Anglican Church held its regular Lenten service on Friday evening at the church when Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne delivered a suitable address.

Mr. C. E. Way, representative of the local L.O.L. attended the 56th annual meeting of the Grand Black Chapter at Prescott last week, and was elected to the office of Grand Standard Bearer.

The funeral of the late Levi Latteso was held on Thursday morning from his late residence to St. Cuthbagh's cemetery. The late Levi Latteso passed away suddenly earlier in the week at his home in Stirling, where he had been subject to heart attacks but his death was rather unexpected. At the time of the attack his wife was alone with him and death ensued before medical assistance could be obtained.

The deceased was born seventy-five years ago in Tweed and had spent all his life in this community. Before moving into the village of Tweed in 1908 he followed the occupation of farming. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Latteso. In 1881 he married Josephine Chapelle, who alone survives, an only son John, having passed away a number of years ago. He was highly respected by all who knew him and was a kindly neighbour of a retiring nature. Surviving beside his wife are two brothers, David and Peter, of Hungerford township, and three sisters, Mrs. John Langevin, Wintersville; Mrs. Mitchell Trudeau, Stone Mill; Orson Langevin, Niagara Falls, N.Y. He was buried at the Tweed mews John Hains, James Trudeau, Peter Rathbone, Ernest LeRoy, Alex Rathbone, James Gabourie.

The Hills hamlet of Shipbide is one of the most up-to-date in this section of the province. It numbers among its residents many progressive people who are not slow to undertake projects to provide its people with interesting and unusual entertainment, all of which brings us to the successful amateur show and dance held on Friday night. The success of the affair was assured by the assistance of the Orobos, the Ontonis, the Wallbergs and others. A packed hall cheered every number of the programme which was divided into three parts and was conducted as a radio broadcast. The first division of the programme was a jello programme very cleverly done by five impersonators of Jack Benny. Don Wilson, Kenny Baker, Johnny Green and the orchestra and Schlepperman, Mr. Ed. The second part, Major Bowes (not in person) featured the high-class amateurs and others who competed for the five prizes donated by Tweed and Sulphide merchants. The first division of the entertainment was "Uncle Ezra and his powerful little five-watter" which took up a delightful evening to a close.

The council council held its March meeting on Monday in the town hall, Tweed. Present: Reeve Clarke, Deputy-Reeve Jordon and Councillors Rash and Rivers present. A bill for $36 representing the value of four sheep belonging to Peter C. Cummings and killed by dogs was ordered paid. The auditors' report was received and adopted. The following Mills were ordered paid: C. D. Wilson $15.00; F. O. Courneyea $99.00; Alex Deacon, injured sheep $2.50; Mrs. Rivers, original account $18.61, claim and Quinn, indigent account $12.38; W. Donaldson, account $2.32; R. J. Drinkwater, account $1.56; Joy Watkins, pay list $27.60; Paul Clement, road job $62.50; T. A. Murray, attending court sessions $3.50; Miss A. M. Rayburn, indemnity insurance $126.62; Russell Bateman, grant to Marlbank rink $5.00; Alex Gordon, attending Good Roads convention $70.00; D'Alton Clarke, attending Good Roads convention $70.00; A. Garrison $6.00; Andrew Doran, audits and $20.00; Peter Rathbun, auditor $30.00.

SECOND NAVAL TREATY OF LONDON SIGNED

USED PROVINCIAL MONEY IN FEDERAL ELECTION CHARGED

T. P. Lancaster of Peterboro Alleges Rork Furgeson Helped

POLICY CRITICIZED

Brantford Mayor Approves Provisions of Income Tax Bill

Toronto, March 25—(CP)— The first Saturday session of the Ontario Legislature since 1928 apparently is in store for members as the government finds the House behind schedule and the session the longest if the estimates are to be passed before next Wednesday, end of the fiscal year.

The government has just about decided to call a Saturday session because the budget debate must be concluded before estimates are voted the money to be voted to enable the government to carry on during the coming year.

Approves Tax Bill

Approving the Provincial income tax, Mayor Nelles said it would be 10 years too late. Despite heavy taxation and the depression," he said, Brantford is the only city that overdrew $8,000,000,000 and corporations had $4,000,000,000.

The government must meet the humanitarian needs of the people, he went on, and the existing government services could not be reduced in cost. Mayor Nelles criticized the cancellation of the Quebec power contracts and said Ontario's credit was not injured in England because of this action. Only $14,000,000 of the Province's debt was payable in pounds sterling.

Flood conditions in the Grand river valley must be effected within the next four years, he said, if it is to not "we will have a flood menace down that area."

Further praised Mayor was complimented by Mr. Macaulay for "one of the most constructive and most strikingly delivered speeches heard in this legislature."

Former Minister of Highways, Mr. Macaulay, declared the government, despite pre-election promises, did not spend a dollar of gasoline tax revenue on highway construction. He charged the administration with increasing the provincial debt at the rate of $147,157 a day since July, 1934.

Liquor Policy Criticized

Mr. Macaulay leveled criticism particularly at the government's liquor policy. He said it had changed from one of "control" to a policy of "sales." The 26-odd, straight purchase permits which were issued and he offered to wager Premier Hepburn a hat he had misinformed regarding the failure of at least two of the liquor boards to report for returns respecting these permits.

Dr. Armstrong pleaded for recognition of the needs of the mining industry and urged the government be assisted in every possible manner than committing itself to an extensive public work policy.

One of provincial money in Hastings-Peterborough riding during the federal election last July was spent, he said by Mr. Lancaster. A few days prior to the election, he said, Rork Ferguson, now Liberal member in the House of Commons, and the Reeve and Clerk of Asphodel-Township received $2,500 from the Provincial Government for colonization roads.

Every able-bodied man in the township received employment, on the roads and the money for their construction was spent, not on the 1 pressure, to influence those elect, ors in favor of Mr. Ferguson.

Co-ordination of the work of the various departments in interest tour, ists was urged by Mr. Lancaster and he also suggested the appointment of a Minister of Public Health to prevent the extinction of the Maohongs.

Rating of Mr. X Studied Before Dating

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 25 — (CP)— The University of Michigan Co-eds are taking no chances on the so-called "blind date." When Miss Jane Doe boy friend would like to bring along a friend for the completion of a four-some, acquiesence is withheld until the campus rating of Mr. X has been investigated.

Several hundred names, it is said, already appear on the list of a new organization calling itself Kalip Phi Eta. Here the skills of each is the average of grades received by the individual by previous dates. Thus a "pass-fail-B" is "okay" "C" is "pass-to-flunk" and "D" is "flunk." Between "B" is "spook."

Grades have a "plus" and "minus" rating, the first meaning "above the expectations" and the second "otherwise."

Human Electrical Quality Used to Diagnose Disease

(By Howard W. Blakslee) (Associated Press Science Editor)

Cambridge, Mass., March 25 — (AP)—New progress in the use of an electrical quality of the human body for diagnosis of disease was announced today at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

This quality is called "Q". It is related to the manner in which the body tissues conduct an electrical current. It is most easily defined as the relation between the energy stored momentarily in the tissues and the energy lost by heating the tissues.

Dr. J. Warren Horton, research associate, has invented an instrument by which these two quantities may be read on dials.

Measured values of the measuring characteristics of the internal tissues although it is connected to the skin only by electrodes in contact only with the surface of the skin.

British investigators, prior to development of this instrument, had believed measurements of "Q" might be substituted for the present fatal metabolism test. Results with the new tech meter have not yet been produced to the extent but after further study, "Q" may prove profitable to the valuable indicator for various physical conditions, and be of great aid in medical diagnoses.

PROVIDES COMMISSION

Gives Gov't. Power to Initiate Programs to Provide Jobs

Ottawa, Mar. 25 (CP)—Centralization of control of Canada's seven national ports in a National Harbors Board at Ottawa, with partial control approval in the House of Commons last night, Marine Minister Howe won support from both Conservative and Liberal benches for the second reading of the National Harbors Board Bill.

Only two members representing port constituencies were a bit doubtful of the bill and thought some might be exercised in bringing new arrangements into operation but only one, Bernard (Lib., Montreal-Laurier) expressed opposition to the measure.

Mr. Howe had an easy time with his bill, although the debate has not yet ended and he was warned amendments would be demanded in the committee stage. The unanimity of sentiment on the Harbors Bill, however, was in sharp contrast to the stormy which broke out when Hon. Norman McL. Rogers, Minister of Labor, sought to introduce the 1936 Relief Act.

Conservative and C.C.F. members pressed for information on the government's intentions in regard to the passage of the resolution which preceded introduction of the bill and there was a long technical debate on whether the resolution was wide enough in its terms to comply with the provisions.

Relief Act Outlined

When the House finally introduced it was seen to provide for continuances of the present methods of dealing with unemployment but to omit the "blank cheque" and the "peace, order and good government" clauses of former acts, both of which have always been assailed by Liberals.

The government program includes:

1. Specific sums of money will be voted in supplementary estimates to replace the old "blank cheque" legislation.

2. An employment commission will be established to co-ordinate all relief efforts and promote efficiency and economy.

3. Land settlement schemes will be extended to help relieve the cities and back to the farms.

4. The government will have power to negotiate direct relief agreements with the provinces, continuing or extending agreements which now in force.

5. The government will have power to loan money to provinces.

6. Agreements with private companies must be sanctioned by parliament.

The Relief Act will expire Mar. 31, 1937.

RETIRED ADMIRAL SLAIN IN IRELAND

Free State Police Probe Motive For Killing of Admiral Somerville

Castletownbaud, Ireland, March 25—(AP)—Irish Free State police today began the investigation of the slayers of Vice-Admiral Henry Boyle Somerville and Somerville in theory he was killed because of his recruiting activities for the British navy.

The naval officer was shot down before the eyes of his wife Monday night by four men who broke into the Admiral's secluded residence. Police kept the staging secret until last night.

A relative told officers the Admiral was "very active in enlisting men for the navy and someone may have considered that matter for which he should be put out of the way."

There were few clues to follow, however, and police were also asked to announce any tangible progress in their investigation.

Vice-Admiral Somerville was senior naval officer at Halifax, N.S., for a short time in 1918 when part of the war was engaged in patrol and convoy work on the north Atlantic.

The Admiral's assailants drove up to Point House, his residence near this County Cork town, in a motor car. Entering the house, one man drew a revolver and discharged it at Somerville. Then the men left the house, escaped before an alarm could be given.

Vice-Admiral Somerville was 72 years old.

FRANCE HESITATES UPON SANCTIONS AND ARMED HELP

Chancelleries of Locarno Powers Must Find Solution

WAIT DUCE'S REPLY

Mussolini Reported as Likely to Bargain Support

Paris, March 25—(CP)— The French Government was described today as wavering between two desires—to take economic sanctions against Germany and to stick to Great Britain's Military Aid.

French authorities said they had "expected" Reichsfuehrer Hitler's memorandum to Locarno Treaty signatories' proposals.

Since Great Britain, France and Belgium are "sticking to the Locarno accord" French officials said: "the next step depends upon our Allies".

Complications Darken

(By George Hambleton) (Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 25.—(CP) Oddsand-New complications darken the International situation. Britain, France and Belgium are in abbey difference over the new Locarno, while they and the Italian representative Mussolini sit down.

Premier Mussolini has not yet replied whether he is ready to accept the pact or not. It is reported he intends to bargain his support against the new sanctions against Italy.

The net result so far is that German troops are in the Rhineland and intend to stay there. Allied troops remain on the demilitarized new Locarno is dead.

Guarantee to France

The gist of the trouble between Britain and France is the British refusal to guarantee in the new agreement, British in Mr. Eden's view, the essential commitments stressing the conditional. The French emphasize the guarantee. The British believe that both the temporary and the permanent provisions involved in the Locarno Powers Pact is open to negotiation with Germany. The French regard the new Locarno Pact as a decision and hold that it is not open to change by Germany or not. They want the proposed conversations between the British and French General Staffs to begin.

OVERCOAT WINS IN HEAVY FOG

81st Lincolnshire Has Bad Spill And One Horse is Destroyed

Lincoln, England, March 25 (CP Cable)—Thick fog which shrouded the course caused a bad pile-up in the 81st Lincolnshire Handicap, one-mile Lincolnshire Handicap, by Mr. L. Selby's Overcoat.

Bow and Arrow stumbled and fell three furlongs from the winning post. Bow and Arrow, ridden by Screamer, unable to get out of the way, came down.

Jones, astride Bow and Arrow, suffered a broken collar-bone and a deep bruise on the shoulder. Bowling, broke several ribs and the back was badly injured. Harwood, Screamer's jockey, was badly shaken up.

Bow Arrowhile Overcoat and R. B. Strazsburger's Boothius were well clear of the field, Overcoat second, a head back of Overcoat. Third came a rank outsider, Mr. Goldenberg's Sea Request, a length and a half behind Boothius. C. W. Carter's Sea Request, the favorite in the final betting at 11 to 2, was an also-ran. Thirty-two ran.

Tom Bowling

Overcoat, a five-year-old brown colt by Apron-the-Beggar, started at odds of 10 to 1, Boothius, a five-year-old by Dark Legend, Chaucrits, started at the same odds. Tom Bowling was quoted at 20 to 1. Overcoat's time for the mile was 3-4-5.

Yorkshireman ran fourth, Sea Request fifth and Daylight, sixth.

Overcoat's victory in the race was almost impossible to distinguish the colors the horses carried.

When the gift came, several bogies had to pull up sharply to avoid the three which had fallen. Some almost had to walk. Meanwhile, Overcoat and Boothius had left the heads of the field. Although the latter was gaining rapidly in the last 100 yards, he just failed to overtake Overcoat.

Tom Bowling had to be destroyed.

Crerar Doubts Cities Will Hold Populations; Sees Decentralization

Mayors' Conference Told New Housing Act No Solution

NATIONAL SURVEY

Rogers Says Government Feels 'We Must Share Our Burdens'

Ottawa, March 25—(CP)— The Dominion Government feels "we must share our burdens and not seek to shift them," Hon. Normand Mol. Rogers, Minister of Labor, told the Dominion Conference of Mayors today.

The first thing to do in trying to solve unemployment is to get the facts—to conduct a national survey, Mr. Rogers said. He referred to it as the first duty assigned to the new national employments commission." The committee calling for a new existence the conference of mayors would have, referred to it.

Future of Cities

He did not think initiation of a new and enlarged housing program by the Dominion would provide the necessary solution for unemployment, Hon. T. A. Crerar, Minister of Interior said. He doubted that about 53 per cent of the population of Canada now lived in the urban centres.

"I am rather coming in the conclusion that what is needed is decentralization of population," said the Minister. "Cities as they exist, can be maintained on the present basis of population."

The conference of Mayors met a sub-committee of the Cabinet today to present proposals for legislation approved during the two-day meet. They had considered the main item, relief and the one which was embarrassing to the Dominion Government, the question of co-operation.

The request from the Dominion that the Canadian municipalities who had been in receipt of relief during the depression should be asked to pay back to the Dominion the sum received from the Federal Government was overwhelmingly defeated. But the conference must remember the Dominion too had its troubles and financial obligations.

"I am telling no secrets when I say that the budget is going to be very much out of balance," he said, "and it is impossible for the government to impose taxes on the people which will bring it into balance."

Minister of Finance of Canada

The finance report was presented by Mayor Stanley Lewis of Hull who argued that Canadian municipalities should have a share in the Dominion's sales tax revenue.

Mayor Lewis also urged that the new housing act be amended to make grants to municipalities as well as to private builders.

The bill provided if a petition signed by 10 per cent of the electors qualified to vote on money by-laws is submitted to council, then it must submit the by-law for annual election a by-law to establish a fund to create a basis of by means of taxation and have same by-law voted on by the electors who are qualified to vote on money by-laws.

The mayors' estimated such a bond would cost each ratepayer only from 75 cents to a dollar.

Porker's Feet Like Human's Claws Like Fingers, Snout Like Nose

Wolfville, N.S., March 25—(CP) —You've heard it said that a pig is round—but here's a pig that is being classed as a human, the freak of nature being under examination of Acadia University Department of Biology.

The little porker was born on the farm of Mr. Mcnill, Lower Canard, having instead of the orthodox "pig's feet" forefeet similar to those of a human being. The little piggy that went to a laboratory instead of to Market had claws resembling fingers and resembling them. The joints of the feet were like elbows.

Information from the laboratory the freak porker's snout resembles more than to a human's being pointed instead of snubbed.

The animal died soon after birth. Dr. H. C. Frost of the Zoology Department plans to make a careful examination of the animal tomorrow.

Fund to Support Municipal Band

Toronto, March 25 (CP)—The Toronto Finance and Executive Bills Committee today approved the Bills sponsored by Controller Hamilton Cassidy, Toronto-St. Patrick) to provide a means whereby municipalities may establish a fund to make grants to music bands or orchestras.

The bill provided if a petition signed by 10 per cent of the electors qualified to vote on money by-laws is submitted to council, then it must submit the by-law for annual election a by-law to establish a fund to create a basis of by means of taxation and have same by-law voted on by the electors who are qualified to vote on money by-laws.

The mayors' estimated such a band would cost each ratepayer only from 75 cents to a dollar.

Attempt to Kidnap Daughter Of Baby Race Contender Reported

Toronto, March 25—(CP)— Police here been informed of an alleged attempt to abduct five-year-old Mary Kenny, daughter of Mrs. Esther Kenny, one of the leading contenders for the $50,000 Charles Vance Miller baby race.

"You're the half-million dollar kid; you have a good face for prison," a woman is reported to have told the child as she walked home from school yesterday afternoon. Mary related the story to her mother when she arrived home terrified and in tears. Her fears centred around the child's refusal to St. Mary's School.

The child's story, related by Mrs. Kenny, was:

"A lady coming along Adelaide Street from school when a big black car came up close to me and a man got out. He was a big man. There were two men. The other one was in the car. He was a lady in the car and she opened the door and said 'You're going to be the $500,000 million dollar kid; get into the car or we'll kill you.' She let the big man put me in and I got out again."

The man, who was out of the car, tried to grab hold of me and I ran up a lane and yelled.

Mrs. Kenny claims 12 children have been born to her since Oct. 31, 1926, the date Miller died. The Toronto sportsman-lawyer's estate is to be equalled $500,000 to the Toronto woman bearing the most children in the decade following his death. Seven women claim nine births since then.

3 NATIONS KEEP AFLOAT HIGH IDEAL OF LIMITATION

Ultimate Elimination of Competition Aim, Says Lord Monsell

RIVALRY COSTLY

Years of Freedom From Naval Competition is Foreseen

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

London, March 25 (CP Cable).— The signatories of the British Commonwealth of Nations (with the exception of the Irish Free State), the United States and France today signed the second naval treaty of London.

They met in the same Queen Anne's Gate room in the palace of St. James' where a few days ago Germany signed the Locarno protocols of the League of Nations and Britain, France, Belgium, Germany guilty of a double breach of treaty.

But today's occasion was of a simpler sort, for the final treaty is of much less extended scope than the Locarno pacts. Five power naval powers began their deliberations three years ago (Japan and Italy also were present then).

Ideal of Limitation

But in the words of Lord Monsell, First Lord of the Admiralty, it is an agreement that "will keep afloat the high ideal of naval limitation and the elimination of naval competition."

The Irish Free State does not sign the treaty on the ground that it affects the status of the navy and the Irish Free State is not a naval power.

Britain, Viscount Monsell said, had not achieved all the reductions she had hoped might be possible, but the treaty fact that all world powers had come to a different treaty in itself was a tribute to the moral power of international good understanding.

Viscount Monsell he said, differed from the previous Treaty of London and Treaty of Washington in that there were no provisions for direct quantitative limitation of naval armaments. That was, in the British view, a matter for deep regret but it seemed to be seen whether the absence of quantitative limitations would lead to the total elimination of actual competition in the numbers of warships to be laid down in the future.

Competition Dangerous

"It is our own belief that if all the principal naval powers accede to this Treaty, competitive construction in the world armament will be eliminated for another period of years," said Viscount Monsell. "We believe this because we regard privacy in construction of new types as dangerous and costly and as dangerous and most expensive of all forms competition. We believe it has prevented this type of Naval rivalry in the past and we hope it will help solve your problems of competitive building."

Lord Monsell announced only a few formal points remained for settlement before the London Conference Naval Powers (Britain, the United States, France and Italy). He said he would be able to sign a protocol, accepting rules for treatment of merchant ships by submarines at the time as embodied in Part Four of London Naval Treaty of 1930.

Because, said Stanley Bruce, Australian Commissioner to London and representative of the Commonwealth at the ceremony, an agreement has not been reached for quantitative limitation, there is no escalator clause.

"The provisions for qualitative limitation in the Treaty are typical of treaties that may be built and for exchange of full and complete information between the parties which is essential if unrestricted naval competition with its possible consequences is to be avoided."

ETHIOP INVASION BY MUSSOLINI IS SUBJECT OF TALK

R. MacLean Claims Country Will Never be Captured

HABITS DESCRIBED

Great Credit is Given Haile Selassie, Emperor of Ethiopia

Ethiopia, that country lying in North-eastern Africa which Italy under her Dictator Mussolini has been striving to conquer for the past six months, which although little heard of a few years ago spread into national prominence especially in the dark months of last August, September and October, when the League of Nations was faced with the most serious crisis since she had been formed and Great Britain and Italy seemed on the point to cease to blows over her invasion was the subject ably dealt with by Robinson MacLean of Toronto before a packed auditorium at the city hall last night.

Before the arrival of the speaker members of the Rotarian club of this city entertained the audience. Fred Johnson conducted the community sing song. Leo Riggs accompanied on the piano. Reg Hyde rendered a very pleasing trombone solo before the introduction of Mr. MacLean by Mr. Blackham, News Editor of the Telegram.

"Ethiopia is a very hilly country," declared the speaker. There are plateaus that extend as high as eight to fourteen thousand feet. There are several deserts in the lowlands. Contrary to public belief Ethiopia is not all hot. It is hot in the lowlands where the temperatures often reach as high as 140 degrees Fahrenheit, but the hot season it is quite cool and becomes very cold at night. One must have all the clothes available to keep warm. Six months of the year rain falls and it is incessant. No crops can be sown in this period as it is wet. The crops that are called valed are grown on the plateaus as are lowlands are clear of mud or heavy clay. The old fashioned ploughs with oxen are still used as it must be remembered that Ethiopia is very backward in modes of living.

Scarcity of Water.

There is a scarcity of water in the lowlands and for this reason alone the speaker was convinced that he did not think Italy will conquer Ethiopia as the advancing army cannot retain a united front. True they made advances of 80 to 120 miles on a front but they will have got there to capture it because after they get there for they will have to go all the way back and get water.

There are two armies of Italians advancing from two directions. One is to the south and are making their way to the east, which the Ethiopians have no fear that it will be captured as previously pointed out. The other army is to the north. There has been only one real battle fought in the whole campaign and that is when this Italian army advanced for a terrific 25-mile front in the hope of getting Makali. Some 30,000 Ethiopians were killed and about 100,000 Italians. "This accounts don't mean a thing and was issued by Mussolini," said Mr. MacLean, because a Dictator must keep up his popularity with his people and he must show that the Italian armies are showing results. He will win in the north before two weeks until around September on account of the rainy season but will soon commence.

The question cannot come to a successful conclusion, contended Mr. MacLean, because there is no united front. Ethiopia is not united. One reason is that many of the Ethiopians have been educated in America. They move from place to place wherever there is trouble. They have been spending hundreds of thousands of dollars on bombing the Ethiopians on account of the bombs explode; most of them go into the ground and do no damage. It was intended that he thought the Italian airmen had to give an exact knowledge of their bombing and finding more than one bomb in the same place before they bombed the same place over again. Two Ethiopian towns in the north have been bombed which are about fifteen times even when the Italians also deliberately bombed Red Cross stations. The speaker thought they did this through Mussolini's command just to see what kind of a fuss Britain would take and he found out.

Feels Sorry For Italians.

The speaker declared he felt sorry for the Italians rather than the Ethiopians. The blame for the war is shoulder by the Italian people but on Mussolini if any. Ethiopia would be of no use to Italy if she did conquer it as the land and to get rid of the excess population in Italy. "I have been local boy on the boat load of young Italian soldiers passing through Toronto evening on their way to the attacking front. They were cheering and shouting but in the same breath they were faced with no air on the decks. The boys were packed like sardines and those stricken with illness. They are not allowed to go back home. They are shipped to the front line."

Mr. MacLean went on and dealt with the people of Ethiopia and their quaint customs and stressed especial attention on Haile Selassie declaring that he was the hardest working man in the whole kingdom. Everything according to foreign affairs has to go through his hands or they won't be done.

Ethiopians, contrary to popular belief, are not negroes but are part of the Jewish race. Probably they are descendants of one of the ten tribes of Israel. They have been living in Ethiopia for the last 2,000 years. The country was formerly the called Abyssinia but when Haile Selassie came to the throne five years ago he had it changed to its present title because "Abyssinia" meant "Mish". Out-third of the Ethiopians are Christians, the other two-thirds being Mohammedans and Pagans. The Ethiopians are very brave. Proof of this lay in the fact that at the first of the war that captured Italian tanks spitting out machine-gun fire at them, tying very brief spears.

In concluding Mr. MacLean again dealt with Haile Selassie declaring that he is continually worrying over the welfare of his people and that he was as fine a gentleman as one would wish to meet.

Throughout his interesting discourse Mr. MacLean produced pieces of the costumes worn by the Ethiopians and also spoke several words in their native dialect which proved of great interest to the appreciating audience.

Young Elmore then called upon the idea of inducing ladies attending State functions to adopt a hat that type of dresses they intend to wear with the result dresses and jewels were described in details in report following the functions. Other people followed the lead.

HUDSON SUPER STRAIGHT EIGHT

Have you noticed the number of new Hudson Eights in town? Heard the talk about Hudson's great 1936 success? There's a reason. More and more people are comparing other Eights with Hudson : : : and other retail-at-factory prices with Hudson's $1130!*

It's a case of "love at first sight" with many of these buyers. They agree that Hudson is a year or more ahead of the rest in style. They like its distinctive new radiator. Its extra-deep "V-type" windshield. The unbroken sweep of its lines. Modern style : : : without a single radical touch.

More Room for Less Money

They're comparing size : : : carefully. Learning that even in Eights costing hundreds of dollars more, they can't get a wheelbase as long as Hudson's . . . with the extra inches of shoulder, leg and head room that Hudson gives them.

They want to know just how much power their money buys. They find that 105 horsepower is the "top" in all Eights within $200 above the Hudson price : : : compared with 113 to 124 horsepower in a Hudson Eight. And they know there isn't a stock car built today that can match Hudson's silken smoothness and all-around performance.

Economy? Here's the Proof!

They are asking about economy and endurance. Again Hudson gives them facts. The record of a Hudson Eight, carrying three passengers and their luggage, in the recent 352-mile Los Angeles-Yosemite Economy Run : : : 22.86 miles per U.S. gallon, officially certified. And the records of owners who show 150,000, 200,000 miles and up, at amazingly low upkeep cost.

So on : : : through the long list of features : : : comparison is wholly in Hudson's favour. Bodies all of steel with solid seamless steel roof. Duo-Automatic Hydraulic Brakes (patent applied for). The Electric Hand, optional at small extra cost. Radial Safety Control (patent applied for). Tru-Line Steering. The Rhythmic Ride. Level rear floor. Most complete and costliest ventilating system. Biggest baggage compartment any car ever had.

These are some of the extra values you find in a Hudson Eight. Discover them for yourself : : : by comparison with other Eights : : : and behind the wheel on the road.

RELIGION OR MATERIALISM

Rebirth of the church with a dynamic faith is held as the supreme need today by a number of New York clergymen. Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick at Riverside Church says: "Religion today faces a situation unlike anything it has ever faced. Hitherto while religion has often been in difficult places, still the choice has generally been between one kind of religion and another. Today however one sees millions of people facing a choice, not between this religion and that, but between any kind of religion on the one side and on the other sheer paganism, downright materialistic irreligion in thought and life. If we are to get a genuine renaissance of ethical religion, it will have to come from the religious community, from a renewal of spiritual life in the churches. We cannot get it from a vacuum."

The church assumes too much and does not demand enough. This is its weakness, said Rev. Dr. Allan R. Chalmers, of Broadway Congregational Church. "We assume that people know what the fundamentals of religion are. We do not demand with sufficient clarity that they face the meaning of their membership in church. God is the supreme fact in religion. The reason men of the disinherited hate religion is not because they are indifferent to God, but because we who claim Him as the supreme fact do not serve him."

Dr. Sockman, Methodist, stated: "The church must be more alert if it is not to lose its own independence. It is too much the echo of the crowd and too little the voice of God. We must guard against the trend towards class-consciousness in religion."

A new type of sermon is necessary today, according to Rev. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale of the Marble Collegiate Reformed Church. "The pulpit should be a place about which the people gather to hear a man talk about and demonstrate a real power to help live."

The new birth of religion cannot be laughed out of our society even though it can be voted out of our churches, affirmed Rev. J. W. Houck of Pilgrim Congregational Church. Churchmanship is one thing, and dynamic religion is quite a different thing. Fine thinking men and women may be skeptical of a new approach of religion, but they cannot withhold their support from a cause that opens doors into a better way of dealing with the agencies that influence the multitudes."

Floods sweeping various parts of the country will bring the people of communities which have suffered into a closer relationship of sympathy and mutual helpfulness, said Rev. Dr. G. P. T. Sargent at S. Bartholomew's Church and the value of human personality will survive.

"Does God send floods, crop failures and depressions?" asked Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reisner, Methodist. "Is the unmatched destruction of life and property by vast volumes of water sent by Him as a punishment upon man? No, a thousand times no. Millions of destructions such as the recent floods will be averted again and again. But God may permit nature's laws at times to work unchecked in order that man may be compelled to wake and seek His guidance."

DEMOCRACY IN AUSTRIA

The idea of democracy has a firmer hold in Europe than proponents of dictatorship imagine. In Russia, Stalin has found it advisable to move toward a more democratic form of government, thus avoiding a counter revolution. There are underground democratic movements in Germany and Italy, though we hear little or nothing about them. In Austria an underground movement of this nature has been brought to light by the trial for treason of thirty socialists.

In the court room of Vienna, from which representatives of democratic organizations in other countries were excluded, the thirty defendants were defiant of the present fascist regime. "Restore democracy and our stolen property," they said in substance, "and we'll fight even under your standard against the increasing Nazi danger. Refuse and we'll arm against you, no matter how harshly we're treated."

An idea is a powerful thing and cannot be destroyed by guns, imprisonment or propaganda. The Austrian socialists were defeated as an open political force by the arms of Austrian soldiers, paid by Italian gold. But the idea of democracy has not died in the land coveted by Hitler and dominated by Il Duce. Intelligent Austrians look abroad and see the democracies of the British Empire and the United States, see the freedom the English-speaking peoples enjoy and hope and work for the return of liberty in their own country.

By standing firm for democracy within their own borders, English-speaking nations have served the cause of humanity. Democracy has not brought us to ruin as advocates of dictatorship predicted, whereas in the fascist countries there is internal strife, economic stress and the constant fear of police spies.—Hamilton Spectator.

SIGNS OF SPRING

Down from the tree tops drifting,
Sombry and sleek and slow,
Where the March sunlight is sifting
Gold o'er the hill below.

Out from his hole in the cedars,
Furtive and famished and faint,
Comes at Spring's call, the raven,
Voicing his raucous plaint.

Patches of brown on the blanket
That covers the meadow's bed,
Glorious sunshine at noonday,
Sunset of gold and red.

Faint and far-off the echoes
That come from the purple wood,
A subtle stir at the heart strings
That scarce can be understood.

List to the flow of the waters
Under the old stone bridge,
See where the snow is slipping
In rills from the rocky ridge;
And in the heart an echo
Of the song that the waters sing,
And the spirit stirs with the voices
That herald the dawn of Spring.

BEFORE WE FORGET IT, let us congratulate Foster Ward citizens for keeping their sidewalks free of ice and snow during the winter. They deserve medals, every one. On the snooty East and West Hills there was some noticable neglect of sidewalk shovelling and some walks in front of stately dwellings which seldom, if ever, saw a snow shovel all winter. Seems though a Snow Marshal should be appointed at the beginning of winter to check up on lazy householders who neglect their walks, and he should have a corps of snow shovellers ready to clean the walks when the householder neglected his duty. Remember that next winter Mr. Mayor.—Contributed by a Sufferer.

VIMY RIDGE IS A LONG WAY FROM THE HOCKEY BATTLEFIELDS OF TODAY but a connection is made by Dan Parker, Sports Editor of the New York Mirror. Dan tells of the battlefield of Vimy and the German shells screaming over it trying to turn back the Canadians bent on capturing it. One of those shells buried a red-haired youth with the Princess Pats, crack Canadian regiment. The army doctor in patching him together said: "Keep Punching, Kid," but without much hope that the lad would ever see Canada again. That lad of yesterday is the "Red" Dutton of today, Captain of the Toronto New York Americans, and largely responsible for the moniker bestowed on the team "Those Amazing Amerks". "Red" has kept punching ever since. This is Mervin Hutton's last season of hockey as a player. He enlisted at Calgary very young, leaving that city with the Princess Pats in July, 1915—went overseas, and saw two years of service before mixing it up with that German shell on Vimy Ridge. He beat the rap, returned to Canada and was playing hockey in 1919 with Calgary Juniors, turned pro with the Calgary Tigers in the Western League, then was bought by the Montreal Maroons in 1926. After four seasons in Montreal Red went to the New York Americans, finishing this year as playing manager with his team in the playoffs. The slogan he gave the team was "Keep Punching" and he sure had a fighting machine back of him. Red Dutton is a good sample of Canadianism to keep before the eye of Manhattan folk.

Is Spring Here?

Ice is parting from the shores of the bay, leaving little lakes of water lapping the edge, and a mid-March mist has commenced to hover above the surface further out. Already the lost call of the northbound wild duck echoes mournfully over the frozen surface while the small fry, big sparrows, tired after their long flight from the warm, southern marsh lands, seek open water in creek and road before trekking further north. Along the margins the snow has gone and rusty patches of brown in which squawking bird life has already congregated have replaced the dead white silence, that but a few weeks ago had held deserted and bleak.

Spring has come to the water front, too, as yet the vernal awakening has touched but lightly the district so long winter bound. Not yet have the hammers of the ships' carpenters and repairmen resounded along the still wet ways and slips, busy on spring repairs, and the two-penny-ha'-penny gull, wise bird, first sure sign of warmer weather has shed, are counted only in ones or twos, their song yet silent and unheard. The ending of a week or two more have avoided their mating from the still unbudded branches of the maple trees on city streets, and the lilting song of the spring sparrow has been heard, but the lone cry of the loon, swimming just off the pumping station is yet still the last remains of winter's sheet of ice.

The swift and rapid currents topped by curling white caps, the repentant Moira tumbles, open in its length, to the bay, but on its banks, fifteen feet and more above, the melting cakes of ice stretch and heaped in darkening piles.

The Breath of April Pale

Along Front Street the touch of April's pale, and hearty parts of winter is being felt by the spring's lighter hues, but in the northland the locked lakes lie dormant and in the woods the pines stand deep in snow. Not yet has the rabbit turned from winter white to brown, and the silent weasel still follows his snowy ermine through the hunting grounds.

Along the snake fence, too, the country resident knows the sun is getting stronger for the heavy drifts that piled so high are gone and only scattered heaps of ice remain in the shady corners. Even the tiniest fields have turned from white to dirty brown and the fresh green smell of grass is blown up the south wind from the flooded pastures. The pheasants have ventured well, feeding from the grain bin in the barn, and still flash warily along the hedges, but in the direct sunlight the hot of gilded young trees and shoots upon which the hungry rabbits fed in mid-winter. First being counted as the snow recedes. The stray pigeons that took up quarters in the old barn now noisily upon the ridgepole and the robin is also on his way upstream to spawn; Easter bonnets are already in the windows and if these come, Mayflowers are just behind.

CARRERI FREED UPON ONE COUNT

He is Also Charged With Murder of One of Bale-dit Gang

Montreal, March 24—(CP)—Joseph Carreri, San Francisco fruit merchant was acquitted here today on a charge of murder arising from the 12-year-old bank of Montreal robbery that eventually entangled six Reds.

Carreri, extradited to Canada after being arrested for a minor traffic offence, was acquitted on a charge of murdering Henri Cloche, driver of the bank car robbed of about $140,000 here April 1, 1934.

He also is charged with the murder of Albert Morin, one of the bandit gang, fatally wounded by a shotgun police bullet.

Of the 11 persons indicted after the sensational robbery, were banned. They were: Tony Frank, Toronto; Louis Sarsel, former Montreal detective; Frank Casabise and Guiseppe Serafini.

Lee Davis and Miss Valentine, also convicted of murder, were sentenced to life imprisonment.

Prisoner Testifies

Adam Parillo, serving life imprisonment for his part in the holdup, swore in court yesterday Carreri had no knowledge of the gang that planned and staged the robbery and he himself had provided the man prisoner with a .45 calibre revolver.

Carreri had been arrested at the time Parillo was released after identifying an alibi to show he was in court and could not therefore act as another holdup charge at the time the robbery was committed.

Parillo, however, said Carreri and one of the convicted members of the gang, Joseph Ali, had come to arrange to join the robbery and then had returned.

Mr. Chief Justice R. A. E. Greenshields told the jury if they were convinced Carreri had taken part in the planning or the staging of the robbery, they must find him guilty of murder. But he pointed out the crown had only fixed on a control which was previously had decided Carreri was with the gang.

FLOOD-CONTROL SCHEME STUDIED

Portsmouth, Ohio, is Model For Late Sufferers

BY C. ROBERT KAY

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Residents of a vast United States flood belt stretching from Maine to Ohio and Kentucky, in which 166 lives were lost during a terrifying week, scraped mud and debris from their high-water cities and towns today while residents of Cincinnati watched the crest of the swollen Ohio River creep onward to new territory.

The lower Ohio Valley was the only immediate zone of high water danger remaining after a harrowing week of death and destruction.

In New England, where scores of streams overflowed their banks and wrought havoc second in severity only to the holocaust in the Ohio River watershed, conditions were definitely on the mend.

Besides immediate Government aid, communities inspired partly by the startling success of Portsmouth, Ohio, in curbing the springtime rages of the broad Ohio, sought conferences which contemplated a vast flood-control scheme for Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky.

Portsmouth, protected by a great wall, hummed with industry, though much of its area was far below the river's crest.

New England, with damage estimated at more than $370,000,000 refugees prevented from returning and with approximately 60,000 to their homes before sanitation measures were taken, concentrated on preventing spread of disease and lawlessness as it pushed the Herculean task of rebuilding.

REINDEER HERD TO BE MOVED SOON

Ottawa, March 24—(CP)—Canada's national reindeer herd, more than 3,000 strong, will start soon to move towards its summer grazing ground, Interior Minister Crerar announced today.

The Minister said the northward trek to the headwaters of Kittigazuit, near the mouth of the Mackenzie river, would be conducted slowly to keep the animals in good condition.

On their arrival at the northern end of their 4,000-square-mile reserve the summer will be herded into a sheltered valley where good grazing exists. There the fawns will be born, barely 1,000 animals, that have withstood temperatures of more than 90 below zero.

A few hours after their birth they scramble to their legs and toddle around on gangly hoofs and in a few days start nibbling moss which supplements their rations of mother's milk.

"KING COALS TO NEWCASTLE"—One would imagine that the last thing a flood victim would like to see is water. Yet this tank wagon in Norwich, N.Y., is carrying drinking water to the town's water main broke under the flooded Chenango river, and the old line, "water, water everywhere, but not a drop to drink," became more than poetry. Hence the "coals to Newcastle."

RAWDON —A large number of the friends in Rawdon Township were sorry to hear of the illness of several of the telephone lines are completely out of order. Many people have been unable to use their telephones since the terrible blizzard of last Tuesday evening. Advice to the Lovelorn
By Beatrice Fairfax

Worried About Giving her a Ring

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We go together occasionally, She's a little kid, 17, in a commercial student, and there's a long road ahead of me before I can marry. The other night she ran moonlight and music. I told her I loved her. I didn't really mean it. It was just a case of being swept off my feet by a number of dances. She told me she had always loved me. I kissed her when I left her at home.

The next time I went to her home, there was every family preparation for her birthday — the delicious odor of a cake being baked. I said to her, "What should do you want for a birthday present," thinking she'd ordain a box of candy bottle of perfume, or something like that. She said, "I want a ring with the following inside it: 'To Fan from Will.'" I said "All right, kid," and went along.

On the way home, the idea of that ring pulled on my heart. Was I committing myself? I sent her some trifling present. She has been pouting ever since, still asking for the ring. Is this demand just youth, or is it extreme wordly wisdom?

Bachelor from Necessity.

Whether the little lady's request is the result of extreme youth or worldly wisdom, you've got to watch your step, dear bachelor, and not tread softly, or the first thing you know you'll surely have stepped. And you tell me you cannot consider marriage till you have more firmly established. Avoid rings.

He's 34, She's 19

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'll cut the old, old romance of the landlady's daughter and the bachelor boarder. They're very nice people, wiped out by the depression, and I am an only family friend, known as "paying guest." I imagine I was a hard-boiled bachelor, but had never been attracted by the witcheries of being under the jurisdiction of a girl of 19.

Of course, I'm head over heels in love. Her family seem to approve, but there is that unbridgeable gap of difference in ages. What do you think about that?

Paying Guest.

A difference in ages doesn't seem so important to me as a difference in tastes. Is this girl likely to consider matrimony a clever method of a limousine chore? Do you both love children. Are you fond of

Good Manners

Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am going to be maid of honor for my sister next month and I have been planning to give her a shower, but my friends tell me that it would be incorrect. Please tell me if this is so.

2. My sister is planning an afternoon ceremony with myself and four bridesmaids attending. Would it be correct to have four ushers at an afternoon wedding?

3. Another sister is to be a bridesmaid, and is a soloist in the church. My sister who is to be married wishes to sing one solo at the church, as she sings for all her friend's weddings. Would it be correct if she left the choir at an inconspicuously as possible and went up the side aisle to the balcony or choir? We really want her to do both.

Mary.

1. First I must say that there isn't any definite rule of etiquette about the giving of a bridal shower by a close relative of the bride-to-be. But there is a very definite "suggestion" of etiquette that when a sister or the mother or other close relative of the prospective bride or groom plans a shower for the bride the appearance of a premeditor-for-gifts. When a close friend of the bride or a group of her friends plan a shower for her, it seems to be a thoroughly natural thing for them to do. When a close relative plans the shower, the gift-lovers are raised—somewhat or very much—in "wondering" as to the motive for the shower. And friends about the inappropriateness of this plan. Wherefore my pen agrees depends on your own point of view. Since you have asked me, I considered what they and I have said.

2. At a formal or near-formal afternoon wedding it is the custom for the ushers. The number of ushers depends on the preference of the guests to be invited. Since it is the form for the ushers, themselves to walk together, two by two, in both the procession and the recessional, it is for the ushers also to walk together, two by two, in both the procession and the recessional, it is not necessary to have the same number ushers as there are to be bridesmaids. But four of each is a good number, if this is convenient.

3. I can well understand that your sister would want to have this other sister sing a solo at the wedding. And though it is inconvenient to have a bridesmaid also a soloist, perhaps this could be arranged inconspicuously. The inconspicuousness depends mainly on the architecture of the church. Could she perhaps disappear quietly in the front of the church and reach the choir loft in this way, rather than walk down the side aisle. And schedule this solo so that it will come at the most convenient time in the ceremony—and only one solo, please.

Mary Invites Letters

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In your column recently a society wrote to you asking about the "duties of a young man to a dance." Your answer was to the effect that, "to give this kind of information would take more space than is available." I would appreciate it very much if you would tell me just how much a, cote should read.

M.

This note of invitation to the young man might read somewhat like this:

Dear Bob,

My sorority is giving a dance on Friday, the tenth of April, and I would like very much to have you be my guest at this dance. It is to be given in Grant Hall here, and will start at nine o'clock. I do hope that the date is convenient for you, and that you can plan to come. If you say "yes," I'll write you later and tell you what I will be a delightful party. It would be grand to see you again, and I hope that you will accept with you!

All friendliest greetings, and the hope of hearing that you will come on the tenth.

Cordially,

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions of good manners submitted by readers).

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE
"The Perfect Gentleman"
Promises Laughs Galore: Frank Morgan and Evelyn Laye Featured

Piccadilly, boulevardiers, whimsical wits and belles of London society and the folk of the music halls, figure largely in the production of London life in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Perfect Gentleman", which brings Frank Morgan to the screen, with Cicely Courtneidge, British stage and screen comedy star; the picture opens at the Belle Theatre tomorrow (Thursday) for three days, matinee daily.

Originally written by Edward Knoblock under the title Kismet as a stage vehicle, it was decided to screen it first and Carpenter wrote the adaptation.

Borrowed From Gaumont

Miss Courtneidge's favourite story in England, was borrowed from Gaumont British and brought to the screen virtually intact, especially the merry romance of an impoverished army officer and a rich girl, a composer, and their amazing and hilarious adventures together.

Tim Whelan, who directed Miss Courtneidge in several pictures and Frank Lloyd directed "Mutiny On The Bounty," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's big production megaphoner.

Hilarious details of an English music hall performance; cockney costumes at the Lord Mayor's party, at the fashionable wedding place; the major's escape from the police, and other humorous details, spice the romance. Miss Courtneidge sings several typical English comedy songs.

Featured Cast

Heather Angel, English actress who has scored in Hollywood productions, including Cecil B. DeMille's "The Crusades" and "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," is featured with Miss Courtneidge and Mr. Morgan.

"The Lady Consents" Gripping

Sparkling comedy and skilfully blended with emotional drama in "The Lady Consents," a well-liked feature attraction on the same program with Ann Harding and Herbert Marshall co-starred at the head of one of the most notable casts recently assembled for a picture.

In the role of a young engineer who loves Mrs. Talbot, is Ralph Walter Abel, a stage star from Broadway who makes his screen debut as d'Artagnan in "The Three Musketeers" and won the new leading role directed by Rowland V. Lee, "Two in the Dark". Other stellar performers in the cast are to be prayed by Margaret Lindsay, Edward Ellis, Robert Kavanagh and Judy Chase. "Mighty Atom" is a very interesting screen miniature will complete the same program.

"Rose Marie" Leering

No matter how much you liked "Naughty Marietta", that musical romance of the days when love was the fashionable thing to make in the new world, you'll like "Rose Marie" even more. Again co-starring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, this outstanding screen treat will be presented at the Belle tonight for the last time. An interesting News reel and a Walt Disney Cartoon complete the feature offering which starts at 7.30 and 9.25. Performances start tonight at 7.00 and 9.00.

War Correspondent Tells of Situation in East Africa

Robinson MacLean Speaks of Barrenness in Ethiopia

"Ethiopia will never be captured by Italy and I know of no country that is less worth capturing than Ethiopia" said Robinson MacLean, correspondent for the Telegram, who spent five months in Ethiopia and who also discussed the situation as it affects British interests, members of the British Foreign Office. The occasion was the week's dinner of the Kiwanis Club, Frank Domenico, the president, in the chair. The speaker was introduced by Mr. Rockham. Associate City Editor of the Telegram and Lieut. Shapiro expressed Kiwanian appreciation for this address.

A number of guests including, W. J. Tuxmon, Rev. Dr. James Savage, Rev. A. C. Wilson, Dr. Scott Cole, Joseph Eakes, were present to hear the speaker, while the percentage of members present was up to the high standard that has been set by the club in the past few weeks. Leo D. Riggs presided at the piano for the community singing. This was led by Harold Nelson, while Jos Rollet was in charge of the box. Arthur Sills announced the meeting of April 6th would be Guest Night. Dep. 4s, the club and that an address on "Forests and Streams" would be part of the program. There was little business transacted as most of the time of the luncheon was given to the speaker of the day.

Told of Causes

Mr. MacLean before giving a description of Ethiopia and every country much conflict has raged, told of the causes, that led up to the war. He said Mussolini was a dictator and always a dictator has to find new fields and new causes for aggression: "In this case, the need of getting rid of unemployed men was the problem and through bright reports being given him by his consuls in Ethiopia, he thought that country was the most logical to capture", said the speaker. "Mussolini thought the conquest of Ethiopia was going to be a "push over" but in this he has been badly mistaken. No one knew how the country would rally around Haile Selassie but they have rallied in great numbers, giving up a stubborn resistance. The country, however, has very no natural resources in the country and a very small area of productivity to capture.

"It is not a country for a white man, who are called "red faces" in Ethiopia", declared Mr. MacLean, "for it is cold, dirty and rain falls six months of the year. All the farming is done on the top of the hills for there the earth is washed away in the valley. Agriculture is carried on as described in the Bible, a bent stick and a team of oxen being used to cultivate the ground, the seed is sown by hand and comes through the grain in the fall. Contrary to opinion the Ethiopians are not negroes but of Arabic extraction. Turning to the Emperor of Ethiopia, the speaker said that Haile Selassie could do more work in one day than five average negroes in the country. He decides everything even to writing the letters to the Pope himself and a road 200 miles long, that was perilous to drive."

Whole Great Power

Selassie wields a great power in Ethiopia and if he should die or be killed it is said there will be a whole great war. The Emperor has a bodyguard and a wonderful staff, all of whom are trained by Selassie, killed by bazards or scientific methods. Haile Selassie is a genius level. Malaria in every form is unbelievable and filth is very prevalent. Exports of the country consist of hides, beeswax and honey, the latter being considered a great delicacy. The speaker stated, that although Ethiopia is a pagan land the church but he believed the war would not get to that land. "they can't take it," was the opinion expressed but Mussolini at all times must allow free trade. Selassie does not want to stop the war until every Italian is driven out of the country and sympathy was expressed for the Italian soldier because he said they were dying off like flies.

The mode of fighting by the Abyssinians was described, their only implements of war being a spear, yet they are offering the most stubborn resistance and are harassing the Italians at every turn.

Los Angeles, March 25 (CP) — These rings around the bathtub finally have managed to break up a home and cause a divorce.

Mrs. Thelma Apel today had won a decree from Harry Apel after she testified:

Harry would always leave a ring around the bathtub after bathing. Time and time again I said to him 'Harry, keep the tub clean' but he always refused and not only would he refuse, but he cursed me.

The decree was promptly granted.

WAYSIDE

Wayside Coal and Mines have advised the Toronto Stock Exchange that on March 21 the company paid the Granville Stock and Bond Corporation Limited, $8,000 out of production. The sum was to apply against the mortgage held by Granville Stock and Bond Corporation against Wayside Consolidated. Reduction of the loan is now paid off.

Wayside Coal, one of the market issues in general it would seem as if the public is acquiring a waiting attitude for the time being. For the reason that many quarters, particularly in New York, are advising profit taking. It must be admitted that an investment in Wall Street would not be conducive to lying prices on this side. Nevertheless, when consideration is given to the business trend, no grounds are found for pessimism.

Standard Statistics points out that there were new considerations complicated the situation during the ture last week, including floods, the Italian-Ethiopian crisis, and a turn for the better in the European situation. The flood disturbances caused momentary uneasiness in some quarters, but these cases may be compared to the recession caused by war; the secondary effect is absorbed in the general activity during the reconstruction period, the cost to be paid over a long term. Clearing the spring and summer we shall see construction and employment stimulated wholesale, and the area affected by last week's inundation, more than offset by the temporary decline in business volume because of interruptions to operation of steel mills, railroads, etc. The spring peak of industrial production will be delayed, but not lost.

Brazilian Traction eased off yesterday, undoubtedly on the first of many earning figures. It should be remembered that Brazilian Traction has reported lower earnings as compared with the previous year in the first two months of 1935 and that February decline was by far the smallest. Therefore, it would be a bit interesting to point out that Brazilian earnings are declining, a reduction is also being affected by operating expenses.

The market for the implement stocks for the current year is promising. Canada Steamship Lines has been noted in both Massey-Harris and Canada Steel.

Sales of nickel totalled 182,850,207 pounds during the year 1935, an increase over the production for 1934 when 149,349,7 pounds were produced. Sales of money metal, a nickel-copper alloy, totaled 13,411,634 pounds, an increase of 2,000,000 pounds. Sales of copper amounted to 233,000,222 pounds, a gain of 76 per cent.

Increase in Copper

The increase in copper is the highest quantity ever sold by the International Nickel Company in any year. This is the result of the recent efforts by the copper industry in 1935, including the Export Association. In the case of International Nickel, copper is a by-product of the nickel and the sales are considerable. International Nickel also sold 2,000,000 ounces of silver last year, compared with 1,006,806 ounces in 1934. Other precious and semi-precious metal amounted to 128,674 ounces, and 1,000,000 ounces in 1934. Only gold showed a decrease.

Financial Results

The financial statement of the International Nickel Company last year was published in the Financial Post, showing the physical operations. The report shows a net profit of record-breaking proportions. The amount was $6,086,227 after all charges including taxes, and reserves of $6,278,683 for depreciation, depletion and other purposes.

The comparable figure for the previous year was $16,687,476. What perhaps is of more interest is the fact that the profit of 1935 is therefore the biggest year in the company's history, the previous best being 1929, when $13,219,202 resulted, of which $13,104,478 was transferred to earned surplus. The balance sheet of the common stock was equivalent to $1.65 a share on the 4,594,025 shares of common stock.

SATURDAY SESSION LIKELY

Toronto, March 25.—(CP)—A session of the Ontario Legislature this week-end is anticipated unless more progress is made, Premier Hepburn said today. The budget debate has yet to be concluded and estimates of the Department of Public Works and Highways, which start April 1 must be passed before that time if the government is to have money to carry on its work.

New York, March 25 (AP)—Small gains in a few issues marked quiet dealings in today's stock market. While Allied Chemical, with a gain of about 7 points pushed through to 232, and U. S. Steel rose 1930 and General Motors and a number of others registered new 1936 highs, the list was weak and dull throughout.

Eggs Decline on Toronto Market

Toronto, March 25—Slumping as much as three and four cents per dozen, local egg prices yesterday fell to the season's lowest levels in a market which was extremely weak. As at the week-end, receipts yesterday were far heavier than the market could absorb, demand continued slow. The season's new low-price levels are shown in the accompanying table.

Butter prices marked time during the day at the recent advances. No. 1 Ontario dairy holding at 23½ in a market devoid of interest. Cooking was also unchanged at 19c, but there seemed to be sufficient demand to clear offerings.

	Eggs	Butter
	HOGS

PASSED FIRST TIME

Brampton, Ont., March 25 (CP) —When J. H. Campbell, theatre manager, had 13 pigeons in a load of bridge, he passed. "I guess it was because I was so excited," he said. On the next round, he received a load of seven pigeons.

Campbell's partner was Mrs. C. H. French. They were opposed by Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Abell.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, March 25.—Local egg prices continued to show a downward trend today, declines of 2c to 4c per dozen under Monday's levels being witnessed. Fresh extras sold in a minimum of 11 cents per dozen in the case lots and candles, starting Friday. Traders were saying that the market is now likely to be steadier, it being thought that a new series of drastic reductions has ended, bringing prices levels somewhat in line with the season of the year. The butter market was a little firmer. On the poultry market there was little change to lower except fowl, which were firmer. Receipts for the day were posted at the Board of Trade as 1,783 cases of eggs, 1,229 boxes of butter.

On the egg market graded shipments in carlots were: Extras 22c-23c for A-large and 19-20c for A-medium.

The butter market was 23c to 23¼c per lb. for No. 1 in carlots or l.c.l. lots.

Livestock

Toronto, March 25 (CP)—Cattle opened active and firm on the Toronto Union Stock Yards today. The calf division was also firm while sheep were steady and lambs unsettled. Hogs lambs were offered. There was a cattle holdover of 150 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: cattle 1,000 (no 230); hogs, 600; sheep, 20.

With cattle trade active, prices were firm on all grades. A few choice heavy steers brought $6.75 to $6.85 but the bulk of the heavy butcher cows sold from $3.50 to $5.75. The first calf sold was a good choice vealers selling at $8.50 to $9.00 with common downwards to $5.50.

The supply of hogs did not give indications of settling about steady. Yesterday's drop of 40 cents left it at $8.50 for Bacons. Car hogs ruled unchanged $8.15 f.o.b. for bacons and $8.40 off cars.

Sheep were steady at $3.00 to $8.50 per cwt. according to quality.

Detroit Rookie Scores Goal To Beat Maroons in Longest Hockey Game Ever Recorded

Bruneteau Takes Kilrea's Pass to Beat Chabot Easily

PLAY 176.30 MINUTES

Toronto And Hawks Each Face 3 Goal Deficit in Second Games

(By the Canadian Press)

Modere Bruneteau, young Detroit Red Wing Rookie, took Hec Kilrea's pass at 2.26 o'clock this morning and drove a shot at Lorne Chabot that broke up the longest game organized hockey has ever seen.

It gave Detroit Red Wings a 1-0 victory over Montreal Maroons in the first of their three-of-five game series for the National Hockey League championship at Montreal.

The game lasted 176 minutes and 30 seconds, 11 minutes and 44 seconds longer than the previous record game, played by Maple Leafs and Boston in Toronto in 1933. Bruneteau ended it all after 116 minutes and 30 seconds of overtime. The previous record was 104 minutes and 46 seconds.

A crowd of 9,500 persons sat for six hours in the Montreal Forum to see the terse struggle, one of the three on the opening night of the play-offs.

Boston Bruins defeated Toronto Leafs 2-0 at Boston and New York Americans won by the same count from Chicago Black Hawks at New York in the other games.

The wins gave Bruins and Americans practically a sure place in the semi-finals. Neither Toronto nor Leafs are given more than an outside chance to overcome the leads in the second games of the total-goal series at Chicago and Toronto, Thursday night.

First Stanley Cup Game

Herb Bruneteau was recalled to Red Wings from Olympics of the International League when Jack Adams' team struck a late-season slump and it was his first appearance in Detroit uniform since 1935 though he had played with Red Wings for a few games early in the season.

Norm Smith Detroit Goalie was brilliant registering his first shutout of the play-offs especially in the second period when Montreal were shorthanded. The heavy hitting Wilf McDonald and Herbie Goodfellow were standouts defensively as they spilled Maroon forwards in all directions to help Smith while Larry Aurie and Herb Lewis were also on the penalties.

Maroons had some anxious seconds in the first period, when Aurie banded for almost four minutes as Dave Trottier took a goal-mouth high-sticking Hec Kilrea and Allan Shields joined him in the box for tripping just before Aurie's time was almost up, when Shields went in but Chabot had to be good to keep the rampant Red Wings out.

Wally Kilrea drew the only penalty of the third period during which Maroons fought frantically for a goal in the period they fired 13 shots at Smith to the eight Detroit hurled at Chabot. Hockey Smith drew the only penalty of the six overtime periods, when he was banished for roughing McDonald.

There were many dark spots in the game as the teams played on carefully through the regulation time and because of weary legs and long-drawn out overtime but breath-taking moments came often enough to lift the crowd from the seats in wild excitement.

After shellacking the Hawks before some 11,000 raving fans at Madison Square Garden, the truly amazing Amerks thought not at all of the return engagement. Already they were thinking of the best strategy to use against Boston Bruins.

Schriner a Standout

Dave ("Sweeney") Schriner whipped in two goals to pace Americans to their triumph.

The spooky Calgary forward, the League's high scorer and a popular choice for all-star honors this season, tallied twice in the first period and the American dominated proceedings from there on.

Lorne Carr, Joe Shaughnessy, Beak-streak, fired the third and last marker in the third chapter.

The highest barrier in hockey, that celebrated Thompson-Shore-Siebert defence of Boston Bruins, threatened to keep Maple Leafs a long distance from the Stanley Cup.

But the defence barrier of the Bruins will be heavily favored to yield in Thursday's game—certainly not three or more goals. It was a guard the Leafs could not break down last night, though they forced the pace in every period. Goalie Tiny Thompson recorded his 11th shutout of the season.

Twice in the second period, while Toronto was playing short-handed because of penalties, Leaf Bruins charged in for goals. Each time Eddie Shore left his defence post for long enough to engineer these drives, but were perfectly smothered by the Old Master.

Leafs Fight Hard

The first time Shore shook young Peggy O'Neil loose down the right boards, Wisk, a new Leaf, and O'Neil raced in and scored with a high drive. Nearly 13 minutes later Shore went in again, accompanied by Bill Cowley, Babe Siebert and Art Chapman. He scored this one himself.

Bruins had few other chances to score. During the 40 minutes they directed only 13 shots at George Hainsworth in the Leaf cage.

But in the third period Lorne Duguid, Bruin left winger, poked the puck free in the Boston zone and rushed down alone for a goal. He skated around and Andy Blair on the Toronto defence and his shot, partially blocked, slipped in for the third goal.

THE MUNGO WIND-UP — "I'll show the boss how it should be done," whispers Van Lingle Mungo as he goes through the motions, Mungo, Brooklyn Dodgers' pitching star, is shown here as he warms up this arm at the Dodgers' training camp at Clearwater, Fla.

CONQUERED PRIMO — Leroy Haynes, husky negro battler, who blasted Primo Carnera into defeat in three rounds, is here shown casting around for new fields to conquer. The fight which brought him into the limelight was his fifth consecutive knockout victory. He claims to seek a bout with Joe Louis for the colored heavyweight championship.

SUDBURY FALCONS TO CARRY TORCH

Take Place of Hamilton When Tigers Drop Out

By The Canadian Press

Hamilton Tigers, a team that didn't lose a playoff series, will watch the rest of the Allan Cup playdowns from the sidelines. Tigers were through for the season today after a committee room defeat.

In their place, representing Ontario, will be Sudbury Falcons, the second best squad in the province's 10-3 beating Falcons took from Hamilton in the finals for the Ontario title doesn't mean a thing now.

Officially the Tigers had defaulted. They told the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association yesterday they refused to play the second game of the interprovincial clash with Montreal Royals in Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto.

The Ontario Hockey Association, through President George Dunnan, told the Tigers an O.H.A. contract with the Gardens to have the Ontario title play in the Toronto arena must be kept and when Hamilton refused Sudbury was asked to accepted an invitation to play against Royals.

Sudbury in Montreal

A hastily assembled Sudbury lineup will start the best-of-three series against Royals in Montreal tonight with the second game in Toronto Friday night and a third, if necessary, in Toronto next Monday night.

Tigers had no comment to make on the C.A.H.A. action but it was the general opinion of the fans, who saw the Sudbury-Hamilton series, that Ontario's chances to win the senior amateur hockey championship have been weakened considerably by the dropping of Tigers.

Only other action on the junior or senior front that might brought Fort Williams wanderers into the Western Canada senior final against Kimberley Dynamiters, champions of the B.C. interior.

A five-goal advantage Wanderers hold from the first game of their total-goal series against Fort Dynamiters was enough to offset a 3-2 victory by the Bombers last night.

Wanderers gave home town fans a slight scare as Pin Flon bagged two goals in the third period but Fort William had them both back in the second and were never in serious trouble after that.

SYRACUSE STARS DOWN ONE GAME

Detroit Olympics Have Edge in Playoffs For Title

(By The Canadian Press)

Detroit Olympics had a one-game advantage over Syracuse Stars in their first-place International Hockey League playoff today but their position was none too secure.

Olympics and Stars battled through one even regulation game and then Detroit bagged two goals for a 6-2 triumph, that sends them into the second game of the best-of-five series Thursday night slight favorites.

While Detroit saw the opening of the playoffs, Cleveland Falcons whipped Buffalo Bisons 7-1 and London Tecumsehs beat Windsor Bulldogs 4-3 to conclude the long regular schedule. The Cleveland win gave Bud Cook and Frank Daley joint hold on the 1936 scoring championship.

Syracuse were really beaten 3-2 for the Olympics got their final goal, while five Syracuse forwards were bunched in the Detroit defence zone in a desperate try for the equaliser.

Backed by sensational goaltending by Wally Kilrea, Detroit Olympics were ahead in the first period, benefited by a penalty the second but went into the third all even at 2-2. Then Burr Winslow and Art Jones cut out the finishing touches to plays started by Wilf Starr. Starr had a hand in all four Detroit scores.

He got one of the others himself and helped Johnny Gallagher on the other. Eddie Gans Olympics' Syracuse's first near the end of the first period and Eddie Burke their second to put Stars ahead in the second period.

Cook and Daley, the former getting four points and Daley three, split over the crown won by Jack Markle, ace Syracuse winger, as Leafs for the colored heavyweight championship.

Cincinnati Reds Lack Punch But Have the Hurling

By PAUL MICKELSON

Associated Press Sports Writer

Tampa, Fla., March 25—(AP)—Cincinnati Reds started their 1936 baseball campaign from the floor of the Atlantic Ocean but expect to wind up atop second division, at least in the National League brackets, pilots.

Manager Charlie Dressen said today they can't miss this year. When he took his players to Puerto Rico he let them go deep sea diving the first few days.

"With a start, like that," Dressen figured, "there's only one direction to go. That's up. We should top the second division."

Back of punch probably will loom the Reds from starting a two-fisted smoogo the National League ranks. Except for Catcher Ernie Lombardi and Outfielder Babe Herman, the Reds can't count on a single sock to fire four-range hither. However, the pitching and defence should be tight enough to make the club tough.

Paul Derringer, giant right hander, who won 22 and lost 13 last year for the sixth place Reds, is the pitching ace. With him are Cedric Cobott, winner of eight and loser of 11 in his first big league season last year; Al Hollingsworth, who dropped a world of stuff in '35, and Joe Stine, regarded as one of the best rookie mound prospects in baseball. Stine won 18 and lost 11 with the second division St. Paul Club of the American Association last year.

Four in Game Played In Last Long One

Montreal, March 25 (CP)—Four players of Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Maroons each wondered today if he was the Jonah pursued by marathon hockey games.

The four, Goalie Lorne Chabot, Centre Bob Gracie and Utility Forward Joe Lamb of Maroons, and Centre Marty Barry of Detroit, all took part in the 164 minute 46 second game Boston-Toronto game at Toronto in the spring of 1933, when all records for length of a National Hockey League game were broken.

Last night all four among the tired band of players, that staggered off the forum ice after Maroons and Detroit pushed, that record up to 176 minutes, 30 seconds before a scoreless draw was broken.

All had changed their uniforms in the intervening three years. Chabot was the goalie who won the game and Gracie the lanky rookie; last night it was his turn to know the disappointment of the almost lone bonus of shutout hockey and then have a puck slip past him.

Bob Gracie was Chabot's teammate with Leafs while Barry and Lamb were Boston sweaters on the memorable night young Ken Dorsay broke up the Toronto game. It was another Bruin, Modere "Mud" Bruneteau who salted away last night's game.

Teammates Praise Bruneteau for Goal

By ROBERT CLARKE

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, March 25 (CP)—"Mud" Bruneteau knows what it feels like today to hear a hockey crowd shout his name with applause.

He stood last night in the Detroit dressing room with a happy smile on his face and his sandy head bowed low as he talked with Goalie Normie Smith for a photograph. A minute before, almost alone in the Montreal Forum, he scored the only goal in a game that lasted 176 minutes, 30 seconds between Detroit Wings and Montreal Maroons.

His teams is really Modere but that didn't stick long and the nickname "Mud" was applied pretty quickly. This 21-year-old lad from 68, Bonsecours, Marie, is by far the youngest roster.

Wally Kilrea fed "Mud" the pass for the winning goal. Both of the hockey gamerats and stepped into the shower with a loud, "Say, Mud, you're a hero now." It was the same with the whole gang. Victory always has their spirits and they freely gave exclamation to "Why I knew we could do it all the time."

Jovial Jack Adams was all smiles. In the others evening room Maroons accepted their defeat in a philosophical mood. Tommy Gorman thought it was just a tough break, that defeated them. The manager thought Maroons were even the series in the next game tomorrow.

OUTFITTERS FOR PARTICULAR MEN

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Now that the water has receded below the top level or our hip boots and we managed to salvage our trusty old Remington from the briny depths of the flood waters, we can once again get back into circulation and view from the home-town the local sporting situation. Quite a lot besides water has passed under the bridges since we were forced to vacate local sporting activities two weeks ago, so we'll review the local athletic realm as it today stands without further comment.

First and foremost what every person wants to know is—"What about the senior baseball situation in Belleville?" That question is quite simple to answer—There is none." We, as well as numerous others, have been trying to kid ourselves, that something of a driver-head chief might pierce through the dark clouds and cast a ray of light upon senior ball in Belleville. But alas, the situation looks no brighter at present than it did last November when the B.A.B.A. executive resigned in a body.

For the information of the general public and to lay the cards fully on the table, face upwards, there is no senior baseball club in Belleville today and what is more, there is no executive or governing body to guide the destinies of its possible future. A few of the old guard and more faithful fans are endeavouring to rally to the cause and endeavour to stimulate sufficient interest to place a team in the C.O.B.L. but it looks as though they are fighting a losing battle as naturally they will not take the full responsibility and cannot seem to interest more business men into taking an active part in the resurrection of the summer pastime, which has been slipping rapidly down the skids for some seasons past.

The climax came, when all of last year's B.A.B.A. executive refused to take office for the advancement of baseball in Belleville except perhaps Raymond Carr and George Lee, both of whom agreed to act until a new executive body was formed. Erik Lowsman agreed to assist in the matter of finances and has taken one per player into the management. Both Wing and Lee are the others have had enough. They simply said—"Could we see this year's, 1936 season-monday" has been called to discuss the local baseball situation at the Y.M.C.A. on Friday night at 7.30 p.m., and from that meeting the future of senior baseball will be decided upon and for all. There is to be no quibbling, it is simply a matter of get on the band-wagon and lend your hearn with the rest or close shop and travel to Napanee, Kingston or Trenton. Belleville had a very senior baseball games of interest last season, There's the old Yeomans Club with Ted Wing at the helm, Ted has got the stuff, he got out, do, now yourself.

Now that the warmer weather is assured, we wonder what the wrestling promoters are doing wards hooking up with a g wrestling combine for the ap months.

Since our last publication interscholastic basketball winners have been decided, we are glad to report that Belleville will be represented by two winners in the C.O.S.S.A. Downs at Oshawa on Friday Saturday, Eddie Schrieder's Mikado's players eventually the senior cage honors in the of Quinte group, while Geo. Lee C. I. kids won the Belleville boys' title. These two squads represent the Bay of Quinte district in the provincial play-downs, while in the girls' groups, Trenton H. will represent the district and C. I. the senior lassies' title.

STAND GUARD OVER STANLEY CUP FOR MONTREAL MAROONS—Defending the Stanley Cup they won in three straight games with Toronto Maple Leafs last year, the powerful, well-balanced Montreal Maroons meet Detroit Redwings in the first round N.H.L. play-offs, considerable as an added stake. The brilliant Maroon defence has as stars Lionel Conacher, veteran all-star thistle, who still remains one of hockey's greatest defencemen. "GLITTERING GIRL"

By MAY CHRISTIE

Glamorous Vernon decided she must be very, very good to her pretty little cousin.

They left the Pretty Cheek and Nan guided her a block or two to that ultra-smart dressmaker, Madame Jerkins, whose exclusive salon was on Fifth Avenue on West 56th Street. There they sat, each in a ring of mannequins, while chairs and sofas were upholstered in shiny leather of Chinese blue. Down a winding staircase with balustrade of wrought iron promenaded models in exquisite evening dresses.

"Ow! this sea-green taffeta gown is the most luscious thing I've ever seen; you'll look like Aphrodite rising from the waves in it. You've simply got to buy it, Vernon!"

"It's certainly beautiful, but——" The gown was cut out at the waist to the waistline, and was suspended over the shoulders by the frailest of straps.

"It's the newest thing—go slip it on, Vernon!" Nan commanded.

The ladies caught their breath in honest admiration when Vernon returned in the dress. Her milk-white shoulders emerged from the great taffeta ruffles like shoots from willow, slender and graceful. The diminutive bodice was high-waisted with a tiny "peplum" caught in front by a rhinestone ornament.

From the knees downwards, the long, tightly-fitting skirt widened out with wide ruffles. A little cape, fashioned from the sea-green taffeta cut in leaves, could be worn either over the shoulders, or carried as a big muff. The color of the gown was wonderful with Vernon's russet hair and golden skin. She looked gorgeous.

Ten hundred dollars was the price. Nan said airily: "Send it at six o'clock, C.O.D., to suite 370 in the Hotel Splendide."

Vernon was wondering what her mother would say to such frivolities? But the stimulating air of New York was in her blood. If only Terry Shannon could see her in the gown tonight—if only he were coming to the Saydam penthouse party!

It was half-past five when the two girls re-entered the wide lobby of the Splendide. They had promenaded on Fifth Avenue in the Park Avenue. Vernon had been thrilled at the passing show.

The lobby of the Splendide was almost as crowded as a street. They walked towards the tower elevator.

Suddenly Nan violently pinched Vernon's arm, whispering excitedly: "That terribly handsome man on the stairs! He's right over there! He's coming down to speak to him—to introduce him to me—quick!"

Vernon looked over, her heart doubling with excitement. It was Terry Shannon, right enough. Had he come here purposely, to see her?

Terry Shannon came directly over to the two girls in the lobby of the Hotel Splendide, his teeth an even 1,oth or white in his good-looking, tanned face as he held out both hands in greeting.

"This is a piece of luck! We meet the needle in a haystack! I've been desperate all the afternoon for hours, having a confab with Madame Jerkins, confident I could pump, and I was just thinking of giving you a ring, to see how you were after your fall."

Before Vernon could speak, Nan interjected: "Grandeur! I've met him. He's head of the Artists and New Modern Schools. He's a big pal of Sir Hubert's, a friend of Dad's." Her big blue eyes were opened to their fullest extent as she fluttered long lashes up at the handsome young man. It was her most cameo-like look, calculated to melt cold ice—but the creature's game was all for Vernon!

With a surprisingly casual air, a new pose, Vernon introduced Nan. Already, it seemed, the cousin from Texas was progressing!

"Terry Shannon! What a lovely name!" cried Nan. "And haven't you a sister, Sheila, in Spence School? About fifteen or sixteen now? A wild little devil?"

Terry Shannon grinned. "That fits the bill. You know her?"

"Slightly. I spent a couple of years there."

"Then what about having a cup of tea? Let's have a pow-wow."

"The Hungarian Room has got a delicious music and a good dance floor," volunteered Nan quickly. She hoped to heaven that Vernon wouldn't queer everything by saying she had to go upstairs to her mother! He seemed rather smitten with Vernon—Nan told herself she'd love to encourage him! Although Nan had a vast belief in her own personal attractions, she began to think she'd been rather a fool to beautify this girl from Texas!

CHAPTER IX.

A few minutes later Vernon and Nan and facing Terry Shannon at a tiny table on the balcony of the Hungarian Room.

Nan chattered incessantly. She wanted him to understand what Vernon's position was, and how socially, Vernon couldn't get a word of reproach.

But Terry Shannon's darkly blue eyes (extraordinarily handsome and devilish they were! Nan decided) were turned on Vernon.

"Like her new shade of hair? I took her to Ronaire's and got her all doiled up." There was satisfaction behind the remark, for Nan was growing exasperated.

"I don't see much change in Miss Tyson at all. She looked good to me from the start." His eyes smiled at Vernon as though he greatly admired her.

"If I could only get alone with him, I'd register—I'd make him fall for me!" thought Nan. She suggested they dance, but Terry claimed he was out of practice.

She tried a new attack. Vernon had no secret for the Saydam's party this evening, and he simply must accompany them? Nan would guarantee that he would have a perfectly dee-vine time, for all the "young crowd" would be there—the swift ones.

"Do you mean, Chlahoiin Surdam, who used to go to Yale?" asked Terry lazily. "I know him. But I haven't seen him in at least a couple of years," he added nonchalantly.

"Don't urge him, Nan," said Vernon, her eyes twinkling. "He assured me on the train that he simply loathes parties—especially the kind on Park Avenue."

"But not the Saydam kind," persisted Nan. "They're absolutely informal. Everyone can do exactly as they please. You can even go to bed and sleep right through them if you want to, at the Saydam pent-house!" She had taken a fancy to this handsome Terry, and must have her opportunity with him—quickly the better.

Vernon kept silent. Her thoughts had gone back to last night, to their prolonged and fascinating conversation on the train. If he really wanted to cultivate her friendship, it was now up to him.

But with all her heart she hoped he would escort her. She hoped that all the parties would be simply deviled with this Terry Shannon.

x x x

Up in the Tysons' apartment, some time later, Vernon stood before her mother in the beautiful new green evening dress.

"It certainly shows an awful lot of you, Margie Tyson. And it's a simply shocking price! But if your cousin says it's the right style, I'm sure I won't stand in your way."

Vernon noticed that neither she nor Jake had been invited by Nan to the Saydam party.

Not that Jake wanted to go. He only wanted peace, and his pipe, and the fireside. Evening clothes he absolutely loathed. But she'd break him of that dislike here in New York, where everyone who was anyone wore their tuxedos in the evenings.

The doorbell rang. A bellboy handed in a white cardboard box, addressed to Miss Tyson. A cascade of fragrant gardenias was revealed, creamy-white against shiny green leaves.

"Just right for my dress. How very much obliged I am to Mr. Shannon. Please tell the boy to wait, Jake, while I write a note of thanks."

Jake Tyson grinned. "Terry Shannon, eh? Well, I'll be darned! Fancy him remembering that you like gardenias!"

Margie Tyson looked at her husband with a pitying smile. "Terry Shannon knows more about women after you left us. Wasn't that sweet of him?" she broke off, her eyes resting on the gardenias. "Say, where did you get them?"

"They came half an hour ago—delivered with no card or anything."

"Huh! Probably from him," Nan looked crestfallen for a moment. "You'll have to train him to send you orchids. They're much more expensive than just gardenias! Sugar sent me these. On her shoulder were luscious purple blooms.

The penthouse was an elaborate affair, with conservatories and a little palm court, and a fountain. There was a long open-air terrace, with an enchanting view of Central Park and the reservoir.

What a place for romance! thought Vernon. While she was greeting all the new people her thoughts were incessantly on Terry Shannon. That look in his fine eyes as they rested on her all night through in the Hungarian Room this wonderful afternoon!

It disturbed her that he had not jumped at the chance of accompanying her tonight to the party, however.

If he had really felt as she felt, he would have asked at once on the opportunity offered by Nan that he escort her....

THE TARZAN TWINS

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Tarzan the man-beast was on the hunt—with men as his quarry. The cannibals crossed streams, bivouacked their tracks, confident of their ability to deceive pursuers: but no trickery could conceal their trail from him who was sovereign lord of the primitive wild.

As he followed, hour by hour, the scent and evidence of the raiders' passing became warmer and fresher. At last the ape-man and his bristling warriors stood outside the village of the offenders.

"Open, your gates," he roared, "Tarzan demands embrace."

While Tarzan was making his dangerous demand, Dick and Doc had lined into position. But Dick suddenly cried out: "Look! Look!" Nearby leaped a herd of springbok, those graceful animals that constitute the dancing ballet of Africa's grim drama.

"Humph! Jumping goats!" groaned Doc. "But, say, look ahead there." Doc leaned out of the window and saw that the gleaming rails were leading them into a dark, gloomy jungle. "Now this is the real stuff," the boy cried. "Things can happen here."

And Doc was right!

SENATOR LOGAN

CAPT. HATFIELD

"GYPSUM QUEEN" CASH IS REVIVED—It is reported from Ottawa that action taken by the crown to recover from Hon. Hance J. Logan, 67-year-old senator from Nova Scotia, and Captain Freeman Hatfield, veteran Nova Scotia sea captain, $71,000 paid to the latter in compensation for the loss of the three-masted schooner Gypsum Queen during the war was upheld by an exchequer court judgment. For more than a year Captain Hatfield has been in a Manchester, N.H., jail fighting extradition to Canada, where he is wanted on a criminal charge of fraud in connection with the same transaction that resulted in the judgment. He has never appeared at any of the proceedings in Canada, which started in 1931, when an affidavit was discovered in Liverpool, England, indicating that the Gypsum Queen was lost in a storm.

DIPLOMATS "RUN GAUNTLET" ATTENDING LOCARNO PEACE CONFERENCES—Three delegates to the Locarno pact discussions hurry to one of the conference at the London war office, where delegates of the League of Nations council are assembled in an attempt to erect a new peace structure to replace the one shattered by Hitler in his re-occupation of the German remilitarized Rhineland zone. Newspapermen and photographers question and photograph the statesmen as they hasten through the street. The men are (LEFT to RIGHT): M. Paul van Zeeland, Belgium's Premier and Minister for Foreign Affairs; Mr. Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer for England, and Lord Halifax, England's War Secretary. BIRDS ATTRACTED BY DUMP REFUSE

Thousands of Rats Drowned From Their Holes Rush to Dump

Thousands of birds, attracted by the tons of flood-spoiled food and groceries, carted and unloaded there, have been invading the west city dump during the past few days in city darkening clouds. Here they have found a paradise of feasting on the varied bill of fare, that is offered, ranging all the way from candies to breakfast foods.

From sparrows to sea gulls and crows, the whole feathered tribe is represented.

But not only the birds have taken advantage of this influx of food. Whole armies of rats, drowned from their holes particularly in the downtown section during the recent flood, have migrated to the dump, where they have taken up position, quarrelling fiercely with those already there. Droves of the animals are reported observed crossing from the east to the west side of the river over the car bridge under cover of darkness nightly.

By order of the Mayor, sanitary have been posted at the dump to prevent scavengers carrying off the damaged food stuffs and eating it, thus risking possible disease.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking and thinking in his private chair, saying to me, That certainly was a coincidence your meeting old Eggie Jones, Old Eggie and I had some grate times together when we were lads, and we haven't seen each other since. Has he still got that funny squinky face? pop said.

That's a perfect discription of him, Ben hee, me said, and pop said, I wonder if I could get hold of him. I'd like to have him up for dinner and a good old talk about old times.

Now Willyum, remember what happened the last time you had an old school frend with you, ma said, and pop said, Do you mean old Tubbie Carter?

That was the name and that was what he looked like, ma said. I tried to get up a nice game of bridge but you both claimed you simply had to talk about old times, but after dinner all you did was sit there and look at each other like goats till you decided your memories about old times were rusty, and that Carter man said he knew of a perfect place where you could go and oil them up, ma said, and pop said, O yes, I remember.

Then it's probeny the last thing you do remember, because the next thing I had of you was a 6 o'clock the next morning and that Carter man was still with you and you had rung about 6 of the naybors doorbells and they were looking out their bedroom windows and you were introducing that Carter man to them at the top of your voice and you didn't seem able to understand why they didn't seem to be enjoying any of the pleasure, and that Carter man slept here on the living room divan because my sister Fanny happened to have the guest room at the time, and I had to use all the kings horses and all the kings men to keep the 2 of you from going up to serenade her, and now do you actully mean to say you insists on bringing home another old school chum? ma said, and pop said, Well, perhaps not.

Meaning no.

BRITAIN STANDS BY LOCARNO, EDEN DECLARES

Eden Advises Germany To Still Europe's Fear; Speaks Mind to France

Foreign Secretary Speaks Frankly to His Own People

BRITISH OBLIGATIONS

France Must Preserve Open Mind Over Differences

London, Mar. 26 (CP)—Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, spoke his mind today. He had frank and unmistakable words for Germany, France and his own countrymen alike. And as he sat down after a speech of an hour—a packed House of Commons gave him generously of its applause.

To France he declared peace could not be assured unless the French government was ready to approach with open mind the proposals on which she differed from Germany.

"I would like to say to Germany: How can we hope to enter negotiations with any possibility of success unless you are prepared to do something to allay the anxieties in Europe which you have created."

Britain Cannot Go Back.

Eden pointed out to them Great Britain was obliged under the Locarno Treaty to guarantee there be no aggression between Germany, France and Belgium.

"I am not prepared," he said, "to be the first British Foreign Secretary to go back on a British signature.

"I believe it to be the judgment of this country, even if we think Germany has a strong case, that we depreciate the fact that she has chosen to pursue it by force and not reason.

"We must distinguish between what might be national sentiment and what are our national obligations."

Eden continued: "It is likely enough that Germany, and this country who say to themselves now, in our judgment, the territories of France and Germany should be treated on exactly equal terms.

"It might be that the people feel that, but these are not the terms of the Treaty of Locarno and these are not the terms of the treaty under which we are guaranteed and the treaty which has formed the main element in the peace of western Europe in the last 19 years."

And to his countrymen, Eden said: "We cannot escape from our share in this country direct ourselves of prejudices about those in foreign countries."

Speaks With Vehemence.

Eden spoke only from notes, yet with unusual vehemence what contribution, he sharply pointed out, Germany prepared to make. If success was to crown the opening of negotiations, Germany must be ready by some contribution.

"None has been forthcoming save the Chancellor's offer not to increase the number of men from that originally entered the zone," said the Foreign Secretary. "While I am ready to admit the importance of that offer I cannot believe it to be emphasis to his words . . . frankly in the present international situation it is inadequate.

"If in addition to that the German government would give an undertaking that for the period of negotiations the world would be at peace—that would give us something to work with. But I am informed that even that is speaking as far as possible for the German government is given."

A murmur ran around the House as Eden revealed Germany's refusal.

Historical Story Told.

The Foreign Secretary reviewed the origin of the demilitarized zone of the Rhineland following the Great War and recalled the Locarno years' occupation by allied soldiers.

He pointed out the United States had failed to ratify a proposal for its permanent participation. That proposal, he said, called for a guarantee from Great Britain and the United States and asserted Great Britain's ratification of the plan had been "founded on the United States' action."

Germany's Responsibility.

He then put the responsibility upon Germany for the original demand for such a zone.

"This demand for a demilitarized zone," said Eden, "rested in the original demand put forward by Germany, which initialled the conventions which led to the signature of the Locarno Treaty."

The Locarno powers' proposals to settle the Rhineland crisis allayed the immediate prospect of war, he moves, Eden said.

The second proposals, coming "at a moment of crisis," he said, allayed the immediate prospect of steps being taken which might have led to war."

Eden said he felt the "latent dan-

Twin Canaries From Freak Egg

Hamilton, Ont, March 26—(CP)—Twin canaries reared by John Cameron, Hamilton, caused considerable excitement from bird fanciers today. Leader the breeders said it was the first time they had heard of such a freak.

The hen, a green roller, had been sitting on three eggs for 11 days, one of which was oddly shaped. Yesterday there were three canaries in the nest and one egg still to be hatched. The odd-shaped egg is believed to have had a double yolk.

ger" of the situation had not yet been "wholly superseded."

Contribution From Germany.

"We must have a contribution from Germany toward easing the situation," he declared.

"So far none has been forthcoming save the Chancellor's undertaking not to increase the number of troops which originally entered the zone."

The Foreign Secretary said: "I do not view the future with a light heart.

Critical Period Ahead.

"I believe we are beginning a period which must, at best, be one of the most critical in historical negotiations."

The proposals from Germany which are to come next week will be entered into with an open mind and with a keen desire to make the best use of them that we can in order to bring about a lasting peace settlement of Europe," Eden said.

He admonished France, as well as Germany, to approach a solution of the situation in a "new light."

"But of this unpromising outlook, opportunities may be offered. If we are to seize them, it is imperative that as a country we should be united in policy and in purpose."

Lack of Protection Claimed One Cause For Holdup, Murder

Hull, Que., March 26—(CP)—Lack of proper protection for employees of the Hull branch of the Banque Provincial Du Canada was responsible, one coroner's jury felt, in the death of the bank's money car and subsequently slaying of Armand Lapar, bank clerk. The jury trying six men charged with murder was told today.

"Considering the responsibility that was placed in the hands of the men who should have given him more protection," Coroner Gagnon, counsel for Paul LaPierr, one of the accused said. "Lack of adequate protection was the primary cause of the crime and an invitation to the crime. I cannot help but feel that the bank ask police protection for its employees, who transported the money.

"The bank is insured and has nothing to lose. Mr. Lapar, probably trying to save a dollar or fifty cents to the bank, was riding in an old automobile, with its engine not adequately protected," Mr. Gagnon said.

Co-Operative Gardening Suggested by Mayor H. Hill To Serve the Unemployed

All Would Share in Products Raised, Which Everyone Helps to Produce

LAND IS NEEDED

Weather the city will go into gardening as a wholesale proposition this year as one means of feeding the unemployed next winter is the question being discussed by the city fathers and officials of the city relief office, who are giving the matter serious consideration.

Provincial Constable Mayor Hill, the community garden or gardens, which would consist of ten or fifteen acres, was one of the ways as one means by which costs of gardening, seeds and supplies could be kept down and more actual returns for the money received. The move has the support of several members of the council— if the people favor it. Discussion by the city fathers and officials of the city relief office, who are giving the matter serious consideration.

Why not do like they do in England? There a whole community plot is divided up and, everyone the land and works toward one common end. They raise enough to more than keep them during the winter months," suggested the member of the council approached. "There these community gardens are looked upon as a serious proposition. The ground is ploughed, the seed bought and planting so we have seen on occasions in this city. And if there is, and that is thought, there is a very severe penalty"

Would Be Cheaper

"The thing could be done," pointed out the Mayor, recently, "And I believe it could be done cheaper than the way it is now being done on wish individual lots, and lots, that in some cases were only half worked or badly worked. We have saw some evidences of this myself this year where the land was allowed to be and rot in the ground. Some of the lot were not got tired before the crop came up.

"Under this new system everyone would turn out, and would work a stated period in order to share the crop. If it became necessary one or two men could be kept on all the time, older gardeners in many cases stand the business. And if there was any fear of stealing or damage, there is a night watch or patrol during the growing season," said the Mayor.

As yet no registration for the lot has been taken up by the city office, pending the return of Mayor Hill from Ottawa.

STOLEN CAR IS SOON RECOVERED

Trenton Police Hold Two Men For Theft of Automobile

Trenton, March 26 (Special) — Two men, Cecil Gardiner, Trenton and Guy Johnston, Tillsonburg, were arrested here early today on suspicion of stealing an automobile in Belleville last night. Subsequent questioning by the police led to admission of the offence and the men were turned over to Chief Reid of the Belleville police, shortly before noon and formally charged with the theft of a motor car, the property of Lodder Lundenburg, 236 Albert Street, Belleville.

Shortly after 10.00 p.m. last night the Trenton police received communications from the Belleville authorities relative to a 1935 Dodge sedan being stolen from that city and a subsequent search for and locating the vehicle. While going over their beat at an early hour this morning Sergeant Walter Provost and P. C. Lou located the stolen vehicle abandoned on Front Street here shortly before 7.00 a.m. Further investigation took the two officers to Allard's cafe on King, where Gardiner and Johnston were apprehended and taken to the police station for questioning. Later police state, these two men admitted the charge of theft. Chief Bells of Trenton, later announced, that Gardiner had only recently completed a short term in jail after being convicted of the theft of another motor vehicle.

The stolen vehicle, which had been parked on Pinnacle Street, by Mr. Lindenberg on Friday evening was reported stolen at 8.55 p.m. last night. Local police authorities broadcast the theft of the vehicle over the police radio station C. J. R. and also telephoned nearby towns and cities to be on the alert for the stolen Dodge sedan. Chief Reid journeyed to Trenton today and returned with the two alleged automobile thieves. They will be held in custody until Friday morning when they will appear in local police court formally charged with the theft of Mr. Lindenburg's car. Johnston, it is believed is a transient, although he gave Tillsonburg as his home address.

OTTAWA, March 26.—(CP)—Three men escaped with about $2,000 after holding up the Bank of Nova Scotia at the corner of Elgin and Frank Streets here today at 10.30 a.m. in a light colored car.

One bandit remained at the wheel of the car, parked at the curb outside the bank, and two entered the bank. They had only the holdup, brandishing guns, and after scooping up the money ran to the waiting car.

As far as could be learned no customers were in the bank at the time and nobody outside witnessed the hold up or noticed anything unusual.

IVORY FIGURE OF CHRIST STOLEN

High Altar in Cathedral in Philadelphia Desecrated

Philadelphia, March 26 (AP)—Thieves entered the cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul today and stole a large ivory figure of Christ from the high altar in front of an ancient and valuable Genoese crucifix.

Rev. Joseph Kelly, rector, said services were held valuables, including two gold chalices, a ciborium and a gold box for "mass book and a tray" used by priests in communion. Officials said the thieves left behind all the value of the stolen goods.

The thieves broke the window in the high altar and tried to pry open the massive doors of the tabernacle where the sacrament and communion vessels are kept.

Rev. Kelly is known to thousands. It hung on the wall of the main building of the school itself is of wood and silver and the figure, about 18 inches high, is fashioned from a rare piece of ivory. It weighs 125 pounds and is believed to be very old.

It is believed to have been the life work of a 15th century Augustinian lay brother.

MYSTERY PHONE CALL

Mildred Johnson's Death Under Probe By Police

Fort William, Mar. 26 (CP)—Gordon Bliss was in police custody today, charged with assault, while police sought to unravel a series of events that led to the death of Mildred Johnson. The body of the 23-year-old telephone operator was found at the Bliss home early this morning.

A telephone call from an unidentified source led to the discovery of the tragedy. At the home of A. V. Bliss, father of the accused, police found the body of Miss Johnson in a downstairs room, lying in a pool of blood.

The head of the young girl was battered and the telephone receiver shattered. Gordon, the only other occupant of the house, was found fully dressed in an upstair's room. An inquest will be held.

Information By Telephone

The telephone call was received at police headquarters at four o'clock this morning. Police believed information was received by Miss who was living at home alone while his parents and other members of the Bliss family were visiting friends in eastern Canada.

Police were endeavoring to trace the movements of the young couple after they left the South dance earlier in the morning. The police girl had been with a Mr. Gordon Gardner-in-law. Young Bliss was alone.

Relatives of Miss Johnston stated she told them she was going to Bliss to attend a party that was to be held after the dance and that she had accepted. Nothing is known of their movements after that time.

FURTHER REPRIEVE IS UNEXPECTED

Governor Will Refuse Unless Attorney General Agrees

Trenton, N.J., March 26.—(AP)—Faced with Governor Hoffman's statement that he would follow the Attorney General agree" Bruno Richard Hauptmann's defense carried their plea to the Court of Pardons today to save the convicted kidnaper from a date in the electric chair five days hence.

Should the court grant a stamp down on the convicted Lindbergh kidnaper, he will live two and a half months ago, judicial intervention remained his only hope and appeared remote.

Failure in the Court of Pardons and failure to convince Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchmen that Judge Trenchard was given new evidence to ask for a new trial means Hauptmann will probably die in the electric chair.

Trenchard was asked if this is so and replied:

"I have no comment," he replied: "Yes."

Nevertheless, he said he had faith in Governor Hoffman would agree with him a judicial stay of execution would be granted if there be "a conclusion of such a nature as would make it necessary to consider the whole life to prove the statements" or should there be other important developments.

MAYOR H. HILL HOPES FOR HELP

Tells of Hearty Reception by Hon. McL. Rogers, Labor Minister

"A real successful trip," smiled Mayor Hill this morning.

Back from Ottawa, where he sought and managed to obtain interviews with the Dominion Government in connection with the effort to secure substantial donations for flood rehabilitation in the city, Mayor Hill was optimistic over the reception he received.

"So far I can't say very much," he commented when pressed for a statement regarding the matter, "I will say this though, that we were treated like gentlemen. And we have hopes, high hopes."

"We have the promise," continued Mayor Hill, "that the matter will be taken up immediately and given serious consideration. The Hon. Norman McL. Rogers was most sympathetic. We were with Charlie Cameron and I—elected to let him her most. He also received numerous questions, wanted to know all about Belleville and the damage we received. Then he gave us his promise that the matter would be taken up at once with other members of the Cabinet. We will be advised very soon."

Mayor Hill's trip followed a visit to the Provincial Government at Toronto last week, when he made his first appeal for funds to carry out the work. It was then that he was intimated by the Hon. David Croll Minister of Welfare, that some assistance from the Provincial or the Dominion Government would also be forthcoming.

The efforts of Mr. C. A. Cameron, M.P., of this city, to secure funds for the work were also lauded by Mayor Hill. Mr. Cameron had interviews with the Premier and the Hon. Norman Rogers and had also helped in the appeal.

"Charlie Cameron is a real fellow. He worked his head off and got results," Mayor Hill said. And he could spare. His looked everybody and he told them his story. One thing at a time, he told them they know Belleville has had a flood, and that money is now necessary to carry on."

PROTEST MEETING HELD AT KINGSTON

Cheese Exporters and Others Against Moving of Dairy School

Belleville cheese exporters and others connected with the industry in this immediate district aided their voice of protest against the removal of the Eastern Dairy School, from Kingston to Kemptville at a largely attended meeting held in the Kingston Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday evening. The meeting brought together representatives of the cheese industry from Prince Edward, Leeds, Hastings, Lanark, Prince Edward and other counties of the area.

At the meeting it was unanimously decided to send a strong deputation to Toronto to interview the Provincial Minister of Agriculture requesting that the School be established in Kingston.

Mr. J. O. Hagerman of this city, as one of the speakers, pointed out that it is better advised that "the School at Kingston serves the best purpose from right where it is. It is adjacent to Queen's University, where scientific help can be obtained at any time and it is in the centre of the cheese industry. It should not be taken away from this city," he then pressed, "the school at Kemptville should never have been built," he continued. "The facilities are here and the school can be operated more cheaply here. Don't give up but let the School get away from you.

"You can't give sound training at Kemptville, with the Provincial Dairy School from here to Kemptville. It certainly is not wrong. We have the sum of $16,000 here put in the estimates for Kemptville? All there is there is a cow, a farm and no water. If you want water you have to haul it there yourself. Here we have all the facilities. I suggest that back of the whole move and G. Howard Ferguson is pulling the wool over Mitchell Hepburn's eyes and he doesn't know it," charged Mr. Hagerman in conclusion.

Mr. James S. Cook, prominent resident of this city who declared himself strongly in favor of keeping the School in Kingston. He pointed to the convenience and the necessity of having Queen's University so handy, where much time could be saved in making regular tests. A record test sent to Guelph took over three weeks before the result was learned, but when it went to Kingston it was there at Queen's in three days, pointed out Mr. Cook.

On the motion of J. M. Hughes, Napanee, the following resolution was unanimously supported.

"Whereas the Provincial Government has named Kemptville as the site for the new Eastern Dairy School and

Whereas the Kingston Chamber of Commerce and Kingston Board of Trade have strongly protested against the removal of the School to Kemptville and

Whereas Kingston was unanimously supported.

Therefore be it resolved that the Kingston Chamber of Commerce and Kingston Board of Trade strongly protest against the removal of the School to Kemptville and that Kingston was unanimously supported."

Had Right Names but Wrong Serial Numbers

Two local citizens experienced rather thrilling incidents the other night when they sat in the first radio broadcast of the lucky winners in the Irish sweepstakes announced. Both had local ticket purchased as one of the coveted sweepstake tickets and were awaiting the announcement of the winners, when first non de groans were announced over the radio. One had signed "Lucky Thirteen" and the other "Faith' as their non de plume. Both of these names appeared drawn in the Irish sweepstakes and announced over the radio, but alas when the results were finally published in the newspapers the lo-cal residents were disappointed to learn their serial numbers were not the proper figures however.

"Faith" one of the pair said that holder of ticket bearing the non de plume "Faith" had been drawn "I did not sleep all night," stated George Gay, manager of the Belleville Arena, who had purchased a sweepstake ticket and signed the non de plume "Faith." It was a terrible setback, however, when I read in the paper the next day and found that some other person in Belleville had used the same name and was the winner." A local hotel manager was the holder of the other ticket bearing "Lucky Thirteen", but refused to comment today.

Closed Period for Re-Stocking Possible

Toronto, March 25 (CP)—To prevent depletion of game fish in the Kawartha Lakes, the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries will probably accede to a request of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association for a closed period for re-stocking purposes, Deputy Minister Taylor said today.

"We are quite in accord with the suggestion of the Association," Mr. Taylor said. "We believe in all cases where there are fish hatcheries one should be closed for a period during which the process of re-stocking takes place. Then the other stream may be closed and re-stocked. We will likely survey the Kawartha district and close certain lakes immediately if we believe it advantageous.

Dead Boa Constrictor, Alligator, in Garbage

Hamilton, Oct., March 25.—(CP) —A mystery that has baffled two garbage pickers and police alike was solved today. Monday night, Day and Ernie Boughner, nonchalantly heaved a carton into their garbage wagon.

Next morning they were a bit taken aback when they drew from the box a boa constrictor over five feet long, plus an alligator for good measure. But they could not remember where they got the box.

COMEDIAN DIES OF HIS WOUNDS

Paul McCullough Famous as Radio, Screen and Stage Figure

Medford, Mass., March 25 (AP)—Paul McCullough, 52, of Brookline, radio, screen and stage comedian and a member of the widely known team of Clark and McCullough, died at Lawrence Memorial Hospital today.

Hospital officials said he died of wounds suffered Monday when he slashed himself with a razor in a Medford barber shop.

McCullough, with a friend, had entered the shop for a shave, Patrolman John Sullivan said. The comedian grabbed a razor, the officer added, and before he could be subdued had slashed his throat, wrists and arm.

He was en route at the time from a hospital, where he had been treated for a nervous breakdown, to his home.

Robby Clark, McCullough's partner, and McCullough were born in Springfield, Ohio, went on the stage together 30 years ago and had teamed together since. They combined one of the oldest comedy teams in point of service in the country.

AS THE SEASON OPENS

Streets are clear again and motoring dramatically on the increase.

This is blessing of the season is a fitting time for the driver to take full stock of the requirements in safe driving.

Motoring can be made the most enjoyable of pleasures if we can be made a nightmare if precautions are dropped.

The driver who sets out with the determination to observe the rules, play safe for others and for himself gets a real start at a safe season's driving. He lends encouragement to others.

Not so is it with the careless driver. He makes driving dangerous for himself and for others. He makes the highways a continual nightmare and a scene of havoc of smashed cars and injured car occupants and pedestrians. He has a bad influence. He leads others to break the laws and throw caution to the winds and he makes the driving public fitter, and so doubly becomes a menace.

In advising drivers a little word should be given the pedestrian. He should walk carefully and not throw himself in the way of danger. A careless pedestrian may cause not only his own death or maiming but he may even cause other accidents as well as he forces a driver to avoid him and perhaps wreck another motorcar.

Belleville has had a good record. Some places on the highways have a heavy crash record. Everyone should drive so as to make the 1936 record one of which the motoring public will be proud.

BOY ON BICYCLE

The boy on the bicycle had a hard time last two weeks as the flood descended upon the city and the roads became almost impassable.

But he rode through the flood, rode along the thin water grooves in the snow and ice on the roads, these grooves covered with water, but through them he sped to deliver his parcels or his newspapers.

Motorcars can conquer snow and ice roads but the boy on the bicycle has a more difficult task, for roads are not likely in winter time to be conducive to easy and safe riding on a bicycle.

Hence the flood bicyclists rode through even the deep waters of Bridge street, West, when motorists even hesitated.

Customers and employers of those boys are grateful for the service they rendered when the ways were water or slush.

RAVAGES

In many a home, not yet dried out from the flood, the effects of the deluge are being witnessed as piece after piece of furniture gives way. Furniture was not meant for immersion in flood and having been in a flood for days many a piece of cabinetmaker's work is falling apart.

Some of this furniture was treasured and the pieces cannot be replaced. Some will go into the hands of cabinet makers who will endeavor to replace the parts which have fallen away. Others will not be repaired.

Chairs with veneered seats and backs are done for. Pianos have been damaged by water on the woodwork and on the metal strings.

Other household effects tell a sad flood tale. Carpets and upholstery have been found by many to be stained or faded and many a little household article is rendered worthless.

Of other losses a like story can be told, doors, frames gone, stoops, porches, verandahs posts floated away, chairs and other furniture missing.

These people take a philosophic attitude in the damage through flood and they may say—"We have had losses. They do not say this in pride or boasting but just as a statement of fact.

For their work is a long and tedious task to renovate and repair those places so washed and stained and muddled.

But the sound of the hammer is heard ringing as work is begun on the damaged homes. Porches and verandahs are being restored.

The people cannot be extinguished by flood or any other disaster for human enterprise and love of place persist. Flood cannot frighten them for the accustomed place finds them back again and happy, though loss victims.

"Let there be light!" God spake of old,
And over chaos dark and cold,
And through the blackness and formless frame
Of nature, life and order came.

Faint was the light at first that shone
On giant form and mastodon,
On half-formed plant and beasts of prey,
And man as rude and wild as they.

Age after age like waves o'erran
The earth, uplifting brute and man;
And mind, at length, in symbols dark
Its meaning traced on stone and bark.

On leaf of palm, on sedge-wrought roll,
Man wrote his thoughts, the ages passed,
And lo! the Press was found at last.

Then dead souls woke; the thoughts of men
Whose bones were dust revived again;
The cloister's silence found a tongue,
Old prophets spake, old poets sung.

And here, today, the dead look down
The kings of mind again we crown;
We hear the voices lost so long,
The sage's word, the sibyl's song.

Here Greek and Roman find themselves
Alive along these crowded shelves;
And Shakespeare treads again his stage,
And Chaucer paints anew his age.

As if some Pantheon's marbles broke
Their stony trance and lived and spoke,
Life thrills along the alcoved hall,
The lords of thought await our call!

—John Greenleaf Whittier.

"I EXCUSE YOU FROM ALL JURY SERVICE FOR THE REST OF YOUR LIVES, because of the dreadful and gruesome details you have been forced to hear" thus spoke Presiding Justice Singleton after a verdict of guilty had been brought in at Manchester, England, Assizes, by the jury, in one of the most revolting and horrible murder trials ever held in England. The decision of the Judge to absolve the members of the jury from any future service as jurors was almost unprecedented. Hakim Baktyar Rustomji Ratanji, a Mohammedan, was the accused. He studied in England and Scotland, was a brilliant graduate in medicine, and started practise in Lancaster, England under the name of Dr. Buxton. He married an Edinburgh waitress and became quite successful as a specialist in obstetrics. He was nervous, high strung and excitable, and becoming convinced that his wife was unfaithful to him, he strangled her. While in the act he happened to look around and saw Mary Jane Rogerson, nurse for his three children, watching in speechless horror. He murdered her, too, according to the reconstruction of the crime from circumstantial evidence. Then he proceeded to cut both bodies up in small pieces which he threw down "The Devil's Hecthi", a depression in the moor some distance from the scene of the crime. This is called "England's Goriest Crime", and the details as unfolded to the court would bear out every implication of that title. The discovery of the crime, the identification of the remains, and the assembling of the entire chain of evidence which convicted the native of India of one of the most horrible murders in the annals of crime, is a masterpiece of British police methods and crime detection ability.

DOWN IN PORTO RICO UNCLE SAM IS HAVING TROUBLE. Being in the forced draft of Native Rico and Spanish extraction, or mixed blood, have the hot temperaments which lead to revolution and create ambition for politics rather than steady work. Uncle Sam got Porto Rico from Spain in the Spanish-American war, and has been trying to make the place safe for democracy, but with doubtful success. Now there is a near revolution brewing and shots have been fired and people killed. The discontents want independence, they say, which probably means that there is a would-be dictator lurking in the background waiting for the right moment to make the population all dependent under him.

RELUCTANCE TO USE THE TELEPHONE, and refusal to read newspapers on Sunday, are reported to be two of the outstanding idiosyncrasies of Britain's Prime Minister, Stanley Baldwin—all of which goes to show that great men are as human as the least of us.

OTHERWISE

A funeral service took place at a small country town. The reporter to the local newspaper, describing it in his paper, said: "The rector was at his very best. His voice was blended in the vein which showed his own sorrow and sympathy for the mourners. Unfortunately, during the ceremony Mrs. Brown's dog took a fit and died. It cast quite a gloom over the proceedings."

SPRING MEANS GENERAL CLEAN-UP—With the advent of spring come those "everyday daredevils", the window-washers of the New York skyscrapers. With only a thin length of leather and buckles holding them against the face of the Empire State building, these washers do their work efficiently and with never a thought for the deadly rushing humans, like so many ants, hundreds of feet below.

Advocates Construction of Dam

Belleville, Ontario,
March 26th, 1935

The Ontario Intelligencer,

Dear Sirs,—

In order to prevent another flood from which we are only recovering and which could, as probably to families in the low lying districts as well as a number of business places on Front Street, I hereby make the suggestion that we forthwith commence to erect a portion of the trouble, by erecting a substantial dam in the river between Canniton and Belleville—to impound the water and hold back the ice, as was the case in former years when there were three dams in the river—maintained and controlled by different industries and from which said industries derived a portion of their power. The work of building a dam could be allotted to the unemployed—the scene to the writer a more profitable undertaking for the City than laying the second water main or the flattening of Zwick's Island.

Thanking you for this space, I am,

Yours faithfully,
James Lynch,
The coal man.

TEACHING THE COWS TO READ SIGNS

Toronto, March 26. — The Bills Committee of the Legislature approved also of a bill by F. P. Kelly (Lib., Muskoka-Ontario) designating certain areas in a municipality for grazing cattle. T. P. Murray (Lib., Renfrew South), doubted whether the measure would work out.

"You would have to put up signs in prohibited areas and then teach the cows to read them," he said.

The Bill increases the number of voters in each poll from 300 to 400.

A Lucky Spill

By Beatrice Sheriff

JACK REID was riding his horse, Black Beauty, home from an afternoon gallop by the sea, and it was a mere chance that he took the crossroads home, and so he saw the gypsy encampment with its remarks: setting of dark pine grove, bright fires, and picturesque people.

If Bessie had loved him she had said, why, perhaps they, too, might have been on their honeymoon now, walking about the old Reid place, where Jack was now a successful "gentleman farmer," as the saying goes. But ambitious Bessie Barnes had been fickle as she was lovely, and when she met George Gray, son of the richest man in the land, she had fallen in love with his wealth. And so Bessie was going to marry George Gray! Jack could not get the girl out of his mind.

That had been a week ago, and Jack was still glooming over it, for Bessie had been the first girl he had ever loved.

A little farther on, just before he climbed the last hill to his house, he met an old gypsy woman, a rather unkempt creature with a gay red bandanna tied over her head, supporting herself on a tall staff, bent and gnarled as she was herself.

At sight of him, she scuttled into the road and held up a cupped palm. "Cross my palm with silver, sir?" she smiled toothlessly at him, as Jack's horse stopped suddenly.

Jack grinned and searched in his pockets for a piece of silver, finally bringing out a cartwheel dollar that he carried for "luck." He dropped it into her palm and accepted her gratitude with careless impudence.

The old woman grasped his hand eagerly, holding it close to her eyes to see the lines.

"A dark lady loves you!—alas, she loves—money—she has gone—a stern man coming—perhaps a soldier—a great man—and a woman—a girl—a pretty thing—young and golden and still never loving a man—and then, your honor, follows years of a fair lady—mystifying happiness—and a long life!" She bowed humbly and after his muttered thanks she scuttled away, never pausing once to see what happened to Jack Reid.

And things began to happen rapidly, while Jack still smiled over the gypsy's fortune.

Suddenly, without warning of any kind, a large automobile mounting the hill from the other side, came slantingly over the top, and Black Beauty, terrified out of his senses, jumped into the air and bolted, with Jack's whole strength pulling on the reins.

Of course the car stopped, and a man and a young girl hurried up the hill to see what had become of Jack Reid and his horse.

"Ah!" screamed the girl and covered her eyes, for just at that moment Black Beauty had managed to throw his master, and went galloping madly into the twilight. When they reached the fallen horseman, they found Jack unconscious. The man, a stern, soldierly looking man, went running back to the automobile for a first aid kit, and when the car stopped beside Jack, the chauffeur aided in restoring him to consciousness.

The girl climbed back into the tonneau and whispered to an elderly woman who sat there, eager eyed, sympathetic.

"Oh, granny, I am afraid that he has been killed—a young man, dying a wonderful horse—we must have frightened the horse coming up over the hilltop—he ran away—"

At last then the door opened and the tall man put in his head. "Mother", he said to the old lady "our car frightened a horse—it bolted and the rider has been thrown. I have just restored him to consciousness—says he lives in that large white house there, beyond the brick wall. Felix and I will carry him across. Carl, will you drive the car over there?"

Within a half hour, Grisham shook hands with the doctor who has been hastily summoned and told him that he was glad that Mr. Reid had not been badly hurt.

"A broken leg is bad enough," he added, "and I am mighty sorry that he will be confined to the house for a while, I am leaving my mother, Mrs. Grover Grisham, and my daughter, Sara, and I will pick them up on my return from Washington. Both of them are nurses, and they made out staying at the accident was the fault of our car. Mrs. Smith, the housekeeper, tells me there is plenty of room here."

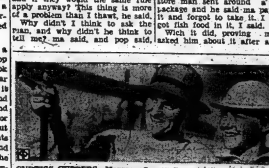
So it happened that the next morning when Jack Reid opened bored eyes it was to see no white capped nurse but a charming vision of loveliness in a pink linen frock.

"Granny does not get up until ten o'clock," she explained as she deftly set a breakfast tray before him, "and so I am the first nurse. She will be happy to come in later —you will adore Granny!"

Jack grinned and almost forgot to eat the delectable breakfast. He was such a comfort to look at the pretty thing, so gay and so competent—so utterly adorable! In another week he had forgotten all about fickle Bessie—in a month he was engaged to marry Sara.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma was watching her new goldfish swimming around loose in his aquarian, and all of a sudden she said, O my lands I forgot to ask the man how to feed him.



I can tell you that, but it's a pritty complicated operation, pop said. Feras by some hook or crook you get hold of a small rectangular box marked Fish-food. Holding it fermly between your thumb and little finger you push the end marked Push with your index or pointing finger and shake about an 8th of an ounce of the contents into the palm of your left hand and from there you let it glide into the aquarian, and if there are any further directions I'll hate to give them to the fish, he said, and ma said, But Willyum, the man claimed this fish is a genuine Japanese variety, so perhaps he'll need special feeding.

Give him a handful of rice a day, I understand that's what the coolies live on, pop said. Or by golies, are coolies Chinese, and if they would the same rule apply anyway? This thing is more of a problem than I thawt, he said.

Why didn't I think to ask the man, and why didn't he think to tell me? ma said, and pop said, That's what causes a quarter of the world's troubles, people not thinking, and the other 3 quarters are caused by people thinking wrong, so even at that the statistics seem to prove there's too much thinking going on.

O, that reminds me, I just happened to think, I said. The fish store man sent around a little package and he said ma payed for it and forgot to take it. I bet it's got fish food in it, I said.

With it did, proving ma had asked him about it after all.

FARMERS' CLAIMS PRODUCE STORMY HOUSE SESSION

Ask Difference In Price From What Received From Pool in 1930

BILL INTRODUCED

Bennett Resents Implication of The Agricultural Minister

Ottawa, March 26 (CP)—Claims of Western wheat farmers for further payments on the 1930 crop are before the House of Commons today after creating the stormiest scene of the session yesterday.

The question is on a resolution preceding introduction of a bill to make payments to farmers who delivered wheat to the pools in 1930 and received less than 60 cents a bushel as the initial payment.

No opposition to the proposal was apparent yesterday but when Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, suggested an order-in-council passed by the Bennett Government for the same purpose last fall had been changed to require an auditor's certificate Conservative Leader Bennett demanded proof or withdrawal.

Mr. Gardiner insisted he had not meant to imply what Mr. Bennett claimed he did, that the document had been fraudulently changed after it had been signed. He said he had merely cited the fact that the main part of the order was typewritten and a clause had been inserted with pen and ink.

All afternoon debate on the point ranged with Mr. Bennett holding the floor most of the time and Liberals making noisy interruptions.

Asks For Order-In-Council

At first the Conservative Leader demanded an investigation of what he insisted was a serious reflection on his honor and that of other members of the former Government.

When the House rose he was not pressing for an investigation but demanded that Mr. Gardiner lay on the table the original order-in-council and other documents leading up to it so that all could see whether any alteration had been made.

Mr. Gardiner cited the order-in-council as the reason for delay in making payments to the farmers when Mr. Bennett asked the reason, and Mr. Bennett said if that was his purpose he did not need to point to the fact that one clause in the document was handwritten and the rest typewritten. The clause to require an auditor's certificate was inserted to protect the Public Treasury and the order-in-council was not altered at all. It did not become an order-in-council until it was signed, he said.

At one stage Mr. Bennett told the minister he was not dealing "with a poor rural rustic from Saskatchewan" and could not get away with things in the House as he had done elsewhere.

This led Arthur Slaght (Lib. Parry Sound) to protest against what he said was a sneer at the people of Saskatchewan because they were poor.

Clutches Misleading Claim

His also said Mr. Bennett's citations of law were wholly bad and misleading and Mr. Gardiner's statement about the alteration of an order-in-council was not open to the interpretation Mr. Bennett placed upon it.

The Solloway-Mills Brokerage House collapse then entered the discussion as Mr. Bennett told Mr. Slaght he had better join in sympathy for the poor to others. Many people in Western Canada had paid money to Solloway-Mills for stock, which was never bought and some of that money went to enrich lawyers, Mr. Slaght said it Mr. Bennett was referring to him his statement was incorrect.

Mr. Slaght demanded the Conservative Leader retract his remarks, but Mr. Bennett refused to do so, although he said he would accept the Parry Sound member's statement they were not correctly applicable to him.

Gordon Ross (Lib. Moose Jaw) also mentioned Mr. Bennett's "poor rural rustic" reference. He said he himself was a "poor rural rustic" from Saskatchewan but Mr. Bennett retorted Mr. Ross did not need to prove he was.

As the House adjourned Mr. Gardiner said he was anxious to obtain passage of the bill so farmers would soon have to buy seed wheat and if they could have this money they would not need as much assistance in other ways. He undertook to furnish all the information and documents Mr. Bennett wanted, if the latter would consent to advancing the bill through second reading today.

British Ally Fears of Military Alliances

(By G. H. Anderson, Associated Press Staff Writer).

London, March 26 (AP).—The House of Commons debating the European crisis for the first time since Germany's march across the Rhine, sought government assurances today Britain's contemplated no further continental commitments.

Parliamentary sources said Prime Minister Baldwin hoped the debate would "considerably allay" public anxiety over the London negotiations in the Rhineland controversy and stamp out disquieting rumors of secret continental military alliances.

AT THE BELLE

"The Perfect Gentleman"

Delightful Film With Rib-Tickling Comedy Team

A new comedy team . . . one of the funniest to come out of Hollywood in many a moon is at the Belle today and Friday, matinee daily in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Perfect Gentleman," co-starring Frank Morgan and Cicely Courtneidge.

The Frank Morgan half of the team is well known to American audiences. He convulsed us with his humor in such pictures as "Naughty Marietta," "Affairs of Cellini" and others. He does the same again, with even more gusto, in the new film.

Makes American Debut

This picture marks the American debut of Cicely Courtneidge, ranking star of the English stage and screen. Famous in the Empire, she brings a fresh brand of comedy to this country, both whimsical and farcical, significant and plain silly. From the pen of Edward Childs Carpenter, who wrote it first as a play for Frank Morgan, then adapted it as a picture vehicle, "The Perfect Gentleman," concerns the affairs of one Major Horatio Chatteris, lovable, down-at-heel "remittance man."

When the Major discovers he is becoming a distinct liability to his respectable vicar-son (Richard Watling) and the girl he is about to marry (Heather Angel), he leaves the comforts of his manager and returns to London, only to find that he has been burned out of his room for non-payment of rent.

Even this doesn't affect the sunny disposition of the old rake. A pocketbook found under a park bench supplies him with enough funds to reclaim his dress suit from the pawnshop.

Natilly garbed, he attends a musical hall just in time to leap to the stage in defense of a one-time flame who is being booed by the gallery. That he should himself be sensational and become the idol of the town's leading lady is inevitable, as it is that they should ultimately become romantically matched.

Directed by Tim Whelan, given a lavish production by Harry Rapf, with numerous musical numbers, it is safely one of the most entertaining pictures of the new year.

Prominently featured are such well known players as Henry Stephenson, Una O'Connor, Herbert Mundin, Forrester Harvey, Mary Forbes, Doris Lloyd and Edward Cooper.

"The Lady Consents" appearing today at the Belle theatre for four days, matinee daily, Jean Hersholt, Dorothy Peterson, Ellin Summerville appear in the leading roles in a splendid supporting cast. A special Saturday morning matinee will be presented at 10 a.m.

The church parlors at St. Paul's were gaily decorated for the annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Society which took place on Monday evening under the direction of the missionary department led by Mr. Lloyd Howland, when by special arrangement of the Women's Missionary Society, an interesting play was presented.

Miss Mary Rollo, president of the organization, was in charge of the evening's programme. A special picture lesson chosen for the evening was read by Mrs. Nora Wescott and Mrs. Howland. Solos and duets were rendered between certain chapters throughout the play period, which was under the direction of Mrs. Howland and Mrs. Wescott. The following gentlemen took part: Dr. C. P. Walt, Mr. Earl Lucy, Mr. Fred Rigle, and Herr. R. W. Rowland.

The Play.

The play called "Trade" by Sister Emily Orr, B.A., is a splendid representation of the missionary work in West Africa. Under the capable direction of Mrs. Walt, the characters of the cast were selected in a manner that showed their natural refinement and a good deal of study on the part of the artists, which in addition to their exceptional talent made the play a most entertainments given for stirring for some time. The many different scenes were accurately worked out in detail in a very clever manner both interior and exterior settings were accomplished in the shortest possible space of time by the systematic work of the committee in charge with each of the scenes being explained and described in detail by specially designed placards from the wings.

Cast of Characters.

Nada, a native girl who has recently become a Christian, Miss Nelson Mallory; Nada's mother, Miss Pearson; Mr. Pearson, a lady missionary, Mrs. R. Munro; Miss Wey-man, another missionary, Miss M. J. Patterson; a native woman in charge of Nada, Mrs. G. Wells; a messenger, Mrs. H. Walt.

Each of the ladies taking part gave a fine display of talent, entering into the very life of the characters they represented. The audience was greatly pleased with this fine presentation and the knowledge of mission work in this particular field greatly increased. At the conclusion of the play which was the main feature of the evening the meeting was brought to a close with the Mizpah Benediction.

DISCHARGED from Army as Unfit

Suffered complete physical breakdown—sent to hospital—health regained through fresh air, food and Fellows' Syrup.

Ex-soldier tells how Fellows' Syrup helped him and his family

"They said John Bent, discharged from the Army as unfit, suffered complete physical breakdown. It was the first time in Public History that a soldier had to be sent to hospital for further service. I was sent to hospital at Orpington, Kent, and was there for 18 months. It was the first time in my life I had been ill. I suffered from all sorts of pains, and was very weak. I was discharged from the Army as unfit, and came home to my family. I was in a very bad state of health. I had no appetite, and could not sleep. I was very nervous and irritable. I was recommended to take Fellows' Syrup. I did so, and in a few days I felt a new man. I began to put on weight, and my appetite returned. I am now in the pink of condition. I have taken Fellows' Syrup for my family, and they have benefited by it. I am glad to recommend it to all my friends."

Signed JOHN BENT.

Mrs. W. A. Hunter of Madoc Heads Presbyterian Presbyterial

Mrs. P. Ranson And Mrs. Bateman of Belleville Named to Offices

On Tuesday, March 24th, the annual meeting of Kingston Presbyterial W.M.S., (Presbyterian), was held in St. Andrew's Church at Trenton.

The President, Mrs. W. A. Hunter of Madoc, occupied the chair and gave the Call to Worship. Afternoon devotions were in charge of members of Trenton Auxiliary who also extended a very cordial welcome to delegates and visitors. Mrs. Hill of Roslin, made a most gracious reply.

Minutes of the Annual meeting held in Belleville in 1925 were read by the Recording Secretary, Miss Mowat of Kingston, also a full account was given of an executive meeting held in December.

Mrs. Ranson of Belleville, Corresponding Secretary, gave a comprehensive summary of the work of Auxiliaries and Associate Societies in general. On the whole the outlook is encouraging but a decrease in membership of thirty-three is to be regretted. Auxiliaries are requested to look into the matter and to make an earnest effort in 1926 to remedy this condition.

Miss Bruce, Mission Band Secretary, gave her report, which showed the Banner to Roslin Mission Band, this organization having secured the highest number of points in 1925, and encouraging figures of this department in the fact that the children are making a sincere effort to carry out their mite meetings, without the aid of grown-ups. Two new Mission Bands been organized at Wilton and Desoronto.

Miss Fowler, Presbyterial Treasurer gave the Financial Report. Amount received, $4,000.00; amount raised, $14.92; this sum being somewhat short of the Allocation.

Departmental reports were presented by the various secretaries, brought to the table of Literature, forwarded to the Oconda Jeffrey Indian Home and copies of the Report and appreciation were read. Baies and Bibles will be sent to Hirde, Manitoba.

The Life memberships receipts amounted to $200 and Babies' Branches' contributions $217.

After the offering and dedicatory prayer, a very pleasing solo was rendered by Mrs. Cameron of Desoronto.

Seventy-five delegates responded to the Roll Call and a helpful discussion period followed conducted by the President. Auxiliary question series are urged to exercise more care in filling out annual reports to the Presbyterial Literature and Secretary. Those returned to be sent on or before December 15th.

Afternoon session closed with prayer by Mrs. Stephen of Kingston.

Delegates members of Presbytery and Presbyterial were entertained guests of Trenton Auxiliary for tea. The evening session opened with Hymn 300 and devotional exercises conducted by members of Kingston Auxiliary.

Greetings from Presbytery were extended by Rev. A. Mackenzie of Pittsburg, recalling to mind the services of past officials and extending over a long period of time.

Mrs. Bateman of Belleville was appointed Presbyterial delegate to the Provincial Annual meeting at Lon-don, in May. Mrs. Wilson told a Mission Band Rally during the coming summer.

Rev. W. H. Kelly, minister of St. Andrew's Church, Trenton, gave a very fine address on "Christ's Sea Mission", dealing in particular with the work in the Bay of Quinte.

One outstanding name in connection with Missions in the Bay of Quinte is that of Dr. Patton who labored and served for many years among a people, who were wild and treacherous. Progress was slow but through the power of the Gospel these natives became earnest Christians.

During the offering Miss Flora MacDonald of Trenton, sang "Stranger or Gallilee" and other selections were rendered by the organists.

Rev. D. C. Hill, moderator of Presbytery, took charge of the Installation Services and briefly addressed the newly-elected officers.

ENERGETIC CLUB HOLDS MEETING

The Energetic Club held its regular meeting on Tuesday evening in Holloway House, the ladies room with a good attendance. Charlie Brown presided and a sing song under the direction of Frank Rayfield with Mrs. C. McBride at the piano was enjoyed. The reading hymn, "I Am Thine, O Lord" was sung after which Rev. Robert Hall led in prayer. The minutes of the previous meeting were then read by the secretary, Mrs. Fred Woodley after which Frank Rayfield received the offering. Several items of business were discussed pertaining to club finances. Mrs. Clarence Hudgins, Mrs. Ed. Orser, Ven. then took charge of the remainder of the meeting. Will Mc-Anchor Rokeby was song writer which Arnold Campbell conducted the devotional exercises. He chose for his topic, "Sharing" and urged that all club members help deserving religious experiences along this line. Frank Rayfield delighted the audience with a solo, "Oss Floating Home", accompanied by Mrs. Rayfield.

Mrs. Holmes then introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Rev. Robert Hall, who gave an inspiring and intellectual address on "The War Situation in Europe." Having served in the Great War and by his intensive study of European problems, Mr. Hall is an authority on the subject. He dealt at length on the condition of Germany following the Great War, the Locarno Treaty, the Republication of the Treaty of Versailles and Adolph Hitler, Germany's champion, who is waiting the provinces into an united whole. Mr. Hall said the world didn't want another war as miners exploiting and newspaper reports controlled by armament manufacturers, have led to much rearmament of different nations. Another world war would be the suicide of world civilization declared the speaker, and in closing the subject left the thought of Nietzsche's "Cry Have."

A hearty vote of appreciation for the splendid address was tendered Mr. Hall by Cecil Fulton and Frank Rayfield. "Abide With Me" was then sung which concluded the programme. In place of the usual games and contest, the club members unpacked and washed the dishes which they had brought and presented to the church. A dainty lunch was then served by the girls comprised of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Fulton, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Woodley and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Holmes. Everybody had an enjoyable evening's enjoyment was expressed by Charlie Brown and Mrs. Fulton. The singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" brought the evening to a close after which Arnold Campbell pronounced the benediction.

Understanding Child By Personal Contract

That Form of Training, Rather Than Theory Is Advice For Prospect ive Mothers

(By Lisa Grenelle)

Long before the baby was born, even before she was married, Mrs. John Fellows started preparing herself for motherhood. She put herself under the control of about it, taking courses on child care and parental education, and supplementing them with behaviour books dealing with the subject.

In a year or so she had studied all the latest theories, knew the result of the latest experiments, could quote the leading authorities, and knew the names of the most eminent of the professors. But she had not seen much of the children next door.

Wouldn't Perform

They were cunning little things, Mrs. John Fellows thought, and would be interesting to study. She decided to take them off their mother's hands on Saturday afternoon, and to keep them entertained around to it. And on the occasions when their mother brought them to see Mrs. Fellows, she would try to get the children to perform at all. They would play games and start refusing to act or react, talk or behave, no matter how much they were coaxed by Mrs. Fellows.

Only when Mr. Fellows came home did the children really thrill Mr. Fellows, who didn't know a thing about children, and nothing at all of psychology, behaviorism, complexes and frustrations, was adored by the children at once. Climbing upon his knee they whispered secrets in his ear, laughed and chatted, and tried to drag him off somewhere so that they might enjoy his company without interruption.

He had a letter last week from a young woman in Colorado. She wanted my advice as to the best possible place to study child care and parental education, I hope I'd children?

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

Can't Stand His Belittling Her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

He's almost fifteen years older than I am, and we've been company more than three years. I'm in love with him, but am considering giving him up for the following reasons:

When I'm with him and another girl is present, he gives his entire attention to her and slights me. His brother-in-law is a fine man almost like a criminal. There is no reason for this, as I never have been considered attractive and have had plenty of attention.

Another reason is that in all the years I've known him, he has never given me a present, not even a box of candy, although I have been extremely generous to him on gifts as such mean nothing to me, but as if it were a ten-cent handkerchief, it would show he thought of me occasionally.

You would do well to declare an indefinite intermission. — Disgusted Gentleman. Aside from his niggardly ways, he's a fine fellow. — Puzzled. In the presence of others is unforgivable, and I hope you drop him.

Her People Deride and Ridicule Every Effort He Makes

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A boy and girl met, and both were employed in the same office. The girl's father was a junior executive in the office, and the the girl's entire family frowned upon the friendship. No further explanation was given but that the boy was not a proper friend for the girl.

The girl has a beautiful home, lives in the center of the city. The boy is of humble parentage and lives in a poor neighborhood. The friendship has been continued in secrecy.

The boy left his place of employment, got another job and is now gainfully employed. The girl's family is still against him, deriding and ridiculing every effort he makes. Their only reason is the boy's lack of social background, his small wallet, and no profession.

The girl insists that, in spite of all these objections, she is willing to elope. Do you think the parents would condone and forgive, and accept their daughter's husband into their home under such circumstances?

Friend-of-the-Boy

Without knowing the parents personally, it's pretty hard to say what they'd do under such circumstances. However, if the parents do condone an elopement, forgive and forget, others do not. If the boy is doing well in his present job, it is quite likely that the parents may withdraw their objections in time.

Meanwhile, why doesn't he remove one of the objects by taking up a profession in night school?

Bride Must Write Her Own Thank-You

Dear Miss Fairfax:—

Literally, I got hundreds of wedding presents. I know this was not due to my popularity, but to that my father is at the head of a big corporation which employs many people. Groups of four and five or more girls got together and sent very nice little gifts. But if I answer all these personally, it seems I will not have time for anything else.

Would an engraved card of thanks be all right to send?

If you wish to do the proper thing, my dear girl, you must write a letter of hearty appreciation by hand. You might, of course, get around this by getting one of the two very intimate friends to help you in writing the thank-you notes. Why not?

She Agreed to Go "Steady"; Now He Never Comes Round

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We went together for a year. He is handsome and comes from a well-to-do family. When he asked me to go "steady" I agreed, after what I considered to be the right amount of hesitation. Now he never came round any more.

Was he just trying to make a fool of me, or did he really want me to jump at him and say "yes" before he quite he suggested we go "steady"? I thought a little hesitation was only proper under the circumstances.

Beulah.

Some of my correspondents have written to me about young men who suggest going "steady" just to see how many girls are willing to take them up. I don't see why a little hesitation should be interpreted off this young man. Be pleasant and casual when you meet, as if this question of a more-paged friendship had not arisen.

And in the case of "Kitty", who has written me along the same line, she'd better write and tell the young man she changed her mind. He filed a Way of Winning Mother Over

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We went together for about a year, and the entire family is very fond of him. He had a way of winning mother over, and she was his real ally. For various reasons I stopped going with this young man and took up with another, who is the first one's exact opposite. Mother does care so much for him, because he hasn't got a "line" to please and has no way of winning her over.

How can I make mother like him?

Anxious

Mothers, the same as daughters, like little special attentions, and if the elderly young man in question, will occasionally bring your mother a box of candy, or few flowers, it might be the opening wedge to her friendship. Have him talk to her about things in which she is interested.

DIONNE PARENTS LOOK TO MOVIES

Carry Fight For Children Before Silver Screen

Hollywood, March 26.—(CP)—Ontario's toddling quintuplets having found motion picture stardom overnight, the rest of the Dionne family hope to have a fling at the silver screen.

Oliva and Elzire Dionne and their five older children have been signed for a picture titled "Where Are My Children?" Officials of the Hollywood studio announced today the plot pending completion of the contract. Dr. Dafoe will be cast in the role of the French Canadian couple for full length feature, their famous daughters, now wards of the King.

Charles Rogers, "Boss" of Universal, said last night the picture would be filmed here. He did not say when the cameras might be ready to start grinding.

"The Country Doctor", starring the five little girls who have made the world conscious of Callander, Ont., had its premiere recently. First reports point to it being a box-office success.

'Spider' Quits Job As Dogcatcher as Collie Chases Him

Three Rivers, Mich., March 26.—(CP)— Spider Waltz resigned as dog-catcher here. He handed his resignation to Chief of Police John R. Hyatt. He gave as reasons for quitting: (a)— That the dogs around here are multiplying too rapidly; (b) —That the job took too much time away from his regular business of beating cans; (c)—That he is tight, it was time to quit before he got older and (d) Hoxie's collie chased him, while he was in his truck, two blocks up Portage Avenue.

They don't need me any more than they did before let in a better man," Spider told the chief.

Teaching of Biology Urged by Trustee

Toronto, March 26.—Biology and physiology should be added to the curricula of the first and second years of technical schools and only subjects which bring to light a student's natural aptitudes should be included, Trustee Dr. F. N. Walker told the Advisory Industrial Committee of the Board of Education yesterday. At the trustee's request, the committee decided to hold a special meeting in the near future at which time recommendations of any trustee regarding courses could be made.

"One subject which now has very little place in our technical schools is biology," Trustee Walker said. "I believe it has to come into the curriculum and yet we have no way of telling our boys' and girls' aptitudes along this line in the first two years."

"I believe these years should be looked upon as a time over which our boys and girls shall pass and during which can be evaluated their natural ability. We should not be compelled to turn out at the end of two years any experts on any particular subject but we should be able to have the natural abilities of our boys and girls on which their later education may be based."

KIDD PROTESTS CLOSING SCHOOL

Fair Proportion of Taxes From Hydro Asked by Member

Toronto, March 26.—(CP)— The Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission is faced with a demand from W. J. Kidd, Liberal member of the Legislature for Hastings East, that its properties in that city and the adjacent township of Stanford pay a "fair proportion" of taxes.

"It was bad enough to get millions of taxes from Hydro, neither Niagara Falls or Stanford would be in the serious straits in which they find themselves today," Mr. Houck declared in the budget debate, last night.

"It has been a loss of millions of dollars to both of these municipalities," he asserted, "and I do not besitate for one instant in saying to the chairman of the Hydro Commission, that something must be done."

Protests Closing

Col. Kidd protested against the closing of the Eastern Dairy School at Kingston and urged substitution or a liquor commission for the one, a contention now in consideration in Odette.

Premier Kingston member called attention to the work being done by Dr. Hendry Connell in his career clinic at Kingston, and said he thinks something good is going to come out of it. Mr. Kingston said he likes treatening with encouraging results, he said.

Mr. Duckworth praised former Conservative governments for building up the hydro system and the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph. He said it was a fine fact on the government's liquor administration, declaring: "There's no difference between Odette and Hillsdale."

J. J. Glass (Lib., Toronto St. Andrew) demanded the measure be withdrawn but Speaker N. O. Hipel ruled it did not refer to any member of the House.

Mr. Ballard charged the government's hydro water rates for docks and boats on the "poor" set-tlers," Muskoka, Parry Sound and Haliburton districts. He also described the difference in rates for docks and boats

Board Room Gossip

As suggested by Bluster and Crawford this morning.

Sullivan Consolidated Mines Ltd. Capitalization — Authorized, issued and outstanding, 4,000,000 shares, par value $1.00 each.

Property—Consists of one block, approximately 900 acres, located in Northwestern Quebec, adjoining Sisco Gold Mines Ltd. on the East.

Management—Alfred H. Paradis, President; Pierre Beauchemin, Vice-President; Alderic Archambault, Secretary-Treasurer; J. R. Gauvreau, K. E. Mains, Stephen Racine, Hector R. Racine, Joseph Beaudoin, directors; I. M. Marshall, Mine Manager.

Mill—Operations commenced in May, 1934, with a mill of 50 tons daily capacity. In June, 1935, the mill capacity was increased to 100 tons daily. In January of 1936 changes and alterations were made to the plant which made it possible to treat a higher tonnage. The mill is currently running at 115 to 120 tons a day and it is expected to have it up to 126 tons a day or more in the near future.

Production—Total production for the year 1935 amounted to $470,000 as against $138,000 in 1934. November and decembre production, the last monthly figures available, averaged over $45,000 per month. Recovery last year amounted to $15.39 per ton of ore milled. Production established a profit, before depreciation and depletion, of $211,636.

Financial Position—On December 31st, 1935, financial position was as follows: Cash and deposits $140,979; Inventories $47,683; Accounts Receivable and Investments $4,000; Accounts payable and other current liabilities totalled $10,961.

Development—Three levels have been established, the lowest being at 375 feet. A new main 3-compartment shaft is now being sunk to an objective of 650 vertical feet below surface. It is now down below the third level where a station has been cut from which point the shaft is being deepened. It is planned to open extensively two new levels from this point.

In all, four veins have been opened up by drifting whilst more recently a new vein, apparently wide and rich, has been located 80 feet west of the "A" or No. 1 vein.

The new vein has been opened up for 600 feet on the 1st level, 300 ft. on the 2nd, and 80 ft. on the 3rd. The No. 4 vein has been drifted on for 600 ft. on the 3rd level. North and South, mostly showing average values of over $10.00 per ton. Vein No. 2 and 3 veins continue to open up favorably.

Ore Reserves—The management estimates at least two to three years' reserve of 35 per cent ($10 to $12.50) in the North area. The development program of development may result in a substantial increase in ore reserves which may warrant an important step-up in the milling plant. The present milling capacity can be increased to 150 tons at a very reasonable cost; further increase will naturally be accompanied by results obtained by development program now under way.

New Loblaw Meat Market Among Front Street Improvements

The latest improvement occupied by Loblaw Groceterias Company Limited, where a new and handsome front has been put in and a large and modern meat market, self-contained market constructed at the rear of the store. Workmen have been busy for some weeks on the improvements and the new meat market department will be opened Friday of this week.

The grocery department has been made larger and more convenient and will be even more pleasant to buy shoppers. This will be primarily due as usual by Manager George Rodgers.

Electric refrigeration has been provided in the meat market as well as proper temperature, and sanitary arrangements. The meat block which keeps the air always sweet and free from offensive odors. This is accomplished by the installation of the latest device in air-conditioning.

For the official opening especially advertised money-saving values have been arranged in both meats and groceries, as announced in display advertisement elsewhere in this paper.

A feature of the event, said Manager Rodgers, will be the fact that all goods in the store will be fresh as befitting the occasion, the beginning of a new Loblaw era in Belleville.

Trenton and District

Trenton, March 26 (Special) — Citizens of Trenton were shocked yesterday on hearing of the death of Miss Marjorie Haynes, ten year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cory Haynes, Division Street. The deceased had been ill only a short time. She was a pupil of Dufferin Avenue public school and was a great favorite among her comrades. The abundance of floral tributes showed the high esteem in which the deceased was held by her playmates and members of the community. She leaves to mourn her loss her sorrowing parents and two sisters, Betty, age eight and Helen six. The funeral will be held from the Faith Mission with Rev. Hall, more officiating at the mission and graveside. Interment will be made in Mount Evergreen cemetery.

The ice which has been jammed around the town bridge for the past two weeks moved out into the harbour today and all fears as to the bridge being taken away have subsided. A Hydro official stated, that a diver will start work tomorrow to find the break in the spring water main, which runs under the river to the eastern side of town. It will take some time to find the break if it is not near either side as it is expected the pipe will be covered with a considerable amount of silt. Diving operations will start from the eastern side of the river but if the break should be in the centre of the river residents of the east side will be without a heavy water pressure for a longer period as a barge will have to be moved from the harbour for the diver to work from. The ice at the harbour is still filled with ice the barge will not be able to be moved until it has gone out into the bay. Watchmen governing traffic over the town bridge for the past two weeks were removed yesterday and traffic has been resumed as prior to the flood.

Trenton's new and modern post office will be open to the public on April 4th. Carpenters and marble workers have been working overtime to have completed by that date. Work ended last night. The residents of Trenton will have a building to be proud of as it will be one of the most up-to-date offices for a town of its size in Canada. The building is of modern-fireproof construction. Every little artificial lighting will have to be used as the southern and western exposures are glassed in. The interior is finished in white and cream which is set off by a grey marble floor. As well as affording the clerks a head room for the public will also share in this capacity.

W. S. MARTIN OF STIRLING IS 87

One of County's Oldest And Most Prominent Residents

Stirling, March 26 (Special)—Mr. W. S. Martin grand old man of the village of Stirling is the recipient of many messages of congratulations and well wishing communications today, as he celebrates his 87th birthday in his quiet old manner. Entering upon the eighty-eighth year of a happy and busy life, which has been one of real service to those round about him, Mr. Martin is still a remarkably active man both mentally and physically. The greater part of his life has been spent in Stirling where he received on one his watched its rapid development with great interest than he. His record of service in county council and also the Stirling Municipal Council are enviable, having served as Warden in the year 1896 and for fourteen consecutive years was elected Reeve of the Village of Stirling, both these valuable years of experience still fresh in his mind, he studies keenly the reports of the daily press all activities or these governing bodies in the present day. Serving in the above mentioned capacities, as well as many offices, he has given unstintingly of his time and ability to be of service to his community.

Born fifty years ago in the village of Picton, Mr. Martin is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Martin, pioneers of that district. His mother before her marriage was Sarah Williams. Mr. Martin is a charter and member of I.O.O.F. and served as County Treasurer of the Loyal Orange Lodge for more than fifty years. He is a member of St. Paul's United Church and still keenly interested in the activities of the Sunday School, where he served for a long period of time as superintendent. Only the very worst kind of weather interferes with his attendance at church. Bible Class where he takes part in the constructive discussions. Starting the bath school at the age of five he has been regularly except during illness for 82 years.

In 1909 Mr. Martin entered the Stirling branch of the Union Bank of Canada, which later became the Royal Bank of Canada, serving both organizations in a very capable manner as manager until his superannuation, which took place in 1927. Since that time he has devoted all his energy to the handling of his own personal business affairs.

Studying with great interest the problems and perplexities faced by the business world today, this remarkable man is well versed on all topics of the day, gathering his information and knowledge through the press and other publications and radio. Each day he is to be seen taking his daily walk on the streets of Stirling walked with a quick sure step and an upright mil-itary bearing, which is envied by many of the younger men of the district.

Numbered among the most prized of the many messages received are those from the family, Mr. H. C. Martin, his son, prominent insurance broker of Stirling, another son Mr. George Martin, who conducts a successful business in Vancouver, B. C. and Mrs. Louise Scott, who operates "Knitter's Nook", a needlecraft shop in Sand Hill, Montreal, and another daughter, Mrs. Norman Lashtree of Hamilton, Ontario. The eldest son Mr. Herbert Martin passed away a number of years ago.

DRAMATIC FLOOD RESCUE—Andrew W. Early of North Vandergrift, Pa., held on to a bridge girder for dear life, after the raging Kiski river in Pennsylvania, had dashed his home to pieces against the bridge span. The current dragged at his body. Quickly a rope was thrown from above, which he managed to grab. Holding tenaciously, he was dragged to safety and death was cheated. Scores on the bridge witnessed this thrilling rescue.

POLICE BLOTTER

Charles Parm, Camnifton, reported an accident to the police early today. Mr. Parm was driving his truck on East Dundas Street, when a large mongrel dog suddenly darted out from the curb and ran directly into the path of the vehicle. The rear wheels of the truck passed over the canine leaving the animal lying badly injured in the centre of the street. Sergeant Arthur Booth returned to the scene of the accident with Mr. Parm and after viewing the situation promptly shot the dog as it was quite evident that it was beyond recovery. The owner, who lived nearby, appeared and took possession of the carcass.

Motorcycle Patrolmen Irving and Delaney report highways being in good condition for motoring on their local patrols. The surface on the highway between Belleville and Trenton was somewhat damaged during the recent floods, but is rapidly being repaired by highway workmen.

Not being the slightest superstitious thirteen transients banded together in the cell block at the police station last night without incident.

KIDNAP PRISONERS LUNCH IN CITY

Jack Bannon, Russel Knowles and Stanley Hamilton, sentenced to terms of 12 to 15 years in Portsmouth penitentiary at Kingston for the kidnapping of John A. Labatt passed through this city today by motor. They lunched at the Green's Hotel, spending more than an hour. The journey to Kingston was started at 1.30 p.m. The three boys seemed in good spirits and talked animatedly to their guards, two members of the C.I.D. branch at Toronto. The men were handcuffed.

CARRY HAMPER ACROSS FRAIL ICE

Youths' Action Inspires Crew of Tugs to Successful Effort

St. Thomas, Ont., March 26.—(CP)—Four fishing tugs, caught in the ice half mile out in Lake Erie while returning yesterday from setting nets, reached the Port Stanley harbor this morning. Members of the crews were none the worse for their all night vigil.

At daybreak this morning three young men of Port Stanley, Clifford Cummings, Clem Dunn and Jack Rogers, started out over the frail ice between the end of the pier and the stranded tugs. They carried a hamper filled with sandwiches and coffee, and dragged behind them a rowboat to be used in case of a break through the ice.

They reached the tugs without difficulty and replenished by the first food since Wednesday night the crews received. Their buffet against the ice. The two steam tugs the Morgan and the Walter S., each from 100 to 150 feet long, two hours elapsed before the two gasoline were released and brought safe in the harbor.

Stranded Babe Found at Windsor

Windsor, March 26 (CP)—Detectives today pressed their search for the parents of the baby girl baby whose body was found near one of the abutments of the Peace Bridge. The infant had been strangled with a cord about its neck and the body was burned so extensively it was impossible to determine the sex.

Police believe the child was thrown into a furnace in an effort to destroy it, later wrapped in a newspaper dated March 13 and left under the bridge. Five boys playing along the Detroit River in Walkerville found the body.

"GLITTERING GIRL"

By MAY CHRISTIE

It bothered her that Nan so evidently liked him—for both his stand and observation told Vernon that Nan was naturally popular.

She was ashamed of criticizing Nan, even to herself, when she had been so sweet to her, taking her around, and introducing her everywhere.

Nan was gay and witty and pretty—as fall with Park Avenue ways—while Vernon felt herself a raw girl from the country.

She frowned. Of course she would shed those ideas of this gauntness.

She gave herself an angry little shake. A great mirror in the hall told her she was as lovely as anybody!

Nan had wrought this metamorphosis. Vernon was grateful to her coolness. Thrilling to have people look at her, curiously, admiringly in the sea-green gown!

She danced with a brother of the host and thereafter he led her into the conservatory. Comfortable wicker chairs and swing couches were set here and there amid the palms and greenery.

Over a hedge of boxwood she suddenly heard a girl's emphatic soprano: "Steve Lawrence, Terry Shannon! Isn't he marvelous-looking?"

"I'll say he is," commented another feminine voice, "but he's married now, to Alma Thatcher—Stone—that girl with the family tree as long as your arm—"

Said Number One: "Not married, but engaged to her. She's down in Hot Springs now. I expect she'll be right back to join him. Her mother told me they were to be married very soon."

CHAPTER X

Engaged! Terry Shannon engaged! And going to be married very soon?

The heedless words of the unseen speakers struck Vernon like a sharp blow. The blood rushed from her head, she felt dizzy.

Then he had merely flirted with her on the train! He had looked on her as easy game—a cheap girl out for a flirtation! She had run after him. She had deliberately placed herself in his vicinity. And he had responded to it in the only way he thought she would understand—had done what she wanted him to do.

Her mother hadn't been such a fool in her verdict, after all. Why hadn't she listened to her.

Why hadn't she torn the note he had sent her through the Pullman porter into pieces and returned it to him, as he deserved? Why had she stolen back to the observation car after her parents were asleep and spent a couple of hours with him, confiding all her trivial ideas and views of life to him, talking her head off?

"Because you fell for him, you little fool!" she told herself. "And you thought he'd fallen for you in return, you idiot!"

Tears of humiliation and vexation came to her eyes. Yet in her heart lingered a hope. He was not here. Wasn't it possible it was her presence had brought him?

Her tongue uttered banalities to her partner, there in the Hoydams' conservatory, but her whole mind was with Terry Shannon.

When he saw her in this gorgeous gown, her hair a misty cloud about her face, would he look tell anything? She must think of an excuse to get out to the entrance hall—then he surely must look for her, for a dance—she would find him if there were truth in his having escaped cruelty engaged to anyone.

At that moment there was the flutter of a gown of lipstick red—a whiff of "Peau D'Amour"—and Nan Rushington danced past them, alcove with a delighted gurgle: "Terry dear, I—"

Nan had got in in advance of anybody else, her tiny hand that could hold on so tight to what it wanted, firmly on his arm, her great blue eyes, elaborately mascaraed, lifted to his handsome face, for all the world like the picture of the girl in "The Soul's Awakening."

Through a gap in the boxwood hedge Vernon could see it all—see Terry's amused little half-smile as Nan carried him off in triumph.

She felt a sudden sharp dislike of Nan—and was ashamed of the feeling.

"She's only a child. It's just her manner of doing things. She's been awfully nice to me," she told herself loyally.

The pain smote afresh. The young man at her side got up. He thought her rather dull. The fashionable Nan Rushington was more to his liking. Rather the host's daughter than a good excuse in the arrival of some new guests. Introducing a pale, fair-haired boy to Vernon, he departed.

They danced. The boy had a good air, although he couldn't have been more than twenty-one. He was a snob. He insisted on talking of people of whom Vernon had never heard. He seemed shocked that this was only Vernon's first visit to New York, and that she'd never been in Europe!

He danced two steps, too, with which she was unacquainted.

"Let's go out to the bar and see who's there?" He stopped at the second round, his eyes roving.

That suited Vernon perfectly.

They went down a passage and turned to the right. At the end was a room panelled in wood, with English hunting prints upon the walls and a high shelf running round it with a collection of pewter mugs and German beer steins and quaint horns. High chairs were set against a counter that had a brass foot-rail to it, and behind the busy bar-tender was a great honeycomb across the wall, and in each compartment a bottle!

Vernon couldn't see those things. Her vision was filled with a couple at the very end of the bar, standing close to the illuminated, stained-glass window that flung soft, rainbow radiance on the room. They were Nan Rushington and Terry.

He had his back to her. He was bending over Nan. He looked wonderful in evening clothes, with his straight back and his splendid shoulders just the right width for his height, and his hair that usually had a suspicion of crinkle in it, slicked back smartly.

"Yes, I admit I am rather wonderful! All the he-males tell me so!" Nan was giggling merrily. She had an airy way with men, Vernon knew that. She had no shyness in her, like Vernon.

Vernon caught sight of herself in the big mirror behind the bar. She was glad she didn't look flushed, but pale with a kind of pearly iridescence. Her hair was beautifully arranged in a halo of soft curls across the back of her head. On the top lip was a lovely waved, and on either side of her white brow were two fine curls, like points of interrogation.

Her eyes were like twin stars under the fringes of black, carefully darkened lashes. Blue shadow-paste rested on the upper lids and at the outside corners a bar of which had been purchased today before leaving that three-hundred Monsieur Rosalva's.

Her mouth was a bright flower, its pretty shape accentuated by geranium lipstick.

Her sea-green gown was beautiful, and just right. Its cut made her very tall and slim. Terry's gardenia (were they from Terry?) gave out divine fragrance.

Suddenly an electric thrill galvanised her. In the mirror behind the bar her eyes had met his dark eyes. They held her captive for a moment.

Then, with a murmured word to Nan, he came directly over to her.

"Have you did turn up after all!" he thought such frivolous occasions were entirely beneath your notice!" she contrived to say nonchalantly, shrugging the white shoulders that the new gown so thoroughly revealed.

"You knew perfectly I'd come," said Terry Shannon gently, taking her hand in greeting. Her heart thrilled again.

Nan bounced over to join them. "Yes, talk, taking away my best admirers in this way! Terry, you're positively awful!"

Nan looked very pretty, too, with her great blue eyes, elaborately darkened, lifted to his handsome face, for all the world like the picture of the girl in "The Soul's Awakening."

Through a gap in the boxwood hedge Vernon could see it all—see Terry's amused little half-smile as Nan carried him off in triumph.

Dick was delighted as the train chugged into the mysterious jungle. "Now we'll see some lions and tigers," "Tarzan!" Doc chided, "there are no tigers in Africa." "Well, we ought to see something," his companion insisted. But the tangled forest wall seemed a dead thing.

The boys did not realize that behind this motionless screen lay the life of the jungle, where the savage life of tooth and claw was at its height. Animals and beasts moved silently. They were bored, and for amusement Doc resorted to the sleight-of-hand. From his pocket he drew an American quarter.

He smiled. "They suit you, Miss Vernon." His teeth made a flash of white in his sun-tanned face.

She smiled back at him. "Thanks for the compliment."

In the charm of his presence she had forgotten the remarks overheard in the conservatory about his being engaged to Alma Stone-body-or-Other.

"Shall we dance?" he asked, as the music of "Zwei Herzen" floated in from the central hall.

"I'd adore to." They slipped out behind the backs of Nan and the weedy-looking boy.

Many eyes were turned on the handsome couple as they waltzed with an astonishing ease and perfect rhythm. She commented on it. He smiled down on her again.

"My partner inspires me. Do you know you're looking perfectly beautiful tonight? For a moment I hardly recognized you."

"Yesterday I was transformed? It's my new gown. Nan made me buy it. D'you think it's too—extreme?"

"Not any more so than all the girls go in for." They circled the room a second time. "Your hair looks different."

She flushed a little, laughing. "Another little trick of the big, big city."

How beautifully he danced! She was glad, however, that Nan and the weedy boy had disappeared. She wanted him all to herself.

"Ladies and gentlemen!" he exclaimed. "We have an ordinary quarter, twenty-five cents, the fourth part of a dollar. Now, watch me closely," he placed his other palm over the coin, then raised both hands up high. "Abracadabra! Presto! Change!" He opened his hands. The coin had vanished. "Jiminy!" cried Dick, who was always an appreciative audience. But soon Doc's magic palled and the boys reverted to silence. Then, quite suddenly and without warning, the monotony was broken. Something happened!

A man touched Terry on the arm. "May I cut in?"

"No, no. Let's not stop," Vernon clung to him. When they'd just met, she wasn't going to lose him, certainly not if he didn't like it. It seemed pleased. "That's a mighty nice of you. Glad you can't stuff is idiotic."

She said ingenuously: "I want to have to make the best of it."

"Another man cut in on us—and the music stopped."

Then, for Vernon would have done it. She was glad, however, that

A pink flush had mounted to her cheeks, augmenting her beauty.

While a fourth man tried to cut in, Terry said quietly: "I shall certainly take you at your word. Let's get out of this and hunt for a quiet corner."

At the end of a passage they found a little whirligig staircase leading to the roof.

It was like treading on air to climb up there with Terry. Try as she would to be calm and cool, her heart thudded so loudly, so joyously, she was afraid he might hear it.

OUTFITTERS FOR PARTICULAR MEN

SUDBURY FALCONS HAVE GAME LEAD OVER THE ROYALS

Pull Big Surprise By Defeating Montreal 2-1

TAKE TIGERS PLACE

West Toronto Juniors Much The Best Over South Porcupine

(By the Canadian Press)

In the paddled presence of old Joe Ironstone, Sudbury Falcons may find enough strength to win the Allan Cup, Canada's highest award in the amateur hockeago.

Falcons today were just one game away from the Eastern Canada title and the blockade the Montreal professional goal-getter puts up seems strong enough to keep them in his second season since re-instatement to amateur ranks, from attempting to make it three.

Sudbury, Northern Ontario champions, who lost out to Hamilton Tigers in the Ontario final but got into the Allan Cup playdowns when Tigers defaulted, aren't working under any inferiority complex because of the 10-3 beating they took from Hamilton. They point to Ironstone's feat in holding Tigers to two goals after Hamilton blasted eight past young Dev Kemp in the first game.

Featuring last night's limited Senior and Junior bailing was Falcons 3-1 triumph over Montreal Jrorals in the start of their East's semi-final. The teams play the next game, and what Sudbury figure will be the last, in Toronto Friday night.

West Toronto Juniors Win

West Toronto Nationals took a 4 game advantage over South Porcupine Peiton in their best-of-three series for the Junior Ontario title by whipping the Northern Ontario titlists, 6-3. They play the next game of their semi-final Tuesday night. The Western front was quiet.

Falcons and Royals battled two periods without a score. ...erley Marshall and Art Grosso ...ened up a furious third period assault and had a 2-0 lead for the Falcons just three minutes after the period opened.

Royals shot everything they had at Brimacombe after that but the veteran rookie's yield. He kicked everything for the next twelve minutes and argued hotly, when the Referee ruled Ralph St. Germain's shot had gone ... But Royals couldn't do it again.

Canada's Amateur Winners

Nationals were led by Roy Conacher, a member of Lions' and Charley of National League fame. The younger Conacher popped in three with assists ... O'Flaherty got two, "Red" Doran, Vic Hamberry and "Sticker" McKay did Portales futile shooting.

Kitchener-Waterloo and Fort William Wanderers head tonight's program as they move onto Detroit for the start of the Western Canada final.

Both lineups free from injury, the odds are 5-4 and take your choice. The Dynamiters, attempting to bring British Columbia its first Allan Cup in 39 years eliminated Prince Albert, Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan champions, on their way up. The Lakehead squad won out over Manitoba's Flin Flon bombers.

LONE LEASE ON CELLAR POSITION AWAITS THE A'S

(By Paul Mickelson)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, March 26 (AP) —Old Connie Mack don't know.

His didn't know Lefty Grove ... with a big shortage of good young players to ... he didn't know that pitchers with even a fair knowledge how to throw ... walking at every cross roads town for a big league chance; he didn't know that the Philadelphia fans, who never seemed to give a hoot, would take the sale of his last pitcher as a knife to heart.

Connie Mack knows now. He's worried and sad, as grand a fighter and as shrewd as they come. A lone wolf in American cellar faces him once more.

Some 20 ball players, recruited from everywhere, are drilling hard and talking it up under the sometime eye of the old master down here at Fort Myers.

"Baseball ain't a club in baseball with more of it. Philadelphia fans are bound to be impressed with a bunch of youngsters who will never stop trying and fighting to win.

"Pitchers like Jimmy Foxx, Eric McNair, Rogers Cramer and John Marcum gone from a team that surrendered only 624 runs in the cellar last year, there couldn't be much left. A number of pitchers with the left overs from the December sale but the same big ingredient, pitching, is missing.

There are 20 hurlers in camp but injuries and lack of pitching knowledge among the rookies have made the task of ... Connie Mack probably will depend on Bill Dietrich, Roger Wilhelm, Dusty Rhodes, Charles Lieber and Henry Johnson. Lieber and Wilshere now have sore arms and Rhodes is unorganized ankle.

Defensively, except for pitching, and offensively, Connie should fare well. Working the infield will be Pinky Higgins, third; Hal Warner, second; Lemar Newsome, short, and Jim Ogrodowski, a hard-hitting boy from Los Angeles, at first. Lou Finney will be shifted from the outfield to take over first should Ogleby flunk out.

AMERICANS MAY TAKE 12 EVENTS

U. S. Track And Field Team For Olympics Best in Years

New York, March 26.—(AP)—They are probably keeping their fingers crossed in Berlin which can happen between now and the first week of August, but leading track ...ches of the United States figure representatives of the Republic will capture a majority of the Olympic championship events at Berlin. To be exact, they expect Uncle Sam's lads to take 13 out of 28 first places in the track and field competition.

On the occasion in which we will sweep the hurdles, the relays and the long-distance events from 100 to 800 metres, inclusive. In the field events the coaches rate Americans as "best bets" only in the high jump, broad jump, pole vault and shotput.

It is noteworthy the coaches lean on the conservative side in the 1,500 metres run, the so-called "metric mile." They rate Glenn Cunningham the "best bet" but do not concede the middle distance crack more than an even chance against such runners as Jack Lovelock, Stanley Woodcrest or Luigi Beccali the defending champion.

HANK GREENBERG TO TALK TERMS

Leaves For Lakeland For Conference With Detroit Manager

New York, March 26 (AP)—Hank Greenberg, Detroit Tigers' slugging first baseman has left for Lakeland, Fla., to settle his 1936 salary dispute with club officials there.

The Detroiter said he received a telephone call at 10.30 a.m. from young Charlie Navin, Secretary of the club, inviting him to fly there to "talk the thing over."

"I didn't argue ... any figure," said Hank. "In fact, money was not mentioned ... over the telephone. We'll straighten the differences out down there."

GOLDEN MILLER IS BEST HORSE

Vanguard of Grand National Crowd Pouring Into Liverpool

Liverpool, March 26.—(CP)—The Vanguard of the Grand National crowd poured into Liverpool today and rolling through the race obstacles the words "Golden Miller" were heard above all others.

Would "The Miller", with his tremendous reach and stamina, be the best horse in the history of the Grand Sailoch? Golden Miller failed his millions of backers and fell at the fence after Valentine's Gift the first time around.

The next day he ran in the Champion Chase at the same meeting and took the first fence so neatly he and his jockey, Gerry Wilson, patted company. But The Miller came back this year and a little more than a week ago showed excellent form in winning the Cheltenham Gold Cup for the fifth consecutive time—"in his own country."

But it is hard to guess the winner in the Grand National, always a rough, tough test of horse and turf. And the public is saying "show me the horse to beat the Miller."

Golden Miller's odds are shortening and overnight he was quoted at 4 to 1. His principal rival is Reynoldstown, last night's winner and a horse carrying only five pounds less than Golden Miller's 175 in this year's race. Reynoldstown, they say, does not like hard turf and Aintree has been without rain for several days. He was held at 7 to 1.

Thirty Ticket Mundy's Avenger, who defeated Reynoldstown at Birmingham recently, is third choice at 9 to 1. His trainer, T. Rimell, says his horse has a delicate constitution and must be nursed and the Aintree course is not a playground for delicate constitutions.

Toronto, March 26.—(CP)—Polling hours ad advance polls in municipal elections may be open only eight consecutive hours between, nine o'clock in the morning and nine at night, the Ontario Legislature Municipal Affairs Committee was told today when it passed in amended form the proposal for the change of hours. Mr. Arthur Ellis

PHILADELPHIA PITCHER ... pitcher for the Philadelphia Athletics is being carried from the field by team-mates after having been struck on the head by a line drive in a game with the Boston Sox. Veach was taken to the hospital where he was treated. He was cited the first serious casualty of the current training season. It is expected that he will be able to play by the time the season gets under way.

ROOKIE CATCHER DOES A DIVE BUT RUNNER IS SAFE—He floats through the air, but the runner is safe, at least so the umpire claimed. Joe Glenn of the Yankees is seen as he made a desperate leap to tag the St. Louis Cardinals pitcher, Mike Ryba, just before he hit the home plate. The game was played at St. Petersburg, Florida.

Signs of spring are quite evident locally these days. The local Argyles' Club will hold an open meeting at the T.M.C.A. next Tuesday night which time President Joe Skeritt will make his report from the General Meeting of the Association recently held in Oshawa. Moving pictures, that is the first give you a splendid lesson in the art of casting and game fishing will also be shown and a number of prizes will be given by the angling committee also submitted. Argyles are busy completing their spring season of indoor casting by the Argyles Anniversary directly following the Tuesday night meeting on Tuesday, which, incidentally, is open to the public.

Like a good many other local hockey fans we listened in to the Montreal-Detroit two game total Montreal on Tuesday night and the Motorcity on Thursday night and we were ready to call it quits after the first game but decided to taste defeat. Although the Red Wings have the big edge of one game, the Maroons are still to be considered as Tuesday's game proved nothing short of a free-for-all-scoring clinic. It was the first time we have ever heard Foster Hewitt or a General Motors' hockey broadcast from Montreal, and the many oils which are used in the imbiased word picture of the game by the Hewitt or radio-hockey fans, were quite obvious. Charlie may not be as colorful as some other hockey announcers, but he gives a splendid running account of the game and knows neither team with bursts of enthusiasm. Then the short synopsis given between periods, by Elmer Ferguson, sports editor of the Montreal Star, was another treat for Maroon fans, give the highlighting favorite neither team in his remarks. It was a pleasure to listen in this pair describe a hockey game in an unbiased manner.

Rumors are being circulated about the streets relative to the future possibilities of senior hockey in Belleville. Some say of splicin Belleville in the "big" city league, the business end take over the local franchise but, the C.O.B.C. that are saying Belleville is through for 1936-37 1936. We have foretold and every reason, however, and are firmly convinced, there is absolutely no truth in any of them. On the other hand it is quite apparent, that business is about to pass out of the picture, and the executive of the local rink looms as the bottom, when the dissatisfied people attended the O.H.A. Friday night. A last frantic effort to save the game locally is to be made on Friday eve and unless more interest is shown by the citizens, more particularly the business men, Belleville will be without hockey, will be taken and all the boys will be forced to go to the Quinte district to play hockey. Belleville, when senior hockey was first introduced in the province in 1918, Belleville had a splendid team, and boasted holding fast with seven O.H.A. championships to their credit. Let's all forget feuding at last meeting, and get behind the game locally. What is to be preserved, the fans are urgently requested to attend Friday night's gathering.

Dan Parker, sports columnist of the New York Mirror, burst forth with his annual "bet" relative to the playoff system employed by the N.H.L. yesterday. Mr. Parker always was in disfavor of the post-season schedule, claiming series in professional hockey, confusing. That the best team did not always win the series, honors. Of course in his remarks he forgets to mention, that the championship of the N.H.L. is awarded to the team winning the most points, and in the event the two seasons, which is about the case with the world's series in baseball, as for the Stanley Cup series, Mr. Parker's contention is the whole situation. He says:—"Once more the wider absurdity of the playoff system in the National Hockey League is exposed by the local devotees of the Winter Sport. Tonight the fate of the New York Rangers.

"The Rangers wound up second and ... tied for second place in their group with 50 points; yet, they are ... to be eliminated tonight ... ironically, they finished in fourth ... the league.

"On the other hand, the Americans, who wound up the season with only 29 points and finished in the seventh less than the Rangers, beat eight men and tied five men, are in the playoffs. If anyone can figure this out, I'll buy the Detroit franchise and put it in Naugatuck, Conn., next season.

"Students of hockey also will observe that the only two teams not in the playoffs are the only two ... only two cities in the loop which have had representation in Montreal and New York. Thus, every city in the league is represented! It speaks almost like a wrestling card.

They just can't seem to let Georgia dogs slumber especially at College Park Saturday. After the ... of fans had forgotten and forgiven the Olympic hockey muff, Forrest Bond, ex-President of the O. H. A. probes the old sore to come out and say—"The Olympic hockey players are quite correct, when they blame the C.A.H.A. officials for handing their affairs last month at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany. Isn't that just too sweet, and just as if any two blooded Canadian hockey fan didn't know that immediately following the Olympic hockey tangle.

Lorne Chabot, again proving himself an outstanding sportsman, presented Tommy Thompson with the million-dollar puck that the latter fired through Chabot to win Tuesday night's N.H.L. overtime struggle. Naturally Brunetsent looks ... Chabot is "a grand guy."

"HAMS" PLAY HERO ROLES IN FLOODS—Among the unsung heroes of the current floods in the U.S. is Mrs. Dorothy Hall of New York, who has operated her amateur radio station, WIKUY for long hours during the crisis. She has been in constant communication with Johnstown, Pa., where all telephone contact has been disrupted by the flood waters.

FUGITIVE 11 YEARS—FINALLY CAUGHT—Once condemned to die for the murder of an Alabama grocer, Thimage R. Baker escaped from prison in 1933 while serving the life sentence imposed by a new trial. Since 1938 he worked in Kansas City, where he married and became a model citizen. Red his past caught up with him when he was recognized from an old police circular. Arrested by Kansas City police, Baker is held for extradition to Alabama. Friends he made during his new life in Kansas City are rallying to his aid. He is shown after arrest with his wife, who knew nothing of his past and is standing loyally by him now.

THE PASHA AND COMMISSIONER DROP QUARREL FOR TEA—All is not work in the life of a diplomat, as this picture proves. Ahmed Eivar Pasha, Egyptian statesman, pours tea for Sir James Lampson, British High Commissioner to Egypt (RIGHT) during a lull in the negotiations for the settlement of outstanding questions between Egypt and England. The photo was made in the Zaafaran palace, outside Cairo, where the parleys took place.

OUT OF JAIL TO BE HAILED AS BARCELONA'S GREATEST HERO—A hero's return! Released from jail by the recent amnesty following the Loyalist victory in Spain, Luis Companys is cheering, in the rear of this official automobile, waving gaily in answer to the cheers of his followers. Impressive police guard him. Police head back the crowds. Waving flags add to the colorful scene. Companys had been jailed in 1934 for declaring his native province, Catalonia, an independent republic. He was considered a liberalor by his supporters which he obtained "local autonomy for Catalonia" from Spain's republican premier, Manuel Azana.

PRESIDENT VIEWS FLOOD STRICKEN AREAS—Taking personal charge of a national crisis, President Roosevelt makes a tour of flood areas in eastern states. He is here seen in his car signing a bill.

TEMPORARY FOR 60 YEARS, SUPREME COURT BUILDING CONDEMNED—The disgraceful state of Canada's supreme court building, in the shadow of the parliament buildings at Ottawa, is revealed in the report by Dr. J. J. Heagerty and G. H. Ferguson of the department of health, and tabled in parliament. The Dominion's highest court is a fire-trap which, according to the writers of the report should "obviously be condemned as being injurious to the health of the occupants and totally inadequate for the purpose for which it is used." The rooms are small and mean, badly lighted, badly ventilated. The main court room has its only ventilation fans so noisy that they cannot be run when the court is in session. The invaluable library is in imminent danger of fire, moths are attacking the books, and rat holes are found in the basement. The present building was a workshop in the construction of the parliament buildings, later was taken over for the higher court in Canada as a temporary measure, and that was sixty years ago. The building and entrance plaque are shown above.

DIE WACHT AM DER RHINE—This picture, more than any other perhaps, symbolizes the spirit of Germany in re-occupying the Rhine-land. At Coblenz, with the famous Kaiser statue in the background, these fully armed machine-gunners are resuming their "watch on the Rhine" for the first time in 17 years.

HEAVY GUNS APPROPRIATELY IN COLOGNE SLAUGHTER HOUSE—The most modern of Germany's fighting equipment is being moved into Cologne, capital of the reoccupied Rhineland. The photo above long-range guns appropriately in the yard of a slaughter house in Cologne. The city and vicinity are under strict military control, and men are exercised all day long.

PRESBYTERIAL OF W.M.S. CONVENE IN THIS CITY

Two Day Session is Being Held in Tabernacle Church

DULY WELCOMED

Reports Given at First Session by Various Chairwomen

The 24th annual meeting of Belleville Presbyterial Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada convened in Tabernacle Church, Belleville on Wednesday and Thursday, March 25th and 26th with the program based on the theme "The world-wide fellowship of Christians."

Love that is hoped, made at last. Until we know each day
The only thing we ever have
Is what we give away.

One hundred delegates and visitors gathered from the five sections, Belleville, Frankford, Campbellford, Tweed and Madoc comprising the Presbyterial to enjoy the fine fellowship and inspiration and education along missionary lines.

Spring Flowers

The church was resplendent with potted plants and other spring floral decorations and made a pretty setting for the inspirational meeting of the day.

The initial session began at 2.15 p.m. with Mrs. W. Gordon of Cherry Valley, President of the Presbyterial in the chair. She dedicated herself by singing the Consecration Hymn by John Cennibeen, "Take thou my hand, dear Lord, lead me." followed by "The Kingdom of God Prayer" in unison.

Mrs. A. Clarke Sexton, Secretary of Belleville Section read a message of welcome to the visiting delegates of Tabernacle W.M.S. which was heartily welcome by the visitors and Mrs. D. Wallis, Belleville Section, sincerely replied.

Mrs. Sherrard and Mrs. Connors, members of Tweed Auxiliary also took charge of the Worship Service based on Psalm 23. Mrs. Sherrard gave a thought-provoking talk on "The Daily Living of Christians as they read several passages along the line of Faith.

Mrs. Connors rendered an appropriate solo "Just for today" accompanied by Mrs. M. D. Hoff.

Resolutions—Mrs. Frank Hagrigan, Picton, Mrs. W. A. Ashley, Napanee; Mrs. A. C. Crew, Trenton.

Treasurer's Report

Mrs. R. J. Corbell of Napanee, as treasurer of the Presbyterial, has remitted to the Bay of Quinte branch, $14,000. as follows: Auxiliaries, $11,305.67; Mission Bands, $1,004.72; Bands, $19.86; Mission Circles, $656.82; Evening Auxiliaries, $769.81.

She also briefly explained the expense account of our Presbyterial, showing that the officers only receive transportation, stationery and postage and that the money for the work free grants and pay their own billeting and eating expenses.

Mrs. Clay Hewgan, of Picton, delighted with a vocal solo, accompanied by Miss Doris Knapp.

Mrs. McCulloch Heard

Miss Olive Hambly ably introduced the guest speaker of the afternoon in the person of Mrs. E. A. McCulloch, of Toronto, who has charge of the retirement fund of the Dominion Board, and the speaker was given a hearty ovation.

Mrs. McCullough is a woman of great experience as she has travelled extensively and has written several poems for our Missionary Monthly and is well equipped to carry on the work of the Dominion Board.

The speaker very vividly took the delegates on a tour of inspection to the Dominion Board and gave them a glimpse even through the various offices in that building. She closed as her subject, "Securing the Wheels Go Round" and in her interesting talk she cleared up many items, which the per! had been rather hazy to the delegates.

Mrs. McCulloch explained the various items of work carried on by members of the Dominion Board, and very clearly gave a vast assortment of duties, all of which they do free grats, but those women feel they have a rich reward in doing this work in the name of Jesus.

This work accomplished by the Dominion Board Members could not go on were it not for the loyal support of the branches all the way from coast to coast, all of which are a cog in the wheel and are most important in this vast organization.

Mrs. McCulloch was heartily welcomed by the delegates at the solemn memorial service as Mrs. J. D. Wilson read roll of honor of the thirty-four deceased members of our Presbyterial, who have been called to Higher Service in the past in the Beautiful Hills with God.

A rose bush was planted in a vase, one for each section as the names were read and Mrs. Gillan sang "Beautiful Isle Somewhere" as the close Mrs. James Sedick offered prayer and Mrs. Kenneth Sexton delighted with a solo, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul."

Rev. R. B. Naylor, associate pastors and elders then dispensed Holy Communion and this closed the first session.

Supper at Tabernacle

The ladies of Tabernacle church served a delicious supper at six o'clock in the dining room which was lit with candles and the tables were prettily arranged with vases of flowers of pink and yellow.

Mrs. Gordon Wallace presided over the greetings, the first being a toast to the King responded to with the singing of "National Anthem" and Dr. Semple also welcomed the ladies to Bellevile on behalf of the Board of Stewart Conference.

Mrs. Reginald Lewis extended greetings from the city in the absence of Mayor Bill.

Mrs. H. E. Knox read a letter of warmest greetings from Mrs. W. Mc. Smith, who after a month W.M.S. organization should be a power house of influence for the coming Kingdom of God.

Mrs. Knox also read a letter from a former President, Mrs. T. H. P. Anderson, who urged the women of the Auxiliary to greater devotion.

Greetings from Sister Societies were brought by the following ladies:—

Mrs. Andrew's.—A message from Mrs. Fargey read by Mrs. Haggerty.

Presbyterian—Mrs. Ward.

Anglican given by Mrs. Vanderwater.

W.C.T.U.—Mrs. (Dr.) Moore.

Presbytery—Rev. H. W. Pentland, who complimented all of these greetings by singing "Blest Be the Tie that Binds."

Missionary Heard

At this juncture Mrs. W. C. Haggerty introduced Dr. Florence Murray, who had so her second furlough, from Korea and Dr. Murray delighted the audience with one of lantern slides, depicting Mission hospitals, churches and institutions in Korea in the series of slides showing the various work accomplished by the nurses in the hospitals.

These slides were very educational as also the delegates surely appreciated the kindness of Dr. Murray in giving the Presbyterial with his accompanying lecture.

Claim Heart Attack Caused by Accident

Coboconk, March 25.—Coroner F. Jelich, of Cobocon testifying in the $16,000 action of Joseph Dunnette against the Township of Bexley and the counties of Northumberland and Victoria over the bridge, the automobile accident last November told the court Tuesday, Mrs. Dunnette suffered a heart attack and brought on by the accident.

Hilda Cranny, another witness, testified he saw Johnson's car behind Dunnette's car on the bridge. Mr. Johnson car passed Dunnette and Dunnette's car left the road, toppling over the bridge.

Crown sever the Johnson car had no responsibility.

George Blaker of Fort Hope, a passenger in the Dunnette car, said he felt a jar as Johnson's car passed and then the automobile left the road, resting upside down in the creek.

Joseph Dunnette was partly under the car, his head under water, and Mrs. Dunnette, unconscious, pulled out. Baacn, a son and driver of the car, was drowned.

CHRISTIANIZING OF KOREA TOLD BY DR. MURRAY

Fellowship With Jesus is a Real And Vital Thing

BOARD POWERFUL

Mrs. McCulloch Tells of Meeting of Foreign Mission Board

"Fellowship with Jesus is a real, vital and precious thing to Christian Koreans, and they realize that fellowship to an extent than many of us who are Christians of longer standing never really attain," said Dr. Florence Murray, Medical Missionary on furlough from Han Heung, Korea in addressing the Belleville Presbyterial Woman's Missionary Society meeting at Tabernacle United Church last evening.

Rev. I. B. Naylor, pastor of Tabernacle United Church, opened the evening session by taking charge of the devotional period. He based on the theme "Hope". Mrs. M. F. Duff presided at the organ.

During the evening a musical program was given, which included a duet by Mrs. Duff and Mrs. J. C. Bradley "Whispering Hope", a trio, Mrs. Duff, Mrs. Bradley, and Mrs. Ward, "Abide With Me" and a solo "The Sweet Story of Old."

Dr. Florence Murray

The first speaker, Dr. Florence Murray, medical missionary in Korea, was introduced by Mrs. W. Haggerty of Cherry Valley, Presbyterial president. Dr. Murray, in an interesting manner, gave her audience a glimpse of missionary activities in Korea half way around the world from Canada, as large numbers of Koreans are now accepting Christ are great as that of the Dominion.

The mission ministered to two and one half millions of Koreans in Seoul and Hamhung. Presbyterial gifts sometimes being organized. At her particular station there are four congregations who have built their own churches, have supported pastors and given $1,000 for a number of years. There are women's societies, Sunday schools, Kindergartens, in addition to the Koreans support a home for old men and women.

Enthusiasm For Christianity

To these people Christianity has meant education, music, social life, friendship and fellowship, the change of women's status from drudge to important citizen, official, races from fear of evil spirits to freedom, from sorrow to the joys of the Christian life, Koreans are eager to pass on this joy, this freedom to their neighbors.

They are living testimony of their faith and begin to carry on local work, from which their neighbors get support churches, enlighten the darkness of those about them and help the poor.

In concluding her message, Dr. Murray urged the delegates to endeavor to emulate the sacrifice of those Korean Christians who have given for the work of the missions, and by donations, prayer and steady co-operation in the Kingdom of God.

The offering was taken by the C. G. I. T. girls and the dedicatory prayer was given by Mrs. H. Hobbs of Holloway Street United Church branch.

New Trends

"New Trends in Foreign Missions" was the subject of a most informative address by Mrs. E. A. McCulloch, secretary of the Retirement Fund of the Dominion Board of Toronto. Mrs. McCulloch represents the Foreign Mission Conference of North America, composed of one hundred and fifty Protestant Churches sending forty denominations, a powerful, influential organization, thought. It is part of the International Missionary Conference. Our speaker quoted the presiding officer of the Conference who said that he believed if Christianity did not of America there would be sufficient Christianity in Europe, China, India, and the islands of the seas to eventually come back and reevangelize America.

More and more it was evident, the speaker said, that the need for denominations was to forget differences, and concentrate on the one central figure and force in missionary work, the Master and His Message. The new emphasis in Missionary work was on Christ and his teachings. Another trend was the emphasis on rural evangelism and Mass Movements, stressed the fact that in dealing with the Japanese farmers it had been suggested that missionaries first be kind, second, be loving and then preach of Christ and the farmers would listen.

"We too, could follow this plan. Remember the saying 'What, you are speakr so loudly that I cannot hear what you say.' We must live our religion before it can mean anything to others," declared the speaker.

From the conference Mrs. McCulloch brought back many heartening messages to those so keenly interested in missionary work, appealing to the "Young" churches, to the need of reaching the rising generation and re-awaken interest in those who have lost touch with missions.

Illustrating her inspiring talk with many facts and figures of missionary enterprise and with charming delightful humor, Mrs. McCulloch far afield, Mrs. McCulloch urged her hearers to realize their sense of wonder and appreciation, to nurture the mysticism of the child, and to accept from Christ the wonderful those messages which would recall the things now dim to the vision, that when the "heavenly music" is heard on earth again, all might be in tune with the infinite.

The Girls' Circle or Bridge Street United Church took part in a beautiful "Candle lighting" ceremony, representing girls of all lands, girls of Christianity, from Christ—the Light of the world. The church was darkened at the opening which impressed itself indelibly in the minds of those present, remembered it. Mrs. Houston presided at the service for the music of the ceremony.

The evening session was brought to a close by the benediction pronounced by Rev. Dr. James Semple of Bridge Street United Church.

During the evening C.G.I.T. members efficiently acted as ushers. The registration and billeting committee in charge of arrangements for the entertaining of the guests was composed of Mrs. G. C. Storey, Tabernacle convener, Mrs. Ward, Mrs. James Semple, Bridge Street Church, Mrs. J. C. Gordon, Holloway Street Church, Mrs. A. D. Archibald, John Street Church and Mrs. H. Pitcher, Trinity, looking after registration.

MAUNDY MONEY TO BE GIVEN BY KING

Second Time in 200 Years King Personally Attends Service

London, March 26 (CP)—For only the second time in 200 years the reigning Sovereign of Great Britain will attend personally the Maundy service in Westminster Abbey on Maundy Thursday, April 9.

King Edward today announced the intention of himself distributing the gifts of Maundy money to as many "deserving" old men and women as the King is years of age.

In this case, His Majesty's birthday will be anticipated. The King will be 42 on June 23rd, and this number of recipients will receive the specially minted silver Maundy money, much sought after by coin connoisseurs.

This distribution of alms is a relic of the ancient commencement of Christ's washing the feet of the disciples. It was conducted with varying degrees of faithfulness by Kings, clergy and monks until the sixteenth century. James II was the last monarch personally to perform the rite. After his time, the Lord High Almoner deputized for the Sovereign until the abolition of the practice in 1750.

The late King George V, with Queen Mary, attended the Maundy distribution in 1934. The attendant ceremonies were highly picturesque. There were the Gentlemen of the Royal Household, the Lord High Almoner, with the Dean of Westminster, girt with towels in the manner of Christ's washing of the disciples' feet.

The choir of the Chapels Royal carry nosegays at such ceremonies, reminiscent of days when herbs were carried to ward off the plague. The Judges' breach at the Old Bailey, for the same ancient purpose, even today is strewn with herbs, and the practice of providing the Assize Judges with nosegauts probably arose from a like cause.

ROBBED FOR THIRD TIME

SPEEDS WORK TO FORTIFY MALTA

Naval Arsenal is Working on Twenty Four Hour Shifts

Valetta, Malta, March 26.—(CP)—Naval—Great Britain's intention to carry out reconstruction work at Malta's naval base was disclosed last night in an official statement that the naval arsenal is now working on 24-hour shifts.

The announcement was made by the Engineering Director of the Naval Artillery Arsenal on the eve of his departure for London to confer with Government authorities concerned with Britain's rearmament program.

The landlocked basin here, protected from the Mediterranean by rocky promontories, and situated midway between the Gibraltar and Suez Canals, was believed chosen by naval experts as a strategic concentration point.

The threat of aerial invasion from Italy's new air armada, considered a grave danger to the base's security, it was said.

New military air bases have been ordered for the flat headlands about Valetta, while special naval gun drones will be laid down in the harbor itself, where no entry there may be sheltered. It was understood the port's artillery defenses will be strengthened and the marine base improved and enlarged into a key ammunition, arms and stores depot.

The occupation of the Malta base was decided upon by naval strategists who agreed, following the recent concentration in the Mediterranean, that Valetta oil depot should be abandoned as a major base or improved to meet requirements of modern warfare.

The nearest Italian base is the new port of Augusta, on the adjacent island of Sicily. It does not compare, however, with the palatial and protected harbor of Valetta.

HUNDREDS MORE FLOODED OUT

Pittsburgh, March 26—(AP)—Protracted flood conditions in West Virginia and Ohio today forced hundreds of families from their homes while in Pennsylvania the end of the deluge was in sight.

Rivers, creeks and tributary streams poured their excess waters into the Ohio River but Pittsburgh, hardest hit by last week's flood, was not affected.

FOURTEEN KILLED IN PLANE CRASH NEAR MEXICO CITY

Party Chartred Plane For Carefree Trip Over Central America

BURNED TO DEATH

Plane Tried to Pass Between Two Mountain Peaks

By CLARK LEE
Copyright, 1936,
By The Associated Press

Mexico City, March 27—Six women and eight men, representing rank from members of European nobility to American millionaires, were brought back dead to this capital today, victims of an air disaster which hurled a carefree trip to Central America.

Authorities said the bodies, too badly crushed and burned to permit certain identification, would be sent to their homelands.

The 14 persons, 10 European tourists and four Americans, were victims of a tri-motored plane they chartered for a flight through Guatemala and Central America, died yesterday when the great ship crashed near Popocatepetl mountain, 30 miles from here. The peak between Mount Popocatepetl and Ixtaccihuatl, snow-covered volcanic peaks 30 miles from here.

The wireless operator of another pan-American plane, which was flying from Guatemala to Mexico at the time of the accident, disclosed that he had been warned by the pilot operator of the doomed plane just before the crash.

Captain Adolfo Limon, wireless operator who died in the disaster) told the radio operator he was very happy and were remarking on the beautiful views of the mountains as the operator of the other plane said.

Victims of Crash

The victims of the crash, the first major accident of Mexican aviation, were:

Portuguese Prince Adolf Schaumburg-Lippe of Bueckeburg, Germany; Princess Elizabeth Schaumburg-Lippe, his wife; Baron Sigmund Freud, psychologist, Germany; Baron Dr. Elemer von Hollosonyi, Budapest, Hungary; Mrs. Dora Theis of Bremen, Germany; Miss Victoria Theis of Bremen, Germany; Dr. Hermann Harder of Hamburg, Germany; Mrs. Hermann Harder of Hamburg, Germany; Miss Liesbet Post, of Amsterdam, Germany; Adolf Franz Igler of Vienna, Austria.

Captain Limon, pilot, of Mexico City; Adolfo Limon, radio operator, brother of the pilot; Luis Arriga, steward, of San Jose, Costa Rica.

Burned to Death

All except Igler died instantly in the crash or were trapped and burned to death.

The Austrian tourist, still conscious but badly burned, died during his with pain, was pulled from the wreckage by Guatemalan Consul Cordobe, who was the first to reach the scene.

The man was gripping his stomach and moaning horribly. Cordobe, who speaks German, translated words in a language I did not understand and then died within a few minutes."

Calgary, March 27.—(CP)—Lady Luck smiled on a syndicate formed by one shop workers today though it wasn't a great deal.

Each was made $36 richer by the Syndicate ticket they held in the Irish Hospital Sweepstake on the Grand National.

W. E. Hanson, Canadian Pacific Railway shops employee organized the Syndicate with 100 shares at $1 each. Sir Ernest Will's "Blase," in the big race and will collect $3,600. Each member of the Syndicate contributed one dollar and four books of tickets were purchased. A New York Syndicate offered the local men $3,000 for their ticket but they decided to "take a chance" and refused to sell.

10 Greatest Living Jews Named by Dr. Lewisohn

Evangel of Zionism Predicts Another Isaiah If Jews Have Home

Windsor, Ont., Mar. 27 (CP)—Dr. Ludwig Lewisohn, novel writer, critic and friend of Theodor Herzl, named "the 10 greatest living Jews".

The final four named he said, are first rank geniuses; the other six are "not of the same divine spark."

The 10 are:

Prof. Albert Einstein, scientist, creator of the theory of relativity.

Sigmund Freud, psychologist, psychoanalyst, pioneer of the subconscious mind.

Henri Bergson of France, philosopher, founder of the evolutionary conception.

Theodor of Religious Philosophy.

Martin Buber now in Palestine, teacher of religious philosophy, regarded as one of the greatest modern writers of German prose. Ousted from professorship in Germany by the Nazis.

Chaim Weizmann, chemist who aided the British during the Great War, refused money and a peerage in return for securing Palestine as a home for the Jews. President of the World Zionist Organization.

Dr. Bernard Zondek, one of the world's leading gynecologists, also a Nazi refugee in Palestine. His contribution to gynaecology has made childbirth safer and less painful.

Scholem Asch, Hebrew writer.

Rabbi Stephens S. Wise of New York, political leader.

Louis D. Brandeis, United States Supreme Court Justice.

Arnold Schoenberg, ultra modern composer and exponent of the 12-tone scale, now teaching harmony and counterpoint in a California university.

Dr. Lewisohn's final, robust, with his fine, fearless, penetrating features, said among the first names to occur to him, were grisly Jews who died in Hitler's Germany. Albert Einstein, the novelist; Blatt, the Hebrew poet; the Marquis of Reading, British statesman.

"We have produced many people of fine talent—fiddle players, actors, writers, lawyers, doctors, but very few geniuses of the first order, the front rank," he said. "That is because we are a people without roots, without a home, wanderers. Genius is like fire, where it burns it consumes all our own, a soil of our own under our feet from which will spring a new generation of Jews. We must produce another Isaiah, another Psalmist."

870,000 Told by Hitler Equality is Peace Basis

Essen, Germany, Mar. 27 (AP)—Adolf Hitler, carrying his election campaign to the Industrial Ruhr Valley works before an audience of 870,000 persons, said today: "there can be no real world peace without equality between partners."

Standing on a platform built on a locomotive chassis, the German Chancellor emphasized his previous statement in pleading for equality among nations for the Reich.

"There can be no victors and vanquished," he declared and his listeners cheered enthusiastically.

Hitler stressed the third Reich was much more a genuine democracy than the Weimar Republic.

"I am dependent on no one," he said in explaining his own position as head of the government.

Hitler resorted to the personal pronoun frequently as he preached peace to the world. He told them the hall in which he spoke was "Adolf Hitler's" and addressed the workers of Germany."

"Your strength was stilled in the Reich as Hitler spoke.

Denies Alsace Claim

The Chancellor denied he worshipped personal power.

"Alone, I am as weak as each of you," he declared. "I am strong because my people are strongly united with the people's spokesman and representative. Their thought is my thought, their strength is my strength.

"Home people think we are too rough and hasty with enforcement of our program. But I pointed out when a tooth has to be pulled it is not wise trying to pull it out a millimeter at a time—it has got to be pranked out all at once."

Hitler declared bonds nor shares not even a bank account," he said, and the workers cheered.

Dr. Reichsbank-President never entered upon any secret arrangements nor would he ever in the future.

Safeguard Sovereignty.

"But if other nations arm to the teeth, I shall certainly see to it that Germany's sovereignty and territory is safeguarded," he asserted.

The British dies for which war either at home or abroad. Hitler declared, "I am a fighter combining.

"We do not intend, however, to let anyone put his foot on our neck," he said.

"A dictated peace was heaped upon us involving humiliating demands including demilitarization of a zone as big as Belgium.

"What do we Germans want of the world?" he queried, and immediately answered his own question.

"Nothing at all. We want to be left alone. We want to respect the frontiers of others just as we expect others to respect ours."

No Interest In Meddling.

"But foreign dictation of internal German affairs is as ridiculous as an outsider looking into your home and telling you how things in which room," the Chancellor continued.

"We have no interest in meddling with the internal affairs of France or Belgium but we forbid others to meddle in Germany's affairs."

Hitler said his government had 2,500,000 men back to work in the last three years.

FALLS OUT OF HAYLOFT

The youth took some children to school and afterwards went to the barn where his lifeless body was found later by his father.

REYNOLDSTOWN IS WINNER 2ND TIME GRAND NATIONAL

Major Furlong's Good Leppar Repeats His Victory of Last Year

OUTSIDERS PLACE

Golden Miller, Favorite of Race Falls at First Fence

Aintree, Liverpool, March 27 — (CP Cable)—A great nine-year-old jumper, Major Noel Furlong's Reynoldstown, today won the Grand National steeplechase for the second successive year, a feat which has only been accomplished twice before.

Reynoldstown romped home to an easy victory, 20 lengths ahead of the second-place Ego, owned by Mrs. Lloyd Lindsay-Hogg. Third in the chase, run over 30 heart-breaking jumps before a crowd of more than 300,000 was Jerry M., last year's Grand National winner, ridden by Rochdale Prince. Six length separated Ego and Bachelor Prince by the finish.

Only 10 Finished

A field of 33 horses lined up for the 4½ mile running of the Grand National. But only 10 finished. Golden Miller, the favorite for the second time in a row, fell at the first fence jump. The Miller, 1934 victor, got up and continued, but did less finished the race. The second choice in the betting, Mrs. Vicie, Mandy's Jewel, also fell at the first fence around the Aintree course, breaking his back. He had to be destroyed.

Reynoldstown, a brown gelding by Sir Frizzo out of Chromage was quoted at odds of 10 to 1 at post time. Odds on Golden Miller were 9 to 2. Winning rods Major Furlong's Reynoldstown.

"The gutsy comeback-building of the winner, the 'comeback' horse of the National, drew cries in succession since The Colonel won in 1869 and 1870. The only other horse to claim that distinction since the race first was run in 1839 was Abd-el-Kader, in 1850-51.

Run in Dull Weather

Reynoldstown favors a course, that is not dry and a cold rain which fell most of yesterday gave him the kind of footing he wanted. Nation and Ego were his nearest rivals, with a fitful sun trying to peer through the cloud and gloom.

The time was 9:37, comparatively slow compared with the 9:31 made by Reynoldstown a year ago. Golden Miller's time in winning first in 1934 at 9:30.

Failure to finish the gruelling course was R. Strutt's Crown Prince, ridden by Strutt and carrying 12 stone—11 lbs. overweight; Lt.-Col. W. E. Peel's Inverside, carrying 12 stone, ridden by Peel; F. C. Sellicourt's Provocative strain and Mrs. Lloyd Lindsay-Hogg's Castle Irwell seventh. Bostwick rode Castle Irwell himself. Provocative finished 149 pounds and Castle Irwell 157.

Davy Jones Runs Out

The winner was handicapped at 139 pounds, was two pounds better than Golden Miller, the top weight, Ego, ridden by Rees, carried 147 pound impost and Bachelor Prince, ridden by Pascal, 146 pounds. Nation was 140 lbs. and Bachelor Prince at 50 to 1.

Ego, a chestnut gelding bred by T. Rayson, showed the way over Aintree's treacherous jumps until the home turn in the final obstacle. Then he swerved and ran off the course, when Nation rode bowling Reynoldstown, which had run up fast, alone to win by 20 lengths.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Windsor, Ont., March 27 (CP) — A city ordinance which makes it a misdemeanor for anyone but a blind person to carry a white cane, went into effect across the river in Detroit today. The idea of supplying blind folk with white canes, to identify them in city traffic, originated with Dr. Russell Wallis, Windsor golf pro, and he has been making them over a period of years.

St. Paul, March 27 (CP)—Miss Bertha M. Thee, supervisor of nurses for the Alaska Indian Service, said she was glad to be able to attend a public health nursing institute here. Nothing, she explained, ever seemed to happen in Alaska.

"I haven't been in an anything spectacular. One year I went 900 miles by dog sled and another 1,-100 miles.

Chicago, March 27 (CP)—Not only did her husband elope with Jane Doe," their divorce suit neighbor, alleged Mrs. Edwin G. Seeburg, but her divorce, Mrs. Seeburg telephoned each night thereafter by long distance to inquire anxiously how his dairy business was doing.

So Mrs. Olsen asked the court for an injunction restraining him from ever coming back to the business and agreed to waive alimony if his share of the firm's proceeds were given to her.

MOVE TO PEACE IN ETHIOPIA MADE BY DUCE

Spanish Negotiator is Invited to Rome to Discuss Matter

UNLIKELY TO ACCEPT

Rome Believes Spanish Diplomat Will Not Have Time

Rome, Mar. 27 (AP) — Premier Mussolini has informally invited Salvador De Madariaga of Spain, League of Nations negotiator in the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, to come to Rome to discuss preliminary terms for peace, diplomatic sources said today.

Informed sources believed, however, the Spanish diplomat could not accept the invitation since a trip to Rome would mean logically his going to Addis Ababa and too much time would be lost thus.

Hoffman Likely to Take Happtmann's Case to Court of Pardons

Today Mayor Hill paid tribute to the efforts made by his councillors on behalf of the city, at the Monday meeting.

The service, it was pointed out by the Mayor will be free. Application need only be made at the office of the city engineer.

"With the advent of warmer weather we always check motor vehicles for defective brakes, lights, etc. in order to keep the accidents at the minimum. Local motorists should avail themselves of this warning.

KEEP OFF THE LAWNS!

Please keep off the lawns!

That is the urgent request of local home owners, whose properties, generally situated on busy streets are often a tempting short cut to thoughtless pedestrians and cyclists. The soft nature of the ground at this time of year retains the impression of their prints and tracks, with a consequent refusal of grass to grow where tested out. Local drivers also come in for some criticism, the complaint received at the city hall this week was that the lawn was badly damaged when a driver, in turning his motor machine on a residential street, backed onto the wet lawn, leaving deep depressions where his tires rested.

EDUCATION BOARD APPEALS FOR FUNDS

The promise that their request for funds with which to construct an addition to Queen Mary School for which plans and estimates have been prepared was received by a deputation of the Board of Education which met members of the local city council at committee meeting last evening. The deputation which was made up of the chairman of the Board had as its spokesman Rev. Mr. F. Ostrom, chairman.

Others who gave brief addresses were H. Sandwith, J. E. Robinson and C. J. Brennah. The program for Thursday afternoon was featured by an address given by Dr. G. R. Reed of Queen's University, who spoke on "Common Bacterial Contamination," and illustrated the address with colored lantern slides. H. H. Waters, Montreal addressed the class from cheese buyer's standpoint, while Joseph Burgess of Ottawa gave a cheese grading demonstration.

A Salute to "THE COUNTRY DOCTOR"

BY GORDON SINCLAIR

Famed world-traveller, wise-writer, author of "Footloose in India", etc.

CHEVROLET today takes pride in presenting its compliments to The Country Doctor, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, both in the flesh and in the film.

He and the five famed sisters under his care have made the world even more conscious of Canada and Canadians.

Chevrolet gives me this chance of adding my personal salaams because I was one of the first reporters to tell an unbelieving world of the quintuplet daughters born to Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne two years ago.

Indeed, we news chasers of that day were unbelieving ourselves until the doctor tiptoed us into the Dionne home and showed us four of the tiny babes in a clothes basket, the fifth—little Marie—in a hastily prepared incubator.

We hurried away to speed a story fairly studded with exclamation marks to a still skeptical world. Since then, of course, the world has come not only to believe but to know intimately the charm and grace of these unusual babes and the unchanging modesty of their medical monitor.

Since that day, also, both Dr. Dafoe and myself have had some queer and unusual experiences with Chevrolets. I drove once, last midsummer, through blinding blizzards in the heart of the tropics where the temperature changed from a dusty 106 in the shade to 12 below freezing; a drop of 86 degrees, within ten hours. Dr. Dafoe, following the same Chevrolet model this year, faced drifts and storms such as the north country hasn't seen for many a year.

But why tell Canadians about weather, or even about Dr. Dafoe or Chevrolet? You know about all three. So, on behalf of Chevrolet, a salute to the country doctor!

CHEVROLET Salutes ALL DOCTORS

From the first, Chevrolet has counted a great many of its friendliest, most influential owners among the doctors of Canada. . . . We are proud of this, because we think that the goodwill of physicians is the most convincing proof of dependability in a motor car that anyone could point to. . . . We like to think, too, that if our cars have made it easier and quicker for doctors to make their dependable rounds—they have served to push aside the barriers of time and space and weather which, in other days, not infrequently blocked the way.

W. MOIRA STORE ENTERED BY NIGHT

Robber Disturbed by Owner Before Any Loot is Obtained

A lone burglar successfully gained entrance to Wright's grocery store, West Moira Street, early today, but before he could make off with his loot his presence was discovered by Mr. Horace Wright, who raised an alarm, and the unidentified robber beat a hasty retreat. Mr. Wright heard a disturbance in his store about 4.30 a.m. today after having been awakened in his bedroom above the store. In arising, however, Mr. Wright apparently made sufficient noise so as to warn the man that his presence was known, because when the proprietor of the store arrived downstairs the man had left. Nothing was missing, however.

The police department was notified and P. C. Taylor immediately investigated. Upon the arrival of the officer it was discovered the burglar had gained entrance by means of removing a piece of broken glass from the sill of a window on the west side of the building. The window pane had been previously cracked and it proved an easy matter to remove the broken piece and unlock the window from the inside and crawl into the store. When disturbed the robber had been stealing groceries and placing them neatly in a pile at the rear door where he had apparently intended to make his exit. A quantity of groceries and fruits were later discovered in two baskets near the rear door by P. C. Taylor and Mr. Wright.

In his flight he was forced to leave behind an old overcoat, one rubber and a small hammer. Although the cash drawer was rifled, it contained no money, Mr. Wright having removed the cash for safe-keeping on Thursday night before closing up. Police authorities report the attempted robbery to doubtlessly be the work of transients, as foot-prints in the mud at the rear of Wright's grocery lead in the direction of the C.N.R. railway tracks. Local police later searched the two "jungles" in quest of the robber, but without success.

AMERICAN TOURISTS PASS THROUGH CITY

First tourists of the season have already begun to pass through the city, it is indicated by the number of foreign license plates that are appearing on the streets. Yesterday plates from four different States, New York, Michigan, Illinois and Ohio were counted by one local filling station attendant.

No Relief for Married Couples After April 1

Beginning April 1, no further relief will be granted able bodied married couples in this city, except in the case of dependents, it was decided at a regular committee meeting of council held last evening. A resolution to that effect passed in committee will be submitted the regular meeting of council on Monday evening for final approval.

Further recommendations which will be submitted council in Monday evening are:

That any grocer operating two stores be given appropriate amount of relief grocery vouchers in each store.

That the present arrangement of paying one hundred dollars yearly to the Fruit Machinery Company for parking space be discontinued, and that the parties concerned be notified.

That the Y.M.C.A. be allowed the privilege of holding Toy Day on Saturday, June 6th, for the purpose of raising funds for the operation of the Boys' Camp at Moira Lake this summer.

That the present agreement between the city and James Babcock, scavenger, be renewed for one year, from March 31st, and that the amount paid by the city be supplied by him in payment of his taxes.

Cheesemaker Gets Factory in Alberta

Well known to cheesemakers and others connected with the industry in this district, Mr. Alfred Dudgeon, son of Mr. Jack Dudgeon, secretary of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association, Thomasburg, for the past several years has been engaged in cheesemaking with his father at Moira Valley factory, Thomasburg, has received an important assignment when he will leave for Thorsby, forty miles west of Edmonton, Alberta, to the district where he will take charge of the factory there, owned by a company.

Only twenty-one years old, Alfred is regarded as one of the best makers of this section and is the holder of first class cheesemaker's papers. He is a graduate of the Eastern Ontario Dairy School and has considerable practical experience to his credit.

A brother Ralph, also connected with the industry, is an employee of a local creamery company.

SUGGESTIONS FOR FLOOD CONTROL

Mayor Hill Receives Many Letters Advising Best Method to End Trouble

The city hall has become a clearing house for ideas. Ideas mostly concerned with the matter of flood control and future prevention. It was pointed out by the city's chief magistrate this morning.

Hardly a mail during the past week or so but is arriving at the executive office that does not contain one or two letters from local and outside residents setting forth in more or less lucid detail some new idea which will guarantee Belleville future indemnity against the swirling waters and ice pakes of the overflowing Moira.

"Build them" is the theme of one letter.

"Put the bridges up higher" recommends another writer.

"Make sure the channels are kept open when floods are threatening" advises another.

"Use thermite.... Keep the ice broken up by blasting"..... Build the Esplanade.... "Construct high walls of concrete at the lower end of the city to keep the water in"....

From engineers here and in other cities; from housewives and laborers, bricklayers and plasterers; from school teachers to master minds, all have their own peculiar pet idea to end floods and guarantee the future peace of local residents, and all mostly all have written the office urging that their idea be put into effect.

"If we could use all these suggestions at once," sighed the Mayor "then we might end the trouble."

Find Piece of Metal In Heart of Babe

Chicago, Mar. 27 (AP)—A clue to the nature of the fatal pieces of metal found in the heart of a newborn infant was advanced today.

Dr. Alexander Ameringer, who gratified the mystifying case in the Chicago Medical Examiner's Association suggested it may have been a concentrate device.

The writer related how two physicians conducted a post mortem on an English girl who "appeared normal in every way but died suddenly some hours after birth." Dissecting the heart, they found a piece of metal "resembling brass or gilded iron" and "looking something like the claw setting of a toy jewel ring."

Will Ask for Donation of Land for Unemployed

At the regular committee meeting of the city council held last evening a resolution that residents of the city be asked to donate all land available for the purpose of growing garden truck for unemployment, was unanimously passed. This marks the first step of council to secure land for the planting of vacant garden land for unemployed of the city, by which they may grow their own produce for the winter months. Owners of any large tracts of land which may be in or adjacent to the city are particularly asked to contribute.

Selling Game Fish Brings Heavy Fines In Police Court

"It's a fine kettle of fish, when a person pays for his food before he eats it and then has to pay afterwards as well," bewailed Alderman Barnabas, local billiard hall proprietor, after being fined ten dollars for purchasing game fish. As a sequel to this charge, Donald Cainard, milford, fish peddler, who sold Barnabas the game fish, namely large mouth green bass, found himself faced with a fine of $20.00 for selling the fish in the first place. Both fines were paid by Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., who presided at today's local police court.

In commenting on the case Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., said: "It may seem an injustice to fine a person for the purchase of game fish but that is the law and there have been altogether too many cases of the sale of game fish in these parts. A person may plead ignorance of the purchase of game but it is not a valid excuse. The purchaser should examine the fish or assist actively in determining what kind of fish he is buying." Crown Attorney Donnan further intimated that a commercial dive would be instituted if the illegal game fish was being organized under Game and Fishery Inspector Hall.

Magistrate Butler was quite firm in his decision that the fines should be imposed. "There may have been some excuse for Barnabas, as he is supposed to be an experienced fisherman and knew what he was selling game fish," stated the Worship, "but he supplied a $20.00 fine. At the request of the Crown Attorney, however, the fine was set at $10.00. "If the newspapers would assist us in raising this information it would be appreciated. It is against the law and a serious offence to buy or sell game fish," concluded Mr. Donnan as he directed his last statement towards the press gallery.

Railroads May Abandon Unprofitable Lines

That such well known railway lines in Eastern Ontario as C.P.R. between Glen Tay and Shannonville a distance of 19 miles; the C.N.R. between Smith's Falls and Tarbert, 15 miles; the C.N.R. between Cobourg and Pemboke, 78 miles; the C.N.R. between Federal and Bancroft Falls 194 miles; and the C.P.R. from Ottawa West to Carleton Place (26 miles), have been before the joint technical committee of the two systems with a view to prospective abandonment and be closed in the annual report of the C.N.R., in all probability, these abandonments was recommended, although due to lack of sufficient economies to warrant keeping in use.

LARGER MEASURE OF GOV'T CONTROL IN RAILWAY BILL

Board of Directors Will Be Seven in Number Instead of 17

Ottawa, March 27 (CP)—After three years of operation under a trusteeship of three trustees the Canadian National Railways will this year return to the former method of administration under a board of directors and a larger measure of government control.

The government's bill to accomplish this object was introduced in the House of Commons yesterday and stands for second reading. The directors will be seven in number in contrast to 17 prior to establishment of the present board of trustees. The chief officer will be the president who may or may not be chairman of the board.

Two days of hectic controversy over an order-in-council passed last October ended with introduction of a bill to authorize payments to the Wheat Board to make possible payments to pool farmers on account of the 1936 crop.

In the end Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, secured Conservative Leader Bennett to withdraw an improper motive or improper methods to the former Conservative Government but was critical of the method by which the order-in-council had been brought into being.

A bill to authorize assistance to Saskatchewan farmers in seed grain purchases this spring was introduced. The proposal is that the Dominion Government join the Province in guaranteeing loans obtained by the Municipalities for purchasing seed for farmers in need. A limit of $4,000,000 is set on the amount of the guarantee.

Greater Control by DBE

A number of changes are provided in the Railway Bill to give the government a greater control over its system. The government will select the directors and name the chairman. The president, who will be the chief executive officer of the railways while chosen by the directors must be approved by the government.

A new clause has been inserted in the bill to require the approval of the government before any by-law for the approval of shareholders of a company is required. This was discussed with in the case of the management under the trustees.

The clause reads: "Whenever under the provisions of the Railway Act or any other statute or law the approval, sanction or confirmation by shareholders is required with respect to any company to which the next preceding section applies (the companies which merged up the C.N.R. System) such approval, sanction or confirmation may be given by the government in council."

A section of the present Act which has been left out of the new bill reads: "No trustee shall be removed from office nor suffer any reduction in salary during the term for which he is appointed unless for assigned cause on address of the Senate and House of Commons."

Chairman May Be President

Under the bill the chairman may also be the president or some other person outside the board of directors may be chosen. Under the existing Act, President S. J. Hungerford is not a member of the board of trustees. The present trustees are C. P. Fullerton (chairman), F. K. Morrow and E. Renaud Labelle.

Previous to the Act of 1932 the chairman was under the control of a board of directors of 17 which included the president. While the appointment will be made until the new bill has become law there have been frequent forecasts that Mr. Hungerford would be both president and chairman.

Three of the new directors will be named for three years. Two will serve for two years each, the remaining two for one year. Later appointments will be made for three years.

The salaries of the directors will be fixed by the government and provision is made the chairman will give all his time to performance of his duties.

Provisions for independent audits and reports to Parliament are similar to those of the present bill.

Air Liner Crashes and Five Lives are Lost

Lyndhurst, Hampshire, March 27 (CP Cable)—A project indirectly connected with the newly-launched drive to co-ordinate the defence resources of the United Kingdom took five lives when an airliner crashed here last night.

The machine was engaged in army cooperation work and was giving searchlight units practice in locating aircraft during night flying. The disaster was believed due to static disturbances. Other planes operating in the vicinity reported severe atmospherics.

The victims were Captain Frank Joseph Birmingham of Admiral House, Kings Road, Sheerness, the pilot; his brother, Brendon Birmingham of Gleneagles Road, Streatham, London; Robert Frederick Burgess of Croydon; Miss Daisy Marsh of Penshurst Road, West Croydon; and Norman Cyril Bunton of Norwood Road, London.

The crash occurred in the forest at Stony Cross, about three-quarters of a mile from the main road to Minstead. Police and ambulance attendants trudged almost knee deep through the snow. Undergrowth was with stretchers and lanterns to reach the wreck, which did not catch fire.

HOUSING PROBLEM TO BE DISCUSSED

Chamber Told of Advantages of The Dominion Housing Act

The housing situation in Belleville and the necessity of further dredging of the local harbor received consideration at the regular weekly meeting of the directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce on Thursday.

It was stated that boats carrying a full cargo of coal are unable to enter the harbor and that as a consequence complete quantities cannot be delivered in one shipment, thus creating greater expense and much inconvenience. Considerable dredging has been done in the harbor in past years and it is said that the trouble cannot be remedied unless blasting is resorted to. The directors were of the opinion that some action should be taken in an endeavor to have the difficulty removed and the matter was left in the care of the secretary-manager, Mr. J. O. Herity, who will take up the question with the proper authorities and report at a later meeting.

The dredging or blasting of a channel on the west side of Victoria Park as a means of preventing further floods here was discussed also and it was decided that the matter should be brought to the attention of the Federal authorities along with the matter of further dredging of the harbor.

That there is room for much improvement in the housing situation in Belleville was the opinion of all the directors. Mr. Fred E. Hamilton of the Houston Company, Limited, was a guest at the meeting and in acknowledging the welcome extended to him by the president, Mr. K. P. Bernstein, he referred to the inadequate supply of modern, medium-priced houses available for rent in Belleville. There are, he said, numerous persons in the city who would like to build but they are unable to finance the full cost at the present time.

Must Erect Number

Assistance, however, Mr. Houston pointed out, may be had by taking advantage of the Dominion Housing Act of 1935, whereby insurance companies may make mortgage loans up to 80 per cent. of cost or appraised value (whichever is the lesser) at a low rate of interest for a period of ten years. Of course, it would be necessary that a sufficient number of houses should be erected to consecute the scheme to plan in order to make it worth while for an insurance company to take on the business here. The houses would have to be of a fair valuation and erected in suitable localities. The cities of Peterboro and Kingston have houses being erected under this plan and the arrangement is reported to be working out satisfactorily. The result of the discussion was that full information will be obtained regarding the scheme and further consideration given the matter at a later meeting.

The Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association will hold a convention here on December 2nd and 3rd next, along with which there will be an extensive cheese exhibition. This convention will be made very welcome in the city and the directors appointed Mr. W. H. Morton to co-operate with the officers of the association in making arrangements for their meeting and exhibition in this city.

The annual meeting and dinner of the Chamber, which will take the form of an open forum meeting, will be held this Friday evening at 6.30 o'clock at the Queen's Hotel.

In attendance at the meeting in addition to the president, Mr. F. Bernstein, were Messrs. H. E. Fairfield, W. J. Springer, A. B. Boyce, H. M. Morton, John McIntosh, Leo B. Biggs and secretary-manager, J. O. Herity.

RECLAMATION IN FLOODED AREAS NOW BEING MADE

Practically Last Vestiges of Worst Flood in History Gone

FIXING HOUSES

Furniture in Flooded Section of City Nearly All Ruined

Mattresses and rugs and carpets hanging on the fences. Furniture piled in desolate heaps in muddy yards. Automobiles with doors open and soggy cushions reeling on top. Window curtains and portieres and bed linen and dripping clothing waving gently from overburdened clothes lines. Soft lawns still mud covered and dotted littered. And over all hangs the sweet scent of dissolving chloride of lime sprinkled so freely.

Belleville's flood area—that area bounded on the west by Mary Street and beyond, by Front Street on the east, by the railway embankment on the south and Catherine Street on the north, with Colborne, Cedar, Lane, Water, Coleman and other streets in between covered with water from two to five feet deep, from which the gushing waters receded only a week ago—has not yet returned to normal.

Not yet have the majority of those hapless householders whose misfortunes stood in the path of the grinding ice floes and swirling waters, returned to their homes although a quick drying sun is fast removing the last soggy traces of the watery disaster.

But along those streets, where homes were deserted for days, while pounding debris bumped at swollen doors and knocked in window panes, swirled to the water line, hammers are again ringing, brooms and mops and scrubbing brushes are being wielded and the greasy scum of the ebb and flow of flood waters is being removed through the use of elbow grease and sanitizer.

Forced to Upstairs

"Look at this," invited Mr. Harry Whitten, resident of 36 Colborne Street who, when the first rush of waters came down from the north, forced inundating "The Plate", was forced to crawl through an upstairs window into a boat, and then rescue his wife, hastily awakened. His truck, left in the driveway of his home was covered to the cab roof. They have just returned, the work of repairing to be commenced.

Silently he points to the jumbled mass of wreckage in the living room and kitchen. A new radio, mechanism ruined, its once satin-mahogany cabinet warped and distended beyond repair. A sewing machine, whose case has parted and split. Reading lamps and furniture ruined.

"Doesn't look as if we'll ever be able to catch up again," they sigh as both look into the cesspool of an inch deposit of silt from the heatless rooms.

In another home nearby, newly-laid hardwood floors warped in the design of a roller coaster track. A piano split and swelled, its mute keys pointing at dizzy angles. Its once-rich tones are mud-filled. And yet another home, where a corner window has been floated from its position, spilling its precious contents to the hungry water. A bible, treasured heirloom of the family, submerged and ruined.

Enough to Make One Cry

"I could cry when I think of all the beautiful things I have had spoiled," relates another mother pointing to a trunk, whose lid is open to the sun and whose contents of finery lay in a stained, wet mass. "They used to get a bit quickly (by boat) we didn't have time to save anything." A baby buggy, with leather upholstering cracked and split on another corner of the verandah tells the mute story.

Garage doors still swing crazily on their warped hinges. Cars are missing altogether on other streets. Veranda floors, warped and split by pounding ice cakes are still missing. And outbuildings swept tumbling by the force of water. Not a little unclaimed in vacant lots. Chickenly flotsam ranges over the still damp lots in the south end of the ward, picking tid bits from the filth left behind from flood-time residences where a week ago flood carpents swirled.

Along West Bridge Street last vestiges of the flood, which locked up floors of residences and stores, suspended business for a week and hundreds of floor cans and counters over with its waters, have about disappeared. New stock has replaced the dirty old; stores are being untimely open, customers are being served again.

"There will be plenty of work to do in this flood area" commented one well-known local builder after a tentative survey of the ward. "Hardly a house which stood directly in the path of the flood that doesn't need a little carpenter work somewhere, or hasn't been shifted and strained on its foundations.

"Plenty of money in the hands and families to care for yet," states Alderman Laurie Lewis, chairman of the Welfare Committee. "And plenty of cost, too, for care and drying sun, warmer breezes and milder weather has done much to relieve conditions that had already become almost unbearable for a good many of its residents whose homes were flooded.

"And the Relief Fund will certainly be of great help."

Belleville's flood area has not yet returned to normal, but a quick watery trials have not yet ended.

WAR DOG IS DEAD

Rags, 20 year old Scotch terrier, hero of the Great War, is dead.

Members of the First Division at Fort Hamilton have laid plans to bury the heroic one-eyed dog and erect a monument in his memory.

The foundation of the fund to erect a memorial has been started with $50.11 representing royalties donated by Jack Rohan, following the publication of the story "Rags—The Story of a Dog Who Went to War". Additional money will be raised.

Those who might be shocked at the rearing of a memorial to a dog have merely to be reminded that another war dog, Calculator, was some years ago honored with a memorial which is five feet tall, three feet wide and two feet thick. Calculator was crippled in one leg. A soldier graphically remarked that Calculator in walking had to put down three and carry one.

Rags was a gutter pup of Paris who was almost battered to pieces in the war and yet lived for years at the American fort where he made hundreds of friends over almost a decade.

TOYS OF WAR

When children of peaceful lands play with toy soldiers it does not seem so suggestive as when the children of warring countries play with these toys. It is natural for the children of Italians to spend their time with toys as the reflection of the struggle in Ethiopia must cast a reflection upon the mood of that land whose young boys, uncles and fathers are fighting in the land of hardships.

But the tragic part is that the dictatorship encourages the young in the warlike ideas. African-helmeted Black Shirts of five and six years are seen on the Roman streets. Daggers, bombers' airplanes, tanks, machine guns, anti-aircraft artillery pieces all are to be found among these African toys for little Italians. The toymakers have a thorough grip of their business as they supply not ordinary toys but special types as half-slave tribesmen, with spears and slaves detailed in almost every conceivable position of warlike action, fighters in various stages of falling wounded and half-naked negroes with wrists chained to ankles, Ethiopians with severed limbs, black shirts using rifles as clubs.

This is realism in toyland. There is but one thought—encourage the child to be a soldier.

Boys in other lands play with tin soldiers and war mechanism types but there is plenty of romance in their warlike fervor in a kitchen or bedroom or living room, vastly different from the spirit of the poor little Italian boys who are desperately sincere.

For the sake of the little Italians may it be hoped that the war will not last until they become youths and men. May they never see what their leaders are trying to inflame them to see war.

EYE FOR THE HEAVENS

On its way across the United States rides slowly the telescope mirror or eye which is to be a portion of the greatest instrument ever devised by man for revealing the majesty and mystery and facts of the heavens.

According to Christian Sience Monitor the crystal will be conveyed by stages at night from the Corning Glass Works to Pasadena, California.

The greatest care must be taken of this treasure of human ingenuity. The glass and crate weigh 36 tons. The crating is supported at each end by a battery of twelve rubber plates, depressed about one half inch by the weights. A layer of close-grained oak has been placed over the rubber. The centre of gravity of this unusual load is six feet two and a half inches from the roadbed, which is safe, as the gravity centre for heavy locomotives is six feet five inches.

Every problem has been studied in the delivery of this majestic 200-inch mirror. Even the velocity of the wind which at times reaches a rate of 71 miles an hour has been solved by engineers.

No misadventure can be allowed as this wealth of glass goes to its new home.

TO A BIRD

O melancholy bird, a winter's day
Thou standest by the margin of the pool,
And, taught by God, dost thy whole being school
To patience, while all evil can allay,
God has appointed thee the fish thy prey,
And given thyself a lesson to the fool
Unthrifty, to submit to moral rule,
And in his unthinking course by thee to weigh.
There need not schools nor the professor's chair,
Though these be good, true wisdom to impart:
He who has not enough for these to spare,
Of time or gold, may yet amend his heart,
And teach his soul by brooks and rivers fair—
Nature is always wise in every part.

ANCIENTS BUILT A TOWER OF BABEL TO REACH THE SKIES in an endeavor to discover what was behind the stars, and had their plans frustrated by a visitation of a "confusion of tongues", so that no man understood the other—so tradition says—and it is presumed that long that event came the division of races and languages.

Towers of babel were built in New York and other cities, skyscrapers as public lieity and other purposes, including the possibility of saving vast sums in ground values by purloining corner lots in the air. Some of these great structures are not paying the investment, except as profit may be written into publicity, and there is a distinct tread away from the erection of tall buildings. New York city, being an island building activities must be confined to a restricted area and the desirable land for business purposes is decidedly limited, hence the skyscraper came which culminated in the Empire State building, one of the tallest in the world, which will always be associated with the name of Al Smith, "The Happy Warrior", and unsuccessful candidate for the Presidency while Hoover sat on the throne.

Al was one of the chief promoters of this building and his heart must have swelled with pride when he looked back upon his humble bringing up in the slums of the East Side of lower New York, his newsboy days on the Sidewalks of New York, and his rapid climb through ward politics and Tammany to wealth and affluence and the Governorship of New York State, and the democratic nomination for President of the United States.

However, returning to skyscrapers, the head of a construction firm which specialized in tall buildings, and erected many in the United States, states that he is convinced the end has come to competition in tall buildings—that the idea is unfeasible—that there are not enough tenants to make further tall buildings a paying investment, and that to continue the practise would be to dump a load of humans from the buildings into the already swollen traffic of the streets and paralyze pedestrian and other traffic completely. Hence in his opinion the day (and night) of the skyscraper has ended.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 27th., 1916.

The mild weather during the past few days has had the effect of breaking up the ice in the Moira River. The ice is moving in a manner that is no way causing trouble.

James Cousins passed away at an early hour this morning. He was born at Suffolk, England, in the year 1836, being thus in his 80th. year. He came to Belleville in the year 1872 and had resided here since that time, being much respected by all who knew him.

The boys are now playing marbles and older residents stop occasionally to watch and recall the days of their youth.

A year ago the river was open on the safety point. Today L. W. Yeomans and Co.'s man drove a horse drawing a sleigh loaded with coal oil which weighed a ton and a half, down the centre of the river from the rear of their premises, and so by the ice to Trenton. Before starting on the trip the ice was tested and found to be as firm and solid as in midwinter.

BOOTBLACK VISITS BROKER WITH $500

Brokerage Opinion Fears 'Easy Money' Public Will Rush in

(By Thomas R. Flanagan)
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, March 27.—(AP)—The bears are tripping back to Wall Street to gamble with the bulls and beam in a way that has some of the more thoughtful section of brokerage opinion frankly disturbed.

Many veterans of the security business hold the great market boom of the late '20's never completely lost touch with business realities until the "public" stepped in and gave stocks a whirl.

Brokers are careful to point out the past years rise in share prices appears to have had an "easy money" foundation with most of the buying coming from institutions and large investors.

Their fear is that less experienced hands may come in in such numbers as to dominate the situation. An overdose of public optimism might easily bring such a result and a repetition of the "late unpleasantness" of 1929, some brokers think.

Asked what types of traders are taking the stocks, one well known brokerage house, one well known broker told of a bootblack who turned up with $500.

DOUBLE ZEPP TOUR MARRED

Election Propaganda is Interrupted as Zepp Stabilizer Damaged

Friedrichshafen, Germany, March 27.—(AP)—An accident marred the start of a spectacular proposed double air tour, begun Thursday morning by Germany's dirigibles as propaganda for next Sunday's Reichstag election in the Rhineland crisis.

A sudden descending air current struck the great new Zeppelin, the LZ-129, carrying its new name of Hindenburg, on the first time, as it was being taken out of its hangar. The current forced the vertical stabilizer to the ground, damaging it severely.

Capt. Ernst A. Lehmann, nevertheless, gave the signal to cast off ropes and the dirigible sailed after Germany's late President Paul von Hindenburg. The giant airship cruised over Lake Constance for two hours while the Graf Zeppelin headed for Stuttgart.

But my dear, Eggie Jones may be a bestealer for anything we know to the contrary, pop said, and ma said, Well they're be very certain they are too glad of an excuse to make an exspoilion. And I'm sure if you feared he was a bestealer you wouldn't call him up any more than a hot potato, she said.

Well, it's hardly fair to old Eggie to judge him by old Carter, pop said, and ma said, O, all right. Have your own way, but mark it will cry be fair if I get in touch with Fanny be Eggie.

Never heard of her, pop said, and ma said, It's quite natural you haven't seen you have much other interests and associations, but I run into her other yesterday the other afternoon. She said me and you visiting next Friday week, for a week. I never liked her much in our young days, but I realize now that I was very unfair, because after all bowgirls is only girls, and had been very nice to me at one pointy nose and recede chin and practically no ears. It's no harm to pass arrows, judgment on fore and the same holds true now, and she's grown up, even if she seems to of developed a habit of wearing seconds on the lawks. I'm sure she'd be delighted at a chance to attend her play for a few more days, ma said.

I or I, pop said, perish the thawt, perish the thawter, perish the Eggie Jones, pop said, and ma said, Well, if you are, she has.

JACK OAKIE TO GROW MUSTACHE

Says it Will Better Please His Bride of a Few Days

New York March 27—(AP)—Jack Oakie, happy-go-lucky movie comedian, arrived yesterday in New York, today and settled down to the job of growing a mustache, the better to please his bride, the former Venita Varden of the Follies.

An Oakie romance, he estimated as he and Mrs. Oakie stepped off the Twentieth Century Limited from Chicago, ordinarily is not long in production.

"Only about three days with the aid of a pencil," he grinned. "The films are better with a mustache."

He grew one for a recent picture, he explained. "They thought I looked too young—that was before I would be mistaken for Shirley Temple or anymore."

He and Mrs. Oakie, a stage-screen brunette, were married Sunday night at Yuma, Ariz.

Annual Meeting of W. M. S. Of Belleville Presbyterial

(Mrs. F. D. McAndelle, Press Secretary)

On Thursday the concluding business sessions of the tenth annual meeting at Tabernacle Church of the Belleville Presbyterial, Women's Missionary Society of United Church were devoted to reports, resolutions and election of officers.

The morning service was conducted by Mrs. Albert Lewis of Camden East and Mrs. Jas. Wright of Sydenham, president of Addel Auxiliary of Strathcona which has attained the high honour of having every woman in the church a member of the W.M.S. Auxiliary and the latter left three words to ponder over Concentration, Consecration and Co-operation. The Worship Service was based on "Love" and Mrs. Albert Lewis gave a brief talk on this theme and said "If we have the Love of God in our hearts, we can achieve success". Mrs. Bruce Finlay favoured with a vocal solo "Walk of Gold", accompanied by Miss Florence Deeth.

Dr. Florence Murray delighted the ladies with another address and opened with a pathetic story of an unloved mother who was taken to the Mission School and believed for three months that the Western missionary was a God.

Dr. Murray brought a grateful message from the Korean women thanking the Canadians for all the assistance that has been given them. The women in Korea are organized much the same as we are here with local auxiliaries.

The speaker gave several intimate pictures of the devotion of the Korean women to the missionary cause and these women are to be commended for their diligence.

Medical Work

Dr. Murray gave a brief glimpse of her hospital work since 1924 and told of an extra building which has been added. The hospitals patients with always a waiting list. Some of the problems of the medical work in Korea and of a new hospital is badly needed and she asked all organizations to help in their prayers a politico that in some way God will send a way to meet this emergency and that $8,- 000 will be forthcoming immediately to build a new wing. Even though at some places the medical work has had to be entirely discontinued still God has greatly blessed the missionary work in Korea. The delegates will not soon forget the educational and enlightening addresses given by Dr. Murray.

One resolution regarding Beer and wine was read and Mrs. Arthur Rawson of Napanee, favored with a vocal solo "The Lord is My Shepherd".

85 Auxiliaries

The auxiliaries have a membership of 1,754 annual members and 238 Life, and the evening auxiliaries have a membership of 109.

Among the outstanding programs was a Missionary Monthly meeting, where talk was given on the magazine, another on short stories, also a contest and playette taken from the Monthly. Another auxiliary had at their Easter meeting a message on Spring Flowers, comparing every department of the W.M.S. with some flower. Sixty-five auxiliaries were represented at World Day of Prayer services.

TALK PEACE WHILE PATROLS CLASH—In Tokio, Keki Hirota, new premier, stated that Russo-Japanese war is not a long as he was premier. In Moscow, Premier Molotov, friend of Hirota when the latter was Ambassador in Moscow, expressed the belief that relations between the two nations were improving. But as they spoke, in two sectors along the Manchukuo-Siberia border, Japanese and Soviet troops were engaged in another serious clash, the latest report to the long list. Moscow has sent new protests to Japan alleging that Japanese-Manchukuoan troops crossed the border and attacked a Soviet outpost. From the dispatches it would seem that Japan and the world in conflicts. Map shows the area along which border "incidents" are becoming frequent.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"Calling Zero"

Cagney and O'Brien Score Big Hit.

"Calling Zero", the Cosmopolitan production which was featured in the first time here at the Capitol Theatre yesterday as a First National release, is one of the most thrilling and exciting films that romance screened.

Featuring that inimitable team, James Cagney and Pat O'Brien, introduces a charming new leading lady in Jean Muir. Travis and offers an exceptionally large all star cast in support.

The picture is based on the screen play by Seton I. Miller, by Lieut. Commander Frank Wead, and is by certainly the last word in production. On the stage the scenes were necessarily limited, and many of the thrilling episodes therein were left to the imagination.

The screen play, which was also written by Commander Wead, adds to picture many more thrills with the actual flight, proving about in tops so dense there was no visibility whatever.

There is every sort of a thrill in the picture, as well as plenty of laughs and romance.

In a picture dealing with the commercial mail and passenger service of the air, the pilot is very important character. And in the very day events in the lives of the flyers are recorded angles is plenty of humour. No one could keep the irrepressible Cagney from injecting laughs in such situations.

Cagney, O'Brien and Stuart Erwin have the roles or three flying buddies who have turned to commercial aviation. Cagney is the devil-may-care, stubborn type of flyer, O'Brien the trio, with O'Brien as the superintendent of the flyers and Erwin as a somewhat slender pilot than Cagney.

Jimmy is also given to making love to every pretty girl he sees, which lands him in plenty of trouble. He probably has given the best performance of his career as the chairwarmer. He is not entirely frivolous, however, for he does on the occasion become a heroic deed by taking the place of his friend in the air in a flight he knows will end in death. Jimmy manages to mix his quips, humor with thrilling action in a way that either keeps one laughing or holding the breath.

Pat O'Brien is excellent as the superintendent of the flyers, sympathetic, but he lends no inconsiderable humor to the comedy situations. Erwin does a commendable piece of work as the pretty air hostess who is the object of the pilot and is fascinated by another.

Miss Muir is the charming new president and general manager of the Chicago White Star, she was given a trial in "Remember" with Ray Francis, where her work was so commendable that she was given the feminine leading role in her second film.

Stuart Erwin does a good job as the third of the war buddies who does harrum headwork as the big air boss. Henry Wadsworth is seen to

Scoring Splurge of Leafs In Second Frame Wins Round For Toronto Against Bruins

COACHER A STAR

Shore Drives to Desperation Draws a Misconduct Penalty

By ELMER DUDMAGE

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, March 27.—(CP)—Victim of the once-famous temper, that he seemed to have controlled as last, Eddie Shore let his Boston Bruins to the National Hockey League sidelines today and left Toronto Maple Leafs to carry on in the Stanley Cup wars. There was an element of tragedy in Eddie's departure from the scene.

He constituted Reason No. 1 why the Leafs overpowered the Bruins here last night 8-3 before a hysterical crowd of 14,000 and qualified to play New York Americans in the Stanley Cup semi-finals. The round score was 8-6. It didn't seem possible, but hockey's greatest defenseman, went off the deep end.

No longer the boisterous, two-fisted bouncer of his glamorous days, when he roared down the alleys, always with a chip on each shoulder, Shore went to work last night as the master guard, he commands control of Britain ice strategy. He had powered the drive that gave Boston a 3-0 win over Leafs in the first game of the total-goals series Tuesday night, and now he was ready to hold off the Leafs.

Yet the great man became indignant as the Leafs piled on him, seeking to punctuate the celebrated Thompson-Shore-Siebert barricade. The 3-0 advantage was increased to four goals in the first period, leaving Boston with a lead, that no one in the world believed could be overcome. But the Shore temper was being tried.

Attackers were bumping the great man around, plunging into him high-sticking him, throwing the odd crosscheck. He remained a superb leader for one period and then he made the first two great mistakes. His first became hopelessly accused. When Eddie tripped Jack Shill near the Boston goal he received a minor penalty.

Bruins Disorganized

Held in check for four consecutive periods by Shore and his followers, the Leafs thundered down on the Bruins and found them extremely vulnerable. Without Shore, the brown warriors were disorganized. They had no leader, little spirit.

While Shore was serving a two-minute sentence, King Clancy and Charlie Conacher found the range and made sole comeback in N.H.L. playoff history. Leading 4-2, a crowd that had lost hope regarded its vocal authority and Maple Leaf Gardens rocked with noise.

When Shore returned in his pose he thought in vain to regain his shoulder, posted in front of the Bruin goal, stabbed the rebound of a shot, made the return and Toronto scores 6-3. Eddie Shore's temper came loose. He was ejected after he wore Odie Cleghorn to assure the official, Mickey Horrigan, that they ally sustained in the goal crease.

It was apparent to most observers that Eddie's temper had left him apart, but Cleghorn allowed the game Suddenly Shore became a raging madman of old. He stamped and gyrated and used strong language. And while the crowd howled, Eddie left his second major mistake. He lifted the puck at the net, it struck the referee on the back. It earned him a 10-minute misconduct penalty.

Machine Torn Apart

Head bowed, the great man scarcely dared to view the wreckage his hockey massacre that caused. When Percy Galbraith and Bill Cowley joined him in a few minutes for minor sentences, he must have known the trampled Leafs were ready to tear apart his structure. the hockey machine that Shore and Shore can hold together.

The Leafs left this thoroughly Conacher whipped in a terrific shot to tie the score at 4-4 on the round.

Toronto's Maple Leafs shaded Boston's Thompson Hitle more than a minute later (7-56), and Cowley came back, but the Leafs hadn't finished. Busy Bill took a pass from Bill Thoms and scored another.

Shore played nearly all the third period, which started with Boston trailing by a goal. Cowley having scored in the last minute of the second. But Conacher broke away from a Bruin attack and scored his third goal and Roll tallied to a breakaway after Conner Wetland had scored the third Boston goal.

TOPS N.H.L. SCORERS — Dave Schriner, quiet, efficient left wing ace of New York Americans, elected the National Hockey League schedule leading the parade of scorers. Schriner lashed in 22 goals and handed his mates 26 assists for a point total of 48, five more than Paul Thompson and Marty Barry, tied for second place. It was Schriner's second year in the majors.

"Given Works" Says Shore of The Refereeing

(By A. E. Fulford)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 27.—(CP)—With no regard at all for what it may cost him in larger salaries this season, Manager Conny Smythe showered his Toronto Maple Leafs with praise today for their fighting spirit of Boston Bruins.

Leafs gathered at noon to talk over last night's battle and start a campaign against New York Americans in the Stanley Cup semi-finals starting here Saturday. They will not practice before the Americ oniers.

Smythe had something good to say of all his players and didn't forget Odie Cleghorn and Billy Bell the referee He had told Art Ross, Bruin manager, last night that he guessed "a couple of hours" referees did us more good than they did you."

Although the breaks, that gave them their chance to win came from decisions and officials from executives and players of the Leafs were outspoken in their criticism of them. "I hope I never see those men in another game in Toronto," Mr. Lear officials remarked.

While they would not admit the game considering that two of their goals should not have been allowed, Leafs agreed with Bruins the officiating was bad. They held, however, that Toronto players were treated worse than their Bruins.

"Given Works"

Neither Ross nor Frank Patrick, Bruin coach, would comment on the officials' work but Boston players left no doubt of what they thought of the way the game was handled.

In their dressing room after the game they shouted to each other that they had been "given the works". Babe Siebert told his team mates it was "highway robbery" and they agreed with him loudly.

Eddie Shore Bruin powerhouse, who was serving penalties when Leaf goals were scored, sat in a corner with his head bowed. He seemed hardly able to believe that the bad breaks the Bruins had built up in Boston was gone.

He scrutinized he had used strong language to Cleghorn in protesting the disallowing of a goal in the second period and had fired the puck at Cleghorn's back—the offence for which he was given a misconduct penalty.

Other Bruins blamed the defeat partly on goalie Tiny Thompson's condition. He is suffering from a bruised hip, which hampered his movements in goal. Otherwise Leafs would never have received eight goals on him, they claimed, even with Shore off the ice.

KIMBERLEY TEAM LOOKS LIKE BEST SQUAD IN WEST

Win First Game Over Fort William For West Title

WINNIPEG WINS

Junior Squad Appears Team to Beat For Silver-ware

(By The Canadian Press)

British Columbia hockey fans offered toast today to Kimberley Dynamiters and added a title for one more Kimberley victory. If they get that one, they promise to be satisfied for a while.

One more victory will allow them to be satisfied until the final series against the Eastern Canada champions is started for the Allan Cup, the Dominion's highest award in an amateur team.

Dynamiters, with victories over Saskatchewan and Alberta champions to their credit, blasted out a 5-5 triumph over Fort William Wanderers last night at Calgary in the final game of the best-of-three Western Canada final.

Action on the junior and senior front was confined to the West. Elmwood Maple Leafs scored by 8-4 over Fort William Kazan in the first game of the junior semi-final. The winner of that series goes against Saskatoon Wesleys for the West's place in the Memorial Cup final.

Took Hard Way

Kimberley came through the hard way. They spotted the Manitoba athlete two goals in the first period and didn't step fighting until they sent the game into overtime, tied at 4-4.

Then, maintaining pressure all the way, they burst through a tiring Fort William defence and Mackie bagged a pair of goals, Wanderers got one back before the extra period ended but couldn't get in equalizer.

Elmwood were on top of the Kazan from the start. They had the lead 3-1 at the end of the first period and built on that to make it 5-3 by the end of the second.

Maple Leafs take the game advantage into the next clash in Winnipeg Saturday night. Kazan Thunder Bay and district athletes are not expected to do much against the Manitoba team in the Manitoba championship.

In senior hockey tonight, Sudbury Falcons battle Montreal Royals in the opening game of their best-of-three series for the Allan Cup against the Brockville Magedons. All in the Eastern senior final.

Falcons have a game lead, won in Montreal Wednesday night with a 2-1 victory. The Northern Ontario champions had Montreal's veteran Joe Ironsides in goal, are confident of eliminating the Quebec representatives in two straight.

Too Much Smith Is Opinion of Lionel Conacher

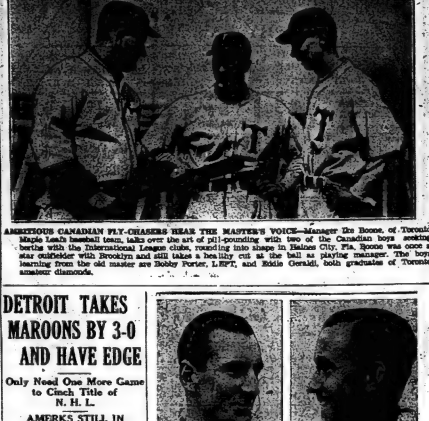
By ROBERT CLARKE

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal, March 27.—(CP)— It looks as though it's time for Lionel time to see Lionel Conacher, clad in the hockey uniform, sitting on a chair, watching crucial games from the sidelines.

Syd Howe and Johnny Sorrell swept from their blueline. Howe took the puck at the Maroon defence, faked a dazzled limb lightning between Cy Wentworth and Elzer Sparrow and lifted a shot shot over Lorne Chabot as the Maroon goalie slid out to meet him. The puck sailed into the top bar.

Howe's worked a scoring gem as he broke clear of a five-man Maroon attack as it desperately sought the equalizer.



No Maroon could get back fast enough that time. Howe put to cover the angles as Lewis faked a shot. He suddenly pivoted completely around with the puck nestling in the crook of his stick. The rapid movement caught Chabot out of position and the left winger neatly lifted the puck home.

Montreal never let up but they were trapped again with but 40 seconds to go. Marty Barry got away fast with Lewis and Aurie. Lewis passed to Barry, who was chased into the corner but managed to lay his pass out on Aurie's stick. The right winger made a cross shot, that caught the far corner of the net.

American Always Safe

Though they fought every minute of the game and finished with a scoring burst that almost sent a crowd of 10,000 into hysterics, Black Hawks were never in danger of two goals down on the round to Americans.

A two-goal assault in the second period after the New Yorkers had outscored them 2-1 in the first session, left them trailing Dutton's team by two goals and their final pair of tallies late in the third served only to offset a couple the New Yorkers had scored earlier in the period

AMBITIOUS CANADIAN FLY-CHASERS HEAR THE MASTER'S VOICE—Manager Ira Boone, of Toronto Maple Leafs baseball team, talks over the art of pil-pounding with two of the Canadian boys seeking berths with the International League clubs, rounding into shape in Haines City, Fla. Boone was once a star outfielder with Rochester and still takes a healthy cut at the ball. The boys learning from the old master are Bobby Porter, LEFT, and Eddie Geraldi, both graduates of Toronto amateur diamonds.

AMERKS STILL IN

Beaten 5-4 by Black Hawks But Win Round By 7-5

The lightning-like switch in hockey fortunes left Bruins on the sidelines with Chicago Black Hawks who defeated New York Americans 5-4 at Chicago last night. The one goal advantage wasn't enough to wipe out Amerks' 3-0 win in New York Tuesday night, but the Chicago team qualified for the semi-finals by a round score of 7-5.

Toronto's warriors and the New Yorkers clash at Toronto Saturday night in the first of a two-game series, that will produce a finalist to meet either Montreal Maroons or Detroit Red Wings.

Last night Wings defeated Montreal Canadiens 3-0 at Detroit for second straight win the three-of-five game series for the National Hockey League championship. They renew their tattling at Detroit Sunday.

Normie Smith stood out as the hero of the Montreal struggle. His red and white cap pulled down tightly over his blood halt, the Detroit goalie reache heights he had never attained before to keep out Maroon sharpshooters in the last 11 minutes of a bitterly waged game.

Little effect of the punishing marathon contest could be seen as the teams battled strenuously through two and a half periods before the break came that sent Detroit off to a win.

Five Forwards Used

Dave Trottier, Black-skicked Hec Kilrea when the chunky Detroit centre stepped into him to stop the Maroon left winger's flight down the ice. Trottier was sent off and Jack Adams put on five forwards.

THEIR HEALTH HAS BRITISH TENNIS WORRIED—By the time Wimbledon tournament time comes around again, Englishmen will be more interested in the health of these tennis players than in the diplomatic turmoil in Europe or increasing armaments. The athletes are Fred Perry and G. P. Hughes and upon their return to health depends much of England's chances for retaining the coveted Davis Cup this year. Perry, ranking world ace, severely injured himself in losing to Wilmer Allison in the U.S. finals last year, while G. P. Hughes, standby of the British, doubles team, has been reportedly worn out by too much tennis. Both have been resting.

Earl Seibert and Mush March led the Chicago assault with two goals each and Doc Romnes got the other. Harry Oliver, Joe Jerwa, Eddie Wiseman and Dave Schriner scored for the New Yorkers.

Dutton's men played a consistently strong defensive game, backed up by the sensational goaltending of Roy Worters, who kicked out 23 shots in the first two wild periods, when Hawks attacked viciously in an attempt to do just what Leafs did an hour or so before in Toronto.

SYRACUSE STARS AGAIN BEATEN

Olympics Are The Best Team in The First Two Games

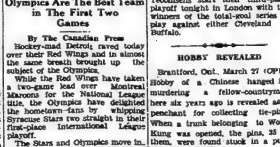
By The Canadian Press

Hockey-mad Detroit, raved today over their Red Wings and in almost the same breath brought up the subject of the Olympics.

While the Red Wings have taken a two-game lead over Montreal Maroons for the National League title, the Olympics have delighted the hometown fans by whipping Syracuse Stars two straight in their first-place International League playoff.

The Stars and Olympics move in to Syracuse for the remainder of the best-of-five series with Detroit warm favorites to win out and provide the league championship against the survivor of the Buffalo-Cleveland and Windsor-Cleveland playoffs.

Olympics scored by 1 again last night on a pair of goals by Wilf Starr. Starr, continuing his brilliant work from the first game, banged one in each of the first two periods and then helped hold Syracuse to a lone tally by Eddie Convey.



Lloyd Gross, helped by Ken Dorsett, scored the third period goal for Cleveland and the Falcons took a 2-0 lead for the second game. Niagara falls Saturday night.

Cleveland pressed for a bigger advantage throughout the game but a stubborn Bison defence didn't crack. Dorsett scored the only goal for Buffalo goal had 38 stops.

Windsor Bulldogs and London Tecumseh start their third-place playoff tonight in London with the winners of the total-goal series to play against either Cleveland or Buffalo.

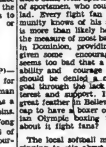
CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

It seems too bad that local boxers find it practically impossible to obtain adequate training quarters for their work. In a city the size of Belleville an amateur boxing club should flourish, but alas even the boys keenly interested in the manly art of self-defense find it almost impossible to procure training quarters. Take for instance the case of Howard "Dynamite" Wheeler, the local featherweight boxers for instance. Wheeler has been going around for assistance for over a month as he wants to enter into a period or serious training in preparation for the Olympic boxing trials in Toronto. Wheeler says he can climb under the bump at 118 pounds without sheddding a winister. When he made his remarkable showing in Toronto just a year ago and was the talk of the Queen City boxing circles, Wheeler was always forced to give away at least five or six pounds.

The Toronto scrappers at 118 pounds would have no part of the match. Wheeler is Belleville's only boxing team that will represent Ontario next summer in Germany. At least I'd work as hard as I could if only the opportunity was available for training." stated Wheeler recently.

If Wheeler is sold on the idea himself, and we know he is, isn't there some local sportsman or group of sportsmen, who could assist the lad. Every fight fan in this community knows of his ability and it is more than likely he can "take" the measure of most bantam weights in Dominion, providing he was given some encouragement.



Seems too bad that with all the ability and courage of Wheeler, should be denied a chance at his goal through lack of financial assistance and support. It would be a great feather in Belleville's sporting cap to have a boxer on the Canadian Olympic boxing team. How about it fight fans?

The local softball moguls are beginning to stir about a bit. They met recently when Charlie Tebworth and Clem Bowler as delegates attended the annual meeting of the O.A.S.A. next month. In the meantime Bowler and Tebworth will hold the annual meeting of the Belleville and District Softball Association at the Adanac Club on Monday night next. It is doubtful if Tweed and Redneyville will be back in the League this year, it being understood, that Tweed in particular will throw their lot with Madoc and Stirling in independent teams from their own district. The Adanac Club will not be represented this year and with the defeat of Tweed and Madoc softball will suffer considerably along with baseball and other outlet of door sports in Belleville.

While on the subject the baseball fans should keep Friday night open for the baseball meeting at the Y.M.C.A. There is a feeling about the meeting it's a case of success or failure, for the diamond game in Belleville and the future of the game depends solely on the interest shown at this meeting. The C.O.B.L. can function nicely without Belleville we know, but the league officials could show a little more interest towards stimulating the pastime locally and assist in some small measure the re-organization of the local clubs without much effort on their part. After all the success of the league depends on the individual success of each team so in order to elevate their league the officials might show a little more interest in Belleville fans and assist those who are earnestly trying to save the game at present.

In Kingston and Peterboro they are re-adjusting the rifle range to the garret while Oshawa and Napanee are ready and waiting to fire the initial baseball gun on May 24th. If senior baseball passes out of Belleville in 1936 it will be a long year before we see the game returned to the Ontario field in the Quinte District. Regarding the junior situation the Peterboro senior baseball club will have a team but Oshawa looks to be okay. The General Motors probably backing the team and with a couple of Bantist like Harry Carmichael suggested. The same is true of Napanee with Emile Lamond behind the team and Walter Gerow running it. Peterborough will have a team but who will take over the franchise remains to be seen. It is to be hoped that the Haydenite will step up to senior company for this will not be the case if they are left to play ball on various things—but we know Bob Nelson and Bill Kay are baseball-conscious."

The day of miracles is far from past. Last night the Toronto Maple Leafs surprised even their most rabid supporters by scoring a total of eight goals against the fine Bruins 8 to 6 in the most thrilling game ever staged in Toronto or any master of fact, perhaps any place imaginable. The Leafs started their offensive early in the second period as the Bruins were leading 4 to 0 and from then on it was hell after thrill. The New York Americans disposed of Chicago Black Hawks and will now meet the Leafs in the Stanley Cup semi-finals. While all of this was going on the Detroit Red Wings pushed the Montreal Maroons a little further down the ladder with a 3 to 0 defeat.

3 Linday Youths Open Swim Season

LINDSAY, Ont., March 27—(CP)—The swim season for 1936 was officially opened here yesterday when three Lindsay youths, Russell and Lloyd Lee and Ivan Irvine took their annual dip in the Scugog River and frolicked about amongst the ice cakes at the locks for half an hour. This has been named the season for the last five years here. Last year the first dip was taken March 18th.

Before taking to the water they engaged in a snowball fight and rubbed ice over their bodies, "to make the water feel warmer" they explained. According to Russ Lee this early spring dip is a sure means of breaking up a cold.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Biggar and Crawford by Flumfield Service.

PIONEER OF B.C.

Cutting of the main vein at No. 26 level, the lowest point at which work has been found in the Pioneer mine was reported this week. Previously the ore was picked up on No. 16 and No. 17 levels, with values showing a good improvement.

HAYDEN COMB

It is officially announced that new ore has been encountered on No. 4 level 1500 feet from the portal. The second and most important development is on No. 7 level, ore which is now being sulfied. Officials report that development on No. 7 level has been so encouraging that it has been decided to go to further depth by sinking a winze.

R. Mosi and Company, in the current issue of their Periodical Review, spake the following conclusion:

"Irrespective of all other considerations, there is ample background of potential demand for metallurgical extensions, and of replacements, which cannot be satisfied, which has been increased rather, than diminished by prevailing flood conditions, and which is likely to show an important part in acceleration of the recovery movement. Unfortunately the latter could and may be upset by a major world catastrophe, but with a background such as presently exists both Business and the Markets, should be able to withstand a great deal of uncertainty without registering more than minor backing and filling.

"With the stimulus of governmental spending assured for the balance of this election year in the United States, with margin enough averaging over 55 percent protection, with inventories at low margin and being practically non-existent even on sharp recoveries, with the strong evidence of expanding business, there is nothing visible to cause anything more than temporary interruptions to the basic upward trend which gives every indication of continuing until we have again experienced over-buying, over-speculation, over-expansion, reconstruction, and finally over-extension, which if it follows a normal pattern should be from two to three years to reach its apex in 1937."

The firmness in the shares of Canadian Industrial Alcohol the past few days is considered quite significant in some quarters that nothing or an official nature has been given out as to the reason for industrial Alcohol. The American Company is known to be very anxious to obtain the Canadian Company's valuable investment and in this connection gossip has it that it is quite possible that an announcement will be made. This, of course, is purely speculation but it is the usual way of bringing about some public demand.

Siscoe

The opening up of Siscoe's first vein in the gruenstone area to the south of the workings can be considered as the most important factor in the future of the mine, writes The Northern Miner in its current issue. This favorable situation means tremendous ore possibilities in an extensive section of the Siscoe property.

It will be recalled that two years ago only 5 per cent of Siscoe ore was in the K zone; the latest report states that there are presently 25 per cent of their reserves. Encouraging results further open up a similar way, the mine will be drawing its ore from three different zones—the main zone, K zone and the gruenstone. This remarkable record of 107 ft. lasting on definite promise of fulfilment with the locating of the first vein, shows good ore bodies widths, as the report is—that the ore-shoot is still open and recently verify. The new development is ultra-significant that the precursors comprises nearly two-fifths of the southern region of the property.

Sullivan

This work has all the ear-marks of resolution, and the mine is now in a very broad way, and it now appears that Siscoe is gradually becoming more like a jumbo of the lor gold producer. It can be regarded that results obtained to date are very promising and may form a highly important chapter in the development history of the gress which has been the story of the mine up to this time.

Conclusion—Still in its infancy, Sullivan holds promise of becoming as important as the most important than Siscoe, its neighbour. Growth of the mine and smelter development program will no doubt have much bearing on the ultimate potential value of the mine, in view of the strong cash position of the company, Sullivan should be regarded as one of the most promising base metal mines of the Province of Quebec.

ROAD NEAR TWEED NOW UNDER WATER

Three Feet Deep And Being Guarded by Highway Department

When the head-waters of the Moira River moved northward and overflowed the banks of the river three miles north of Tweed on Highway No. 7 and blocked traffic on Highway No. 7 at that point, fears that the rising flood waters might cause a serious flood in Tweed were dispelled in that connection early today. The flood-waters of the lowlands and swamps which had been accumulated during the winter and spring down the river late last night and flooded the highway area at Price's Corners to a height of three feet the last night rising under favorable climatic and existing highway department operators to guard road-way all night, directing traffic.

An ice jam between Tweed and Price's Corners is the main cause of the flood waters that were reported at Tweed before the road was closed, subsequent reports indicate that this jam is not the highway at that point was flooded to a level of at least three feet over the highway and that all motor traffic had been detained as a measure of safety.

Last night's rain assisted in swelling the many small tributaries of the Moira River and also was the cause of the ice moving out of the marshes to the lowlands north of Tweed. When this ice jammed in vicinity of Price's Corners, the serious flood menace became more serious.

HAUPTMANN TRIAL UNFAIR—HOFFMAN

Suggestion Made That Prosecution Favor New Reprieve

Trenton, N. J., March 27 (AP)—Governor Harold G. Hoffman charged today that "the whole (Hauptmann) case reeks with unfairness, prejudice, and bias," and asserted that if the prosecution would ask for the right, he would "be glad" to grant a further reprieve.

In a statement that bristled with derision of Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauch and Attorney General Wilentz whom Bruno Hauptmann was convicted early last year of the murder of Charles Lindbergh baby, Governor Hoffman said he did not believe he had the right to grant a second reprieve; but that "if the brilliant Attorney General of this State would advise me that I do have that right, I shall be glad to exercise it."

"I am more firmly convinced than ever that Hauptmann has not been given a trial in line with what we consider to be American standards of justice.

"As a matter of fact," he added, "in a formal application for a new trial would be a very healthy thing to have the Legislature authorize an investigation into the conduct of the Governor, the Attorney-General, the Supreme Court of this State and the Prosecutor of Hunterdon County and any representatives of the Department of Justice who participated in any way in the Lindbergh case."

A resolution providing for just such an investigation is now before the Legislature in the Assembly last Monday but was withheld by Democratic leaders at the request of Governor who felt that it might be construed as an effort on his part to play the basis for a second reprieve of Hauptmann who is scheduled to die in the electric chair next Tuesday night.

Asked what he meant by "if it is his (Hoffman's) intention, to grant another reprieve, I will take quick and necessary court action to block it," he fell the governor has made a laughing stock of the courts.

To which Governor Hoffman replied today:

"I am somewhat amazed and amused at the statements attributed to Attorney General Wilentz, particularly his expression I am trying to make a "laughing stock" of the courts.

COURT IS GIVEN COAT OF ARMS

Presentation Made by Chas. A. Payne, K.C., at Today's Sitting

Adorning the police court rooms in Belleville today is a framed production of the Royal Coat of Arms, presented to the court by Mr. Charles A. Payne, K.C., local barrister. The Royal Coat of Arms was suitably framed by Chief Kidd and hung on the wall directly behind the dais that is occupied by the presiding Magistrate. "It adds dignity to the court" remarked H. O. Donnan K.C., local Crown Attorney as he directed the attention of Magistrate F. J. Butler K.C., to the official stamp of His Majesty, King Edward the Eighth at the conclusion of today's police court proceedings.

Raymond Bailey, Shannonville, appeared in today's court charged with the theft of a generator and an automobile timer. The accused man pleaded guilty as charged and was given a one year's suspended sentence and ordered to pay the costs of the proceedings and also making restitution for repairs to the automobile from which he stole the accessories. Bailey informed the court he had been taken in trouble before and his request for further time to straighten his record-of-sentence meted out.

A number of motorists were arraigned on charges laid under the Highway Traffic Act ranging from operating motor vehicles without adequate brakes to charges of exceeding the Highway Speed Laws. Officers recently received orders to make a special drive against motor vehicles being operated on the highways without the proper brakes. The local motorists paid the minimum fine for driving their vehicles without adequate brakes in good working order. Another driver pleaded guilty to charges of speeding guilty to a charge of driving at night with only one headlight and was fined to provide his operator's licence.

Charged With Assault

With his head swathed in bandages, Mansfield Fitzgerald appeared in police court this morning charged with assault. Fitzgerald had appeared in a previous court on the former charge and had been remanded until today. In the intervening time however, he is alleged by Provincial Police to have committed another offence. Fitzgerald and Mrs. Jolly, Shannonville barber last night following which Mrs. Jolly swore out a warrant for Fitzgerald's arrest and the latter was only protecting himself. A charge of assault was laid against Fitzgerald today and he was remanded in custody until Monday for trial.

REYNOLDSTOWN IS WINNER 2ND TIME

Alnizee, Liverpool, March 27.—(CP Cable)—The triumph of Reynoldstown in the Grand National Steeplechase here today brought a fortune to one Canadian who held an "each way" bet on the Irish Free Handicap winner.

The lucky ticket-holder, who won approximately $150,000 was identified only as "Just Mac", holding a Sidney Township farmer appeared charged with endangering the lives of the public while driving his motor vehicle. He pleaded guilty to the charge and paid ten dollars fine and eleven dollars costs, and had his driver's permit suspended for one month.

The case of the local man, who was charged with having liquor in his possession not purchased on a permit, again remanded today as Dr. Doyle did not get a chance to examine him, while he was here Wednesday. He will appear on April 8th next.

Several farm hand appeared, charged with being inebriated. He pleaded guilty of the charge and as he could not pay the fifteen sixty dollar penalty, he was taken to Belleville jail, where he will spend 10 days.

A local man pleaded guilty in Belleville police court of driving his truck without his name inscribed on the sides. He was fined $1 and $3 costs. On default of payment he will be sent to Belleville jail for ten days, in this case the Child Constable stated, the he had warned the accused over a month ago.

Rules for U.S. 'Tourist' Purchases are Revealed

Canadians May Bring Back $100 Worth of Goods

CERTAIN LIMITATIONS

Ottawa, March 27—By way of implementing the trade agreement with the United States, legislation was introduced in parliament today shortly be brought in defining the conditions under which Canadians returning to the United States may bring back $100 of merchandise duty free. While this was arranged for at the time of the trade agreee, it requires a special statute, states the Montreal Star.

The purpose of the proposed regulations is to insure that there is nothing to be smuggled and will be no commercialism in the buying on the part of the Canadian "tourists".

The rules apply to those living along the border or who are frequent visitors to the United States of their business. A receipt will be kept and the privilege will not be granted more than once every six months. Another qualification is that the visitor must be in the United States a few days and not simply make a flying trip, pick up $100 worth of goods and come back. The articles must be for personal use or gifts. Commissions are not to be executed for other people nor are any articles thus brought in to be sold. There will be specific limitations to the quantity of tobacco, cigars, cigarettes and liquor which may be brought in duty free. Broadly, the idea is to confine the privilege to the purchases which are the same as the United States statute does.

"GLITTERING GIRL"

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XII.

With Terry's hand under Vernon's elbow and both very close together, they climbed the little winding staircase.

"If it's cold, my lidies, I'll get a wrap for you," he suggested.

But it wasn't necessary to get a wrap. The stage led to a glass-enclosed conservatory, dimly lit by one swinging Chinese lantern.

Two wicker-seats chairs with cushions and foot-rests, were set in this small porch, side by side.

Thank the Lord no one else has discovered this!" murmured Terry as Vernon gathered her long taffeta skirt about her and sank into the chair.

"I'm thirsty. There was champagne at the bar, but I've none. Could you get it?" she asked of him recklessly.

She must learn to do as the others did. Acquire poise. Let him see she wasn't just a country pumpkin.

The champagne would give her confidence. Here was her opportunity. Alone with a wonderful man like Terry, she wanted to copy do the other girls, have her wits sporting in quick banter.

"Right! Don't let anybody take that chair; I'll be back in a couple of shakes!"

The moment his firmly-shaped back had vanished, she took out her pocket mirror, and applied a flick of powder to her cheeks, forehead and nose. Never had she looked prettier. She was assured of it. Her heart sang a little song of happiness.

Terry returned with two large glasses of champagne. She accepted one of them. He seated himself close beside her. "Here's to the show. Terry's be a pretty girl."

Suddenly she thought of the unknown "Alma." Her heart sank as she asked: "Which one?"

"You, of course. Darling."

She sipped slowly. How best to broach the subject? It was rather delicate.

But she must know. Immensely attracted to him as she was, and admitted to herself, better a swift knife-thrust than a long agony.

"But all day you've been a foot-loose wanderer, you aren't so hopeless at making pretty speeches when you've a mind to."

"Gone to practice on me, are you? All right. Go ahead all you want." He leaned forward in his chair, looking quizzically.

"I don't know what you mean." she reddened.

"Perhaps the wish was father to the remark?"

"What shall I practice?"

"Send your own sweet self, Miss Vernon."

"I wasn't aware of being anything else. You men are so vain. I suppose you're used to being constantly posing or something?"

He didn't reply. He sipped his champagne meditatively.

"Penny for your thoughts?" she asked.

"You should have asked that last night on the train when you were gazing up at the new moon, my child."

"I thought we talked rather comprehensively. I told you an awful lot about myself. But you were not equally communicative."

"That's the prerogative of my years. How old are you?"

"I"—she checked herself in time—"twenty-two."

"And I'm twenty-five."

"And full of common-sense, Mr. Methuselah."

"Not when I'm with you. I have champagne."

"Interesting ones?" She sipped her champagne. It gave her a warm feeling. Made her more courageous.

"That remains to be seen. Better not tempt me too far. Remember I've been in the back of beyond for ages. I might be the wolf waiting to carry off sweet Little Red Riding Hood!"

"Ah, that would be thr-r-rilling! Would you carry her far—or—from this sort of thing?"

"It's not so bad. Not when we're alone, like this. Look up at me again. Your eyes are starry."

"Terry—Mr. Carr—Oh no, though I like it."

"I thought your eyes were pretty last night, when we looked up at the moon on the train. Sort of starry. They're more shadowy now. Mysterious. Deeper. What lies at the bottom of them, Vernon?"

"Secrets." Her flowerlike face was tempting as she leaned back on the chintz cushions.

"Tell me." He touched her hand. An electric thrill rushed from that point of contact to her heart.

"I was thinking about you—and a girl—"

"Yourself, you mean?"

"No. A girl called Alma—"

"Alma Fairbanks. She's in Hot Springs, Virginia. Dyson knew her." His face showed neither enthusiasm nor guilt.

"Oh. I just heard—tonight—I overheard in the conservatory. That you and she are—engaged—"

"What rot! I've known Alma for donkey's years. We're friends. Nothing more."

She breathed in deep relief. "Then why did they say—"

"My child, don't you realize this town is a hot-bed of gossip?"

"As big a place as this just as gossipy as little places?"

Terry said: "A lot more so, bad luck!"

"Then there wasn't any truth in what I heard over the little hedge in the conservatory?"

"Who said what?"

"A girl said to someone—I don't know who they were—that you were to be married soon to this Alma."

"Confound their gossiping tongues. You tell them to go to the devil."

"That's your business, not mine. You wanted to know what I was thinking, and I've told you."

"Would you mind if I were suspect?"

"There goes the concealed male again! You're irresistable! Why don't you get up on the roof and crow?"

"I stand rebuked, my child. I was hoping you would say yes—but instead you snub me."

"Pa! too many girls and women have flattered you in these twenty-five years. It sticks right out of you."

"You prickle like a porcupine. Don't be unkind, when we were getting along so nicely."

She smiled. She could have sung with joy, now she knew he was free.

CHAPTER XII.

"You've a dimple in your left cheek. Keep smiling. I was once in love with a girl with a dimple like yours. You remind me of her."

"I suppose you've been in love with lots of girls—and whole armies of silly geese fell down before you like nine pins?"

"So you do mind? Well, the girl with the dimple like yours was only eight years old, and I was eleven."

"That slays me."

"But yours is far prettier. Smile again. No—better not—it gives me that impulse!"

Vernon smiled enchantingly. "You never yield to impulse, do you? Just a big, strong, silent he-man!"

He made a sudden move forward and his lips for the fraction of a second brushed her cheek as she drew her head back from him.

"Heavens! What did you do that for? I ought to get right up and go."

"I shan't let you. You're bewitchingly pretty tonight, Vernon —and you know it, too."

"Who said you could call me by my Christian name?" But her eyes were dancing.

"Forgive me. You're gone to my head—"

"No. The champagne has. But—I don't mind it, Terry—"

He caught her hand in his. He murmured, hoarsely: "I wish I could carry you off tonight—way out in a tent in the desert."

"And be my shiek? Would you be great?"

"Quite otherwise, my dear."

She put her glass down. Her hand folded softly over his.

"It sounds—wonderful, whispered. They were silent for a moment.

Then Terry straightened himself, giving a brusque little laugh. "We're crazy, both of us. This is your life. This is what you're made for."

Vernon felt as though a bucket of cold water had been flung into her face.

"This is your life, your setting," he repeated, drawing his hand back from hers and getting out his cigarette-case. "Have one? Not? The sea-green gown, "There, you're free. Shall we go?" They looked at each other. . . . In a moment—she never knew how it happened—she was in his arms, and he was kissing her.

His kisses were like fire. They ran through her veins like a bright, hot trill, she felt blissfully happy, yet dizzy.

If he let her go, she would fall down, she knew. She was weak from shock and joy. She feared this would go on, forever. . . .

"Terry—oh, don't—if anyone should come—"

He closed her lips with his kisses. She yielded, clinging to him, his handsome face bent over hers.

In the midst of this wonderful dream, she heard the sound of footsteps mounting the staircase.

"Terry, let go!—People coming! Quickly!" she breathed.

They drew apart just in the nick of time as Mrs. Martins de Kaye, accompanied by a meticulously-dressed, blond, good-looking man, with the monocle in his eye, appeared at the head of the stairs.

"So this is where I've been delightful! I do hope we're not intruding?" gushed Mrs. de Kaye, extending a hand that was elegantly encased almost to the shoulder in a wrinkly glove of turquoise-blue suede. She smiled dazzlingly on Vernon and on Terry. "May I present Prince Ivan Karinoff? I've been raving to him about the new beauty who has just dawned on us! He's anxious to meet you, Miss Tyson."

Assured by Instinct, the chief called out: "We will get open our guns!"

Instead he spoke sharply to Murdoo. "We attack!" Then the Mighty Fighter and his Waziri streamed to the palisade, expecting to be greeted by a shower of spears and arrows!

The Prince clicked his heels together. He bent gracefully from the waist. His lips fell like the whistling. His lips fell like the wings of a butterfly as they brushed the back of Vernon's hand. She blushed, trying to pull her feet together. Terry's divine kisses —his molten fire—and then this!

"How do you do? This is Mr. Shannon—Mrs. de Bray—" she found herself saying mechanically.

Mrs. de Bray gave Terry a swift upward glance. Vernon saw something spring into her eyes. "Like a cat after a succulent canary!" she thought afterwards, trying to analyze that predatory expression.

"Will you give me the pleasure of this dance?" asked the Prince, of Vernon.

She was flustered. What to say? "Let's all go down," she suggested. She didn't see the fleeting, crooked little quirk to Mrs. de Bray's beautifully rouged lips at that moment. She took the Prince's proffered arm, and went down the staircase with him.

He was not as tall as Terry, but he did dance beautifully. He moved with a sinuous grace, with a sort of fluid motion. A personable-looking man, with an aristocratic profile. More guests had arrived in the interim of the upstairs session—and lots of people were watching them.

Painful Piles

Can be Quickly Relieved

If you think there is no way to relieve the misery of piles, it's because you don't know about HEMROID, an internal medicine, from the prescription of Dr. Leonhardt, a western physician.

The real cause of piles is on the inside—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel, with the tiny rectal veins full of stagnant, impure blood.

Dr. Leonhardt decided the way to relieve piles was internally, with an medicine to overcome the congestion of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and help to heal and restore the affected parts. After many tests he wrote the prescription which has been so successful in giving quick relief from piles misery. It is his pledge to you with our promise that you may have your money back if you are not completely relieved after using one bottle.

No matter what kind of piles you have or how long you have had them, HEM-ROID must show you its quick, clean way to get rid of your piles misery or your money will be given back to you. J. S. McKerall or any other druggist can supply you with HEM-ROID and will back up this promise.

Feasibility of Beach Thoroughly Discussed At Chamber Forum

Meeting Held at Queen's Hotel With Large Attendance

MANY EXPRESS VIEWS

Another Meeting in Month to Discuss Plan to be Submitted

Waterfront development and the long suggested bathing beach for the city took a prominent place last evening at one of the most successful open forum meetings held in conjunction with the annual meeting of the local Chamber of Commerce at the Queen's Hotel.

Lengthy discussion of the beach, pro and con, finally resolved into a motion "that a committee composed of members of the city council, service clubs and interested citizens be formed to study the matter and to further consider concrete action at a meeting to be held one month from now." Survey plans of the waterfront and proposed sites prepared by the city engineer will be submitted at this meeting.

Not all the lengthy discussion, however, centred upon the bathing beach; the property value of flood control also suggested remedies advanced by several speakers throughout the meeting well into the evening.

In opening the meeting, Mayor Hill, in the unavoidable absence earlier of the chairman of the committee, Mr. R. C. Ellis, who later took over the chair, declared the meeting would be in the hands of the members present. "It appears that the waterfront development scheme is a fine and as other proponent of the scheme, Mr. Ellis, has pointed out, to outline the matter, invited Mayor Hill.

As chairman of Tourist and Publicity for myself, Aldermen Cushing declared that the responsibilities of "But," he added, "Belleville is overlooking one of the many possibilities which would be of direct benefit to her."

Tourist Trade Beneficial.

He referred to the statement from Ottawa, that during the year 1935 tourists had left a total of two hundred and one million dollars in this country. This item, he added, contained considerable interest for him.

"I wonder how much Belleville got out of that? One month is all we should have. We have a good camp here, but there is something else, too. That is water. Tourists are quick to tell us about it. They will ask, "where is the beach?" They say they have travelled all day and are dusty and hungry and want to clean up. And when we say that we have no beach, they point to the river and say they. "Whah a pity, they say. That they go on to the next point.

"That started me thinking," continued Mr. Cushing. "We've got the physical advantages here why not use them? We've got to do business with the outside world. We can't live entirely unto ourselves. The business man ought to know that. All we need to capture this trade is a beach, a wide beach."

Alderman Cushing told of the great work that Bala had accomplished in Midland where a swamp had been turned into a beautiful beach and where tourists were counted by the thousands over the week-end in the summer. One night one small theatre in that Syndicate Fails to Do Business in U.S.

New York, Mar. 28 (CP)—Sidney Freeman and his nephew, Edward L. Benson, representing the English bankerage syndicate of Dougall Stuart, Inc., sailed for England tonight $150,000 out of pocket.

They had come to New York to buy up from lucky holders of Irish sweepstake tickets as many shares as they could borrow.

They sought particularly to buy in a stock horses as Golden Miller, crystalgleam and Avenger.

Miss Marina Wellington, only holder of a ticket on Reynoldstown, declined to surrender an inch of her lucky ticket, which brought her $150,000 when the horse won. The same was true of Mr. and Mrs. Gimpel whose lucky ticket was the only ticket on Rho, which came in second, paying $75,000.

Of three persons holding tickets on Sacheon Prince, which ran third to pay $60,000, holders of only one agreed to surrender a half interest. Mrs. Sarah Hall, of Brooklyn, sold a half interest to the syndicate's agents. They therefore split the $50,000 with the syndicate.

British Government Goes Ahead With Plans For Discussions

(By Paul-Louis Reet)
(Copyright 1936 by the Hawes News Agency)

London, March 28.—(CP-Hyrad)—The British Government was proceeding with plans today for early conversations among the general staffs of British, French and Belgian general staffs in the wake of the German move to withdraw the previous counter-proposals for solution of the Rhineland crisis unless small file cussions were dropped.

Premier Stanley Baldwin told Commons that the British course is understood to be similar to that of Premier Edouard Daladier of France, who declared in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday that France would not abandon the conversations.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, by Joachim von Ribbentrop, Nazi before Chancellor Hitler's Ambassador-at-Large boarded a plane for home.

The British Government has called a meeting of the Cabinet for Monday for the purpose of fixing a definite date for the beginning of the military consultations which will be alphabetical, with a top-power Locarno Air Pact signed in London, March 1, 1925, by Great Britain, France, Belgium, Germany, Italy, Poland and Czechoslovakia, guaranteeing the frontiers between Germany and France and Belgium.

RIVER AT TWEED FLOODS HIGHWAY PARTS OF TOWN

Milling Company's Operations Suspended Owing to High Water

SCENES AT THOROLD

Many Taken From Homes in That Place Before Waters Recede

Many sections of Tweed village are under water today the result of water backing up owing to an ice jam in the River Moira where the Tweed Milling Company's dam located in the centre of the village.

A section of Highway No. 37 running north from the village is under water to a depth of two feet, some homes are flooded but the families have not been removed from their homes as yet, although every precaution is being taken. The ice in Lake Stoco, to the south of Tweed, is still holding and the water to find an outlet is overrunning the banks and at the present time the lake is flooded to a considerable depth.

Road is Covered

The Tweed Milling Company has been forced to suspend operations owing to the water in the mill being by water power and the water is too high. At the time of the writer's visit, making it impossible for the wheel to function. The ice jam is being held by the dam but is being rapidly broken up. The water covers the road from Tweed to Elzevir and Tweed, a distance of four miles but Highway No. 37 is open. Residents of Highways are in close touch with the situation, and there is still being carried on, although vehicles have to proceed with caution. It is reported that the water is from two to four feet deep on this Highway. On Highway No. 14 the Thrasher district is experienced near Price's Service Station where the water is still rising and is still being poured over the flooded area.

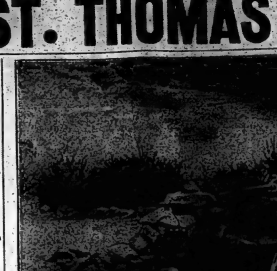
Port Hope Scare

Port Hope, Ont., March 28 (CP)—Rain and melting snow north of Port Hope sent the Ganaraska River up to a dangerously high level early today and many business merchants on Walton Street East and Mill Street were on guard against flood of two weeks ago be repeated. At midnight the river started to rise and by 2 a.m. had overflowed its banks and inundated part of Cavan Street again.

On Ontario Street it started to flood basements and cellars and the railway bridge and lapped over on paved thoroughfares. On Walton Street, further east, the water was still some two or three feet from the bridge. Only by daylight the river gradually went back to normal.

Thorold Feels Ragler

Thorold, Ont., March 28 (CP)—Thorold township families breathed easier today as flood waters from Beaver Meadow Creek receded. A large section of the area flooded yesterday when the creek, mixed and debris and many homes back basements, was still under water. Flood covered with the muck.



A low point on Allanburg road, Thorold township, through the Niagara Falls-Welland highway, was passable today. Yesterday a day three feet of water ran over the road, which was still under water to a depth of four and five feet.

Damage was estimated at approximately $15,000 after four acres of fruit orchard, eight feet high, yesterday's floods and an unestimated number of cellars and poultry drowned. The floods were a source of thrill to many.

At Welland the Welland River appeared to have reached its peak after rising eight feet last night. It flooded cellars and carried away fencing. Two of the four important highways into Welland were blocked.

3 Extensions to Roads Made Without Tender

Toronto, March 28 (CP)—Without tenders being called, three extensions totalling 13.18 miles were given to the Ontario contract the Dufferin Paving Company had for the Kenora-Fort Frances Highway, it was disclosed today before the Ontario Legislature Public Accounts Committee. The extensions, revealed during examination of R. A. Campbell, Deputy Minister of Northern Development, by Arthur Roebuck, Conservative member for Ottawa South and opposition counsel, were for seven miles and three miles respectively, with a gap between, at the north end and 2.18 miles at the south end.

EXPECT REPRIEVE WILL BE GRANTED

Report Says Governor Hunts Legal Way to Stay Execution

By DALE HARRISON

By The Associated Press
Trenton, N.J., March 28.—(AP)—Governor Harold G. Hoffman called the Court of Pardons for Monday today to consider Bruno Richard Hauptmann's plea for clemency.

Albert B. Hermann, clerk of the Court, announced the calling of the Court with the comment it was to consider Hauptmann's case.

Hauptmann is under sentence to die Tuesday night for the Lindbergh baby murder. A previous consideration of his case by the court resulted in a denial of his plea for clemency.

Trenton, N.J., March 28—(AP)—Governor Harold G. Hoffman insulted, cajoled and threatened Attorney-General reprieve to Bruno Hauptmann, despite the opinion of the Attorney General no such legal way existed.

There was a growing belief, as developments moved swiftly, a reprieve would be issued sometime before a date Tuesday set for the first of the series of executions of the slayer of Charles A. Lindbergh baby murder.

Some conjecture was heard the governor might submit any possible reprieve action until shortly before the scheduled hour of execution, in the hope Hauptmann in desperation, might make a new statement.

Governor Hoffman, voicing anew his belief Hauptmann was unlikely to brief at Flemington, that much of the testimony presented by the state was grandiloquent and other persons besides Hauptmann were involved in the crime, has turned to outside legal talent in his quest of authority to extend the condemned man's life.

Anthony M. Hauck, Jr., Hunterdon County prosecutor whom the Governor in a scathing attack Wednesday charged with "perjury" before the Attorney-General," said he would go to the courts, if necessary, to force the execution of the "Public Enemy No. 1 of the world" as Hauptmann was called by the prosecution at Flemington.

1837 CENTENARY MAY BE MARKED

Premier King, Grandson of Reformer, Will be Asked About Celebration

Ottawa, March 28.—(CP)—Next Year will mark the 100th anniversary of the uprising in Upper Canada headed by the Dundas Reformer, William Lyon Mackenzie, which led directly to the establishment of responsible Government. Senator A. C. Hardy has given notice that at a future meeting of the Red Chamber he will inquire if the government intends giving official recognition to the occasion.

The incident will be of peculiar interest because the leader of the government to which the inquiry will be addressed is St. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, grandson of the Scottish-born pioneer of reform in British North America.

The notice which Senator Hardy has caused to be placed on the order paper in his name reads: "That he will call the attention of the Senate to the fact that the year 1937 marks the 100th anniversary of the rising in Upper Canada, (now Ontario), under William Lyon Mackenzie, which led directly to the establishment of responsible government in Canada, and that he will inquire of the Government if it intends to take steps to give official recognition thereto."

William Lyon Mackenzie, born in 1795, came to Canada in his youth and entered through many vicissitudes to correct what he thought were the evils of Government of that day. At the same time in lower Canada, now Quebec, the French-Canadian Reformer, Louis Joseph Papineau, was working to the same end.

Their activities came to open revolt in 1837 and shortly thereafter Queen Victora, just ascending the British Throne, started the process that resulted in union of Upper and Lower Canada and establishment of responsible government.

William Lyon Mackenzie died in 1861.

Win Battle With Floes Threatening Boat on Bay

Cries For Help of Local Boys Unheard, Lads Find Way To Channel After Bitter Struggle

Hemmed in by sudden ice floes which piled up on them unawares, the boat, and with their shallow craft, and then the boat began to creak and we thought we were gone. All the time the ship was drifting," declared Charles Barrage today.

Finding that their shouts were useless, and that rescue work could not be carried on even if they were noticed, both boys set to work to free themselves and the boat from the grip of the ice. Slowly drifting with the ice, and after what seemed a considerable length of struggle and poling, a small channel was finally opened through one side of the floes and the boys managed to make the shore without further incident.

"The first thing we knew we were in the middle of it. The big cakes started up on the boat from them threatening to swamp us right then and there," said the boat began to creak and we thought we were gone. All the time the ship was drifting," declared Charles Barrage today.

LAWYER'S FEES FOR GOVT WORK TO BE CUT DOWN

Budget Debate Ends With Gov't. Being Sustained 59-16

LEADERS HEARD

Hepburn Says Gross Debt Will Not Be Increased in 1937

Toronto, March 28.—(CP)—With the Budget debate off the order paper the Ontario Legislature witnes the home stretch in the drive to achieve prorogation for the consideration of measures which will be the first item when members reopen their doors on the week-end adjournment.

Opposition Leader George S. Henry and Premier Hepburn delivered their wind-up addresses yesterday after which the government was sustained by 59-16 on the motion to go into supply. After committee of supply was considered by House adjourned until Monday.

Warning was served by the Premier as he concluded his address that the Budget Bill in arrear of fees which have been paid to lawyers by this government in the preceding one." Following the criticism of lawyers by F. M. Dewan (Lib., Oxford), in his Budget debate address, Hepburn declared the government would not allow "the Treasury of this province to be used to swell the larges whether they are friends of the government or not."

Mr. Hepburn's address was directed principally against the speech of Col. H. H. Bruce, Conservative member for Toronto Parkdale and Opposition Whip, during which he charged Col. Price with a "vicious and unwarranted attack" on Liquor Commissioner E. C. Odette.

Charges Duly Investigated

Charging Governmental favoritism in the shortening of liquor administration, Mr. Henry offered to report the Premier to the Province's gross debt at the end of the year "that debt would be more than $700,000,000.

"If the gross debt is increased at the end of the fiscal year in 1937," Mr. Hepburn said in his speech, "I'll present him with one of the finest bals in Toronto."

Mr. Hepburn's contentions Mr. Odette as a "part time" official brought from the Premier a memorandum written by Judge A. Unsworth, Secretary of the Liquor Control Board, stating the Commission spent more time in his office than did Mr. Odette.

In the 1934 provincial election, Col. Price "carried a stooge," who had been appointed to the board shortly after the beer election, Mr. Hepburn declared. He challenged Attorney-General a chance to make a statement.

"He didn't act like an attorney-General," the Premier stated. "He acted like a mechanic man in a side show."

ICE BREAKS UP IN BAY EAST OF BRIDGE

Today, except for a few scattered, drifting ice floes a shimmering surface of water reaches from above to shore in the bay of Quinte east of the Bay bridge. Wind and rain yesterday completed the breakup of the thick ice which accumulated on Tuesday afternoon. Only by the stubborn ice floes on the north shore of the government dock and upper harbor is the sheet of water undriven. However, traffic will be resumed, and crowding. Beautiful weather, a small fishing sheaty left too long on the ice by its owner, will probably be rescued today or tomorrow, some one near assistance. According to records, the bay was not cleared of ice last year until April 9.

SALVAGE WOOD

Huge boulder of timber, logs from dams, sections of barns from river-side dwellings and even trees which had been carried down stream by the recent floods are now being recovered by a small army of workmen from the open waters of the Bay. The larger quantities of the salvage are being recovered from the government dock where eddying currents have piled it up.

SPARKS CAUSE ALARM.

Firemen were given a run to a Cobourne Street home yesterday shortly after eight o'clock last evening where sparks from a blazing chimney threatened. The blaze was extinguished without damage.

LANTERNS GUARDING EXCAVATIONS STOLEN

Complaints relative to the petty thefts of night lanterns that have been placed near excavations in and around Belleville have been reported by the local police of late. Today officials of the Ontario Motor Coach Company informed the police authorities that two lanterns were stolen last night from the vicinity of an excavation along the Trent Road where they are being laid a gas pipe line. The same situation has arisen where city department heads have placed lanterns at night to warn citizens of ditches and excavations. "What is the use of spending money to warn motorists and citizens of dangerous places if they are carefully stolen?" commented gas officials today. Although police officials are on the park, tried in vain to locate the lantern thieves their efforts have been in vain to date, but investigations are still being carried out with hopes of apprehending the guilty persons.

J. J. McWatters, inspector of radio for the Federal Government, was in the city yesterday and Monday during which he made an official test of the police radio broadcasting transmitter, station CJB. In conjunction with Sergeant Arthur Booth, operator of the CJB, the test was made following which Mr. McWatters reported the local station to be operating perfectly. "The transmitter is in splendid shape and on its wave band of 1490 kilocycles without interference being reported," the inspector declared. Mr. McWatters after examining the transmitter and also the receiving set in the local police car.

MUSIC

The following items from the Toronto Globe will be of interest to Belleville music lovers:

Amid much flattering comment on the return of James Levey to the concert stage with the Hart House String Quartet, the following is a typical sample of New York criticism of last Monday night's concert in Toronto. No more chamber music ensemble in Manhattan's Town Hall. This paragraph from the New York Sun refers to the playing of Beethoven's second "Rasoumowsky" quartet, Op. 59, No. 2:

The result was one of the finest interpretations in this genre that the season has revealed. Not only was the balance of the group remarkably keen, the tone splendidly clear and sonorous; technical details assumed their properly subordinate place in a vital and authoritative recreation of Beethoven's quintessence. Mr. Levey apparently supports the view that the Beethoven of the middle quartets is one with the composer of the "Eroica" or the C minor symphony, and he has succeeded admirably in shaping the efforts of his group to that end. Thus, last night's performance profited by a dynamic scale that ranged through the full capacities of the instruments, with the loudest passages intently graded, and the climaxes finally accomplished. It was, in all, a striking tribute to his learning, and an affirmation of the latent capacities of his new organization the future of the organization will be watching one, if the association continues."

The tenth and last concert in the Toronto Symphony Orchestra's fourteenth season drew a very large audience to Massey Hall recently, despite the worst blizzard of the worst winter in recent history, and a superb concert it was. The feature of the first half of the great program was the magnificent singing of Adolf Wantzoff as soloist in several selections from "Meistersinger," by Richard Wagner. The Conservatory Choir and our orchestra also did some fine work in these stirring selections, which were a really brilliant contribution to the season's musical "high spots" of Mr. Wantzoff was the outstanding artist, giving performances which neither Thibett nor any one else could have improved upon in vocal quality or interpretation. Of course, this was Mr. Wantzoff's second visit to Toronto in a season, and there are doubtless other things which he cannot do as well as Thibett does them: but the "Siege of Kanun" had to be repeated and he well earned the ardent applause accorded him.

STRUCK ON HEAD

Brockville, Ont., March 28 (CP)—Hilton Mayhew of North Augusta is in General Hospital here with serious injuries to the head caused when struck by a piece of wood during sawing operations. The stick struck him on the left side of the face and caused fractures of the nose, the forehead and over the left eye. Surgeons operated to relieve pressure upon the brain and hopes for his recovery are now entertained.

YOUNGSTER RUNS INTO SIDE OF CAR

Motorist Takes Child to Surgery, Injuries Found Slight

While playing on the street little Jimmie Harrison, 47 Station St., ran into the side of a passing automobile, driven by T. Earle Darrah, 280 Bleecker Ave., and was knocked down early last evening. Mr. Darrah stopped his vehicle almost immediately and the youngster was not injured he had only sustained slight bruises. After taking the little boy home, Mr. Darrah reported the accident to the police.

Continued increase in the number of transients being afforded sleeping quarters at the police station nightly are still in evidence; now that the usual warmer weather has set in advent. Last night 20 transients on the station during the month of the police station.

MAPLE SYRUP SELLS AT $2 GAL.

Lack of Frost May Make Season Short And Sugar Scarce

Warmer weather and the fact that roads are again bare and passable in this section contributed to the largest attendance at the local auction at the regular Saturday market this morning.

Eggs today dropped to what may be the season's lowest level. While the exporters and buyers are paying prices of from 13 to 15 cents per dozen, the average housewife gets her choice of the offerings at from 16 to 18 cents for "extras" and from 13 to 15 cents for "firsts" for "pullets". In the dairy division butter also experienced a drop, selling today at from 25 to 30 cents the pound, with the usual two-pound rolls being quoted at 55 cents. Fowl was comparatively scarce but cheaper this week than last, selling today at from 20 to 30 cents the pound, with the usual two-pound rolls being quoted at 55 cents. Fowl was comparatively scarce but cheaper this week than last, selling today at from 20 to 30 cents the pound, with ducks sold at from 60 cents to $1.00.

Maple syrup will be scarce this year, it was stated by dealers and vendors who were entering the opening days of the season in fairly heavy quantities today. Usual price last year was $2.00 per gallon but it may be higher, it was intimated by one vendor.

Maple sugar is also in the ground, it was stated in explanation of the dearth, prospects was the magnificent singing of Adolf Wantzoff as soloist in several selections from "Meistersinger," by Richard Wagner. The Conservatory Choir and our orchestra also did some fine work in these stirring selections, which were a really brilliant contribution to the season's musical "high spots" of Mr. Wantzoff was the outstanding artist, giving performances which neither Thibett nor any one else could have improved upon in vocal quality or interpretation. Of course, this was Mr. Wantzoff's second visit to Toronto in a season, and there are doubtless other things which he cannot do as well as Thibett does them: but the "Siege of Kanun" had to be repeated and he well earned the ardent applause accorded him.

Fresh caught fish from local waters, as fresh they were caught, selling in the boxes were again offered for the first time. Pike commanded from 15 to 20 cents the pound uncleaned. Fresh, skinned muskies were dearer at 25 cents the pound straight. Up to the present white fish have not been offered for sale in open market due to the almost prohibitive price of 35 cents, uncleaned. Before next week is over, however, it is paying 40 cents the pound owing to the Jewish holidays', it was stated by a vender.

Live little pigs on the outside market were disposed of in large numbers, selling at from $4.50 to $8.00 each. A few cattle pops found few purchasers at $2.00.

No change in grain prices and little change in the poultry and live stock was reported by local dealers.

Trenton and District

Trenton, March 28.—(Special)—Hockey is coming back state H. H. Moore who has been in charge of the Trenton and District Hockey League for the last two seasons. Mr. Moore is a very hard worker in this line and it is seen that it is one of his many hobbies. In the Secretary's report figures showed, that the gate receipts of the Hockey Arena for the 35-36 season totalled $615.75 as for the last year's receipts of $719.91. The balances in the treasury also left a surplus, this year's surplus is $77.67 as compared with last year's receipts of $12.00. There were ten teams in the league this year. Last year twelve teams performed. Each team received $32.00 as their outfitting $13.00. Miscellaneous $1.50 and besides this $485.76 was paid to the Arena and 464.30 was paid to the Government for admission tax. Trenton will be on the map in another season as far as hockey is concerned states the president of the league should the popularity of the sport continue as it did this year.

At the regular meeting of the Junior Rumane Society, in the Town Hall last night a letter from a member told the president, that she had heard some boys talking of they pulled a cashier's counter out with a pair of pinchers and headed of her in Jefferson's store. The little girl stated, that she had reported the happening to the local veterinary. The president said, that the veterinary had not found the guilty one but stated that he is looking into the matter as other cases of cruelty to animals have been reported to him. A case of someone cutting a cat's ear off is one of late occurrence. A member of the society stated that she is carrying all members of the Society to watch out for these cases of cruelty and report them as soon as possible as this horrible method of torture must be stopped.

The Quinte and Adanac Hockey Cup was presented to the winners last Friday evening the Hockey League last night in the recreation rooms of the Hinde and Dauch Paper Co. The donor Mr. A. E. Moore presented each player and the Manager of the Hinde and Dauch team with a cup. He also presented the cup for the runner-up player in the League to Claude Rattan of the Woolen team. This cup was donated by Mr. H. J. Collins of Sudbury. The holder will keep the trophy for one year but as a remembrance will keep a miniature trophy. The executive of the ten which were represented in the League were present, and their remarks in their speeches expressed thanks and gratitude for being treated so well. O. Alves and Mr. W. B. McClung spoke briefly of how the officials and players progressed since the league has been under the management of Mr. H. Moore. Several members of the ball team presented with First Aid Medals by Mr. H. Gillies, Mill Manager. After the presentations six rounds of exhibition boxing were enjoyed by all present. Coffee and rolls were furnished by members of the Recreation Club.

52 NOMINATED FOR KING'S PLATE

Glanford, G. M. Hendrie's Shell-Hoofed Gelding Given an Edge

Toronto, Mar. 28 (CP)—Headed by Glanford, pre-season favorite, 53 thoroughbreds were nominated today for the King's Plate, Canadian turf classic, to be run over Woodbine race track June 13.

Bidding to retain the 50 guineas donated by the King, R. F. Seagram of Waterloo nominated a strong entry, topped by Seaforan. Last year the Waterloo breeder won the race with Sally Fuller and took third place with Gay Laddie. Cecil Culpepper, owned by H. C. Hatch of Toronto, was second.

Glanford, G. M. Hendrie's shell-hooded three-year-old gelding, was given a slight edge to take the Plate this year on the strength of two victories in three starts during his juvenile campaign. More were not made because his weak hoofs were being protected in the hope they would strengthen during the winter.

The King's Plate, over a mile and an eighth, is open to Ontario-foaled horses, colts and geldings which have never won a race in other than the juvenile events.

Hatch declared a large entry led by his consistent 1935 performers, Sweepcush and Penabud.

HOLD INQUEST AT FLINTON, APR. 14

Believe Sudden Jar While Transporting Dynamite Caused Explosion

The inquest to enquire into the death of Fred Maynard, David Berry and Alfred Vanness, who died when dynamite exploded in the Rilcrock Quarry, Flinton, on Tuesday of last day morning will be held Tuesday, April 14, at 10 o'clock, it was stated by Dr. G. W. Galbraith of Napanee, coroner for the district. Dr. Galbraith returned from the scene of the fatality early today and before making arrangements for the held regarding the inquest. The bodies of the three victims were taken down the mountain in a large bucket and then transferred to a waiting car. One of the bodies was in the place where the blasting was to be conducted." The car was completely demolished in the explosion. It is my opinion since there were no eye-witnesses of the accident that a sudden jar occurred on the car which caused the explosion," he said. The survivors, of whom there were six, were all within a distance of fifty yards from the other men and when the explosion occurred the concussion was obstructed by a projection in the rock, it was said by one. Detonator caps to be used in blasting were found scattered and clutched firmly in the dead men's hands. The bodies of Fred Maynard Vanness was mangled beyond recognition but Maynard and Berry did not bear any marks.

COLONEL SIMS VISITS CITADEL

Other S. A. Leaders Will Take Part in Sunday Services

On the occasion of the special visit of Lieut.-Col. R. Sims of the Salvation Army Corps to this city on Sunday special services will be held by the local corps in the citadel. Services will be held both afternoon and evening, during which time Lieut. Sims will be in charge.

Colonel Sims' career with the Salvation Army in this country has been as varied as the appointments he has held since joining. Converted in The Friends (Quaker) meeting early in 1888, he worshipped with them until the following year when he joined the Salvation Army and worked for their Sunday School for four years.

Commissioned as Lieutenant forty-two years ago in London, England, by General William Booth, he was sent to Canada and appointed to St. Catharines in 1894. The entire period since then has been spent in Salvation Army activities from Alaska and the Pacific to Halifax and Newfoundland.

Appointments have been varied, including eight years as the officer responsible for all young people's activities, including Scouts and Guards from Port Arthur, Ontario, to Vancouver and Alaska.

For twenty years have been spent in the men's social work, which includes Salvation Army activities on behalf of the unfortunate, including those in prison. In this connection the Colonel has visited every penitentiary in Canada, also the Provincial prisons.

Colonel Sims was one of the delegates chosen from the whole of Canada to attend the International Prison Congress held in Prague, Czechoslovakia a few years ago.

While in Belleville he will visit Hastings County jail during the morning and will conduct services in the afternoon. Major Wallace Hughes, Toronto and Major and Mrs. Smith of Kingston will also attend and assist in the Sunday evening service.

Several have tapped around this district and Mr. Carman Nix reports having collected over 40 gallons of sap on Monday a. m., but many think it is not going to be a good year.

The telephone subscribers are finding out those days what a convenience it is. It is understood that it will be two months or more before the phone is re-established in this district. From the Seymour-Rawdon boundary line on the 5th concession of Seymour to Campbellford. It is a rare thing to see a telephone pole standing until about a mile or more from Campbellford. Some subscribers on the 5th concession of Seymour can occasionally get connection by a few minutes on the 3rd concession of Rawdon which is on Stirling Central. Every one is glad that the work is done as it was only off a matter of 30 hours or so.

RADIO CONTROL WILL BE CHANGED

Plan Laid to Abolish Present Radio Commission

Ottawa, March 26.— A draft bill to place the supervision of radio broadcasting under a new Broadcasting Corporation comprising seven directors and a general manager, has been submitted to the House of Commons Radio Committee by Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Railways and Canals.

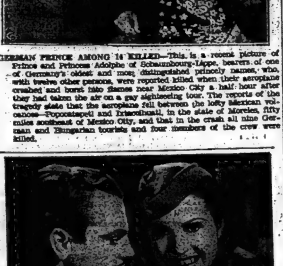
The draft will be a basis of inquiry for the committee, which will begin public meetings Tuesday. Under it the present Radio Commission would be abolished. The draft declares:

"This draft act is intended to supersede the Canadian Radio Broadcasting Act, 1932, and the Maher is repealed. It is proposed to abolish the present Radio Commission of three, and to substitute therefore a Broadcasting Corporation with a board of seven directors appointed by the Governor-in-Council and a general manager.

"The act establishes the corporation and details the powers and duties. The corporation is to take over all assets of the present Commission, and is to undertake all national broadcasting under a license from the Minister. The control of the private broadcasting stations, which now rests with the Canadian Commission, is transferred back to the Minister, but the latter, in making regulations for such stations, is to consult and co-operate with the corporation.

Control of private stations, wavelengths, hours of broadcasting, advertising and other programs and censorship of radio matter would be returned to the Minister under the draft, who would have the advice of the corporation. The present Radio Commission has had responsibility for such control.

The draft is intended as a guide for the committee and there is nothing on it to indicate it represents the final decision of the Government in the matter.



The seven directors would serve at the pleasure of the Government, who would name the Chairman and vice-Chairman. Two of the seven would represent the Dominion and one each would represent the following geographical divisions: Ontario, Quebec, Maritimes, the Prairie Provinces and British Columbia. Divisional representatives must live in the divisions they represent.

The Chairman would get $7,000 per annum. If an executive committee was established, each member would get $500. Otherwise all directors would be paid $10 per day for each day they attended meetings and all would be repaid expenses.

QUEEN IS MADE GRAND MASTER

Succeeds Her Son, King Edward Who Vacates Head of O. B. E.

London, March 26—Queen Mary was last night appointed Grand Master of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, the order to which most Canadians who have been honored by his Majesty belong.

King Edward was Grand Master of the Order, which was instituted in 1917, until the time of his accession when he became Sovereign of the Order. Queen Mary is the first woman to hold the office.

The Order is for services rendered to the Empire, whether at home or abroad, and is open to both men and women. Its motto is: "For God and Empire."

Under the death of King George, her Majesty has been living in almost complete seclusion. She has frequently visited Marlborough House to which she is expected shortly to move from Buckingham Palace.

Thursday Queen Mary made a surprise visit to Adelphi Terrace, now in the course of demolition. She appeared to derive much enjoyment in inspecting the fine eighteenth century houses, built by the brothers Adams, and formulating plans to this day a quiet haven but a step from the turmoil and bustle of the Strand.

The Queen inspected at a discreet distance the enormous arches on which Adelphi Terrace rises from the level of the Thames to that of the Strand.

KILLED BY HORSE

Lindsay, Ont., March 26—When William Imrie, owner of the Palmyra Farm near Woodville failed to return to the house after making his usual evening inspection, his hired man, Albert Bailey, found his employer lying on the stable floor dead, with a six-foot-old horse standing by.

Mr. Imrie had apparently been knocked down and crushed by the horse, death instant was considered unnecessary.

Mr. Imrie was nationally known as a sheep breeder.

NATIONAL PORT BILL IS CARRIED

Some Members of House Are Critical But No Vote is Asked

Ottawa, Mar. 26 (CP)—Members of Parliament are busy today reading up on the complicated story of the Dominion Government's dealing with western wheat since 1929 as the House of Commons stands adjourned after the most hectic week of the session.

Hon. James G. Gardiner, former Premier of Saskatchewan and now Minister of Agriculture, started the fireworks last week when he hitched dead his bill to write the final chapter in the Dominion Government's 1930 guarantee of the wheat pools' bank account. Hostilities ceased for the week-end when the Minister ended his speech on second reading of the Bill last night but they resume on Monday when Opposition Leader Bennett makes his reply.

Wheat has been the chief bone of contention between the parties in the House so far and promises to remain so until the end of the session with an investigation into the operations of the old wheat board headed by John I. McFarland and the new one headed by James Murray pending. Both Conservatives and Liberals keep hinting at disclosures when they probe after going before committees of the House.

Centralization of Control.

Centralization of the control of Canada's national ports, Halifax, Saint John, Quebec, Three Rivers, Chicoutimi, Montreal and Vancouver, in a National Harbors Board received the approval of the House when second reading of this bill to accomplish this purpose passed without a recorded vote.

A number of members representing harbor constituencies were critical of it but none enabled for a vote. G. O. McGeer, Mayor of Vancouver and Liberal Member for Vancouver-Burrard, was opposed to the proposal and thought no more than Ottawa would have the local knowledge and the proper outlook for the management of the Vancouver Harbor.

Loss of Local Autonomy.

Hedi. McGeer and Thomas Vien (Lib, Quinemont-Montreal) feared centralization and loss of local autonomy would increase sectional discontent and resent against federal authority. Both said French-Canadians were not getting a square deal in Canada now and referred to a reported movement to promote an independent French Republic on the shores of the St. Lawrence.

Canada's capital was in the wrong place as far as the west coast was concerned, said Mr. McGeer, and members of parliament were able to grasp the fact better if Ottawa lay on the Ocean but only a few were really aware of the Pacific Ocean. His colleague from Vancouver, Mr. Ellis, agreed.

Vancouver harbor was in competition with American harbors which had the full benefit of the billions of government in the United States, in an aggressive program to establish Seattle and Portland as primacy on the Pacific the port should be under the direction of men on the spot who were alive to the situation and not under the influence of the ports of Buffalo and New York.

CRUSHED BY HORSE

Lindsay, March 26.—William Imrie, owner of Fairview Farm, one mile south of Woodville was crushed to death by a horse. His body was from dis a stall he had been by Harold Bailey, his hired man.

Imrie, as was his custom, went in the barn before retiring to look at his stock. When he failed to return Bailey searched and found the body. Subsequent inquiry Imrie had suffered several broken ribs, one of which punctured a lung. Shock—internal bleeding was unnecessary.

Imrie was well-known throughout Ontario as a breeder of prize-winning sheep which he had shown at many rural fairs and at Toronto exhibitions.

POLICEMAN AND THE CHILD

Patrolmen are urged to study children, particularly the case of the delinquent child, at a meeting held here with Washington concerning the work of the Federation Children's Bureau.

Police are placed at the forefront of the movement to deal with "problem" boys and girls on the crime-prevention basis. The policeman will be a neighborhood friend, who can talk to children in their own language and inspire respect for law and authority. The bureau is strongly in favor of having women on the police forces, for "qualified police women whose duties include assistance in the enforcement of laws for child protection, should be on the staff of every police department and "both men and women should be assigned to the juvenile court detail."

Courts and correctional institutions will continue the child psychology methods of the corner policeman. Now the relationship of the delinquent child to the other members of his family, their respective feelings and attitudes, the needs of each and of the families as a whole, become vital factors in juvenile court investigations.

The Bureau urges that "since the home conditions have frequently been responsible in part for the child's delinquency, this will often mean the enlistment of a family case-work agency to carry on a vigorous family rehabilitation program during the child's committal. No child should be paroled or discharged from an institution until suitable arrangements have been made for his care in the community to which he is sent."

MEN AT WORK

Floods have put many men to work on work of clearing debris and reclamation. Belleville has seen many workless go to labor under the city public works department cleaning up the mud, big relief from Pittsburg and other sufferers in the floods in the Eastern United States have had thousands of men turned to work.

It seems too bad that some such attitude could not have been taken towards the depression for the depression is a flood and a deadening and destructive flood which has marred lives, and at least changed the course of many young persons. It has brought sickness despite every relief and social agency and it has laid a toll on mankind commensurate only with the havoc of war though its ravages cannot be so clearly marked. It is even claimed that the war in East Africa is a result of untoward economic conditions in Italy. If that is so then the depression is responsible for the death and suffering of countless young Italians and semi-barbarous Ethiopians who did not deserve such a fate.

The depression is indeed a flood of the worst kind. It lasted for years but a flood of water lasts only a few days though its effects endure.

Has man been able to discover some scheme to keep men steadily at work earning enough to live and to spend wisely? So far the answer is negative in appearance. In spite of the depression and in spite of the evident lack of any definite scheme to prevent further slump catastrophes, though since changes of a beneficial character have been made.

PUBLIC SAFEGUARD

Surprise audits of brokerage houses have resulted in the closing of a number of firms out of business. This has been announced by Ontario Securities Commissioner, Col. Godfrey. The use of the surprise audit is found a valuable check on brokerage firms. Those who do not come up to the requirements of the Commissioner shut their doors.

That is as it should be. Protection clears the air of the feeling that all might not be well with certain firms. It creates confidence and goes quite far in assuring the investment public.

Of course it has nothing to do with honest transaction in which a man pays sometimes too much for a stock. That is his lookout, for he must go into purchases with his eyes open at least. But by the operation of the Securities Act an effort is made to assure him a fair deal.

Brokerage firms now must have their books in good shape all the time for the auditors come suddenly without warning. No self-respecting firm objects to that.

MODEL HOUSEKEEPING

House-keeping courses in the high school at Indianapolis are being taught in a modern bungalow with all the atmosphere of a pleasant home. The cottage of five rooms and bath has the modern last word in efficiency. The interior owes its planning and layout to the energy of the girls in the homemaking course. Draperies, rugs, blinds, pictures, offered problems to the young students, which were attacked by them and solved.

This is something new in the setting for instruction in domestic science courses. It used to be a class room, now it is a home such as people live in and a very modern home at that.

THE EMERALD ISLE

There's an island, green and glowing,
Far across the ocean's foam,
'Tis to her fond hearts are turning
Wherso'er their footsteps roam;
For oh! Erin loves her children,
Watches from her sea-girt shore,
Hoping for their safe returning
When their pilgrimage is o'er.

Green her valies and meads and mountains,
Blue the skies that o'er them shine,
Blue her lake's bright waters gleaming
With a glory, grand, sublime;
Blue the Irish eyes, where laughter
Blends so easily with tears,
Sad the songs with minor music
Echoing downward through the years.

Tara's Hall no more resounding
With the tuneful harp and song,
Many longer years discarding
O'er the Emerald Isle prolong;
Come again, O good St. Patrick!
Bring to Erin sweet release,
Breathe once more the fairy message
Then old Ireland will have peace.

UNITED STATES COLLEGES DEPEND LARGERLY UPON ENDOWMENTS for their support, but the large sums left by rich men who, as a general rule, have graduated from that college and wish to be remembered in their Alma Mater as well as to enhance its usefulness. Harvard endowment fund last year was $128,827,065, as compared with $99,976,138 in 1929, an evidence that Harvard had come through the depression years with flying colors. Other colleges report a similar prosperous condition. Yale's showing, Maryland, has been battling with declining income and now has a deficit of one million dollars, largely caused by failing off in endowments during the depression. The founder of the university was Johns Hopkins, who is described as a "son of a Maryland tobacco planter whose Quaker principles made him free his slaves and send his sons to work. Johns Hopkins received no schooling after he was twelve. He started his fortune by exchanging groceries and farm products for work with his neighbors, selling the whiskey as 'Hopkins' Best.' He increased it by shrewd business ventures in slaves and money lending. Because his only love was a first cousin he never married. He became president of a bank, a leader in insurance, shipping and warehousing. He laid the foundation of his fortune in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. But to the end of his life he never wore an overcoat, walked whenever he could save money by it and bought his clothes ready-made. He died at the end of 1873 he left some $7,000,000, nearly his whole fortune, half to found a university and half for a hospital which would be free to all Baltimore's poor."

IRVING BERLIN, SONG WRITER, WAS PAID $75,000 for his work on "Follow the Fleet," a cinema, besides a share in the receipts, by Radio Keith Orpheum, in which his song "I'm Putting All My Eggs In One Basket", became popular overnight and was the song most widely sung over the air in the latest census of air favorites. Irving Berlin wrote his first song 29 years ago when he was a singing waiter in a Bowery saloon. Berlin has many popular songs to his credit but his most notable achievement was in winning Helen McKay, for a bride. Helen is the daughter of one of the richest of the Western mining magnates who struck it rich in the hills of the western United States and have been putting on the plush ever since. From the Bowery to Park Avenue was quite a jump for Irving Berlin, but it was a shorter jump at that than that from Poker Gulch in the Sierras to Delmonicos and New York's First Hundred, after the Four Hundred.

A Soft Spot

The country farmer had given permission to sleep in the barn to an old Irishman.

That night the farmer went round to the barn to see that the man was comfortable, and found him lying on a heap of straw with a drainpipe for a pillow.

"Don't you find that pipe hard?" asked the farmer.

"No, yer honor," said Pat. "I've filled it with straw."

Time is the great comforter of grief, but the agency by which it works is extraordinary.—L. R. Landon.

AN HISTORIC COINCIDENCE?—It is to be fervently hoped that no significance be attached to these remarkable photos. The picture at LEFT was taken on August 3, 1914, as Prince Lichnowsky, then German Ambassador to England, walked in a London park, head bowed, just after he had visited the British Foreign Office. In March, 1936, a similar scene was photographed as Joachim von Ribbentrop, present German Ambassador, walked in a park near St. James' Palace, when the League of Nations council considered Germany's remilitarization of the Rhine.

Stands for Publicly-Owned R.R. System

60 Dundas Street,
Belleville, Ontario,
March 26, 1936.

The Editor Ontario Intelligencer
Dear Sir:

There is always two sides to a story.

Recently Mr. S. W. Fairweather, Director Bureau of Economics, Canadian National Railways, gave an address at Moncton proving without a doubt the many misconceptions of the Canadian National Railways. It is of very great benefit to the publicly-owned Railways are being condemned by the private interests, and that the C.N.R. is not such a losing concern as they are trying to make it appear.

The Montreal Star comes out with the other side, showing up the playing the mistake the government and the private companies have made ever since the first Railways were built.

In my mind the Montreal Star's article is the biggest smoke screen ever published. Everyone knows that there are too many miles of Railway and that there has been too much money spent and it does n't make any difference to me now who was the most to blame for it. It is done and we have got to make the best of it. The Star did not show us one person living that ever made a success and they have been at it sufficiently long enough to clearly argue that their should be something done. Mr. Fairweather has proved that the C.N.R. is coming along under public ownership and will continue to do so if given a chance. The Star shows very plainly that the country cannot stand two railways and to my mind there has never been a private railway that has made a success in this country. It is high time the government stepped in and took the bull by the horns. The Government has run the Post Office Department long enough that people are sick for themselves that there is one outfit that they can run satisfactorily to the people. There is nothing certain and the Montreal Star at times cannot be accused of it. You don't have to tell a farmer to look after his own farm and he sure should apply to the Canadian tax-payers who own the C. N. R. a rubber-stamp word, sanitized is that if the Canadian National Railways is made a profit, 100 per cent remains in Canada, and if the C. P. R. made a profit, around 90 per cent goes out of the country in dividends to the C. P. R. shareholders.

My solution to the railway problem is to ship and travel C. N. R. wherever possible.

Sweeping Off the Water

To the Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

I am writing this letter to call the attention of the corporation of Front and Bridge Streets to the condition of the walks in front of their property after a rain, with pools of water in so many places.

Would it not be a good plan for the corporation to have the walks thus accumulated swept off the walk into the gutter, so as to make walking better.

Mr. Merchant, will you co-operate with the city to make the streets more presentable?

Observer.

Mr. Mikel Makes Suggestion

Belleville, March 26, 1936.

The Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

I would respectfully take the liberty of bringing to your attention that the time seems now opportune to get rid of the two railway bridges across the Moira River, also the dangerous railway crossings at Ohson's in the east and the Connerty in the west, and also get rid of the track on Pinnacle Street.

It is believed by some that the existence of the piers of the railway bridges contribute to the flood dangers. If this is so, no doubt the railway would readily welcome an opportunity to get rid of this danger so that they might be relieved from heavy damages. If the railway has to pay damages in the next few generations it may cost them far more money than it would to make the change suggested. Changed conditions may make it would not only eliminate claims for damages resulting from floods, but claims for damages to Pilsen's crossing to the east of Belleville and at the Cemetery crossing to the west of Belleville, as well as any claims that might occur by reason of the railway track on Pinnacle Street.

My suggestion is that the bridges be removed and the C. P. R. trains in and out of Belleville run over the C. N. R. tracks, thus rendering the Ohson crossing and the cemetery crossing unnecessary, and the track on Pinnacle Street, also the up and put down at the east of the city, somewhere near Herchimer Avenue, connecting with the various sidings at the southern limit of the city. Private sidings off the Pinnacle Street line should be no barrier, because the railway when putting in private sidings, reserves the right to discontinue them.

If this proposal has merits, as I believe it has, it can be accomplished. Of course you will always find people ready to show that any proposal put forward cannot be accomplished, but the world is full of accomplishments which experts declared were impossible.

If it is worth while to prevent the destruction of life and eliminate danger to property and make conditions in the city more desirable it is worth while attempting.

I am told there was a time when at least twice as many trains used the C. P. R. tracks as are used them as the present, so there is no good reason why these tracks could not be used by both lines.

I would take the liberty of suggesting united action by the City Council, the Chamber of Commerce, Service Clubs, Labour Organizations, Property Owner's Association, various Lodges, and all other organizations in the city.

Perhaps a Board of Trade could be organized, that would embrace all other organizations, without any membership fee, to bring about united action.

W. G. Mikel.

Judge Will Hear His Evidence And Decide If Jury is to Hear

Bail, Que., March 27 (CP)—Mr. Justice Bond, presiding over Bail-ne would hear a defence witness tomorrow in the sensational defence counsel for Paul Lafleur, of six men charged with the hold-up slaying of Samuel Hudson last December. The witness, not named will be called when other defence counsel conclude their addresses to the jury, probably later today.

Mr. Gagnon yesterday moved to reopen the inquiry to allow the new witness to be heard. The jury will be excluded when the witness tells his story. If Judge Gagnon rules the jury should hear his testimony, the addresses to the jury will have to be delivered again.

GERMANY STUDIES EDEN'S ADDRESS

Last Word Sought From Britain by Germany's Envoy

London, Mar. 27 (CP)—Joachim von Ribbentrop, seeking Great Britain's latest word before returning to Berlin to confer with Adolf Hitler on the Rhineland crisis negotiations, conferred with Anthony Eden today at Foreign Office.

Informed sources said the Reich emissary sought an explanation of parts of Mr. Eden's speech in the house of Commons yesterday, in which the Foreign Secretary said that the Belgian conciliatory gesture of some kind was necessary to solve the Rhineland impasse, and made a strong appeal to France to try to deal with Der Fuehrer with an open mind.

Hitler's ambassador at large was understood to be perturbed by some sections of Mr. Eden's speech, particularly that concerning confirmation of Britain's obligations under the Locarno Pact, also by what he claimed generally by the British as the greatest of his career.

I didn't say he said anything silly, but I am sorry he acted that than words. Fishy uttered unsaid volumes, ma said, and pop said, Then by golies he did say something.

Well theoretically, I mean practically, yes, ma said, I was feeding him out of the little bowl of Delsolor Fin-food, but instead of rising to nibble it he remained in his little habit Fishy remained down at the bottom of the aquarium and looked at me with a kind of a cryptick expression. And then fishy it dawned on me. Now what's that if it's not intelligents, Wilburn? ma said.

I'm still 40 fathoms in the dark, pop said, and ma said, My land sakes your own intelligents. Definitely Out of Depression Chamber of Commerce is Told

Balanced Budget is Achieved by Trade Organization

PAYROLLS, BUSINESS

Twelve months of co-operation, progress and a healthy development formed the basis of the report presented at the annual meeting of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce held in the Bay Street hotel on Friday evening. President H. P. Bernstein opening the business session said:—

In the way initial greeting, may I say that it does me a pleasure to welcome you to the 1930 annual meeting of Belleville Chamber of Commerce, and also to extend the good work—I do, that can be accomplished only by the whole-hearted support and co-operation of the entire membership.

Manager J. O. Herity's report was as follows:—

To the members of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

Last year the Chamber of Commerce covered an unusually eventful period. Your executive presented at the annual report a comprehensive review, not only of the preceding year's activities, but of the entire period from the first organization in 1919. It will therefore not be necessary for me to refer in any more than a brief formal report thereto. It is sufficient to say, however, that the work of the Chamber is lasting and has been constructive in character and effort in behalf of the community we call Belleville strongly manifested itself.

Moving Out of the Depression.

Unless all indications are wrong, we have definitely moved out of the period of depression and business is one of the most serious in over a decade as well as one of the largest in its influence. We now realize that it had to come in order to permit for the extravagance and financial excesses of the post-war period. Those years of business tragedies all along the pain and confronted us with many serious problems, many of which are still unsolved.

Adopting a Balanced Budget.

It is with satisfaction that we are able again to report to our members that our financial year has closed with a surplus. Every effort has been made to conform to the volume of receipts, and the budget has again remained within a balanced budget. In achieving this result, however, a new service of the Chamber of Commerce has been discontinued, namely the Radio Hour so vigorously carried out as it revenues were brought in.

The loyalty of the membership through all these trying years, when funds were urgently needed, to sustain the individual business, has been one of the outstanding features of civic spirit that has ever come within the range of my observation and experience. The business men and the professional men of Belleville have won our sincere admiration for their courage and efficiency in the midst of most discouraging conditions. Indeed men to the utmost, and I feel that there is no other city on this continent that has a greater variety of success for refusal to maintain interest in services of a non-commercial character.

Payment of Dividends.

But the business and professional community has recognized that the Chamber of Commerce is not to be supported as a charity but as an organization that will bring substantial returns over the comparatively small amount expended for its maintenance. This is evidenced by the fact that the City of Belleville by the Chamber of Commerce is receiving dividends on this and of such a nature that they should be supported by appropriations of any monetary standard. But those services are none the less real and essential and form a part of community progress.

Direct Financial Returns.

There are other services, however, such as the acquirement of new industries, and the development of industries already established, where the Chamber of Commerce performs a duty of very definite financial importance to every citizen.

Mainly through the promotive efforts of the Chamber of Commerce a large number of American industries have established branches or factories at Belleville. Without exception these lines of manufacturing industry which bring huge amounts of money into this city from all parts of Canada and much of it from foreign countries.

One of these industries, the Stevens-Warner Corporation, has its head office in Chicago, paid out in wages in its Belleville branch the fine total of $137,000 during 1929.

Wage Annual Payrolls.

The latest obtainable report from the Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa places the manufacturing industries in Belleville for the year 1928. In that year the depression reached its lowest depth. Even in that year of small volume, depleted demand, and multiple difficulties, the industries of Belleville paid out in wages the huge total of $614,895. During the same year the same group of industries paid out for raw materials another huge total of $1,193,766. In the difference between the total paid out for wages was $1,317,000 and for raw materials $1,193,766. The capital invested was then $13,-000,000 and the value of the products $2,800,000.

With the return to normal times and the greatly increased capacity of our manufacturing plants, it is reasonable to expect that 1929 will be greatly exceeded.

A Great Centre For Retail Trade.

Other highly interesting returns are given by the last issue of the Dominion Census in the matter with regard to the retail trade in Belleville.

It is shown, for instance, that Belleville has 262 retail stores in the various lines of retail sale. In the year for which the returns are given the aggregate of sales amounted to the enormous total of $7,831,200, to give employment to 1,000 persons in these lands and pay out in salaries the sum of $900,000. The total sales are by the different types of retail stores as follows: Grocery stores, $784,-000; meat markets, $294,000; fruit stores, $236,000; men's clothing and furnishings, $213,000; shoes and repairs, $217,000; shoe stores, $340,000; filling stations, $308,000; combined grocery and meat shops, $556,000; five-and-ten-cent stores, $1,-000; automobile accessories, $232,000; coal and wood, $470,000; hardware, $377,000.

The above figures will convince that the enormous trade carried on by the retail establishments of Belleville maintains this city one of the most important retail centres in all Ontario, and a most desirable location in its residence.

Steady Growth in Population.

Indicative of our growing importance as an industrial centre as also a thriving retail trade community is the steady and continuous growth in population. In 1911 the Dominion census credited Belleville with a population of only 9,876 which was much less than the 11,121 at which the municipality started out on its career as a city in 1916. The census returns of 1924 showed that our population had climbed from less than ten thousand to more than fourteen thousand or an increase of more than 40 per cent. The census of 1926 showed that the figures had grown to be still larger by an actual count 14,443, an increase of nearly 300 over the year before.

New Industry Established.

Another new industry, the Belleville Casket Company, was established here in the Fall of 1929 and will make another addition to Belleville's industrial wealth. The new company has secured a large measure of business connections and reports an encouraging volume of business in exceedingly satisfactory.

Your executive has practically completed for the establishment of another new industry here to manufacture a line of goods not now made in this city.

Another very important industrial development of the past year was the superphosphate of the plants of the Canada Packers, Limited, and the Belleville and Bancroft, by the well known firm of Wm. Davies Company Christmas, of London, England. This industry is the first of its kind in the world, as wholesale dealers in cheese. They have specialized in the making of the by-product of cheese, and are the largest manufacture of butter in a large way. Their products are recognized as portant butter-making plants in Canada. Belleville's new fertilizer plant will now be known as the Maple Valley Dairy.

Another new local plant of Quality Canners to Fine Foods of Canada, Limited, is now associated industrially with the Minnesota Valley Canners, the second largest canning organization in the world.

The Big "A" Company, established over three years ago, as an auxiliary to the Canadian Wheel-Runner sales and service, has found business conditions so satisfactory that it is now a volume as to require much larger quarters. The Big "A" Company therefore been moved to the former Peck and Wills building on Pinnacle street where much more commodious space has been provided.

Capable Presiding Officers.

Mr. J. R. Boyce, the retiring president, served the organization faithfully and well during the year 1935. During his term he has been one of the most faithful, hard-working and zealous presiding officers that the Chamber of Commerce has ever had as the head of the organization. Mr. Boyce himself occupies a position of responsibility and successful businesses in Belleville. He has found time, however, to devote to the Commercial offices in both the Rotary Club and the Chamber of Commerce the past year and to both these positions has given distinguished service.

Mr. R. F. Bernstein, the president for 1936, is the energetic and capable head of the Bernstein Realty Company of Canada, Limited, one of the Belleville's most successful branch factories established at Belleville.

INDUSTRIES IN CITY WORTHWHILE SAYS MR. HERITY

Six or Seven Represent Largest of Their Kind in World

WORKING AT ALL TIME

Meeting Told Manager's Salary Only $250 Per Year

Marked by a gratifying attendance, the annual meeting of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce was held in the New Queen's Hotel last evening.

Prior to the meeting President H. P. Bernstein, welcoming the large turn out of members, following the dinner, expressed pleasure at the opportunity to voice his appreciation of the splendid work that had been shown him in his election to the office of president. He said in part:

"All I can say is, that I will try, and hope to carry on in the manner that has been established by my predecessors. In doing this I realize, that I will need the full support of every member," appealed the president.

"I feel it is important, that every member make full use of this Chamber of Commerce, since they can see fit. The facilities are there, and they are always open to you. The Chamber in any city the size of this is the home of you don't use them, then they'll be wasted. The citizens have been chosen to help you in your work, the information they can provide may be, to you and them, making this office more of the most important retail centres in all Ontario, in proportion to population.

Steady Growth in Population.

Upon the motion of W. C. Springer, secretary of the last meeting of the Chamber were taken as read, the minutes to be those of the annual meeting.

Then followed the annual report of the Chamber which is reproduced elsewhere in this issue. Secretary-manager J. O. Herity called attention to the fact that the report was the fifteenth annual one, the first year the report submitted occupied sixteen pages.

"You will notice," pointed out Mr. Herity, "that your Chamber is not the only thing that is progressing. We cut according to our cloth. If we haven't got the money, we don't spend, or go into debt."

$613,000 in Wages

"The second item worthy of notice in this report is the wage figures for the city. They are based upon certified returns as presented to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, but this report shows only the returns for the city proper, the year's wages in the city amounted to $613,000 in wages alone. In the year 1919, when the Chamber was formed, the wage total was $1,317,000. Last year, it is safe to say more than one million dollars was paid out."

"During the past few years," continued secretary-manager Herity "we have become the home of six or seven industries that have been really worth while. Of these probably the most prominent from the standpoint of industries, that are the largest of their kind in the world, are the Canadian Hardware Company, the American Locomotive Company, the Gray-T. Cash Company, whose plant at Oswestry, England alone employes more than 1,000 men, the Ault & Wiborg Company, largest packers; the Stevens-Warner Corporation, largest manufacturers of auto accessories, and the Canada Packers Company, a plant which works every day of the year. These are the kind we should have. We have the men to work, and these there is no need to think that we have not the kind of industrial companies, which works in sports, for the support of the city. The canning plant here has been taken over by the second largest company in the United States. The Canada Greameries is now operated by the largest distributors of butter, cheese, buyers and exporters in the industry Dominion Dairies Corporation.

"The industries brought into this city during the last half dozen years have been worth many times the hundreds of dollars. We have also brought into Belleville more than class manufacturing companies and have made many other lines to be established. Suppose we had not secured these industries? Where would we have been? Belleville has not progressed 50c. Herity. The annual report of the Chamber of Commerce reveal the activities of many of the smaller individual manufacturing plants.

Salary $250 Per Year

"Any questions regarding this," asked President Bernstein as a motion to adopt the report was moved by H. E. Fairfield.

President Bernstein: "That has been a sore point, with the directors. But the Chamber is not a charity. We been attempting to cut down or cut the salary, but so far we have failed. It has not been particularly true that year alone, it has been going on for some time. But we are going to do what can be done about it."

Upon the motion of Mr. R. Rigg and seconded by James Cowan, the auditors' report was submitted by Mr. Herity and reprinted elsewhere in this issue was adopted.

The following new applicants have been accepted as members during the past year: Mr. Mead, Mr. Morton, Mr. H. R. Fairfield and seconded by Mr. Herity and reprinted elsewhere in this issue was adopted.

place counted up $47.00 in United States bills that were passed through the wicket," he related.

"Like the birds in Aitken's sanctuary, tourists will come and they'll stay if they get what they want. We have all the water we want; we have the waterfront and all the space that's needed. All that we have is a little sand to make the beach, and a sand sucker could get enough of that down behind the hospital to carry the city.

The Unemployed.

"We also have an army of unemployed. You and I spend some 50 or 60 thousand dollars a year here and let them. Yet we are looking for it. Take these men down there and let them to work. Let us create a place that also been suggested. Others can go, as well as the tourist."

Alderman Cushing was not prepared to say whether the beach should be created south of the tourist camp or elsewhere, but the idea had been suggested, but it was not necessarily the present site. Other places had also been suggested.

"There was a committee named some years ago to report on the waterfront, but it appears that another one will be needed. We are trying to bring it before the people for their consideration. We have had it on the beach the first year, but we'll have a start."

Head of a civic manager for Belleville was also cited by Alderman Cushing, who declared it was worth considering this matter for the past two years.

"The affairs of management in this city are not what they should be. There are too many heads. A city manager could save his salary ten times over in Belleville. We have efficiency here before we can do any thing else. Let us have a man. The city manager will have to come."

Alderman named several United States cities where, it was pointed by him, great economies had been effected through this method of management.

"It is the intention of the committee to have work started on this project, immediately," Mayor Ketcheson questioned Mr. Jack McIntosh.

Alderman Cushing: "It is the intention of your humble servant in having the matter up, but we've got to have the people behind us or we can't do anything. I could go down and pick and shovel myself, but it's a long time before I get any place. We have been going to have a movement to the present council and all the others."

The Idea

"The idea is to map out a program and then keep going!"

Mr. Rigg Kingston: "That's right. They didn't go at it all in a rush; neither did Rome. It took them hundreds of years. But we'll have it. And it is up to you business men to back it up. Let's get something started."

Mayor Ketcheson: "Nothing has been dealt with before. The committee was appointed by the council. It is my recommendation that they dig into the work. The city engineer has been asked for a blue print showing what could be done, but we have not received it. It will be received within; with snow. However, the matter is nearly complete and will be dealt with as has been pointed out. It will be taken up again and then we can go ahead. Now, let us get down to what can be done about it."

Mayor Ketcheson: "I move the motion be now adjourned."

Alderman Cushing: "I second that. Let us get down to work."

"Yes, let us get down to work," declared Mr. Rigg. "We have a lot to do. We have a lot of unemployed. Let us get down to work."

Yvonne Dionne Teaches Sisters A New Stunt

Callander, Ont., March 28 (CP)—Young Yvonne Dionne celebrated her 22nd month of life today by sleeping late in bed and awakening the Defoe hospital staff before sunrise. It was the most precocious quint's private stunt, this climbing out of bed alone, and her sisters took only a few minutes to learn it.

Yvonne received a push here and a pull there would result in the side of the cot dropping down and she'd scramble out on the floor of the hospital floor. Her sisters watched with interest and it was the time at all before all five were banging at their nurses' doors.

Yvonne, Annette, Cecile, Emilie and Marie seem constantly more anxious to develop an independence of their nurses. They make fumbling efforts to assist in dressing and undressing themselves and have even arrived at the matter of getting a button through a buttonhole without flopping it off.

Tuesday Dr. Walter G. Thompson and Dr. J. A. Phair of the Ontario Department of Health called on the quints' teeth and pronounced them sound and perfect. Dr. Defoe has started them brushing their teeth and they like it. All have 18 teeth. Yvonne is 13.

Dr. Thompson said it was remarkable that their teeth were alike. They are all perfect but each tooth in Emilie's lower jaw than the rest and this long tooth is in the same position in each quintet's mouth.

Their heights now are: Marie 30½ inches; Emilie, 31; Cecile 31¼; Annette 31¾; and Yvonne 31¾. All gained weight during the month Cecile leading with an added 13½ ounces.

St. Andrew's Young People's Society

Stirling — The regular weekly meeting of St. Andrew's Guild was held in the form of a social evening on Monday evening in the Sunday school rooms under the direction of the Social Department, led by Miss Winnifred Ward, the Vice-President. Carrying out the leap year idea, the ladies were requested to bring a "can, can," with a penalty being imposed upon those who failed to carry out the request. The meeting was opened with the usual song service and Mr. Duncan Mercer, pianist, acted as chairman. After the singing of several hymns Rev. J. A. Kofford led in prayer and the scripture lesson which was taken from the 9th chapter of St. Mark. This was followed by the business portion of the meeting during which collection was given to the proposal by the Pastors organization to produce a play at an early future date. The matter was left in the hands of a committee appointed to deal with it.

Mock Trial

The main feature on the program was a very amusing mock trial in which Mr. Bill Dermidy was the plaintiff in a suite against Miss McGee for seventy-five thousand dollars for alienation of his wife's affections. The play was presented in a most complete fashion causing a lot of laughter as the conflicting evidence was presented by the witnesses for both sides. Mr. E. Ormiston acted as judge, Tom McGee the defendant; Bill Dermidy, plaintiff; Mrs. McGee, co-Defendant, Mrs. L. Rodgers; Prosecuting Attorney, Delence Attorney, Municipal Council, Fred McGee; Constable, Emile Calin; Clerk of the Court, Orval Casement; Witnesses for the Plaintiff, Miss Helena Fargey and Harold Baker; Witnesses for the defence, Ross Scott and Mrs. Fred Rubin. The jury, Aimer Williams, Mrs. J. Johnston, Mrs. Frederick Johnston, Mrs. Orval Casement and Miss Evelyn Drewry. All characters in this amusing sketch gave a fine display of real talent. After the presentation of the trial the meeting was closed with the National Anthem, the benediction by Benediction, Miss Winnifred Ward then announced an interesting "Leap Year Contest." The young ladies then served candy and popcorn. It was also a leap year social among the ladies of the year, with a record-breaking attendance. The remainder of the evening was spent in a social manner.

The Young Mother Has her health problems

Happy and fortunate is he who finds who enters married life in full ried. life in full possession of health or of mind and body. Perhaps the importance of health as a factor in the success of marriage is sometimes overlooked.

But the cares and worries of the household and the tremendous strain of baby's coming demand an abundance of rich, red blood and a healthy, buoyant nervous system. Modern living and present financial exigencies tend to make the life of the woman in the home more difficult and more nerve racking.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food can be of very great benefit to you both before and after baby's coming. By restoring health of body and mind it will serve you from the irritabilities which tend to destroy the happiness of the home. It will restore hope and confidence at a time when ill health leaves one only the dark side of things.

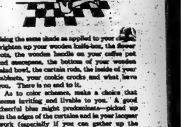
Kitchen



Are you on good terms with your own kitchen? You ought to be since it is your "office" and the scene of a goodly portion of day's labour. Every kitchen can be a pretty kitchen . . . and often enough doesn't have it. But don't waste too much sympathy on the kitchen that is largely her own fault. No matter how windowless the room may be, or old fashioned the fixtures, there is rarely no reason why it should be bleak or gloomy. There are many inexpensive things that can be done today to dress up the kitchen, so let's start with the largest order and work down to the little things . . . the little things that really count.

In the first place don't let anyone catch your kitchen with a dirty face. Scrub the sink, grease and film from the old paint, put a good well paint that will endure (it isn't expensive) and then put it on. Any good dealer will give you instructions or supply you with booklets on how the job should be done. You'll be able to use it, scrub it, and enjoy the room with no fear for its loveliness. With proper cleansing and waxing your sink will always look fresh and bright, the elements that usually the efficient home manager.

Then the floor—unless you've a white linoleum or tile on your palatial estate. I'd suggest a liquid wax or a water-emulsion floor finish. It's easy to apply and a wonderful saving and a bi-weekly damp-mopping will take care of it.

Then, furnish those odds and ends of furniture, thrall you try your hand with brush and it on one of those quick-drying enamels that are so successful in hues. But choose your own combination. There are many pretty pastels while practically solve your problem for you. And after all your labours, walk into your refurnished kitchen . . . and cheer.

Using the same shade as applied to your chairs brighten up your wooden built-ins, the floor of your cupboards, under sink or coffee pot and accessories, the bottom of your wooden salad bowl, the curtain rods, the inside of your cupboards, your cookie crocks and what not you. There is no end to it.

As to color schemes, make a choice that seems inviting and livable to you. A good handyman to do your painting and papering will in the edges of the curtains and in your incoper work (especially if you can gather up the wherewithal to get a set of those grand copper cooking utensils), which are really quite popular with a touch of red in it, and a cream or yellow and tomato-coloured linoleum and you've a room with a little gay accent right in hues. But choose your own combination. There are many pretty pastels while practically solve your problem for you. And after all your labours, walk into your refurnished kitchen . . . and cheer.

While Dorothy Petersen and Jean Hershott look on, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, physician to the world-famed Dionne quintuplets, shows his favorite photograph of the baby quints to Mrs. Dafoe and Cecile Chevrier, two actors in "The Country Doctor," at the Belle until Wednesday.

What mistake is this young couple about to make?

They tried brilking . . . They tried coaxing . . . But the child still refuses. Now, they're going to make him take his laxative "even if it takes all day."

And that's the big mistake.

Doctors say that the nervous strain a child undergoes when forced to take a nasty-tasting laxative can throw his entire system out of order. Millions of mothers have learned an easy way to avoid this hazard. They give a laxative all children love to take . . . Castoria.

Do you know that Castoria is made especially for children? It has no harsh, purging drugs that some adult laxatives contain. It won't "crash" its way through a child's delicate system.

Castoria is a safe laxative that gently stimulates the muscles in the bowel to carry away the system those of body waste. And it does its job thoroughly.

Never say laxative but Castoria for your baby. If you have several children, encourage you buy the Family Size Bottle. It lasts longer—is more economical.

Marmora and District

Marmora — About twenty-four years ago five brothers named McLaughlin who had formerly resided at Rednon, Ont., were residing on land in Alberta and decided to celebrate the fact that a reunion had been founded in that section and named after them. The eldest brother is still residing in McLaughlin, John the oldest who is a bore-friend of Thomas formerly of a school teacher who taught in different periods at the Mohawk Station, Lakeview and Rockdale. William is now resident in Oshawa, while Alexander resided in the old native village.

James, the other brother and the last named army some days ago. Alex, who told the story of himself and his brothers in his refreshingly droll manner told that he was the youngest of thirteen. A story developed from the remark of a passing acquaintance: "Did you get rid of all those horses?" Periodically upon adjournment from Alex, John McLaughlin arrives from the west bringing with him a shipment of heavy horses which are raised on the McLaughlin ranch. His last visit was about a week ago when fourteen horses were brought arriving the one hundred and twenty-five dollars apiece. Ten of these went to buyers in Stirling and the West Huntingdon district, a team was sold to John Bell, Marmora Township, and the remaining two to farmers in Belmont Township. Disposal of the stock of the McLaughlin ranch in Alberta is twenty-five head. Alex McLaughlin stated that all buyers were highly satisfied.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

Series of Fascinating Events Led to Quints' Becoming Film Stars

Since the one town theater manager usually wrote his story instead of just taking other's it, and because each Hollywood producer has a phenomenal way of accomplishing anything he starts out to do, the Dionne Quintuplets world famous infants, are making their feature film debut as real stars in a real story, "The Country Doctor", now at the Belle Theatre until Wednesday, matinee daily.

The story of how this new Darryl F. Zanuck picture came to be filmed is as fascinating as the quints themselves, and goes back to the birth of the babies. At that time Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe was sent out a Frankie pics for an incubator to replace the heated bricks he was using to keep the five tiny human miles alive.

The Chicago American answered the doctor's plea by sending out their own incubator, manufactured by Blake, with the incubator on a perilous flight into Canada.

In thi; fashion, Blake became associated with the quints, the guinea and their doctor than perhaps any other of the hundreds of reporters who rushed to Callander, Ontario. More than a year later Blake succeeded in the idea of his story. Taking a two-day leave of absence, Blake locked up in a room with a typewriter, banged out the tale that was to become "The Country Doctor," and mailed it to a friend in Hollywood.

Blake's story was turned down flatly by the first studio to which it was submitted. Then it was brought to the attention of Darryl F. Zanuck, Vice-President in charge of 20th Century-Fox and Blake brought to him.

Blake was taken from his newspaper work and hurriedly transferred to Hollywood, where he was set to work fashioning a screen story from his original in company with scenario writers.

There still remained the mammoth task to secondary the Dionne Quintuplets for the starring roles. Three sets, including real rooms and flat reveals for their tempting offers for the use of the children. The same manner God is still a mystery to Hollywood, Zanuck accomplished what Hollywood thought impossible, and soon had the Quintuplets under his thumb.

Trenton Jr. Girls Enter C.O.S.S.A. Basketball Finals Other District Teams Defeated

St. Michael's Academy Lose to Stamford 40-18

PICTON GIRLS LOSE.

Belleville Junior Boys Drop Game to Stamford 40-18

Toronto, Mar. 28 (CP)—Opportunity for double victories lay in the hands of three schools today when Stamford, Niagara Falls and Peterborough held places in the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association basketball finals, the result of wins in last night's semi-final playoffs held here. Barrie and Trenton are the other schools to reach the finals.

In the junior girls' section of the series Stamford scored a one-sided 23-13 victory over Midland. Trenton, the other junior team to reach the finals, won the sixth on a default by the Lake Shore school which was listed to make an appearance. Senior girl winners were Peterborough with a close 18-17 win over Owen Sound and Niagara Falls who defeated Picton 47-37.

Stamford junior boys came through with a win to give their school the second of the finals spots when St. Michael's Seminary of Belleville 40-18. Peterborough, who had the two teams entered try the semi-final matches in Peterborough last night when the junior boys won from Orillia 40-30. Barrie's only entry knocked Belleville's senior boys out 32-23 while Niagara Falls lacked up a top-heavy 43-20 victory over Peterborough.

Midland Outclassed.

Stamford juniors outclassed Midland in the opening game of the girls' series 23-13 and allowed only four points in the first half of the game in the opening to this the last two quarters Midland did much of the rushing but close guarding around the nets kept the score down. Miss Y. Lea paced the winners with a total of nine points followed closely by K. Tolman with eight. Per Midland S. Whelan produced eight of the twelve points.

Trenton was allowed to enter the junior girls' final without netting a ball. The Lake Shore School they were to have met, failed to make an appearance and Trenton won by default.

In the senior girls' division of the series the closest game of the evening was witnessed when Peterborough nosed out a one point victory over Owen Sound 18-17. So closely did the two teams watch each other that half-time score was nine to nine.

Final shots played an important part during the second half and only by the foul margin of one did Peterborough win out. Owen Sound, with more opportunities than their opponents, failed to make good around the net. Margaret Wood was the pick of the Peterborough outfit with Miss H. Wilson potting the ball on the Owen Sound team.

Picton Hard Working.

In the other senior girls' game Niagara Falls showed exceptional ability in the basketball by defeating a hard-working Picton squad by a 47-37. The Niagara girls took little time in securing a lead and ran in 26 points to their opponents' 14 by the end of half time.

Play continued at a fast pace during the second half although the Falls' squad eased off a little towards the end. Minus A. Anderson and D. Shugg proved the leading marksmen of the series by netting the ball for 22 points between them respectively. M. Reade led the Picton sharpshooters with 14 points and Mulholland had 12.

In the boys' senior semi-finals Barrie proved the better team when they handed St. Michael's Seminary of Belleville a 32-23 defeat. Play was fast with Barrie making better use of their opportunities around the nets. Half-time score was 22-13.

The Barrie forward line of Strachan, Ryan and Storey showed to better advantage than the Belleville boys although Strachan and Schrieder proved good play-makers.

Niagara Falls senior boys handed Peterborough its only defeat of the night with a 43-20 trimming. Having an advantage in height and weight, the Niagara squad used both to good advantage and kept the Petes from scoring. Good guarding by Serwyna and Carter for the Falls were main factors in the battle although G. Morden, who ran in 24 points, played a big part of the match.

Leading by the score of 26-10 at half-time the Niagara team kept up the pressure and ran in 17 more points to the 10 of the Peterborough squad. Play was kept fast and clean.

Stamford Scores Win.

Stamford won its second victory of the night when the junior boys handed Belleville a 40-30 defeat. The one-sided score was a good indication of the play and every man Petes from scoring. Good guarding by Serwyna and Carter for the Falls were main factors in the battle although G. Morden, who ran in 24

WINS VEZINA TROPHY— Blacklisted Cecil "Tiny" Thompson who for nine seasons has guarded Boston Bruins' goal and was this season credited with a scoring record, won the Vezina Trophy for net-minding excellence this year, records at the end of March 24 games, it is revealed. He had ten shut-outs against opposing teams and in 48 games allowed 82 pucks past him for goals, nine less than Mike Karakas of Chicago. Lorne Chabot last year won the trophy.

Letters to the Sports Editor

To the Sports Editor:

Dear Sir:

May I take exception to your remarks in Friday's paper, re "Training Quarters for Boxers."

Can I remind you that a great number of citizens contributed to the Bellecliffe Hunting and Yacht Club, in order that the boys of this city should have a place where they could train and keep fit, as your column reads, it is true that members of this club have broken faith with their many supporters.

Sir, if, in fact, this is true we are not completely outfitted yet, but there is any athlete in town looking for training facilities and is willing to help himself a little in fixing up things for such purposes he doesn't have to look past the local lawboard.

As for H. Wheeler, may I state that, in fact, he suffered the use of the club on more than one occasion, and more especially when he was on the Alemite club roster and they had no training quarters and collect membership dues from them, the boys decided quick to help the boys along because they were fighting under Belleville colors.

I believe that if you yourself were to come down south a little more often you would write-ups as you gave Friday would not appear.

For the benefit of any boys who are looking for quarters to train in, the club is open for wrestling and boxing Monday's and Thursdays at 8 p.m. for the boys who have hours, arrangements are made for the week end.

Thanking you for the space,

Yours sincerely,

Charles Ellis,

Secretary Belleville Yacht Club.

OUST MONTREAL LOOP PROPOSED

Cecil Duncan of C. A. H. A. Satisfied Players Are Paid

Ottawa, Mar. 28 (CP)—Ousting of the Montreal senior group, which he charged was a "professional" circuit, from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, and withdrawal from competition for one year of the Allan Cup, emblematic of Canadian senior amateur supremacy, will be proposed by Cecil Duncan, veteran president of the C.A.H.A. at the next meeting of that body in April.

"The senior group has been threatening to withdraw all season, but if I have my way there won't be any need for their resigning," Duncan said last night. "I'm satisfied that the league is a professional one, that the players in it are paid—and that pretty much for the Canadian Ottawa) as any team in it—and I'm going to propose that it be cut loose."

MAGEDOMAS TO MEET SUDBURY FOR EAST TITLE

Only Four Senior Teams Left in Playdowns For Allan Cup

SEVEN IN JUNIOR

Falcons Down Strong Montreal Squad 2-1 in Overtime

The Allan Cup hockey situation took definite shape today. After a season of gruelling play, only four teams were left in the hunt for the senior Canadian amateur hockey supremacy and one of these was a step towards elimination.

Eastern Canada slacked Sudbury Falcons and Brockville Magedomas against the west's Kimberley Dynamiters and Fort William Wanderers. Wanderers had only half a look from the picture.

Fate still far from settled just what the final winding would be but Kimberley could draw the western assignment by defeating Fort William tonight and Falcons were favored to down Brockville for the east when the series is started in Winnipeg.

Seven teams were left in Memorial Cup junior hockey, the junior crown. Here tonight, they could be paired to five with Quebec Aces, West Toronto Nationals and Peterboro Little Lumber Kings in the east and Kimberley Maple Leafs and Fort William Westerns in the west.

Sudbury, in the shadowing only bonspiel, Northern Tigers withdrawn, put the finishing touches to their defence of Sheriff Dewan trophy as Royals last night with their second straight win, 3-1 victory.

It was the only game on either junior or senior front. Falcons, victors in the first game, Monday, served up a dish of speed and more speed and a bang up hockey that bloomup cracked in overtime. When they did, Quebec Aces, the only senior championship cracked as well.

Without Buster Mundell, Frank LaHaise and Jimmy Peters, three regulars, Montreal made a surprising stand to hold out a long as they did. A brilliant performance by Baby Sequin in the Montreal net helped him up until Art Shaart fired a goal near the end of the overtime period.

Royals had taken the lead on Doug Bentley's second period goal but a furious Sudbury drive ended with Wellington Dilworth the equalizer two minutes later. The Royals were too tired to do much after that.

In Calgary tonight, British Columbia's Kimberley Dynamiters were ready for the second game of the western final against Fort William Wanderers. Dynamiters won the first clash 8-6.

While the two seniors decide the senior title, Elmwood Maple Leafs play for Winnipeg junior honors, William Kams for a place in the junior western final. The form that the Maple Leafs showed in victory Thursday night is expected to carry them to Kams.

West Toronto and South Porcupine Peewees are also dueling in the east. They will play at Toronto with Nationals holding a game advantage. The winners play the Aces of Quebec with Pembroke Little Lord Kings waiting to meet the semi-final winners.

LEAFS FAVORED TO BEAT AMERKS

All Toronto Squad in Fine Condition For Fray

When this week-end's battling in the hunt for the Stanley Cup is written in the record book it may be fairly certain which two of the four remaining teams will meet in the finals.

Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs are favored to clash for the cup but after Leafs' startling upset of Boston Bruins Saturday no one is making hockey predictions without a bit of hedging.

Still somewhat surprised about their victory over Bruins, Leafs open the world championship semi-final series in Toronto tonight against New York Americans, fresh from eliminating Chicago Black Hawks.

In Detroit Sunday Red Wings will attempt to follow up their win over Montreal Canadiens in Montreal with a victory that would give them the National Hockey League title.

The odds are against their dupli-cating Maroons' feat of last season against Toronto. But Wings are favored to win one of the next three games and take the series.

Believe In Leafs.

If Toronto fans could be sure that Leafs would show the same sort of inspired hockey they did Thursday there would be no doubt in their minds about Dick Irvin's men knocking off Americans in two straight games.

But Red Dutton's New Yorkers have found their showing against Chicago gave no indication as they dropped the first game of the series in the semi-finals.

Leafs will tie men in good condition for the series but four of the New Yorkers are nursing hurts received in their last play. Art Chapman has a torn ligament in his left leg, Murray Patterson, regular defence, has a bad hip and Dutton a sore knee.

Maroons arrived in Detroit today with the knowledge the odds are against their ever winning the league title. No team has ever overcome the handicap of losing the first two games of the series.

Detroit has been rounding hard, however, and sure they will break out in a scoring rush tomorrow night the equalize two goalless periods Detroit's Normie Smith for 220 minutes and 30 seconds in two games.

LONDON TECS TIE BULLDOGS

Goals Count With Second Game in London

Windsor, Ont., Mar. 28 (CP) — Whatever edge a home town rink and crowd gives a hockey team in London Tecumsehs in their battle for Dafoe participation in the International Hockey League playoffs.

Tecs came out of the first game of the third-place play-off against the Windsor Bulldogs last night, tied at 3-3. They start all even in London tonight when the two-game total is counted.

Windsor pressed for an advantage from the start. They had a two-goal margin, 3-1, at the end of the first game started but they had to come from behind in the last period to get the tie.

After Ron Moffatt and Connie Kidd fired goals for Bulldogs, the London defence steadied and Yank Boyd took up a one-man campaign that was duly traded to London by Windsor in mid-season. got all three goals.

He cut the Windsor lead in half in the first minutes of the first period and had Heca shead 3-2 in the second. Clarence Drouillard gained the equalizer in the only third-period scoring.

Kirkland Lake, Ont., Mar. 28 (CP) —Herolam of three Lake Shore engineers, John Leja, Charles Cyrulak and James Clark was instrumental in saving the life of Roddy O'Connor, well-known local hockey player, who suffered serious injuries to his eyes when a premature blast exploded unexpectedly prematurely.

With no guarantee of a time limit Leja, Cyrulak and Clark hurriedly carried O'Connor to safety and he was taken to Kirkland Lake hospital where he is doing as well as can be expected.

There is nothing known yet of how the shot exploded but an investigation was being conducted by mines department officials. The men were two miles from the explosion at the time.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Senior baseball is still hanging on by the proverbial skin of its eyelids in Belleville. A half a dozen diehards in the-wool ball fans turned out for nightly practice at the Y.M.C.A. on the same old guard, who have tried to work for the good of the game in the past. After discussing the local situation pro and con they decided to carry on if possible, but none of those present seemed inclined to take office, as they procrastinated once again. Raymond Carr agreed to remain in office as chairman pro tem and await certain developments, that are expected to develop early next week.

It seems there is a suggestion at hand to endeavour interesting the local Kinsmen Club in taking over the governing duties of senior baseball in Belleville. President Frank Domenico promised to bring the question up at Tuesday's Kin meeting, so until then the future of senior ball locally is still "high, high on the hilltop". If the Kinsmen Club could be interested that could be assured of more support from the public than any other organization we know of. With the Kinsmen behind we can firmly believe the club's finances would be in no'better hands. We are not suggesting that the Kinsmen step down to support a team for team by any stretch of imagination, but our reference is to the secular handling of the money received, whether it be donations or gate receipts.

The few to attend last night's little talk at the "Y" agreed that Belleville should be represented in the C.O.B.L. by a "home brew" team, that is as far as possible. It was understood that a catcher is in town, who along with Speedy St. Louis could be the only players on the roster, who are not native sons of Belleville. Trenton and Picton in 1935 and 1936 teams. At any rate Chairman Ray Carr, Geo. Lee, Chief Kidd and Clarence Clapp, are still willing to assist in the organizing of a ball club in Belleville for 1936, but the road is long and the going seems to be tough.

Just how many senior calibre softball teams intend to function in Belleville this coming summer seems to remain a deep dark secret. The Belleville and District Softball League will hold its annual meeting and election of officers at the Ashley Cafe on Monday night. Those desirous of affiliation should attend. Last year the league embraced two out-of-town teams in addition to the local loop, both doubtful starters in 1936 however. Locally there was the league winning club and the South End Athletic College Hill Cubs and the Tip Top Tailors. Just how many of these teams intend coming into the fold this summer has not been announced, but it is safe in saying, that the South End, will be represented as well as the College Hill Cubs. As for the Tip Top Tailors, manager Newt Wilbur would like consult himself. "We'll be at the meeting and see what happens" says Newt. The Aaisnas Club is definitely out, as says Coach Cleo Bonter, but he has promised to hear from. Of course the great obstacle, that confronts the local Senators is the lack or daylight saving this year. With daylight saving in effect we could be assured of a ball game, but as it stands today the clubs are dubious about playing." stated Jerrold Forsyth secretary of the loop today.

If you are at all interested in fishing, have particularly in fishing, it would be a good idea to drop around to the M.C.A. on Thursday night when the Belleville Anglers' Association holds its annual open meeting. Information relative to casting, landing, fishing in general and re-stocking will be available to those attending. Moving pictures and lectures will be the order of the evening. The local anglers will commence their annual spring casting tournament in the Armouries on Wednesday.

"We expect to branch out this year and have a real live club," stated Bill Fry, commodore of the Belleville Canoe Club today. The club executive have an energetic band of young men who should elevate the aquatic sport in Belleville this summer. They have one race and several social activities, but desire another one also. Plans for ways and means of raising finances for the purchase of a new shell are now under way.

Protesting our remarks relative to Belleville training facilities for boxers in Belleville recently, Charlie Ellis, secretary of the Belleville Yacht Club, takes us for a ride over the jumps in a letter to the sports department, which appears elsewhere in today's issue. Perhaps what Mr. Ellis says is all too true, but Wheeler says he did contact the Yacht Club and was informed that training paraphernalia, only to find they did not have the proper training facilities for a boxer at the Yacht Club. Our remarks yesterday were not intended to be only individual or any group of individuals, as Mr. Ellis seems to suppose, but we know only too well the good work, that has been done by President Maurice Hubbell and his Belleville Yacht Club in the betterment of facilities for athletics and aquatics in Belleville. The Yacht Club has the support of the citizens when it has never refused to grant any request coming out of Fraser Ward and Lou Jones' committee for the Belleville Yacht Club. It is a well known fact, that boxers must have certain routines for training, such as skipping rope, punching bag, sparring and lastly sparring partners, who know the game.

The two local interscholastic basketball squads competing in the C.O.S.S.A. play-downs at Y.M.C.A. last night did not come out of the first round. St. Michael's Academy and the B.C.I.V.S. Juniors both being eliminated in the semi-finals by decisive scores. The senior Juniors girls' entry advanced to the junior finals without playing a game, their opponents failed to put in an appearance and thus advance to the finals by default.

"GLITTERING GIRL"

By MAY CHRISTIE

"There's Prince Karinoff. Member of one of the oldest families of Russia. Who's the glittering girl with him?" she heard someone demand.

"Never the forgiest nation!"

Vernon's best friend, Terry Shannon loved her. She was dancing with a real Prince. People were talking about her. This was life indeed! Wasn't New York wonderful!

At the end of the dance, the Prince took her to a corner table in the bar and brought champagne to her. He had quiet manners, but his every movement advertised his wealth. Quite suddenly—seeming to do everything with deliberately—he was extraordinarily deferential.

Even if her heart was full of Terry Shannon, Vernon would have been blind if she hadn't seen the infatuated look that came into their way. Her happiness brought added courtesy to her.

The Prince had a flattering way of leaning towards her as they talked. His was immaculately groomed. He looked as though he had been poured into his evening clothes, they fitted so perfectly. She could see him in the mirror when she turned her head. That elegant dip at the waistline—awfully fetching and fascinating—his square shoulders—(she didn't note that they were padded)—the sleek, smarty try his blond hair was brushed back.

"You make a long stay in New York?" he was asking Vernon eagerly. His voice was low and throaty. It caressed her. There was a curious vibrance to it.

"For the week. I'm having a coming-out party, I imagine, if it can be arranged."

"She will be a sen-sa-tion! Ev-ery-one will go per-fect-ly mad about you! You will have the town at your feet. Miss Tyson! It will be too won-der-ful!"

His staccato accent, with the meticulous stressing of each syllable, intrigued her. A new person, man and not an unpleasing one was Prince Karinoff.

"Why on earth should I be a sensation when Park Avenue literally beam with debutantes? I've not found herself asking coquettishly.

"Because you are dee-vine-ly beau-ti-ful. Because all men worship beauty. Because you have some-thing in your eye—so shad-ow-y mysterious—that beckons —like a song of the Lorelei."

She laughed. Her laugh was sweet and soft and trilling. Prince Karinoff bent his head nearer hers with the sound of it.

"You laugh like the song of a wild, beautiful little bird flying up, up far above the turmoil of my native....Russia. But one day someone will capture you."

"And the song will be stilled?"

"No." His gray eyes—curious, unfathomable eyes for all that they smiled—were intently on her. "The song will be more beautiful—because then you will know what real love, primitive love, means."

"Is that so? I wonder who's going to teach me?"

Quickly she was adapting herself to cope with another new type of man.

"Why do you ask me that, when you know that many men will want to love you? But—you will arouse fire in them—but you cannot respond to them—you can only love one."

She thought happily: "That's true. And his name is Terry Shannon.

Others rose. Better check the Prince before he went too far with his predictions. Where was Terry? Was Mrs. de Bray scattering him dutifully?

Ah! there they were, entering the bar. How handsome Terry looked. He would come right over and claim her then.

But Nan Rushington intervened. She darted up to Terry, caught him possessively by the arm, and in a shrill, carrying voice claimed him for a fox-trot.

Martina de Bray smiled indulgently at Nan, and waving them off with her ostrich fan of gleaming turquoise, came directly over to Vernon and the Prince.

"Do go and dance with our hostess while the poor child and I have a little chat, Ivan," she suggested, sinking into the seat he had immediately vacated.

With a low bow, the Prince obligingly departed.

CHAPTER XIII.

"Nan tells me you're planning a coming-out party very shortly, my dear? It is to be hoped that you arranged her chic black gown with its turquoise bow pockets and ling puff sleeves, so that it fell around her in graceful folds as she leaned back. She also smiled upon Vernon in friendly fashion.

"I think so, Mrs. de Bray. The trouble is—" said Vernon frankly, "that we barely know anybody in the town yet. Of course Nan has shoals of friends and acquaintances. Yet—she took fleeting glances if we were running after people—I mean, it would really be Nan's party, and not ours."

"But I do assure you it would be perfectly in order to give a hen's party. And it would ensure you heaps and heaps of invitations afterwards."

"You think so?"

"Positively." An eager light was in Mrs. de Bray's bear-set eyes. "Leave it to hen's eyes. You can ask only the 'right' people. That's highly important."

"But—if we don't know them—"

"Oh, I can arrange that for you. With your beauty and—" (she stopped in time to what were "money" and connections and your parents being well-known people in Texas, and encompassing you—and your excellent address.

"I don't know that I'd be so keen on giving a very big party," Vernon said uneasily. She didn't quite like that crafty look in Mrs. de Bray's eye.

"Nonsense! At your age! With your looks—" here Mrs. de Bray repeated the Prince's words—"you'll be a sensation, Miss Tyson!"

"I think I'd rather get to know people gradually—pick out the ones I like, if you know what I mean."

Vernon was thinking of Terry.

"Oh, but you'd have a much wider field to choose from if you made your debut properly, as ALL the best girls do! Otherwise you're just a nobody—I mean, not properly established—with a background—that's mighty important! I assure you I know Park Avenue like a book," persisted Mrs. de Bray importantly.

Vernon pondered this. The woman at her side was wielding her effect. That handsome Shannon lad—the girl was probably carried away by him—she'd work from that angle.

"Men—the best men—think a great deal of a girl's background, you know, dear! Because all sorts of people blow into this town from every corner of the globe—adventurers—adventuresses— nobodies — impostors—crooks— just shoals of impossible people! Therefore it behooves the really nice ones to be frightfully careful whom they take up with! Mothers of eligible sons, for instance, shy at inviting 'unplaced' girls to their parties, no matter how pretty and popular the girls might be! To properly establish oneself at the very beginning is the thing—and the way to do it is by giving a large and important party."

"You talk exactly like my mother," Vernon couldn't resist saying, with a twinkle.

Mrs. de Bray smiled on that opening like a hawk.

"I'd like to meet her. I'm so fond of little Nan. I'm a dear friend of Nan's father too. So that ought to make me a friend of your family!"

What could Vernon do but invite her to her home, without, however, naming any particular time for the call?

X X X

Vernon forgot all about Mrs. de Bray at the Suydams' party, in dancing with Terry again. It was heavenly.

But she was disappointed that they had no opportunity for being actually alone together, as during the interval upon the little sun porch.

"Half the gang have discovered our blessed little retreat!" Terry had groaned when they had ventured up a second time.

"All for the best—as that nothing may get slain through reputation." Vernon had vouchsafed pertly. Best not to let Terry feel too "dreary"—though she would have given anything for the feel of his arms about her again.

He gave her a quick side glance. "Is that so? I saw you flirting with that Karinoff bird."

"You mean the Prince?—He's very attractive, don't you think?" A perverse imp was urging her.

"You mean that you are—and you know it and trade on it," came the gruff response.

"Thanks, kind sir."

They went down the stairs, she a little in advance of him. This feeling of power over such a wonderful man as Terry, was heady, intoxicating!

They had supper together. But Nan and her "gang" joined them. One had just as much privacy when Nan was around as if one were in a goldfish bowl. Though Vernon, disappointed—yet thrilled with handsome Terry at one side of her, and assiduously attentive Prince Karinoff on the other, Mrs. de Bray and Terry's left and Nan directly opposite them. In between Nan's sallies, Mrs. de Bray spoke continuously in a low tone to Terry.

Vernon became annoyed. When Terry surreptitiously squeezed her hand under the table, she removed it with a jerk. She talked to Ivan Karinoff, pretending to be truly beautiful and much exposed back to Terry.

What she was learning the ways of this gay town! In face of such competition, one had to learn!

Terry drove the two cousins home from the 21 at a quarter to two in the morning. That is to say, he drove Vernon first to Nan's residence on Park Avenue, and then proceeded with Nan to her home, a few blocks away, on Washington Square. Why on earth couldn't Nan live

BY KATHLEEN NORRIS

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING INSTALMENTS

Anabelinda Taft, 32 and single-minded, is delighted with the appointment as editor of the San Francisco Call. She lives with her father, Judge Taft, her brothers Cliff and Bruce, and Aunt Meg. On the train to San Francisco, Anabelinda meets Esther who gets a large salary and becomes a fine experienced aid which Frank Fitch is a frequent visitor. When Bess asks Tony to make sure that a dinner party there shall be after the advice of her friend Barney Barr. In this capacity he is inspecting the hat thing Tony wing. She meets a Mrs. Bellamy but is startled to find that her husband is Larry Bellamy, handsome young writer of the Journal whom she had met while job-hunting. Mrs. Bellamy is a fine, charming lady, older than Larry. She and Tony become fast friends and there is a mutual liking. Tony unthinkingly mentions to Charles Greenwood, her city editor, that Anabelinda told her she is Journal and the Examiner might combine in a merger. Anabelinda and Ruth tells Tony she has retired Larry's wages to Cliff, and says it was all right for talking, and when Tony explains about Anabelinda's promise to Mrs. Bellamy he says Brenda announces she is going to Monterey. Tony spends a week at Santa Barbara as the guest of the Bellamys. Tony and Larry are badly shaken up when a truck hits their car and he is killed leaving her back home. She hears the way Mrs. Bellamy feels is lonely" when he thinks she is badly hurt. He calls at her home with evening papers. Tony tells him

INSTALMENT 14

"I was going up to Tahoe. But now I'm not, and I'd have time for some real dinner, if you're free. Can you, conveniently, Tom ask Greeny, will you?"

"I surely will."

Tony heard her telling Vince in a low tone that she would be late, and that she had created in the office a few days before. "Only a week or two, I'm sure," Tony overheard her say, "and I promise you I'll be back in all my usual form. Thanks, Vince, you're a dear!" Somehow Tony felt that Esther at all was events they were not reconciled to the new assistant editorship.

Miss Ethel Money was viciously belligerent at the first meeting of the morning when the office sat all, "My question," she whispered to Tony, "is this: Is Miss Taft going to write articles with that hand of hers? Search me! So far, it didn't stop!—and he's getting a big head of it! Miss Fitch was saying on Saturday night . . ."

"You've met Miss Fitch?"

"My mother and I went over and had dinner with them on Saturday night."

"Oh?"

Oh, he wasn't to do articles about all the country clubs? Tony asked pleasantly. Only to be quite a feature. I was just telling Van and Jim Burke about it, and they say they'll help me do it. They want to run my picture up at the top of the article."

"Marvelous!" Tony commented. In her cool, level voice. "Well, if it wouldn't make you sick!" Aloud she said: "What are you getting for Mas?"

"Fifty!"

Tony raised her eyebrows politely; she hoped! was getting thirty dollars a week.

"She was getting a hundred, when she left, and anything is a raise in pay for a girl," Ethel said. "But the way I figure that Miss Fitch is getting it decidedly," she added, "is that Frank Fitch is the honorable kind of man who thinks all women should be paid the same, so nobody's jealous."

"Very true, editor, Greeny!" Tony said smilingly as the city editor came up with a sheaf of copy.

"Thanks, Pip, yo, from what I hear," Greeny said with a jerk of his head toward Ethel, who was busy at the typewriter. "Say, Beatie, I want to speak to you a minute," he added to Tony as the city editor of the Beatie Save It column moved away. "Any quiet corner in the office, and Tony quietly watching as they all were, saw that Greeny had a serious argument and mortified his companion by it.

"Tony, come over here a minute!" she harassed Greeny finally called. "Say this! he explained in a confidential undertone. "Bess here—you know how set she is about this—she's one of us, she belongs here; that's all right. Frank Fitch—and he's trying to land something good for her, and he thinks he's found it—and he's good for her, and until he climbees it he thinks it'd be smarter if we're not in print at all. Oh, I mean, of course," Greeny hastened to add, "not so they will get together but . . ."

"You mean that Frank Fitch don't want Bess in print while I'm here, and for good reason," Beatie began reminiscently, "I'm quite sure. I've got something to say to Frank Fitch . . ."

"Listen, Bess," Tony interrupted. "Will you just listen to me, and then you can say anything you like? You're not going to get anywhere with Frank Fitch this way. You know that; you only make him mad. Now you deny cut and some day that Greeny's assistant, you'll have to come down; we'll pick a time when he's in a good humor, won't we, Greeny?"

"Sure! Your Eta!" Greenwood said cheerfully. For Bess was obviously fascinated. Encouraged, Tony remembered with fresh zeal.

"Tas, but I can't walk out now," Bess objected uniliedly after a while. "They all know I came down here to see Frank."

"Well, then, I'll tell you what to do," said the resourceful Tony. "Run back to Greeny and I have been talking about new Sunday articles, see? Greeny, you tell Bess now, so that they'll all hear, that she can go into the Sunday room with you and Jo Davis. And I'll tell her, and then you've got a new idea to work up. Good idea, Beatie? Now I'm loadly going back to her desk."

When they had gone she sat on, writing, telephoning, thinking. These editorial pets who were spoken of mockingly behind the backs of rivals or that were a sorry crew. Every few months Fitch or Vandeleur or Arnoldson discovered a genius, a pretty stenographer or a fine young boy, who, two years ago, such as Miss was today, and for a while he was exploited as a find, and must be allowed to fit the imperious demands of genius.

Presently Mr. Arnoldson came in and with him, very tall and square-shouldered, Frank Fitch, his characteristic smile, was Larry. The two men had been lunching together. Greeny. The two men had met before anyway and shook hands briefly. Tony noticed that Greeny took him about the office, stopping at the desks or at the long table where the copy boys sit the time when they are not busy. Larry gave Tony a special smile.

"Now I'll see you'll be much of him?" Brenda asked him in a whisper.

Not necessarily. His office is upstairs and he'll be frightfully busy getting his new paper started. And I'm not really there much, except Thursdays, when I write editorials."

"Oh, I'm so glad!" Brenda said briefly. There was silence again.

Tony thought about it. Then Tony said standing up. And then confusedly: "I had no idea of . . . I'm glad for you, Larry."

After a pause he said a little uncomfortably: "I'm glad you're glad that doesn't do any harm."

Brenda looked up on the soft new white gloves. "And you'll give my message to Ruth?" she said trying to be very casual.

"I will indeed."

Tony shook her and make a less dale." Tony walked to the door, and Brenda followed briefly. Tony went out, closing the door carefully behind her.

Back at her desk in the city room again Tony found herself inclined to be depressed. Ruth had telephoned out on her desk several odds and ends of paper and then added a P.S. notes were scratched. Sendy's wedding was over now and she must get down to business.

"Oh, you fool!" she said under her breath. She arranged her desk neatly before her without seeing them; slipped a sheet of paper into her typewriter. "What of it . . . what Of it . . . what Of it . . . the words repeated themselves. "I don't care what he thinks! He knows I'm crazy about him! I'll tell him so! I wish I hadn't gone up there! I could have sent a note. Darling Sendy . . . she thought and paused. I wonder how it would feel to be married to a man who made you happy, who needed you, the way I feel now. Going home, coming back to a man who loves you . . . oh, I wish I hadn't gone up to his office! What am I going to say to him? Anything at all? No, he didn't. He just sat there and was awfully nice."

She brought her mind to her notes; the wedding had been chosen. Mrs. James Lee Fairchild and her daughter Sendy were to receive at the Fairchild home, and Mrs. Fairchild, for the Ruth, where Miss Janet would assist. Ruth was to be married in Santa Rally was entertaining for her niece Miss Barbara Fairchild.

"Oh, I'm so tired and sick; her head ached. She could not seem to get down to business. She put her head down on her arm childishly and burst into tears.

"I'm a no-no-miserable, Larry!" she sobbed.

The flood of tears ended almost suddenly as it had begun and Tony felt ashamed of herself. But the tension situation had suddenly gone flat. What was she doing up here in Larry's office making a ridiculous spectacle of herself? Why, she despised Miss Money's obvious methods with men and Vince Burke!

Shifting and gulping, not looking at him, she fumbled for her handkerchief, blew her nose and wiped her eyes.

"I don't know why I did that," she apologized, smiling.

Larry was sitting facing her, his big hands on the arms of his chair. The expression of his face was completely non-committal: his fine gray eyes were narrowed and fixed on space. Tony's heart sank as she looked at him; he was not going to help her out.

"You know I felt that way," she said miserably.

It was all like a dream. The scene of wearing a new dress and a smart hat, the cool odor of gardenias, the setting of the cheaply furnished office—Larry's office making a ridiculous figure, with a troubled and unhappy look on his face. The affair had a desperate sudden feeling of exhaustion; a desperate desire to get away from here, somewhere else, somewhere alone in bed.

"Forever, if you don't understand that I'm crazy about you!" Tony said, dignity. And with hands that trembled she gathered up her bag and the long white gloves.

"If I did," Larry said suddenly, "what?"

For a second she stared at him, paling. Then dully, hopelessly she looked away.

"I don't know," she said.

Larry stood up, walked briefly. There was silence again.

"I don't know what to say about it," Tony said standing up. And then confusedly: "I had no idea of . . . I'm glad for you, Larry."

After a pause he said a little uncomfortably: "I'm glad you're glad that doesn't do any harm."

Brenda looked up on the soft new white gloves. "And you'll give my message to Ruth?" she said trying to be very casual.

"I will indeed."

GOVERNOR APPEALS TO COURT OF PARDONS

Desperate Plea is Made For Bruno Hauptmann Before Pardons Court

Governor Hoffman Tells Court Execution Will Not End Case

ARREST OF WENDEL

Wendel First Admits Kidnapping And Then Repudiates Words

Trenton, N.J., Mar. 30 (AP)—A representative of the New Jersey State Police was called before the Court of Pardons today with the Flemington trial testimony of Arthur J. Koehler, Federal wood expert, who swore it was his opinion Bruno Richard Hauptmann built the Lindbergh kidnap ladder.

The call for the testimony, which included that part pertaining to Koehler's qualifications as an expert was made after the court had been in session about two and a half hours.

It was regarded as an indication Governor Harold G. Hoffman, who has questioned the State's contentions Hauptmann built the ladder, was pressing his fight in Hauptmann's behalf in this direction.

Trenton, N.J., Mar. 30 (AP)—With the Governor of New Jersey fighting determinedly, but none too hopefully in his behalf, Bruno Richard Hauptmann begged the Court of Pardons desperately today to save him from death in the electric chair tomorrow night.

Governor Harold G. Hoffman, unchanged in his belief that Hauptmann at this time of Hauptmann, be be innocent or guilty, will not solve the kidnap-murder case, hoped to conclude the court which he heads, there is sufficient evidence in the report his repeated charge Hauptmann was unfairly convicted of murdering the at Flemington and the testimony of some state witnesses there was open to serious conclusions.

Hoffman Doubtful.

He sought to convince the Pardons Court—which is a court of mercy rather than of law—that it should go over in detail the circumstances which have developed since that Jersey justice is endangered if Hauptmann goes to the chair tomorrow night.

He was doubtful as the court met, however, of being able to convince the other members they should go into the details of the evidence which has actuated the Governor himself.

The clemency appeal's success was further threatened by reports that Hauptmann's continued insistence he is innocent of any connection with the kidnap-murder. Ordinarily confessions of guilt are necessary before the prisoner confesses guilt and begs for mercy.

Two New Figures.

The two new figures in the bewildering Lindbergh murder case—Paul H. Wendel and Gaston B. Means—gave back the spotlight to the stage to the Bronx carpenter who has held it almost continuously since his arrest in New York 18 months ago with $14,000 worth of ransom money in his possession.

Wendel, formally charged with the Lindbergh kidnapping and extortion, pleaded guilty to a surprising midnight action by a Mercer County grand jury. He said in jail in a part of town some distance from the capital where seven of the eight judges of the Pardons Court went into secret session shortly after 11 o'clock this morning.

Means, a federal prisoner at Leavenworth, Kansas, announced by a "confession" which, like that attributed to Wendel, was not given credence by most officials.

What the prosecutor of Mercer County pressed for was the arrest of Wendel, whom "confession" he kidnapped and killed the baby was later repudiated, depended in large measure upon what the Court of Pardons did today.

Says Means Hired.

The Gaston Means' "confession" which the Governor has made available for presentation to the court, said Means got the "hired to kidnap" bill" the baby, that he made the ladder used in the kidnapping and that the lumber yard, the name of which he gave, could confirm he purchased the ladder from him.

He said it had been planned to kill the baby at a quarry near Hopewell but the baby died of a skull fracture.

The convict said he registered at a hotel in New York where final plans were perfected for the kidnapping. Identified affidavit by Thomas Sice, former Department of Justice man, also overpowering the conspiracy in this hotel.

Means said a woman hairdresser "inspired, instigated and planned" the abduction.

One Cent 'Juice' To Write Finis To Kidnap Case

Final Plans Completed To Send Hauptmann To His Death

Trenton, Mar. 30 (AP)—Invitations for Bruno Hauptmann's execution with the electric chair seated, and police arrangements completed, Warden Mark O. Kimberling said today for orders.

"If they do not come before 9 p.m. tomorrow, we will carry out the last one he received—to put Hauptmann to death for the Lindbergh baby kidnapping.

Orders superseding that one might come from the Court of Pardons or from Governor Harold G. Hoffman himself. Hauptmann was confident "something" would save him but he was not sure. He had built the ladder morning and swalled a visit from his wife.

Effect of Orders.

An order from the pardons court staying execution would be received, Kimberling said, either by wire or by mail. In a similar order from the Governor would be referred to the Attorney-General before carrying out its legality.

Taking nothing for granted, Kimberling went ahead with his plans for the execution. He directed state and city police to erect lines at 8 a.m. tomorrow morning, to keep back the crowds expected to gather.

He notified the 30 witnesses to appear at 9:15 p.m. to see that Hauptmann was put to death. Only 12 witnesses to the death walk will be admitted before a double file, they will walk silently the 300 yards from the main prison corridor to the square thin-walled room where New Jersey puts its condemned to death.

The witnesses will occupy four rows of chairs, Hauptmann will be led in. Robert Elliott, the executioner, will spin the wheel.

Then, Kimberling said, it will be all over. Three doctors will examine the prisoner.

The last item in the million dollar Lindbergh case will be one cent for electricity.

'CLEAN-UP NEEDED'

He said: "Dance halls must be made to honor more than drinking parties will be tolerated."

"Flak" drinking in Owen Sound has caused many of us to blush with shame at the case with which it is carried out," he added.

ELECTRICIANS SAY WAGE BROKE LAW

Swear 75 Cents Hour Paid Instead of $1.00 by Car Firm

Windsor, Ont., March 30 (CP)—Five electricians called to police court today they were employed by the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, at 75 cents an hour, less than the $1 an hour in provincial order Ontario Industrial Standards Act.

The five, testifying in connection with the charges against A. Leber's charges against the Ford Company under the act, said they had been worked longer than the 40-hour maximum, as set by the Provincial legislation for such workers. A total of 13 charges are to be heard in Magistrate Brode's court.

Though the 13 cases are to be dealt with separately, it was arranged the prosecution's evidence would be put in at once, allowing for consolidation, opportunity to put up a single defence for all charges.

Pleas of not guilty were entered in each case.

The charges are the Ford Company "unlawfully did contravene the provisions of the schedule of wages and hours for the electrical repair and construction industry in Windsor district when such wage schedule was approved by Order-in-Council on March 26, 1935."

Joseph Sedgwick, K.C., of the Attorney General's Department, is conducting the prosecution. Leber in eight charges was heard as the court's afternoon session.

NO COMMITMENTS HOUSE ASSURED

Britain Not to be Involved in Mutual Defence Scheme

London, March 30 (AP)—Prime Minister Baldwin assured the House of Commons today the British general staff would not be allowed to make "commitments" in the form of commitments in the forthcoming conversations with the French and Belgian army concerning mutual defence against possible German aggression.

The Prime Minister's statement was made shortly after he and his cabinet had discussed a date upon which the conversations should be started. Mr. Baldwin said the cabinet would review everything to which the general staffs agreed and whether assurance on that question was given the House during a recent debate and I confirm it now."

David Lloyd George, Britain's war time Prime Minister, had declared in the House a week ago staff talks might lead to alliances which in turn might involve the nation in war.

He today endeavored to convince the New Jersey Court of Pardons against execution of Hauptmann at this time.

Land Around Foxboro Flooded Many Feet Deep by the Moira

Highway Mile South of Village Eight Inches Under Water—Many Cellars Flooded—River Presents Majestic Sight Between City And Canniffon as The Water Tumbles In Huge Waves Down Main Street

Rivalling the mighty Niagara Rapids in sweep and grandeur, the Moira River, swollen by recent rains, this week is tumbling back high along its course, flooding low-lying portions of land between this city and Foxboro, and cutting off communications on at least one road leading over Fairfield's Bridge to Corbyville.

Four inches higher than the oldest record of the village, in the vicinity of Foxboro the river has risen far above its banks, inundating acres of farm land, covering the Belleville-Foxboro highway with from six to eight inches of water in the vicinity of the high hill south of the bridge and isolating houses and farms on the "flats" on the west side. Highway signs posted on the flooded roads give slow speeds and careful driving at this location. At Fairfield's bridge the river has reached a point only a few inches below the iron level of the floor.

Majestic rapids swirl and course with irresistible force from the boundary bridge on College street at the city limits north. At this bridge the surface of the water is a scant three or four feet below the iron work, while in the vicinity of Leroy's old mill, partly wrecked by the onrush of ice earlier this season, water tumbles from six to eight feet in long, grinding falls, dashing with white-capped fury across the shallower rapids at the foot of the dam. Part of the old mill as well as several houses have been carried away piecemeal by the water and ice.

North of Canniffon scores of level land have been covered with the overflow, reaching to the edge of the concrete walk on the west side of the road leading to Corbyville, while coursing currents four feet or more deep sweep with silent force over the dam. How boats with which residents of the flooded area navigate the river streets and are moored handily close to back doors at a few hours.

Water swirls in and around the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company's power house on the east bank of the river at Corbyville while north of the bridge the river which is deep at this location seen in the direct summer has reached what may be an all time high level. The dam, barely four feet below the level of the water of the river has contributed to the flooding of further acres of land north of this location and the road leading from Corbyville to Foxboro.

Creates New Record.

"According to records kept for the past ten years by one man up at the car bridge, the river today is four inches higher than it has been in that period," stated Mrs. W. R. Preston, of 230 general street, Foxboro.

"There is hardly a home in the village where the cellar isn't flooded with inches of water draining into it by the Moira River. So far, however, we have escaped lightly. No damage is reported other than the flooding of these cellars and a few stables along the lower end of the village. We're carrying on just the same."

Completely isolated by water, the home of Everett Sills at the south boundary of the village stands on a small island past which the deep currents of the river flow past quite-ly. Connection with the village is maintained by the small suspension bridge leading from the road. Mr. Sills' anxiety is apparently felt over any further rise in the river. Barring

GIRL TELLS STORY OF LOVE AFFAIR

Vera Stretz Resumes Story of Defence Witness Stand

By DEVON FRANCIS
Associated Press Staff Writer
Leipzig, March 30 (AP)—Refreshed after a two-day respite from the witness stand, Vera Stretz resumed today the story of why she killed Dr. Fritz Gebhardt, her wealthy lover.

Introduction of letters which passed between the pretty German firecrackers and ardent lover of the 33-year-old university graduate continued.

Samuel S. Leibowitz, defence counsel, asked Miss Stretz to identify a copy of the book, "Lady Chatterley's Lover."

Leibowitz stressed this sentence in one of Gebhardt's letters:

"I dreamed the early morning pains, have somewhat diminished but nevertheless, I find it necessary to take the cure."

Could you minister to Gebhardt?

A.—Yes.

Q.—What were those pains?

A.—The first time I know of the pains was on Sunday, when he had a breakfast appointment. I went to the drug store and got an electric pad and the heat alleviated his pain. The pain usually woke him at 5 o'clock in the morning and last at 5 or 6.

Miss Stretz brought out Dr. Gebhardt suffered severe abdominal pains.

Local or District Men Believed Responsible

St. Thomas, Ont., March 30 (CP)—Police, working on the attempted bank robbery here Saturday, branched here Saturday, are coming to the conclusion, it was said today, the robbers were local or district men, quite familiar with the general layout of the Elgin Loan building and the bank, has informed police he had left Toronto for work at the bank Saturday morning as he left his home, Inspector Hinds got a clue and dusting off the furniture. The man was tall and of dark complexion, Mr. Hinds said, description given by the clerks of one of the holdup men.

There is also evidence a man answering the description given by other that had been seen prowling around in the vicinity of the rear of the bank. Two days before the a bakery wagon tells police he saw a man, answering the description near the Dominion Bank, three cars from the Imperial at eight o'clock Saturday morning. The same car, it is said, was in the city Friday.

The Alberta markers were last seen in Toronto, believed to have been used as a blind.

Chief Hinds, satisfied the men were not in the building at the time Edison was there, believes they entered after the caretaker left.

France, Uneasy, Fears German Foreign Policy Like Its Interior Rule Pan-Germanism, as Shown by Vote Sunday Taken as Sinister

AGGRESSION FEARED

Germany May be Invited to Gain in Staff Talks

Paris, Mar. 30 (CP)—Uneasiness was displayed in French newspapers today in comment upon the German plebiscite yesterday which gave Chancellor Hitler the endorsement of 99 per cent. of the voters.

Pertinax, former secretary of L'Echo de Paris, said:

"How are we to imagine otherwise than that Hitler will carry on abroad, along the same plan as at home? He will try to make us believe otherwise than that in the service of Pan-Germanism and the dignity of the German people the Reich, will strive for the same results which have already been achieved within its borders?

Declaring that an emergency would find France immediately capable of defending herself, Commander André Pironneau, military expert for L'Ordre, said that Germany probably would be powerless to go to Austria's aid in case of Nazi aggression.

London, Mar. 30 (CP)—Germany may be invited to join in staff talks with the other Locarno powers, it was learned today.

But it will not be until she has agreed to the new mutual assistance pacts which are to replace the Locarno Treaty which Germany violated a fortnight ago.

Staff talks between British, French and Belgian military experts, to be initiated by British authorities, will begin shortly after the pacts are signed, likely to the plan for European security proposed by the Locarno powers.

New Locarno Possible.

But if Germany's reply is favorable, the way is open to wider conversations, leading to the conclusion of a new Locarno. This, if Germany participates, would, like the old Locarno, guarantee both sides of the Franco-German and Belgo-German frontiers against unprovoked aggression.

This is one sense it would go further. In the old Locarno Britain has a guarantee but received none. The new pacts guarantee. Under the new Locarno, Britain also will get a guarantee against unprovoked aggression. This was the principle of the proposed conference of the signatory of German elections Sunday appears on page 2).

ITALIANS BOMB CITY OF HARAR

Bombing Might Inflame Mohammeds in Whole World

Addis Ababa, March 30 (AP)—An Italian air raid which spread fire and panic throughout Harar brought virtual destruction to the Ethiopian city, the Government charged today, and aroused the resentment of French centres.

A squadron of Fascist planes, Ethiopian reports said, plunged incendiary bombs down on the strategic city Sunday, and a second raid on Harar and 30 miles south of the Addis Ababa-Jibuti railroad for more than two hours yesterday, leaving the city in flames.

Two of the attacking planes, however, most of the populace fled and few persons were believed to have fallen victims to the bombardment.

An official communique said 15 bombs struck the Egyptian Red Cross hospital, the headquarters of the Ethiopian Red Cross Hospital and two fell near the Swedish Legation.

"Monsignor Jacdeau, in charge of the French Mission, refused to leave his altar during the bombardment," the communique said. "The church was wrecked but he was unhurt."

The bombs on Harar raised native fears in Addis Ababa, the capital itself might be the next target. Italian forces in aerial bombs Capital scoured expressed belief that bombs on Harar, a centre of Moslem centres, might inflame Mohammedans throughout the world.

Nazi Propaganda Vote Swings German Nation Solidly Behind Hitler

98.79 Per Cent of Vote is Registered For Der Fuehrer

DEMANDS MAY ASTOUND

Challenges Other Nations to Hold Vote on Foreign Policy

(By Leale P. Lochner, Copyright, 1936, by The Associated Press)

Berlin, March 30.—Adolf Hitler, riding the greatest endorsement ever given to any plebiscite, yesterday to starting of proposals to the Locarno powers in the Rhineland crisis, which political sources intimated would "astound the world."

The Nazi propaganda machine, moving with speed and precision, swung virtually the entire German nation behind Der Fuehrer in yesterday's election, nominally to select a new Reichstag but actually to approve the remilitarization of the Rhineland.

Official returns gave Hitler 98.79 per cent, the strongest majority the head of any state ever received. Of the 44,983,476 votes cast, only 542,864 were counted as invalid.

In the German view, the fact there was no chance to vote in opposition, but only to take the Nazi party list or leave it, did not detract from the overwhelming Nazi triumph.

Der Fuehrer now felt informed sources said, whatever he might demand from the other powers he would demand first as the dictator but as the elected one. 200,000 Germans who commanded him not to yield one inch of German territory, now see bit of territory for Hitler, it was believed, would be more hikrudgeon to give up than in his dealings with other nations.

There was no intimation, however, of the nature concrete or specific counter-proposals to the Locarno powers, promised for tomorrow in his preliminary reply March 24 to the London pact for a settlement of the Rhineland issue.

Unconfirmed rumors arose that Hitler might notify Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, that he wished to take a few more days to complete the draft of these details.

Challenges Other Nations

In addition to reading his counter-proposals to the powers, informed sources pointed out Hitler could reply in detail to their questions: French Foreign Minister Flandin this afternoon made to the German Chief of State, demanding Hitler renounce "aggression" as a condition precedent to any Rhine peace offers.

Der Fuehrer, in reply, informed sources said, probably would persist in his challenge to other Nations' men to hold plebiscites on their foreign policies as he did on his.

Seen in Germany's present mood the election demonstrated further how right the Nazi regime was in the Nuremberg session last September in disenfranchising the Jews, and how right the Government was in depriving certain of its opponents of citizenship.

Nazi leaders, comparing yesterday's results with those of previous plebiscites and elections under the Hitler regime, pointed out the opposition previously varied between five and ten per cent.

Now, it said the 1.31 per cent of "invalid" ballots might have been those who, through ignorance, marked their ballots in the wrong manner.

Reich For Hitler

In other words, with elimination of Jews and "Traitors" from the electorate by decree, there were only 100 per cent behind Hitler.

This was considered almost a miracle for Hitler who swept into power with only 43 per cent of the electorate behind him, the remaining eight per cent, which gave him an absolute majority having been contributed by German Nationalists.

The people were wondering now what had happened to all the Communists and Socialists of 1932. Former opponents of all kinds joined the National Socialists in approving the return to the Rhine.

With the voting entirely in the hands of the Nazis and all strangers ordered away from the counting of the ballots, the official tabulation showed:

Qualified voters 45,428,641
Votes cast, ... 44,983,476
For Hitler 44,400,522
Invalid ballots 542,864
Abstained 676,165

Hitler's majority, based on the votes cast, was 98.79 per cent. Based on the number of qualified voters, his majority was 97.75 per cent.

The Rhineland affected particularly by Hitler's restoration of full German sovereignty in that district, expressly demilitarized by the Locarno Pact and Versailles Treaty voted for the first time since the Great War and led the nation in supporting Hitler.

The members of the Reichstag will be chosen by Hitler from a list of 1,265 candidates, the ratio established on one deputy for every 60,000 ballots cast.

HAUPTMANN CASE IS COMPLICATED BY CONFESSIONS

Wendel Says He Murdered Boy Then Denies Statement

MIGHT EXTEND LIFE

Court of Pardons Not Likely to Change Former Stand

By DALE HARRISON

Copyright, 1936,

By The Associated Press

Trenton, N.J., March 30—The long shadow of the Lindbergh baby murder fell across two more men today as the Court of Pardons met to consider the mercy ples of the condemned third—Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

One of the new figures in the increasingly bewildering case—the middle-aged, clergyman's son, Paul E. Wendel—was held in jail here. A formal charge of having murdered the baby was filed against him but he issued a statement denying any knowledge of the crime and the County Prosecutor said he, too, was convinced there was nothing to warrant prosecution.

The other man—Gaston B. Means, former federal agent, and now a federal prisoner for having fleeced Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean by pretending to be an intermediary in kidnap negotiations with the Lindbergh baby kidnappers—stood self-accused by a "confession" purportedly penned in his Leavenworth (Kansas) cell.

The focus of interest, however, burned with increasing brightness upon the condemned figure, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, despite the sudden injection of the new characters into the case. The question to be answered today by the Court of Pardons or by Governor Harold G. Hoffman, Hauptmann's attorneys said he executed as scheduled at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

Not Expected to Change Stand

The Court of Pardons was not expected to change its former attitude, which was against clemency. The Governor, however, said he will not power to interfere, his power of reprieve having expired but there were many today, who believed he might find a way. If the Pardons Court failed, to extend the prisoner's life again.

The tragic drama, that found preparations being made to execute Hauptmann, the only person ever in widely separated cells, one directly above the other, for crime and other "confessing" it, was made even more weird and confusing by the conflict of official opinion concerning the new developments.

Prosecutor Joseph Mcwilliams, County Prosecutor, said he believed Wendel was telling the truth when he said he murdered the infant Lindbergh child. Governor Hoffman, however, declared he "emphatically does not."

Means, himself, James S. Kirkham, Chief Detective of Mercer County, signed the murder complaint said in his opinion Wendel was "directly connected with the murder in the Sourland hills four years ago."

Kirkham said beside the repudiated confession he had other evidence to substantiate the charge."

Repetition Statement

Wendel, awakened shortly after midnight yesterday for arraignment on charges of murder, pleaded "not guilty" and later issued the statement repudiating the confession which he said was obtained by torture and force.

In the formal statements which were false, which implicated Hauptmann, Attorney-General David T. Wilentz, he said, he was forced by torture and brutal treatment. Wendel said he was first detained from Feb. 14 to Feb. 24, 1935, when he was released. He was then detained by Ellis Parker (Chief of Burlington detectives) and turned over to the state colony at New Lisbon, N. J., under guard."

To which Parker, widely known detective, replied emphatically no force was used in detaining Wendel adding: "If the Wendel incident interests you, it is not conducted proper-ly. I will tell what I know. Then there's a lot I haven't told."

The superintendent of the State Colony for Feeble Minded at New Lisbon, Dr. Carrol T. Jones said Wendel was a voluntary patient and remained the following paper, dated February 24, 1936:

"I am willing to stay in your custody until the investigation is concluded. (Signed) P. H. Wendel."

"I treated him like a guest," Dr. Jones said.

Prosecutor Marshalled Facts

Prosecutor Marshall was considering what action to take on the Wendel case.

Two Alternatives

The Pardons Court can save Hauptmann either by commuting his sentence to life imprisonment or by setting the precedent of granting a reprieve. The power of reprieve is not specifically given to the court but legal authorities hold a court with power to pardon possesses also the lesser power of reprieve.

The Governor, militantly believing the trial of Hauptmann at Flemington early last year was "unfair" and "prejudiced" and it failed to solve the world-famous murder case, had a copy of the Gestion Means confession, it was understood, as well as evidence gathered by his own investigators, for presentation to the court. He has said he would "gladly" consider clemency if he had the power.

Adviser General Wilentz, who by law is the Governor's adviser in matters of the law, holds another opinion by the Governor would be illegal and the Warden of the State prison, where Hauptmann awaits execution has said if the question should arise, he would delay the execution until later in the week to decide whether to recognize the reprieve.

Convicted of Perjury

The prisoner, Paul Wendel, is 51 years old; a former Trenton clergyist and lawyer. He was convicted in 1932 of perjury and sentenced to the workhouse as well as being barred. He charged he was "framed" and the Court of Pardons granted him a full pardon followed by his reinstatement to the bar.

An investigation into charges involving forgery in 1926 was followed by Wendel's disbarment from the bar. In 1933 he became a voluntary patient at the State hospital, remaining four days. Prosecutor Marshall said yesterday Wendel made the charge, which were laid against him about that time are still pending against him.

His "confession," which he now repudiated, purported as a admission of the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby and as his writer of the ransom note found in the baby's nursery. He said he made he effort to collect ransom and he disposed of the body, when the child died several days following the kidnapping.

Wendel's attorney, John Kafer, countered with him for some time and issued a statement in which he said Wendel would not have been at the Lindbergh home" the night of the kidnaping, March 1, 1932. He said Wendel was forced to sign a "confession" at the point of a gun and he was severely beaten and tortured by persons, whose identity he did not know.

ESTIMATES MUST PASS TUESDAY

Prospect For All Night Session Looms in Legisla-

Toronto, March 30 (CP)—Prospect of an all-night session to consider estimates faced Ontario legislature members as they returned today from the weekend adjournment. The estimates must be passed quickly so the government can have supply to operate during the new fiscal year, which starts April 1.

With more than 40 bills on the order paper, many of them of a contentious nature, the House faces a case of unfinished business. Another important measure, slated for introduction this week, is the bill to give Separate Schools a larger share of corporation taxes.

Committees have another busy week ahead of them. The Public Accounts Committee today continues its investigation of the contract given the Dufferin Paving Company for building the Kenora-Port Arthur-Fort Frances highway and the other matters after finishing this.

Agriculture, Labor and Private Bills Committees still have numerous matters to discuss.

The House, at least two measures are expected to give rise to considerable debate. The bill to regulate forest resources, introduced by Premier Hepburn and Minister Kennedy, and the bill validating power contracts with the Maclaren Quebec and Eastern Power Company, both without second reading, likely will meet opposition.

SEEKING PEACE

The European scene is baffling to those who are not in the diplomatic service, for there is a bewildering activity in all the centres of Europe. Treaties and pacts are made—France and Russia have signed a mutual protection pact against aggression. It is said that Italy, Rumania and Austria have entered into a solemn agreement to consult each other before any important covenant is entered into. Italy is trying to work out of the Ethiopian conflict to the greatest advantage—and seems to be fencing for improved position before she takes up her full burden as one of the Locarno powers.

Altogether the situation is such that the average man knows not what is the significance of so many moves and reports which are daily coming forward.

But it is clear that there is a sincere effort to keep and make peace. There does not seem even in the case of those with the loudest talk of liberty the slightest desire to go to war, Italy has war on its hands and has, it is thought little pleasure in the strife, even being glad to have good excuse for getting out of it without making a war face and confessing to the Italian people that it was not worth while.

The New York Times writer says on this point of the desire for peace—"The various international combinations undertaken are not in preparation for war, but in an earnest endeavor to prevent it. At the same time there are limits beyond which the Governments cannot go. They will not submit to a peace at any price. As Foreign Secretary Eden has declared, there can be no peace which does not put at the front the firmest kind of purpose and agreement to maintain the sanctity of treaties. Otherwise there can be no international agreements worth the paper on which they are written.

"For the moment Adolf Hitler stands apart from the others. First he must have his hollow vote of national approval before he will negotiate and sign on Sunday. Then he will make public elaborate the proposals for European peace which he spoke of in his communication to the various foreign Ambassadors on the subject, topics on which he will touch March 7. But who can predict what will be the effect upon him of the national referendum of March 29? It may make him more arrogant and intractable than he is now, so full of all his self-glorification before. But in spite of all his self-exaltation, his power is not unlimited. He must give ear to the words of German financiers, the German General Staff, financiers, the German General Staff, the great industrialists who financed his early campaigns and made him what he is. They campaigns and made him what he is. They will tell him that Germany simply cannot live if condemned to complete isolation. There is thus still reason to hope that, after March 29th, the German Government will lay before the European nations plans for reconciliation and for peace which they cannot refuse to take into consideration."

PICKWICK 100 YEARS OLD

One hundred years is a long time but few individuals live that time in their prime and vernal gaiety and robustness. To such a literary creation is to achieve that. On Friday night last the world lovers of Charles Dickens centred at London to mark the centennial celebration of the first appearance of the "Pickwick Papers", published when Dickens was a young man of 24 years. On that date there came to life one of the most lovable creations in literary art, a creation so appealing to mankind that it has ever since taken him to its heart for his lovable qualities.

Pickwick is just the type of so many men. He contained a wholesomeness, a gaiety, honesty, and sincerity which make this figure a world figure forever. Dickens created many figures but none more appealing than this one of the first children of his creative fancy.

Not all nations have a national figure. Pickwick as an Englishman has conquered the world. He makes the world laugh with his pompousness and his magnificent expansion of heart.

In Pickwick Papers not alone is Pickwick an outstanding character, but the book revels in relating the experiences and adventures of a whole company of immortal figures among whom Sam Weller is not the least.

Today the world needs honest clean laughter. It also needs Dickens to cleanse insincerity, politics and drive the wan-makers off the face of the earth as Dickens did some of the crimes against his fellowmen under the conditions which he found ground down the people of his time. He made the world laugh, he made it weep as he turned the earthly scene to the people. He is needed again with his pathos, his exaggeration and his clean heart and mind. When one thinks of the purity of Pickwick, one realizes that once in the world's history lived a writer who was able to portray in the form of adventure and in the novel characters which dip down deep into the roots of life to draw therefrom that sustenance which keeps them immortal. When the human race reaches stages above its present level in social equality, the story of Dickens' hero Pickwick and his ilk will still be read with delight. At that time sordid books which are a disgrace to this present age will long since have been forgotten despite the evil they stimulated.

THE CHILDREN'S SONG

Land of our Birth, we pledge to thee
Our love and toil in the years to be;
When we are grown and take our place,
As men and women with our race,

Father in Heaven who lovest all,
Oh help Thy children when they call;
That they may build from age to age,
An undefil-ed heritage.

Teach us to bear the yoke in youth,
With steadfastness and careful truth;
That in our time, Thy Grace may give
The Truth whereby the Nations live.

Teach us to rule ourselves alway,
Controlled and cleanly night and day;
That we may bring, if need arise,
No maimed or worthless sacrifice.

Teach us to look in all our ends,
On Thee for judge, and not our friends;
That we, with Thee, may walk uncowed
By fear or favor of the crowd.

Teach us the strength that cannot seek,
By deed or thought, to hurt the weak;
That under Thee, we may possess
Man's strength to comfort man's distress.

Teach us delight in simple things,
And Mirth that has no bitter springs;
Forgiveness free of evil done,
And Love to all men 'neath the sun!

Land of our Birth, our faith, our pride,
For whose dear sake our fathers died;
O Motherland, we pledge to thee,
Head, heart, and hand through years to be.

—Rudyard Kipling.

THE SHOW MUST GO ON, as long as there is an actor left in the company capable of carrying the banner, or what have you, that grand old tradition of the theatre, is only equalled by the unwritten law which governs the production of newspapers. Fire, flood, earthquake, riots, tornadoes, and other untoward manifestations do not deter the real newspaperman from carrying on and endeavoring to get the news of the moment to the people. Apropos of this the story of a newspaper man in hospital at Ottawa for several years is interesting. He is C. Hanbury Williams, "Raconteur", of the Montreal Gazette. Every week he writes a column of comment on current topics on the typewriter which he fixes in front of him in his hospital bed. He is a brother of General Sir John Hanbury Williams, who led-camp to Buller and Milner in South Africa before Lord Tweedsmuir, then John Buchan, received the appointment. The Governor General and Lady Tweedsmuir visited "The Raconteur" at Ottawa General Hospital the other day and had quite a chat. His Excellency remarking that Mr. Williams had published recently his own incidence of his life which he had almost forgotten. Doing your stuff from a hospital bed regularly week by week for years takes the same brand of courage and stamina which makes the show go on for the actor and the newspaper go on under all circumstances for the newspaperman. All of which reminds us of Nellie Revell, bedridden for years, who does a newspaper column regularly and broadcasts a program daily on the radio. Some spirits are so alive that no ills of the flesh can dampen them; the spirit rises superior and carries on regardless of physical pain and discouragement of all kinds. "The Show Must Go On".

AN IRISH HORSE WON THE STEEPLECHASE LAST YEAR, "by a fluke", many thought, the hardest race in the world, over four miles, crossing a public road twice and having the hardest jumps possible to imagine, and many of them. A fluke was it? begorra! the same horse came back this year and won it again just to show it was no fluke. Last year Reynoldstown, owned by Major Noel Furlong, of Ireland, and ridden by his son, who needed the money in view of his contemplated marriage, won as a rank outsider, when the favorite Golden Miller fell, frightened, it was said, by an overambitious flashlight cameraman. Golden Miller started this year also, but fell early in the race, while Reynoldstown went on, took all the 31 jumps, fourteen of them twice, and cantered in a winner by a good margin.

Disciplining A Talented Child

Genius Needs More, Not Less, Training Than Most Children

By LOIS GRENELLE

HYMAN NOW and then Susan staged a tantrum which the family excused because Susan was so talented.

Her untidiness, her selfishness, her moods, her lack of consideration for others, all were forgiven Susan because she was "gifted".

"Artists aren't like other people", Susan's mother would say with a sigh, "you can't expect it."

As a very early age Susan's parents had realized that Susan was different — a genius. You've heard of them. Born child prodigies.

You can't rear them the way you would an ordinary child, can you? You can't expect these young people to be even tempered. They always are a problem. You have to expect it.

But why? Are talented children so different from ordinary children? Or do their parents make them so by treating them differently, by excusing them all sorts of exhibitions of spoiled conceit and dread because they believe they have more than ordinary ability, which is all talent amounts to.

Every child likes to be thought "different". That is if the difference implies superiority. Every child has a touch of the dramatic about himself. He loves to pose, to "strut his stuff", play the misunderstood genius. He likes to feel important.

But Talented

But "playing the genius" is the last step to become one. The talented child who has been pampered and spoiled is not only unfit for ordinary life, but unfit to succeed at his artist as well.

Temperament may be tolerated in the artist who has arrived, but in the young and still unknown artist it is not tolerated for a moment in the commercial world.

Unless the child is a genius, a genius does not live self-sufficient in a world apart. On the contrary, they lead, most of them, very ordinary and pretty hard lives. They are dependent, not only on their talent, but their ability to please and adapt themselves to their audience. The successful ones are capable of great self-control, much self-sacrifice and hard work.

In other words, the talented child needs more, rather than less discipline than the ordinary child. More should be expected of him and he should be excused less.

If your Jimmie is talented it is all the more reason he should be responsible and patient. It is all the more reason he should learn early to control his temper, learn to make himself agreeable to all kinds of people, and not to use his "art" as an escape from life a permanent excuse for not learning to do the things which the dullest of us are responsible.

Telephone Service Restored on East Hill

Telephone service was restored to the south-eastern section of the city early today by the Bell Telephone Company after a temporary interruption which had alarmed the section throughout the past portion of Belleville late yesterday afternoon and during the night. Trouble shooters who worked in relays during the night traced the short circuit to underground cables at the corner of Front and Bridge streets, where mud made speedy repairs. Service is again being maintained this morning, according to Mr. G. C. Proctor, local manager.

Lanky She Girl Who Gets Mate Trained for Home Life

To me, if a boy was proficient in home work, he was called a sissy. If he took a hand at the dishes, or looked after a younger brother and sister, the rest of the street gathered up to him, called him insulting names and hooted "Where is your apron?"

If the depression has done nothing else for us, it has at least given us large doses of common sense, with the result that a young person of the present generation brings something more to the running of a home than fault-finding.

On the principle that husbands and fathers of the future need training to adjust themselves to the home the high schools of Rochester, New York, are giving elective courses for boys in home and family life.

The rather wide curriculum includes home economics, community resources, which aid the family in the selection of food, and clothing; Etiquette, and household management are not overlooked. Happy the girl who draws one of those youths for a husband.

The instruction in these courses is given entirely by men who are specialists and are called in from outside the school system. For example, sailors explain how to press and clean clothing; foot experts talk on the selection of shoes and the care of feet; real estate men discuss the renting of homes.

The relation of the home to community resources, such as the Family Welfare Association, Public Health Department and Public Health Nursing, is discussed by doctors and by those who study these lines.

Girls are not admitted to these classes. They may profit by them later in life, if they are so fortunate as to marry one of these home economic boys — but there will be no "finding each other" while the classes are in progress.

These boys are taught the principle of home ownership and renting, and how to budget expenses. Demonstrators of refrigerators, irons, stoves and washing machines and representatives of local gas and electric companies are brought in. The students study types of floorplanning and other elements of house construction. They learn how to do household repairs and jobs. Think of the joy of having a husband who really knows how to handle a hammer and drive a nail!

You have probably noticed how the very young members of the family are being turned over to the brother, rather than big sister, to look after. That is the boys are natural nurses, but they are less apt to develop nervous fads than the girls. And this is where the home economic boys really shine. They gain a rough idea of what elements may be combined to make a nutritious and balanced diet, and what is the proper food for invalids. In preparing simple meals the boys have shown the greatest enthusiasm.

Altogether, these classes in home economics have been immensely successful for boys.

Pleasing Contour In Cheeks That Are Full

Her full cheeks give a pleasing contour to her face.

By HELEN FOLLETT

FASHION ARTISTS have taken to drawing their paper ladies with gaunt faces. Some of our movie stars, like Joan Crawford, have gone in for accentuation of the cheek bones. The effect is achieved by the clever use of make-up.

But for those of us who do not exist between the pages of a fashion journal or display ourselves on the silver screen, hollow cheeks are a doubtful delight.

Massage will impart tone to the tissues, give a fuller contour of the face. Use a heavy cream lavishly upon a clean skin surface. Stroke from chin to temples with flattened palms do a quick, brisk slapping and patting. That's go be done every night, just before one says prayers and falls into bed.

In the morning ere cold water frosty. Place the palms of the hands in a bowl, and slapping upward from the neck to the forehead. Rub in a little cream, remove with cleansing tissues, then on with the make-up. Eliminate cheek coloring.

Good Manners

WEDDING RECEPTION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married very soon. The wedding is to be a very simple one taking place in the afternoon at the rectory, with just a few relatives present. Is it to be followed by a reception at the home of the bridegroom.

1. Now does one send invitations for a reception? If so, how should they be worded?

2. It is just possible that a few people will be asked to a dinner given in honor of the bride and groom. Would this be permissible without the reception? Will separate invitations be necessary for these guests?

Bride-to-be.

1. It isn't customary to have the reception at the home of the bridegroom, and when so all possible, this should be avoided. Ordinarily, the reception should be the concern of the bride's parents, they so arrange it. But if you decide to have this reception at the bridegroom's home, the invitations would be sent by the groom's mother, who would be hostess of the occasion. And these notes of invitation would read something the like:

Dear Mrs. Mallory,

Dorothy and Tom are to be married at the rectory on Tuesday, the 25th of May, at four o'clock, with only the relatives present. But afterward, at our home, we are having a small gathering of their relatives and close friends, and we all want very much to have you and your husband with us to wish them well. I do hope that you will tell us that you both will come, for we are looking forward very much to greeting you.

Devoted greetings to you both.

Cordially yours,

Mary Smith Brown.

2. Yes, it would be perfectly correct to invite some people to the dinner for the bride and groom to be given after the reception. Since there are to be only so few at the dinner, you might make this a verbal invitation, or you might, if you prefer, write a separate note of invitation.

OFFICE INVITATIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to be married in about two months, and I would appreciate your help.

My fiance worked in one of the Government departments for about five years, and just recently got a transfer to another department. We would like to send the former office an invitation, and we were wondering if this would be correct. Also, in the case of sending such an invitation, how should it be addressed? In the case of his present office, would it be correct to send an invitation to this office, and address it to the department? I am also working in a Government office, and would like to know about sending my whole office an invitation. There are a few girls with whom I am very friendly, and to whom I am planning to send individual invitations, but I was the others to feel welcome too. How should an invitation of this kind be addressed?

2. When sending one invitation to a married couple, should it be addressed when there are two other individuals at the same address, one her daughter, and the other a relative? I know in such a case it is best to spend each of the persons concerned an individual invitation, but if expenses are to great I think we'll have to try to economize along this line. If possible, what is the proper manner in which to send invitations to these departments, and what budget doesn't permit individual invitations, then the only thing to do is to address the inclusive invitations to:

The Department of—

This "blanket" type of invitation couldn't be considered the best of form, for it doesn't give individual compliment, but it does the next best thing in solving your problem. However, I do hope that you will find it possible to send individual invitations.

3. An invitation sent to several members of the same household may be addressed:

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Williams
Miss Irene Williams
Miss Audrey Williams

W. H. HENDERSON IS HONORED BY DESERONTO FRIENDS

Deseronto, March 30.—W. H. Henderson, of Deseronto, lately retired from the Canadian National Railways, was guest of honor at a social evening held at his home on Thomas Street, on Tuesday evening. The affair took the form of a surprise party. During the evening J. R. Cassidy, Road Master, Ottawa, read an address and Frank Giffin, Road Master, Brockville, presented Mr. Henderson with a beautiful chime clock, suitably engraved, the gift of the officials and employees of the Smith's Falls, Tweed, Brockville and Westport subs. Mrs. Henderson was not forgotten either for Mrs. Allen Botting of Yarker, stepped forward and united a box containing lovely table silverware and presented it to Mrs. Henderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Henderson, although greatly surprised, made appropriate replies and thanked their friends for their kindness. FAREWELL PARTY FOR BARNETT FAMILY

Shannonville—A very happy event took place on Monday evening, March 23rd when a large number of people of Shannonville gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Murphy to spend a social evening with Mr. and Mrs. Barnett and Victor, who are about to leave our midst and move to Port Hope. We are early part of the evening was spent in playing cards and chatting and about 10.30 all gathered in the living room and the following address was read by the Rev. A. E. Pepper to the guests of honor.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Barnett and Victor,

We your friends and neighbors of this community are gathered here this night to spend a pleasant evening with you before your departure from our midst. You have always proved yourselves worthy citizens, were willing to assist in the church, social and sports life of this community and we are sorry that you will soon feel at home in the place to which you are going. Our best wishes go with you for health, happiness and prosperity in your new home. We trust that you will not forget your friends in Shannonville but that you will come to see us often.

"We all of us have a road to take, Some of it rough and some of it smooth;
We each of us have a share of joy, And each have a share of the gloom.
Sometimes we all must travel that road,
In sunny or stormy weather;
We each can lighten the others load If we all pull along together".

We feel we could not say or leave without some token of remembrance. We ask you to accept this purse of money and we want you to remind you of your friends in this community.

(Signed on behalf of the community) Elizabeth Murphy, Frances Reid, Jean Sine.

Mrs. Barnett and Victor although taken by surprise made suitable replies and thanked their friends for the beautiful floor lamp and small table lamp and both joined in the wish that their friends in Shannonville will visit them often in their new home and that they will be assured of a warm welcome.

A dainty lunch was served by the ladies and during the evening some splendid music was played and everyone indulged in for a couple of hours.

SPRING AND EASTER MAKE FASHIONS NEWS —Because it's spring and because Easter is just around the corner, women's fashions become the news. Here is what our New York photographs snapped on Park Ave. LEFT, Kathleen Fox, popular younger set member, and Mrs. V. Nolle Good are wearing new Easter fashions. Miss Fox wears a gray checked three-quarter-length swagger coat with black accessories. Mrs. Good wears a light gray rabbit's wool dress. A fedora hat is worn with a tight black veil. The coat is from Schiaparelli. RIGHT, Mrs. Good wears a light black wool coat trimmed with sweet collar, distinctive for its pleated jacket. Under the suit she wears a brown blouse and a green tie. Gloves and shoes were a reddish brown.

SPECIAL MISSION OPENED SUNDAY AT HOLLOWAY ST.

Rev. A. Russell Graham, Missionary to India, is Preacher

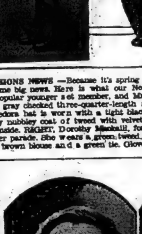
Beginning a week's special services at Holloway Street United Church the Rev. A. Russell Graham, missionary from India, conducted impressive services on Sunday. His message was of a high order which is pleasing.

Mr. Graham has a convincing and happy style. His thought is clearly expressed, his sincerity is at all times felt, his diction is pleasant. His way is the quiet way and has no melodramatic tendencies, sensationalism has no part in his work.

On Sunday evening it was the question of the existence of God which was rejected by the people because of their unbelief which was sin.

"The Mr. Graham considered one of the great tragedies that the people of Israel who should have reached the Promised Land in ten days spent forty years. God's plan, he said, did not call for a wandering in the wilderness for forty years. It was man's unbelief that caused the protracted delay.

"That darkness is great and terrible," he then declared. Mr. Graham who has been through Ill. His experience of the revival in Mesopotamia during the Great War, has an intimate knowledge of India where he labored for years.



This history of the Exodus and the wanderings of the Israelites was written down by way of examples for our admonition, the preacher aptly proclaimed. He said that God had brought His people out of Egypt into the Promised Land, of whom ten came back with exaggerated reports of the land. Joshua and Caleb, who were supposed to be so large in stature that the conquerors were as grasshoppers. Two only of those who came back from the enemy's country minded, Caleb and Joshua advised taking the land. But the Israelites said they could not and were about to stone Moses and Aaron when God stepped in to the hand of God.

Mr. Graham asked: "Are we the kind of men who realize the promises. If not, why? There is only one reason. Because of unbelief. Man has made an absolute provision for any situation which may develop in your life and mine."

Mr. Graham turned to the promise to "God so loved the world", and asked: "When will we have eternal life? After we die? Eternal life is a quality which becomes ours right now. But you must have the will to come."

Mr. Graham said that in spite of their unbelief God still guided the Israelites. "The fact that you are guided by God does not necessarily prove you are in the right place" the missionary said. "God never leaves you, even because of your unbelief but you must discover that you are not getting promised lands, to attain which you must commit yourself to Jesus Christ by an act of the will.

"Will you base, believe in God and in Jesus Christ! You have a spiritual nature which is impossible to find complete satisfaction. Unless you commit yourselves to God you are not receiving the full promise. You may go to church, but that is not necessarily being a Christian. There must be self-committal."

THEY'RE FRIENDS OF KING EDWARD—It is rumored King Edward VIII of England, above, may not look to the list of eligibles of royal blood for a queen. Instead, if he does wed, he may marry a native English girl. A marriage to a commoner would be accomplished without loss of the throne by an act of parliament. Two English beauties mentioned as enjoying the friendship of King Edward are Miss Helena Fitz-William, left, and Lady Anne Hope.

Through the precious promises of God, man may become a partaker of the divine nature, the preacher declared, quoting scripture in proof.

"Perhaps you are a nominal Christian, but you find you are not getting anywhere. There must be a definite and a committal."

Mr. Graham referred to the weaknesses and sins which are necessarily thought by the sins and told how they separated man from the full experience of the promises of God.

Rev. R. K. Newman, pastor, was in charge of the services.

In the evening the music was of special character.

Weddings

RODGERS—ALGIE

Brampton, March 30 (Special)—A quiet wedding took place in Grace United Church Saturday when Miss Mary Phoebe Algie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Algie and granddaughter of the late Harry Dale of Brampton, became the wife of William Walter Rodgers, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Rodgers, of Foxboro, Ont., Rev. C. T. Gragg officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a simple navy blue spring suit and carried a bouquet of Butterfly roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Doris Algie, who wore a green and brown spring suit ensemble and carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses. Mr. Charles Hill, Toronto, was groomsman. Mrs. W. G. Fuller, Brampton, presided at the organ. The church was charmingly decorated with spring flowers, palms and ferns.

Following the service, a wedding reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Lorne Avenue. After a motor trip to Rochester and other New York State cities, Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers will make their home at Stratford.

PRESENTATION

Fifth Line Treadstanza—A very interesting event took place on Wednesday evening, March 25th, in the form of a surprise party, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Farrell, it being the occasion of their eighty-fourth and eighty-second birthdays respectively. Cards were enjoyed for a couple of hours and then Mrs. John J. Murphy read a most appropriate address, Dear Mr. and Mrs. Farrell:

We, your friends and neighbors, have assembled here this evening to spend a social hour with you on this your natural birthday. By happy coincidence you both celebrate the same birthday and on a great many of the births of which you are both such faithful members.

We wish to congratulate you on the rare privilege you enjoy of being spared so long to each other together with every member of an exemplary family, all living within a few hours of you.

You have given us an example to look up to in your good religious life, your faithful attendance at all functions of the church, your industry, sobriety and honesty, and as a neighbour you have ever been loyal and true, ever ready to help in trials and sickness.

We felt we could not let this event pass without telling you of the respect you hold in all our hearts, and we intended to you our heartiest wishes for many happy returns of this day, blessed with abundance of health and happiness. Please accept this small gift as a remembrance of your birthday.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbours.

Mrs. Tim Murphy then presented a sum of money to Mr. James Quinn, a former member of this notable couple, thanked the people in behalf of Mr. Farrell for their thoughtfulness. MINERVA CHAPTER HOLDS "MEN'S NIGHT"

Friday night was "Men's Night" at Minerva Chapter 138 O.E.S., F. W. Patron W. D. Embury made a fine chairman, with Mrs. Fitch as Worthy Matron, Mrs. A. E. Wonnacott, Associate Matron.

Guitar numbers were given by the Misses Muriel and Daisy Turner, who responded to an encore, Miss Muriel playing a solo. Two members of the City Municipal Band gave a varied and delightful program. One was tremendously impressed by the discipline and care, coupled with an unusually fine sense of color providing a first-class performance. A fine gesture was that of the conductor playing with the musicians while the former leader, Mr. Reg. Hinchey wielded the baton.

Miss Vivian Hagerman, by request, gave a humorous skit.

The Rev. Allan Pepper of Shannonville, in happy vein, entertained with impromptu speech. Appreciation of the guests was given through Mrs. Vanderwater. A dainty supper was served by the Inen-folk. Cakes were exceptionally fine. One gentleman admitted he had made two.

AT THE CAPITOL

Romance and Merriment in "Three Live Ghosts"

Seldom has a funnier or more completely entertaining photoplay come to the Capitol Theatre than "Three Live Ghosts", which is playing today and Tuesday.

Giving Richard Arlen one of his finest opportunities as the head of a notable cast, the picture moves with lightning speed through a series of adventures which are at once hilarious, thrilling and romantic.

In its earlier forms, the story was a tremendous hit, first as a book and then as a play, but the screen gives it more and greatness that was impossible in its earlier presentations. "Three Live Ghosts" is the story of three soldiers— an American, a Cockney and a tiled Englishman, newly freed, who come back from the war after imprisonment in a German camp, only to find themselves officially listed as "dead".

For varying reasons they decide to remain hidden behind this official incognito. Their various adventures, as they move through London as "dead" men, without names or identity, provide moments of hilarious comedy, lavishly sprinkled with romance and excitement.

Sybilla Parker, the lovely blonde actress who has scored so decisively in "All Wilderness!", gives one of her finest performances to date, as the American's sweetheart. She finds him alive after he has been resigned to the thought of his death.

Beryl Mercer as a Cockney mother who thinks herself in a predicament when her boy returns from the dead, for she has colonized and spent his insurance money, recreates the role in which she won fame and fame on the London legitimate stage. Her work is outstanding.

Charles Ruggles, famous as the Cockney son also plays the role he created with the London cast on the stage and does an excellent job. Claude Allister as the shell-shocked nobleman with a mania for pretty thet, is screamingly funny.

Dudley Digges, Joyce Compton, Hyda Westman and others of the cast also contribute sparkling performances.

"Three Live Ghosts" was produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and by John W. Considine, Jr. and directed by H. Bruce Humberstone. C. Gardner Sullivan wrote the screen play from Frederick S. Isham's novel and play.

It is a picture that rank high in entertainment value and is unhesitatingly recommended.

Ladies' Night and the attractive piece of "Rosten Overware" being given away free today and tomorrow.

AT THE BELLE

Quick Steal The Show in Dramatic Film Debut.

Five new stars at one swoop were added to the Hollywood firmament when Darryl F. Zanuck secured the adorable Dionne Quintuplets to appear in the cast of his "Country Doctor", the grand new romantic human-interest picture which opened to four capacity audiences at the Belle Theatre yesterday.

Everything that has ever been said and written about these marvellous babies pales into insignificance beside the actual sight of them playing and cooing, acting real roles in a real story and surrounded by the Hollywood stars of Jean Hersholt, June Lang, Michael Whalen, Slim Summerville and Dorothy Peterson.

A courageous doctor of the Canadian backwoods is the hero of the picture played by Jean Hersholt.

He is a simple, earthy man and the picture features his struggles, his tragedies, his near-defeat and ultimate victory as he fights for the life and tits of his people.

After he has conquered a diphtheria epidemic with the aid of serum flown in by his henchmen Whalen and Whalen, also a doctor, Hersholt departs for Montreal to convince the conquering hero of the need for a hospital in his district.

Hersholt's bland manner leaves the wrath of the company men. He returns to find that Whalen's romance with June Lang has miscarried because of the latter's father, who is manager of the post, and that he has been shoved unwelcomed from his post to face a desolate old age.

Despite the cruel treatment he has received, Hersholt goes on one more deed of mercy, and in a scene that is tear with drama and mirth, he delivers the birth of quintuplets. As the news spreads through the world, he becomes a hero, flattered by royalty and the toast of the cities

Transient Arrested On Vagrancy Charge

Inability to give a good account of himself and also the possession of a gold ring resulted in the arrest of a transient giving his name as Joseph Friedlander, aged 30 years, of Winnipeg. Shortly before noon today Plainclothes Man Fred Leaf noticed in Cooke's bay shop, Front street, a stranger talking to the proprietor. The stranger walked in and upon displaying a gold ring with a red coloured stone, offered it to Mr. Cooke for two dollars. Upon being refused a sale Friedlander proceeded with the ring to Constable Leard for $1.50. The officer asked him where he got the ring and upon getting a rather vague answer, placed the man under arrest on a nominal charge of vagrancy. Friedlander maintained that he got the ring in Kingston from "a red headed man". The accused will appear in police court tomorrow and will be sent to the bureau of investigations at Toronto. In the meantime Friedlander will be held in custody.

Patronage Question Becomes Vital Matter By Motions

Ottawa, March 30—(CP)— Wheat will hold the spotlight when the House of Commons reconvenes today. The Bill authorizing which the House labored most of last week, authorizing cash assistance to primary producers of the 1936 crop, who receive less than 70 cents a bushel for wheat delivered to the pools, is scheduled for further consideration. Another wheat bill extending powers under the government guarantees and loans to Saskatchewan will also be taken up today. It stands for third reading.

Once these bills have been sent to the Senate the House will turn to consideration of three measures arising from the unemployment problem. One is the bill to establish a national commission on employment and insurance. Another is the bill for another year the Relief Act in a form somewhat different, two measures which have been adopted from year to year since 1930.

The first bill to come down from the Senate will be called the affirmation, set up to incorporate the Ecclesiastical Mutual Fire Insurance Company.

Objections raised by Prime Minister Mackenzie King last week to the introduction of the bill by Conservative Leader Bennett of all matters in council passed since the government took office have resulted in Mr. Bennett altering his motion.

Today the former Prime Minister will move for copies of all orders-in-council providing for appointments to or dismissals from the public service since Oct. 23, 1935. Chief Liberal whip Rose Gray will move for similar orders passed by the late government from August 7, 1930 to Oct. 23, 1935.

Toronto, March 30—(CP)— Toronto mining section developed a flurry of activity this afternoon and much of the early advance was lost. Hollinger, McIntyre and Hargraves Hawey leading at higher prices was recorded in Teck Crow, Central Patricia, McKenzie and McWatters and these issues were still up for the day, though considerably from important changes. Base metal issues were strong and steady.

Pickle Crow touched 6.15 before backing up to $5 under profit-taking. Sudbury Basin touched the high of 3.16 and McWatters, after reaching 1.36, dropped most of the advance.

"They said they took the gun for protection on the highway," Johns stated.

Sentences were suspended by the magistrate.

God's Lake Mines Director Reports Production at Annual Meeting

Addressing the shareholders at the annual meeting last week, President R. J. Jowsey stated that while in the period covered by the annual report ore developments had been disappointing on the lower levels, since then there has been substantial improvement in ore corresponding betterment in the general outlook.

The following is a summary of recent important developments as brought to light by Mr. Jowsey:—

(a) No. 7 ore shoot on 3rd level has been opened for a length of 110 feet, averaging .4 ounce across 4 feet.

(b) It is planned to sink the shaft and open two more levels on the belief that the main vein will furnish additional ore finding possibilities at depth.

(c) Total production for January and February, $103,182 with operations now showing a profit.

(d) A slight increase in ore reserves reported since 12 at year.

In the field of individual securities, there appears no reason to abandon the policy of according preference to equities for ordinary investment purposes. Common stocks of the higher grade and which have already recovered most if not all of their earning power will undoubtedly hold for periods of market popularity in response to individual developments. The greatest potentialities for capital appreciation, however, continue to be found in stocks that represent companies which still have far to go before earnings justify values that can be regarded as "normal". The heavy industrials furnish some of the best examples of this type.

A good way to participate in the growth of the mining industry in Canada, without being committed to any one issue is to make an investment in the common stock of Canada Machinery Corp., which serves the mining towns and districts in Northern Ontario, Quebec and Western Quebec, states Drury & Thompson, in their Market Letter. At a time when the mining industry is in the older and better-known light and power companies, such as Montreal Power, Quebec Power and Southern Canada Power are steadily declining, Canada Northern's net available for common dividends has shown a steady growth in every year since 1929.

While the power group in general has lost most of its attractiveness due to the rate reductions for lower rates which in more than counterbalancing the natural growth, Canada Northern has forged steadily ahead. With new mines coming into production every month and new mining communities springing up, earnings should likely to continue upward for some time to come. The question of raise in secondary rates for hydro-electric power in the mining areas, For the calendar year 1935 earnings on Canada Northern Power common were $1.87 per share against dividend requirements of $1.30 per annum. At current price —around 20 —yield is 6.5 per cent. Earnings for the first two months of 1936 showed another gain and a conservative estimate for the current year would put earnings available for the common well above $2 per share.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, March 30—Contrasting with the dullness of Saturday, today, the local egg markets ended last week's trading with a firm undertone. Whereas a week ago the severe seasonal slumps, aggregating a maximum of seven cents per dozen, in four days, were responsible for the dullness of last week, with prices showing a maximum rally of 3c. Receipts in the city on Saturday selling at 21c to 22c dozen for A-sizes and 20c to 21c for A-medium. The midweek prices were 18c to 20c for A-large. The market turned much more active, consumption being stimulated by the cheaper price prevailing.

The week's receipts of eggs, butter and cheese, with comparisons, are tabulated at the Board of Trade as follows:

	Eggs	Butter	Cheese
	Cases	Boxes	Boxes
Last week	10,779	2,559	85
Week ago	11,541	4,568	93
Year ago	11,541	4,568	63

The factor market was not considered during the week; cheese and poultry were steady, while potatoes, held unchanged.

The butter market was 22 3-4 to 24c per lb. for No. 1 in cartons or 1 c.l. lots, with some quoting down to 22 1-2c.

AMERKS TAMED BY TORONTO LEAFS IN FIRST GAME

Defensive System of Losers Works Until Third Period

CONACHER HURT

Has Bruised Hand And May Not Play in New York

Toronto, March 30.—(CP)—Conny Smythe and his Toronto Maple Hockey machine today were confident they would pass Detroit Red Wings for the Stanley Cup but refused to consider lightly their only obstacle—the New York Americans.

The big blue team had to go all-out to trim Americans 3-1 in the first game of a best-of-three series here Saturday and officials admitted they faced a tough proposition in the next till slated for New York tomorrow night. Should he finish the round in two straight but if a third game is necessary it will be played here Thursday.

Most talk today was the second game was about injuries. Big Charlie Conacher, spearhead of Leafs' drive for second successive title was nursing a badly bruised hand and it was doubtful that he would start tomorrow. Meanwhile in the New York camp, Coach Red Dutton had little hope his sip injury, which kept him out of Saturday's game, would sufficiently to allow him to take his defence post.

Russ Roll Hero

Russ Roll proved the hero of Leafs' victory. The former Regina Pats star scored one of the three goals. Harvey Jackson fired the winning goal to give 13,000-odd fans one of the season's biggest thrills.

After little Eddie Wiseman put Americans in front early in the second period, Americans set up a five-man defence. Leafs, however, failed to solve the mesh Dutton's men built in front of Goalie Roy Worters and after 10 minutes both clubs was reduced through penalties.

Pep Kelly and Tommy Anderson roughened it up a bit shortly after and both were warned. The loss of one man seemed the undoing of the American defence and Worters no chance as he steamed in close for the kill. Jackson continued the pressure and Americans seemed unable to find their feet—

"GLITTERING GIRL"

By MAY CHRISTIE

"And without a story to his name, of course! A reporter in New York before hunting, I'll wager!"

"Oh, he didn't mean it. His tie has beautiful colors in it."

"His neck-in-knot! Who hairdressed him to you?"

"Mrs. de Bray. She's quite nice too. Short hair, very anxious to call on you, Mother."

"Enough! Something up her sleeve! They'll be after us like cats after the cream—or wasps after the honey!"

"Darling. What silly you're being."

"I'm a little pillow after the long train trip, I guess. And the unpacking and getting settled in was tiring."

Vernon's heart smote her. She had been feeling sorry for having left mother so long alone yesterday. She couldn't help wondering how she was angry with herself for the disloyal thought—how her mother would fit in with the people on Park Avenue!

World they understand that beneath her pompous speech and ponderous power manners lay real kindness of heart?

They found Nan Rushington reclining full length upon the sofa in the drawing-room on their return, a cigarette dangling from her fingers, indefinitely "Studio Lady."

"Your devotions safely over? Hope you put up a prayer of forgiveness for your grand flirtation last night with Prince Karinoff, Vernon," said Aunt Sadie, while about you giving me a stiff communing with the spirits—and what a lot becomes a Princess!" Nan giggled, winking.

Mm. Those itch-itch-ed this but was not at all amused. Treacherously sadistic, Nan, this morning.

"Maybe we'll bring some of the brunch back with us for a cup of tea or something stronger," remarked Sadie briskly as Nan and Vernon went off to the Sunday Morning Pajama Breakfast Club.

The Sunday Morning Pajama Breakfast Club seemed to Vernon a very queer function!

She felt out of her element at the beginning. It was a most free-and-easy gathering.

What on earth did these men and women expect to get into pajamas for, and loaf about on divans, at high noon, at this radiant Sunday morning?

If Terry had been here, it would have been different, of course. But she was glad Terry wasn't witness to her glib stupidity of which she herself was a part.

Half the people seemed as though they hadn't been to bed at all—as though the old had brought them in with the dust in the morning.

She felt rather silly in the loose blue velvet pajamas Nan had dug out for her. They needed living up to—Vernon didn't know a lay to what was going on, here, hither and yonder. . . .

Everyone seemed to move in couples. Every man seemed to have his own particular girl.

Nan was out in the kitchen, helping to cook eggs and bacon, and had another of her high three squeaks in the process. Amidst the hot, unpleasant odor of cooking fat, they could hear her delighted squeals.

No one seemed to have any manners in the kitchen. Manners and pajama breakfasts don't go together, it seemed.

A poet came to talk to her, and a few more enthusiastic people. Everyone was making so much noise that Vernon could hardly hear him.

A long, sad-like girl with the unromantic name of Jemima buttonholed into the studio. The poet sprang to his feet and rushed at her. They kissed ecstatically. Vernon went out into the kitchen.

Hungry, she salvaged a plate of bacon and eggs for herself, and a cup of coffee. That felt good. Presently she would slip off home, she decided.

Suppose Terry telephoned and she wasn't there to get it! Terry would be called in person at the hotel, and she missed him! That was unthinkable.

Wonderful to be out motoring with him in the brilliant Autumn countryside, in that long, low-slung car of his. . . .

She consumed another piece of toast, another cup of coffee, then went back to the studio.

"My dash, the party's positively stodgy!" chirruped a high-pitched man's voice in her ear.

"Let's brighten up that little corner yonder, and comment. Will thou bite with me thither?"

He was a queer-looking young man, thought Vernon. But any port in a storm. She felt solitary. She allowed herself gingerly on the divan whose springs were sadly broken, and permitted him to entertain her in his own quaint fashion.

Extremely elfinn in figure, in pajamas of deep purple, his small waist was girdled by a golden cord with heavy tassels. He had a very small face atop a long neck in which the Adam's Apple was prominent. His eyes were watery blue —red-rimmed—and his tiny mouth topped by an infinitesimal mustache.

Vernon thought whimsically: "He doesn't talk. He squeaks."

Small his mouth might be, but the tongues inside it was exceptionally long. He was the greatest gossip she had encountered.

"My dash, in confidence, the behavior of the Debutantes this year is too slap-ply ap-pal-ling!. Why! even the hairpart feels been left out in the rainness!" He cocked his little head on one side, and drew down his upper lip. "I mean you, I guess —am a wide berth. I literally flee from them."

"That's surely their misfortune." Vernon remarked with a twinkle.

"My dash, do listen to her! Washington laugh just now. It's positively like the screech of a hyena."

"She's a nice girl. She's my cousin, you know."

"How perfectly appalling for you!"

"Not at all. I like Nan. She's good-hearted."

"My dash, how can you say such a thing when she's doing everything possible to break up poor Myrtle Harrell's marriage!"

"I don't believe it."

"Your eyes, my dash—your beautiful, beautiful eyes—do use them. I beg of you. Conceded that Nan's no better or worse than the others, they've no more — or — standards than we ayr!—than a pickerel . . . these young girls of today." Twirling at the ends of his small mustache, he rolled his eyes upward as though calling on heaven to witness.

Vernon felt that she could willingly have slapped him.

Suddenly he jackrod her violently. "Look—Sugar—and Nan—just as I said."

It was too true. Nan made a dramatic entrance clinging with both hands to the arm of Sugar, his right arm round her waist.

"Doesn't he look divine? I've just dressed him in Bobby's newest ones from London," she called out. "Isn't he the handsome thing?"

Someone chanted aptly: "Why Did I Buy Those Blue Pyjamas Before the Big Affair Began . . .?"

This brought rounds of sarcastic applause. Presently Nan disappeared with Sugar.

Vernon rose. She would go home. But the girl called Jemima, and her poet-friend, swept her into a crazy card game called "Michigan."

Then some other late girls arrived with escorts. Vernon was glad to meet them, in view of her forthcoming party . . . .

THE TARZAN TWINS

The malignant minds of the disgraced cannibal chief and his witch-doctor aethed with thoughts of dreadful vengeance as Tarzan warned grimly: "If your Bagalla-raiders invade my country again, death shall be your banishment, for Tarzan is mighty, and Tarzan is just!"

Then the spa-man called Muvtru aside: "Return the stolen maidens to their village, then follow me. I must hurry to meet the young Swanas at the rail-head. Two civilized boys must not be left alone for a moment in the heart of Africa. Their safety is in my hands!" . . . .

. . . .But at that moment the safety of Dick and Dor was in the hands of Providence. When it seemed certain that their railway car would overturn, it righted itself and stopped suddenly. The two scrambled out to join the other excited passengers to see what was the matter.

It would be hours before the journey could be resumed and the two young tenderfeet turned toward the forest. As does range it seemed more interesting, more mysterious. And over the boys spread that strange, magnetism by which the jungle had ever lured men into its tangled net!

What was it Mrs. de Bray had insisted on last night? Something to the effect that the mothers of eligible sons thought a great deal of a girl being correctly "presented" to Society — that girls must have an adequate background . . .

Suddenly it came to her that Terry had never mentioned his parents to her, beyond that joke about being "Shanty Irish" . . .

His young sister was in Spence School. Could it be that he was ashamed of introducing the Tyson family to his own people of better background . . .?

She thought was like a cold hand on her happy remembrance of last night's party at the Sardans.

Prince Karinoff, accompanied by Mrs. de Bray, who was looking very small in a tailored suit of tobacco brown, fur-trimmed, arrived at the Pajama Breakfast Club around three in the afternoon, that Sunday.

They frankly declined to change into "suitable garb"! They announced; their intention of only remaining for a few minutes.

"I just thought you'd be here," gushed Mrs. de Bray to Vernon, "I popped in on the off chance. I thought it would be such a good opportunity to go back with you and visit your mother!"

What could Vernon do but agree with her? She was annoyed with Nan, and this would afford a good excuse to get away.

Nan was nowhere visible. Vernon went up to the balcony that ran around two sides of the studio. Two out of the three rooms there were locked.

Still more annoyed with Nan, she was all the readier to bring cordial Mrs. de Bray and beautifully-mannered Prince Karinoff back to her parents at the Splendide . . .

They taxied there in no time. Passing through the long lobbies Vernon couldn't help glancing about, wondering if Terry were here with Mr. Brandeis . . .?

No sign of him at all. They ascended to the tower.

CHAPTER XV

Hospitable Jake Tyson conducted Prince Karinoff into the cosy small sitting room of the apartment for "a smitter." Meantime, in the private bedroom, Mrs. de Bray was not permitting the grass to grow under her feet with Alice Tyson.

A clever woman, she was a quick reader of character. In a matter of minutes she had discovered the weaknesses, the vulnerable spots in the good woman's make-up.

Vernon, first and last, was her "pet of Achilles"—or so it seemed.

This exactly suited Mrs. de Bray. She had been banking on this since meeting the young girl.

Her old it take her long to discover the strong vein of snobbishness in this odd little woman's make-up. Nothing—could be more fortunate! In her needy condition, she would absolutely rely on it.

You must be related to dear, charming Sir Hartwell Tyson, who died the year after I met him in Cairo? A wonderful man, with a heart as large as your's! And his had a sweet old place in South Wales, if I remember rightly."

Stocky little Sadie Tyson from Pahokan Terrace sniffed and clinked her tea-cup like a limpet. Mrs. de Bray followed her opportunely boldly. She declared she had access to the private libraries of several highly-placed friends, full of research volumes on the English aristocracy. There were channels through which she could pursue her investigations . . . but it would take time, effort and influence to hunt up the Tyson family insignia.

A great, declared Mrs. de Bray emphatically, was a most important thing to have in this big, heterogeneous city. But of course it must be legally established—one must prove one's right to using it! It would give Vernon a prestige that almost nothing else could give. They must take it on the door of their car, and on their stationery. The Tyson crest which Mrs. de Bray would laboriously unearth must adorn the invitations to be sent out for Vernon's debutante party.

Although flood waters are now receding, residents of Thorold and district will not forget yesterday's experience for many years. Muddy yellow-tinged waters of Beaver Creek, which went on the rampage mar-rooned nearly 300 families and forced many to vacate their homes, in fear of drowning. Every available piece of rescue apparatus—mainly rowboats—was drawn into action as soon as the water reached the danger point, but even at that, many hundreds of farm animals were drowned. Members of the fire department are shown in (1) getting their boat off the truck. In (2) is shown a general view of the flooded houses. Rescue of a calf is snapped by the photographer in (3). Several women are shown in (4) being taken from their water-surrounded home. Believe it or not the photo (5) is not part of the swollen Beaver Creek, but a stretch of the main highway through Thorold—waves and everything. A boy is shown in (6) being lifted into a boat with the animal apparently not appreciating efforts to rescue it. Thorold was not alone in its flood havoc. Scenes similar to those pictured above were to be seen around Welland where the Welland River had risen so that only two of the four main highways were open to motor traffic. This river like the Beaver, Creek had overflowed its banks in the sudden rise of night, flooding innumerable cellars, isolating homes and sweeping away small buildings including many chicken coops. During the height of the flood a 40-mile-an-hour gale swept the entire district, turning the rushing waters into a choppy brown sea. Water on the average was six feet deep over the entire area.

RECONSTRUCT NAVAL AND AIR FORTIFICATIONS AT MALTA—In keeping with her huge home defence program, Britain is also spending lavishly rebuilding fortifications in other parts of the world. Chief among these strategic points is Malta, where, it is announced, Britain plans to build a new base. The great naval base at Valetta, Malta, is to be reconstructed to include a military air base in answer to the challenge of Italian aeroplanes from Sicily. The naval arsenal at Valetta is reported working in 24-hour shifts. ABOVE layout shows, TOP, the harbor at Valetta, BELOW, one of the coast defence guns roaring its target practice. INSET, Lt.-Gen. FLOODED WELLAND DISTRICT ENDANGERS LIVES OF RESIDENTS IN CASTLE—From an aeroplane, the photographer, 'shot' this graphic flood picture from an easterly point over Welland, looking westward toward the canal. Houses and barns are shown deep in the flood waters. Many families fearing they would be marooned when the waters rose around them, and animals in barns called pitious cries. Visibility was poor, and westward of Welland the clouds forecast rain. The aeroplane flew at a height of about 600 feet over Welland and circled the entire flooded area.

GARAGE BROKEN AND ROBBED

Guelph, Ont., March 30 (CP)—Thieves who broke into Heffernan and Newbold's garage here early today stole an automobile and a number of accessories. The car and parts were located in Toronto but no trace has been found of the culprits.

POLICE BLOTTER

"We had a full house one Saturday night, when 23 transients and five drunks occupied all available space in the cell blocks," stated Chief Kidd today after revealing that out of the inebriates taken into custody on Saturday night was a woman from Trenton. The transients were allowed their liberty early Sunday but the drunks were instructed to appear in a subsequent police court at which time they will be charged under the Ia. C. A. A slight decrease in the number of transients stopping locally on Sunday night was noted when only ten signed the register.

The annual warnings relative to all-night parking in the downtown area in Belleville were issued by the local police department today. "Last night Constable Evans found eight motor cars obstructing the progress of the city sweeper. The license plate numbers were taken and warnings to the owners will follow. In the future, however, summonses will be issued to the offenders of the all-night parking by-law in Belleville," firmly added Chief Kidd today. It was pointed out, that little attention was paid to the enforcement of this law during the winter months, when the snow and ice was on the streets, as the city sweeper does not operate during this time. The sweeper commences operations shortly after midnight, and continues to sweep the city streets until daylight, necessitating clear streets if this work is to be properly completed.

Railroad Career Ends After 50 Yrs. Service

Ottawa, March 30.—(CP)—William H. Taylor did not go to work today and he won't go to work again, for his 50-year-railroad career ended last night, when he stepped from the cab of Locomotive 6026. He had just brought in No. 1 of the Canadian National Railways and he was on time.

A gigantic sign hanging in the Union Station told the crowd on the platform the tall, gaunt man with the wind-reddened eyes and the smoky, weather-beaten face was being retired at the age of 65.

MR. AND MRS. DIONNE TO APPEAR IN PICTURE

Five Older Children Other Than Quints to be Included

Callander, Ont., March 30 (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, parents of Ontario's famous quintuplets, will follow their five 22-months-old caughters into moving pictures, it was announced today. Details of a contract signed with Universal Studio were not revealed by an announcement from Hollywood a week ago stated the parents and their five older children would appear in pictures.

Charles Roquet of Universal Studio announced in Hollywood last Wednesday the Dionnes had been signed for a picture titled "Where are my Children?" Dionne later denied he and his wife had signed a contract although he said negotiations for appearance of himself, his wife and their five older children in pictures had begun.

The quintuplets' father said at that time any picture in which he and other members of his family might appear would only be considered after the story had approval of himself and Mrs. Dionne. He said transportation of the elder children to Hollywood would present a problem.

A picture titled "The Country Doctor" and starring the quintuplets had its premiere recently.

Lake Forest, Ill., March 30 (CP)—The city installed a lot of new stop signs and the police started a campaign to see that motorists obeyed.

APPEAL MADE TO STAY HAUPTMANN EXECUTION

Nerve of Iron Breaks, Condemned Man Weeps And Refuses Last Meal

Sends For Chief Keeper and Tells Him Story Cannot Be Changed

'TWOULD BE LIE'

Predecessor to Chair Named Died Under Heavy Meal

Trenton, N.J., Mar. 31 (AP)—An appeal to Justice Thomas W. Trenchard to stay the execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, set for tonight, was made today by counsel for the condemned man.

Trenton, N.J., Mar. 31 (AP)—The iron nerve of Bruno Richard Hauptmann cracked today—only a few hours before his execution he "broke down and was weeping freely". He is scheduled to die after eight o'clock in the electric chair.

The confessed kidnap slayer of the Lindbergh baby was crying "he was innocent", Col. Mark O. Hilderbrant, prison warden, said after visiting the condemned man in Hauptmann's cement cell.

Hauptmann told Hilderbrant: "I have always told the truth. I have to make in my story."

The prisoner insisted he had told the truth "from start to finish".

Hauptmann Is Tense.

"Any change in my story would be a lie and would be borne out," Hauptmann cried. The Warden said Hauptmann was in tears when he arrived at the death cell about 8 o'clock this morning.

"It took three or four minutes for me to straighten him up so he could talk coherently," Hilderbrant said.

"The two guards, Fred Mayer and Charles D. Douglas, said Bruno had been up most of the night writing a letter to his mother and talking to the guards.

"He wrote the letter intermittently from 10:30 p.m. to 5:30 a.m.

Tense Hours.

"He talk with the guards was about his family and how they would get along without him.

"I thought after the prisoner about a half hour this morning.

"The guards submitted to the following long hand report:

"He said the plan will never solve the case by sending him to the chair as he is innocent. He wanted to know if he would be justified to make a radio appeal to the public: 'If anyone knows anything about this case to come forward and tell'.

"He has been a good boy and he is honest and to know his father is innocent. He told us he got convicted by lying under oath by the district attorney knowing what kind of money it was."

Breaks Down In Despair.

Kimberling made his announcement from the steps of the prison.

Hauptmann's counsel broke cold reserve early last night in the face of news his second clemency plea had been rejected by the Court of Pardons and Governor Hoffman had said there would be no further reprieve.

But as the hours remaining for him sped by, he broke down in despair.

Throughout his long imprisonment—even in the face of other startling blows at the foundation of his case—Hauptmann had held the iron nerve that had enabled General David T. Wilentz to say at his Flemington trial:

"He is cold; he will be thawed out when he hears that switch—that is the time he will break."

"Last Meal To Condemned".

Kimberling said no arrangements had been made for the disposition of Hauptmann's body after the electrocution, he said.

The Rev. Lloyd Fisher and Rev. John Matthews, Hauptmann's spiritual adviser, meanwhile arrived at the prison to see the condemned man.

"He didn't eat any breakfast," Kimberling said of Hauptmann, and "when I asked him about his last meal he replied:

"I'll have to have that last meal

THREATENING CALL

Newark, N.J., March 31 (AP)—A telephone threat Governor Harold G. Hoffman was going "to be bumped off" was received at police headquarters shortly before midnight, apparently from a crank.

The call was traced back to Brooklyn, N.Y., drug store pay station, but the man who had made the call had disappeared.

Police said they did not take the threat seriously, which apparently was from someone opposed to Governor Hoffman for his interest in the Bruno Hauptmann case.

Situation At a Glance

By The Associated Press

According tonight at Trenton, N.J., of the death sentence against Bruno Richard Hauptmann appeared certain to be the final action for clemency was refused.

Understanding himself pre-pared Hauptmann "may talk" further to prevent his being put to death for the kidnap-murder of Charles, Jr., infant son of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

Hauptmann's wife, Anna, clung to the shred of hope remaining, but was less depressed.

Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey said he would not interfere with execution of the death sentence.

Colonel Lindbergh, in England, spent the night at the side of his ill "mechanical heart" as an aid to science in probing life.

Hauptmann's mother, in Kamenz, Germany, reiterated her belief in his innocence as she sent over a washrag at her home.

Paul Wendel, Trenton, who republished a purported "confession" attributed to him, still was held in the county jail at Trenton although authorities took no court action.

Hamilton Herald Ceases Publication

Hamilton, March 31 (CP)—Under the heading "Curtain", the Hamilton Herald announces suspension of publication today.

The Herald published the following announcement:

"With today's issue The Herald is discontinuing publication. After 47 unbroken years of activity it is going out of existence. Its publishers make this announcement with reluctance and regret.

For the past five years this paper has struggled with circumstances which were beyond its control or influence. In the face of increasing losses it has carried on from year to year with the hope that what was formerly a profitable business would be rehabilitated, and a loyal staff be kept in employment.

But though there have been moments of encouragement, though the support of friends and friends has latterly widened, the cumulative effect of depression upon the advertisers have been felt more and more by the actual income.

In advertising revenues have continued to dwindle and its deficits to grow, the publishers have augmented from year to year since 1931 in the hope that revenues have been greater than the company's entire payroll. Thus, the effort to entire payroll. Thus, the effort to maintain the paper in the face of $100,000 a year has become increasingly difficult. In these circumstances the management has been forced to the conclusion that only course of action is possible—to suspend operations.

GANANOQUE BOY FATALLY INJURED

Gananoque, March 31.—A 14-year-old boy, George Wesley Orser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Orser, suffered fatal injuries here on Saturday when he fell during a ball game. The boy was playing with other youngsters on the school grounds when struck by a batted ball on the cement. He was rushed to the General Hospital in Kingston, but died at 1 p.m. Sunday. An emergency operation was performed immediately, but the lad died on Sunday.

Zwicks Isle Stays Desert Some Call it a 'Headache'

Familiarly labelled by city fathers as "a municipal headache", Zwick's Island which has gained considerable publicity during the past year or so and now lying deserted and bare on the west side of the city will again be left just as it is. No plans have been made for its use during 1936 and the island is generally agreed by the majority of members of city council, who have been approached on the question.

"As far as I know no one has advanced any suggestions to which the island might be used this year. If we had lots of money, then perhaps we might be able to do something—but as matters stand at present on the grounds or something. But as it is, I guess we'll just have to let it go", commented Mayor Barry Bill.

The island during prohibition was provided work for hundreds of men on relief. High tolls were scooped in during summer by ferry boats. Here side, while ambitious plans were laid down by the Rotary and service clubs and the city in landscape the island during the summer months, for the benefit of local residents coming to the east, however, the project has been suspended.

Vegetation has flourished on the island and weeds have grown shoulder high during the past summer, and in the gravelly beach, however, has been a popular spot in summer time for bathers in spite of the protruding deep holes at certain locations.

TRUCK COLUMN SEIZES GONDAR, ETHIOPIAN CITY

Mechanized Cavalry Roars Way South to Sudan Border

NEARS LAKE TANA

Northern Ethiopia is Cut Off From Supplies

(By Edward J. Neil Copyright 1936, The Associated Press)

With the Northern Italian army, Gondar, Ethiopia, March 31 (AP)—This important strategic city north of Lake Tana fell into the hands of an Italian truck column led by Achille Starace, Secretary-General of the Fascist party, today.

The mechanized cavalry roared its way southward along the Sudanese border, cutting off all Northern Ethiopia from supplies which previously had been delivered over an easy trails from the Sudan.

This Italian Drive takes an added significance because Lake Tana is the source of the Blue Nile Tana gives the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan its lifeblood in the arid stretches of the valley. Gondar is only a few kilometers from the head of Lake Tana.

Amendment Purposes Gov't Share Candidate's Expenses

Stevens Supports Suggestion That Limitation be Put on Election Expenditures

MANY ABUSES

OTTAWA, March 31.—(CP) Proportional representation will come before the special committee of the House of Commons on elections and franchise, it was announced by Chairman H. H. Stevens when the committee met today. It will be the subject of discussion at a future meeting.

Today the committee considered a proposed amendment . to the Elections Act which would have the Government bear a substantial proportion of a candidate's election expenses and also that amounts which could be expended by a candidate be limited.

Hon. H. H. Stevens, Reconstruction Party leader, and member for East Kootenay, introduced and moved the suggestion, amounts be limited. Why, he asked, should it be necessary for persons or parties to spend large amounts in order the people should do their duty at the polls on the Franchise.

He certainly believe we should make it absolutely illegal for corporations to contribute to election funds," Mr. Stevens said. "I believe corporations would welcome such a law."

If individuals wished to contribute freely and openly to a political cause, he had no objection, but Corporation contributions should not be permitted.

Against Corporation Contributions

If the law was made strong enough against corporation contributions, he believed, corporation donations would take advantage of it not to contribute.

Members were aware, the Reconstruction party leader said, of corporations who contributed to expenses of a candidate, there was sometimes double, sometimes treble that of the candidate, if elected, to assume a certain attitude favorable to legislation.

A motion to negative the amendment was moved, whereupon discussion was concerned, was made by J. G. Turgeon, Liberal member for Gaspe.

This carried.

C. G. McLean, (Lib. East Simcoe), proposed the committee restrict the amount to be spent

POLLUTION OF WELLS WORRIES FARMERS

Despite the fact that continued rains have materially assisted in the filling of wells throughout the immediate district, farmers are beginning to worry regarding the quality of waters getting into their wells. "There is so much surface water running into our wells at present and filling them to the brim, that it may necessitate in our having to pump out the water owing to the amount of surface water running into them and causing laminating water," practised one farmer today. Medical Health officials throughout the central part of the province are daily receiving samples of water taken from wells in this district that have been filled with surface water. The result of the analysis will ultimately determine whether or not the wells will have to be emptied and subsequently refilled through the proper channels.

LUMBER MILL AGAIN READY TO OPERATE

With approximately three million feet of lumber in the yards awaiting disposal, the huge new International Cooperage Mill at Eagle Lake, near Somerset, which was burned to the ground last year is again ready to operate. In the dry kiln at the newly constructed plant the total length of steam piping is four and one half miles, welded at the joints by an electric welder. It is expected that the first log will be run through the mill early this week.

WATER RISES ON FOXBORO HIGHWAY

Motorists coming into Belleville on Highway No. 14 from Foxboro, report some 18 inches of water flowing over the highway south of the Fairfield bridge corner, along the Valley and Shoot Gallery. "The water flowed over my running board and drove through it the way any south bound motorist would in a person drives carefully there is little danger," commented one motorist who drove into Belleville today. Reports from further north, around the Tweed and Actinolite district, reports are to the effect that no water is flowing over the highways at these points. "The water was surging right up to the highway and threatened to flow over it near Actinolite early today, but in the vicinity of Tweed there is little danger of a serious flood," commented the Tweed bus driver, Mr. J. Emerson, upon his arrival in Belleville this morning.

Wanderings in Old Land Recounted by G. M. James

In an illuminating address studded with facts and information for those who might want to travel the same interesting paths, Mr. G. M. James globe trotter, journalist, publisher and former teacher of this city last evening at a meeting of the Women Teachers' Federation held in St. Andrew's Church hall, told some home facts of his travels on the Continent and intrigued his listeners with details of his wanderings in the Old Land.

Introduced by Mr. A. H. Wilkin, following the splendid supper served by the ladies of St. Andrew's, Mr. James launched into a descriptive account of his travels through the greater part of London and the ports of France, which he touched, briefly. "I am happier here than I would be if I were the guest of King Edward Eighth", stated Mr. James surveying the homely atmosphere. In introducing his subject, Mr. James reminded that he would confine his talks to London and the sights, that were to be seen in the great city of smoke and fog. "I'd like to talk about most of the Continent, but not as teachers know, that you can't teach all the geography in one lesson. I will not try and do so," he added.

Can Go Cheaply

In referring to his travels, Mr. James pointed out that the cost of Oceanic passages were not limited to scant purses or the funds of millionaires. "Any teacher here, who has saved up three or four hundred dollars and has a will to see the Old Country can make out all right" he declared. A holiday of six or seven weeks would be ample in which to visit the old and historic spots, he further pointed out.

"Make your whole visit in London, for six weeks. When that will not be sufficient for you to see everything, you will take you days to cover some of the more famous spots," the well travelled Mason declared.

Then there are Waterloo Bridge, the Tower of London, the Cathedrals and many other places to see."

The historic grounds of Hyde Park where soap box orators daily harangue was also one of the popular spots mentioned by Mr. James as advisable to see, as well as the Botanical Gardens where rhododendrons flowered in the full glory of their beauty, while the speaker impressed, as being well worth the trip to see. And last, but not least were the Horse Guards in their magnificent dress of armor plate, the white horse-tailed, plumed helmets and their white gauntlets, while they sit so silently on guard at the gates of Whitehall. Motionless as if carved out of white statuary, both rider and horse stand in silence during their duty shift, pointed out Mr. James.

President of Assembly To Visit This City

Local members of the Quintena Rebekah Lodge will be hosts on Wednesday evening to approximately one hundred visitors from outside and district points, who will visit this city on the occasion of the visit from Mrs. Minnie Lewis, president of the Rebekah Assembly for the Province of Ontario. Mrs. Lewis will also be guest speaker of the evening at the meeting.

A.L.I. COMMENCES SPRING TRAINING

Issue of uniforms and organization of companies of the local Argyll Light Infantry was commenced last evening at the Armouries by Company Commanders under the direction of Lieut. Col. Ben Green, officer Commanding the Regiment. Staff of the full complement permitted by Militia Headquarters has already been signed up and every unit, it was stated by Col. Green today, First parade of the Battalion will be held on Thursday evening, but meantime uniforms will be issued again on Tuesday and Wednesday night.

BAY CLEAR OF ICE WEST OF BRIDGE

The last of the ice of the upper harbor was being slowly pounded to pieces by the wind and waves this morning. Complete disintegration of the heavy ice sheet, which has been stormily resisted the action of the current has commenced during the week. With the exception of huge floating cakes in the west section of the bay bridge, the bay is practically cleared of ice at the present time.

DEMOLITION WORK PROGRESSES STEADILY

Steady progress is being made in the demolition of the old buildings and sheds on the MacAnnany Street for which tenders on the work were recently called for by the Dominion Government. At the present time most of the stores on that location have now been wrecked, while the old wooden buildings have been completely torn down. The more solid brick buildings are now being attacked by the wrecking crews. Ready disposal of the wood from the old structures is reported by the wreckers.

NERVE OF IRON BREAKS AT LAST

sent to Dr. Condon."

Dr. Condon's sibling, Kimberling added.

Told Orders Good Meal.

Charles Zeid, condemned Philadelphia gangster who will go to the chair a few minutes before Hauptmann, did not emulate Hauptmann in refusing to order a last meal.

Zeid asked for pepper and olives, roast chicken, buttered peas, French fried potatoes, cherries, cake, coffee or milk and a cigar.

Kimberling said Hauptmann could have a similar meal if he desired.

Zeid ate a hearty breakfast of cornflakes and milk, poached eggs and potatoes, toast, butter and coffee. Hauptmann left his meal untouched.

"Innocent, Not Afraid".

Kimberling said he did not think he would permit Mrs. Hauptmann to see her husband today unless something "very unusual arose". Mrs. Hauptmann saw her husband probably for last time Saturday.

"Although I am innocent," Kimberling said Hauptmann told him, "I am not afraid to die."

The principal keeper said Hauptmann appeared upset but he noticed no great physical or mental change in him.

The condemned man apparently harbors no ill feeling against him, Kimberling said.

Appeal Yet Hope.

C. Lloyd Fisher, chief defense attorney, declared after a visit to Hauptmann:

"It looks very bad but until the sentence is carried out, I wouldn't say that I have given up hope.

"While theory life there is hope and you can't tell what might break in our favor."

Fisher said Hauptmann had "braced up" when he arrived and indicated that confidence in him had not yet entirely given up hope.

Last Legal Conference.

Fisher said Hauptmann insisted on what if any further legal move might be made today to save Hauptmann and planned a conference with his associate counsel, Frederick A. Pope.

Fisher said Mrs. Hauptmann would not go to the prison today. He did not know whether she would make any request to do so.

The report of the guards to Kimberling also said Hauptmann told them:

"I have saved three lives in my life and they take mine on built up evidence."

(He has claimed he saved three persons from drowning.)

Kimberling said Fisher he left the death house, "they started preparations for the execution" for the chair."

Had Claims Innocence.

The guards also reported Charles Zeid, due to die just before Hauptmann, told them he was innocent, as to the chair, he goes as an innocent man.

Unless another of the swift, belated appeals which have punctuated his case should burst in the few hours that remain, the obscure Philadelphia gangster will die Hauptmann's most famous prisoner in the United States. Zeid, who fled his life for the $50,000 ransom collected for the murdered Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., will die at 8:30.

Execution Room Ready.

There was one definite way in which the electrocution could be declared. That was through a decision of the governor, Harry W. Mark G. Kimberling, to postpone the execution until later in the week. Such an action was within his power, for the statute law expressly declared that "the week of March 30."

One thing was certain: the little square room was ready.

When Hauptmann walks in tonight at perhaps 8:30 o'clock he will see, if he can see anything beside the death chair itself, a room with only white walls.

Across the room there will be stretched a rope, on one side will be the four rows of seats, an aisle dividing them into two sections. Here will sit the execution jurors—official witnesses. There are chairs for 32.

Behind the chairs is space where others will be standing—as many, probably, as there is room for—ten Hauptmann partners for death room a pace or two behind his spiritual adviser, the Lutheran clergyman, the Rev. John Matthiesen.

Three Doctors To Attend.

Mr. Matthiesen, by one of the unfunny coincidences that have made the ending of Hauptmann's mysterious case as fantastic as almost fantastic, is pastor of the same church where once served the clergyman father of Paul Wendel, now held on a charge of having done the crime for which Hauptmann is to die.

On the opposite side of the room, against the far wall, will stand three doctors who will be called upon to pronounce Hauptmann officially dead.

Morgue For Executed Dead.

To the right of where the doctors will stand and in the wall behind the death chair, is a door. It leads into a small room—the room of the executed dead.

In that room, the interior of which is closed to the spectators by the door, are slabs. When the body of Hauptmann is carried in there tonight, after the doctors have formally pronounced him dead, another body will be taken out. Another body of the Philadelphia bad man, Charles Zeid, who killed a policeman, and was condemned to die for it.

COUNCIL GIVES NOTICE TO SHORE GAS COMPANY

Intention of City Council To End the Agreement With Gas Company Given

Four Aldermen Dissent to Motion Passed by Body

30 DAY NOTICE

A meeting of the Corporation of the City of Belleville to take over the gas plant now operated by the Ontario Shore Gas Company of Oshawa, under a by-law passed by the said Corporation and dated an agreement of April 1st, 1926, was set in motion at the regular meeting of the City Council on Monday night, although the decision was not a unanimous one. The council passed the following motion, moved by Alderman Hinchey, chairman of gas, and seconded by Alderman Laurie Lewis: "That this Council instruct the City Solicitor to notify the Ontario Shore Gas Company that the Corporation of the City of Belleville does not desire to renew the agreement entered into April 1st, 1926, setting under the agreement, and that the City Solicitor be given the necessary authority to act."

Those voting for the motion were Mayor Anderson, Jennings, Bateman, Domenico, Clapp, Armstrong, and Hinchey. Against, while those opposing were Aldermen Barlow, Thompson, Acton and Wills. Alderman Gale was present earlier in the session but had left on account of illness and was not present when the vote was taken.

No Profit In January

The report of the month of January for the operation of the plant by the Shore Gas Company was before the council and it was shown there was no profit in this month. Fred Chamberlain, city auditor, was in Oshawa and audited the accounts for that month and with the consent of the two items found the books to be in perfect condition. He stated that there was $25.00 a month charged up to the Belleville plant, which he had accounted for by the wipe off indebtedness with respect to default in rentals. Mr. Chamberlain pointed out to the officials in Oshawa, that this indebtedness charged up was before the agreement of 1935 was signed and therefore should not be charged against the Belleville plant to which the officials agreed. There was another item of $1.58, which was also taken off. In answer to a question by Alderman Barlow: "Are they in default in failing to violate their agreement?" Mr. Chamberlain stated: "In no way. They have a complicated system of bookkeeping, but it is the system used by the parent company and is quite legitimate."

Alderman Jennings: "We have no way to discover whether they are right or wrong, but I do believe that the City of Belleville can operate the plant more efficiently than the plant is being operated at the present time. It will always remain a mystery to me how they can increase their cost of production without increasing their rates."

Alderman Arnott: "What arrangements are being made to carry this plant on if the city takes over the plant?"

Alderman Lewis: "I have a proposal to make if the motion before the council is carried."

Alderman Wills: "I would like to know the proposal before the motion is put."

Claims Inefficiency

Alderman Lewis: "In the first place, I think the plant is being run very inefficiently and that the people of Belleville are spending their hard earned money and getting but little return. I think the plant should be run by a commission, or the mayor, the chairman of gas and two private individuals with keen business ability, who would be responsible to this council till the end of the year and I will guarantee that a more profit will be shown than is now the case. We have an expert salesman in the gas business, who in three months sold 87 gas ranges, I would put this man in charge of sales. We have an expert engineer of gas and I would leave that department with him. The office manager would not be changed. There would be productive of less cost both for Belleville I would say, that the whole thing is all wrong as the setup now stands."

Alderman Wills: "In the first place I differ from some of the statements that have been made by Aldermen Jennings and Lewis. I fail to see satisfactory evidence, that the Ontario Shore Gas Company is not operating the plant to the best of their ability, would suggest that expert advice be obtained. I am under the impression that we have no power to form such a commission as has been suggested, for that matter would come under the Utilities Act and that as the present is impossible because it would cost too much. There should be some concrete evidence and the best way to obtain same is to hire a competent engineer to test the efficiency. A member of the Consumers' Gas in Toronto would be of great help."

Figures Given

Alderman Jennings: "Alderman Wills must be hard-headed. The operating profits from the city meeting incorporated was given two years ago as 36 per cent. and in 1932, thirty-two per cent. In 1923, the first year, that Gas Company operated the plant, they received the same percentage as in the previous year, but in 1924 the Company had a deficit of nearly $18,000 and in 1934 another deficit of nearly $17,000 was shown. Can a profit be traded and this is where Mr. Acton comes in. He knows the plant and the gas business and he can be obtained for $150.00 a month. We can't do anything as the situation now stands, but we can if the motion is passed."

Alderman Lewis: "I think there is plenty of evidence that all is not correct and there is room for suspicion. If we continue as per the agreement, I think this city is going to be in a sorry mess."

Alderman Jennings: "I have the figures here and they are correct. I received them from a man, who does not wish his name mentioned and I am not going to mention his name."

Alderman Armstrong: "There is a liability at the present time of the Gas Company to the City of Belleville of $270,000.00 and we are asking to the Company you operate the plant and if it pays all right and if it does not pay, it is all right. I think this is unreasonable and unbusinesslike. In 1933 the operating revenue was $53,855 and the operating cost $35,238.00 and in 1934 the operating revenue was $47,000 and the operating costs $46,000, which is an increase of nearly $12,000. They have paid in $142,72.00 and if the default continues at the present rate, the company will soon have their money out. I don't think it is according to Hoyle and are we going to assume that indebtedness and not have any say in the management. I am of the opinion, that the city can operate the plant with a greater degree of profit, than it is now being operated. I am in favor of a commission but I am of the opinion, that this must be submitted to the ratepayers before any action can be taken in the formation of such a commission."

Should Have Say in Claim

Alderman Bateman: "We have got to pay $270,000.00 in unmatured debentures without having any say in the management or how the money should be spent. I think the council can operate the plant at a more profit and at the same time satisfy the users of gas."

Alderman Clapp: "Before I support the issue are we going to hire an American to run it, when we have lots of Canadians out of a job."

Alderman Jennings: "I am not trying to fold Mr. Lawson on this council as the man to run the plant. Mr. Lawson has supplied me with figures and been of much material help in making this report. All I am asking is that this council take some action with regard to this matter. I think it can be run at a profit, I wish I had $46,000 to go around with."

Alderman Armstrong: "The question of help does not enter into the question. I am of the same opinion as Alderman Clapp, that there are lots of Canadians, that can fill the bill but the hiring of them is not as important as the settling of the question, are we going to take the plant back?"

Mayor Hill: "I have refrained from joining into this discussion as I wanted all the information to hear their say. We are here for the protection of the citizens and I have studied this gas question and I am convinced, that the city running the plant can make more money than the company now operating the same."

There being no further discussion the vote was asked for and recorded as before mentioned.

PARKING BY-LAW READ 2ND TIME SENT TO TORONTO

If Approved by Dept. of Highways Will Become Law

TENDER ACCEPTED

Plans For New Foot Bridge Will Be Drawn

Due to the amount of business to be transacted by the City Council at their regular meeting on Monday night, it was necessary to extend the time one hour, the council not adjourning till half past eleven o'clock. Most of the time was taken up under the head of general business, when the gas question was discussed and a motion passed, which will be found in another article in this issue. The council did not come out of committee until nearly ten o'clock. The recommendations and reports to be considered were carried through without discussion of any kind. Those present at the meeting were Mayor Hill, Aldermen Wills, Thompson, Arnott, Bateman, Jennings, Clapp, Domenico, Cushing, Barlow, Gale, Armstrong, Barnard and Lewis, Alderman Barnard was in the chair in the committee of the whole.

Parking By-Law

The parking bylaw with the amendments passed at the last meeting incorporated was given two and three readings. It will be sent to the parliament of Highways in Toronto, and if approved by that department will be returned and given its third reading at the next meeting at which time it will come into force and effect. The bylaw provides for the parking of cars from 8.00 a.m. to 7.00 p.m., on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and each week with the time on Saturday being from 8@0 a.m. until 11.00 p.m. The streets, which the time will affect are from the Upper Bridge to the Grand Trunk Bell on Front Street and from the Lower Bridge on Bridge Street west to Pinnacle street. Signs have been erected announcing the time and as soon as the by-law is passed, the police will enforce the by-law.

The $100 a year paid to the Fruit Machinery Company for parking space in their yard will be discontinued. The scavenger for the city was again hired at the usual salary of $100 a year. A report on the number of city properties rented and the revenues derived from same will be tabled in council at the next meeting according to a recommendation passed. The Y.M.C.A. the granted June 6th as Tag Day, the money derived to be used for the Boys' Camp at Lake Moira. The Belleville Ferry Board was also given $300 to carry on their spring work until the estimates are passed.

Relief for able bodied married men without dependents will be discontinued on April 1st. Relief will be granted under exceptional circumstances but only on the authority of the Welfare Chairman. This action of the council will considerably decrease the number on relief in this city. The City Engineer was instructed to call for the garden lots available for this summer. A community gardening committee may be put into effect. When two stores are owned by the same man, the council recommended, that a proportionate amount of vouchers be given to each store. The council leased to the South End Athletic Club their property on South Front Street for the sum of $1.00 but the $50 formerly paid each year will still be paid by the club, the same to apply on the taxes.

Soils Purchased

Soils for the firemen will be purchased this year from John Shaw at a price of $22.00 each. The chief's uniform will cost $35.00 and will be bought from the same firm. The United Veterans, who are bringing to this city on April 9th, which is Thay Day, Col. W. A. Bishop, V.C., who will be principal speaker at their function, requested the use of the City Hall Auditorium and the request was granted. Permits to bring charged to City Engineer Charles A. Mott was instructed to prepare plans and call for tenders for the erection of a new footbridge. The bridge was carried away by the flood. A special committee of Aldermen Cushing, Barlow and Bateman was appointed to report on all the property now owned by the city. A letter of thanks from the Canadian Bank of Commerce to the Fire Department for services rendered during the flood period was read and ordered filed. The council will also hear the bookmakers' Association, when their convention is held in this city early in December. A committee from the council will be appointed and a grant will also be made, when the estimates are brought down.

Under the head of inquiries Alderman Domenico asked how Kingston could borrow $300,000 on three per cent and Alderman Wills stated that Kingston had to take the money for a stated time, while in this city any money borrowed could be paid back at anytime.

Flood Report By Engineer Given Council

Ottawa Official Says Unless Some Action Had Been Arranged Before, Flood This Year Could Not Have Been Prevented Owing to Heavy Rain and Mild Weather

The Belleville City Council received from A. R. St. Laurent, district engineer from the Department of Public Works in Ottawa, a report on his investigations relative to the flood, which occurred in this city two weeks ago. The report was not read in council but was studied in committee and then tabled. A copy of that report, which was received and filed by recommendation of the council is herewith given in its entirety:

Ottawa, March 18, 1936

Sir:

Pursuant to your verbal instructions and letter of the 14th inst. to go to Belleville and see Mayor Hill and to give him any advice or assistance in checking or relieving the flooding of property due to the ice jam near the mouth of the Moira River, I beg to report as follows:

Upon my arrival at Belleville, I was met by Mayor Hill and looked over the flood situation, and discussed with him means which I thought should be taken in an attempt to relieve the situation. The ice on the bay had not moved and was partly covered with water while the breakup in the ice had come down the river as a result of sudden thaw and heavy rain was jammed from a short distance below the railway bridge extending upstream about a half a mile. The large flow of water coming down was, apparently, in a great measure checked by the ice jam at the mouth of the river, with the result that the large volume of water spilled over the low ground and flooded the town on both sides of the river, doing considerable damage. The primary cause of the trouble was undoubtedly due to the presence of frazil ice at the mouth of the river and in the bay.

Break Below Bridge

The only way of relieving the situation now was to attempt a breaking up of the ice jam below the railway bridge, and I suggested that men be put to work immediately the next morning, which was done. There was a willing waiter, and it was reformed the ice was not safe below the jam. Blasting operations were carried out all day on the ice with an attempt to open up small channels across the ice jam, thereby allowing the water to flow through which would gradually carry the ice down and remove the obstruction to the flow. Fairly good results were obtained, which were carried on the next day, when similar operations were continued.

On the 16th in the morning there was a meeting of the council at the request of the Mayor, I explained the work which was being done and what results were expected. The water had then gone down about 4 inches.

Of course, the question of preventing the recurrence of such destructive floods came up, and I suggested that the town arrange to have the ice cut or blasted at the mouth of the river before the fresh. I was told if the presence of frazil ice under the top ice was found that "Thermit" be used. Mr. Mott, Town Engineer, knows how to handle this material. It depends a great deal on the conditions in the Spring, but there is no reason why the flooding of property could not be, at least, partially prevented on the Moira River as well as they do here in Ottawa on the Rideau River by blasting and cutting channels at once as there are signs of mild weather.

Impossible To Prevent

This year, however at Belleville, the weather turned very mild and there was a steady downpour for two days; unless some plan of action had been arranged ahead of time, it was absolutely impossible to prevent this flood.

As the Mayor did not require my presence in Belleville, I returned to Ottawa on the 17th.

A plan supplied by the Town Engineer, showing the lower section of the Moira River, railway bridge etc., accompanied my report to you of March 16th, 1927, regarding prevention of floods.

Yours obediently,

A. R. St. Laurent.

"It's Great to be Busy"

"I'm a telephone installer and I like to be busy. A good many people are calling up these days and saying they would like to have a telephone put in.

"Seems to me it's something worth while—putting in a telephone. People always seem happier when I tell them they are connected and everything is O.K.—especially if they have been without a telephone for a while. Most everybody says the same thing—'we're missed it.' Well, I hope it keeps up. It means a lot to have a telephone in the house."

HITLER WINS AN ELECTION

There was no surprise in Germany and without Germany over the result of the one-way balloting in that country on Sunday.

The real wonder was the number of abstentions from the polls, 476,165. There were 542,954 ballots voided because against Nazism or defaced by being marked otherwise than with a cross in the single circle.

Hitler must be proud of his achievement in attaining "unity" and a "united front" against the world, though a million and more did not vote Nazi.

Mussolini with his nine or so portfolios and Hitler holding an election without an opposition party are two of this age's most remarkable developments.

It seems a fine way to assure one's self of return at the polls. Mussolini has much the same way though more of course depends upon Hitler and the Nazis than upon the dynamic figure who dominates Italy. But with democratic peoples such a scheme seems a mockery.

It is to be hoped that Hitler will not mislead himself into believing that the Locarno powers will be so impressed with the magnitude of the German vote that they will allow Hitler to make more extensive demands and be influenced to accept them. It will be better for Germany if Hitler realizes that moderation of demands is the only policy.

VIKING BLOOD

(East Boston Ferry)

Springtime; the ice is broken; but a cold
Mist holds up from the sea—steam from the pot
Of some Lapland enchanter dwarfed and old.
A square for ships—and crowded in the hot,

Close cabin of the ferryboat are all
The passengers save one: a boy wild hair
Like shredded hempen rope, broad-shouldered, tall,
Straight as a mast, with hungry steel-blue stare

Fixed on the menace of the skyline, dim
And vast, which towers across the water; hand
Gripping the rail. I know, to gaze at him,
That so some sire of his looked on this land,

Teeth icy-white beneath a curling lip.
A gull-wing'd helmet crowns his forehead low;
He hold the heavy tiller of a ship
Lean, fierce, a dragon's head upon the prow.

A CENSUS OF CHINAMEN in Belleville reveals the presence of forty-one, engaged in the restaurant and laundry business exclusively. Of this number ten are unemployed, and they are fed and housed by their countrymen. Kingston reports 178 Chinamen with one hundred unemployed and cared for by the 78 in fortunate circumstances. This answers the question of a reader who asked if any Chinaman had applied for relief. Not in Belleville at all events.

ME AND GOTT! Kaiser Wilhelm's famous combination, is being revived by Herr Hitler, the lad who keeps the diplomatic pot boiling in Europe. "I am indifferent to compliments, threats, warnings, disrespect or disapproval. With trancelike surety I go the way on which Destiny guides me . . . Therefore with His grace I will act for the Germans and their interests . . . Nobody shall tell me there is such and such an international institution that I must respect!" So said Herr Hitler to a crowd of 300,000 cheering Germans at Munich, making it most apparent that the 'Me and Gott' lunacy which was launched by the Great War and murdered a million men has been resurrected by Hitler to inflame the minds of the German people to the frenzy of a year ago. Me and Herr Hitler set up a pinnacle higher even than the "Me and Gott" pyramid of which was sustained and glorified the mad Hohenzollern for a time with disastrous results to himself and the rest of the world.

AWAY UP WHERE THE GOLD BEGINS, in Kirkland Lake, a new town, absolutely a fresh spring from the ground roots, lives a newspaper man who believes in leading the procession rather than trailing. C. W. Tressider, publisher of the Northern News in Kirkland Lake, one of the farthest north newspapers in Ontario, and he has just been awarded the Pearce Trophy for the best editorial page of weekly newspapers in Ontario and Quebec. The award was made by the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association, and announcement was made at a complimentary dinner tendered the members of the association and their wives by the City of Montreal during the convention of the weekly newspapermen there recently. Publishing a newspaper in a mining town is not all beer and skittles, and requires much ability, foresight and determination for conditions in a new town are not placid and humdrum like an older place, but everything is new, including the people, and the frontier is a long distance from the base of printer and publisher. Editor and Publisher Tressider merits congratulations he's "the Tops." Incidentally it may be mentioned for purposes of comparison, though the copyright law says that "comparisons are odious", or words to that effect, that the Fergus News-Record won second prize. Might has known that the sonny Scotch newspaper in Fairgus would pop up serenely near the top. Bowmanville Statesman and Whitby Gazette Chronicle tied for third place. All of which shows that some of the members of the Weekly Press are still on their toes and rarin' to go. Congrats, all round, and more power to the byes who came up from the Weekly Washington press days to the luxury and speed of the Radio City.

New York, March 30 (CP)—Lucrezia Bori's 26 years of operatic stardom was at an end today.

The Spanish soprano sang her Swan Song last night on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House and then received the audience's ovation to herself and her voice.

WEATHER REDUCES MAPLE SYRUP RUN

Early Melting of Snow and Lack of Frost Affects Crop in Quebec

CARRYOVER BEING SOLD

Montreal, March 30.— Owing to the early melting of the snows and the absence of any cold spells this year's maple syrup crop will be "greatly reduced, an estimate placing it as low as 25 per cent. of last year's crop. Sales of the pure marble maple syrup was being retailed at $1.75 to $2.00 a gallon, while in some cases $1.50 was quoted. In great quantities are sold by the gallon, however, the syrup usually being retailed in quarts, at 60 cents a quart, bringing the price to $3.40 sold in retail stores.

An instance of how short the present crop will be this year was supplied yesterday by E. Lussier, of the Cooperative Fruitiere Co-operative, Quebec, from Mississaquoi. Informed him, Mr. Lussier said, that while last year they had sales of 325 gallons of maple syrup, this year they have not had a production to exceed 50 gallons.

There is still a great deal of last year's production on the market," Mr. Lussier pointed out. "The dealers have bought up the last great stock, however, which was all gathered in late last year, and it always a market for the best quality of syrup. In view of the shortage this year, however, it is possible that some people will mix last year's with this year's new syrup, and sell it, where there are no restrictions in force regarding such an 'Ou-Go-Gravive insists upon.'

Price of maple syrup was selling at the rural shods for $1.75 to $2.00 a gallon wholesale reported Mr. Lussier yesterday, and $2.25 wholesale. Most of this week's syrup is being sold to Montreal and Hemmingford. Wholesale merchants confirmed the report that this year's production will be much below last year's. "There is more left over from last year than ever we produced this year, in fact," one dealer said, "and it is a surplus. However, it is hoped that the season will last at least three weeks.

Sheet Fiber Reported

A year ago the weather was most propitious, and the sap was running for six weeks in many cases, but the weather this year the season lasted only two days.

Quebec province has more 70,000,000 producing trees in Eastern provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia produce the remainder. The most cases around Montreal the crop is already gathered in and the brevity of the season is marked. In the eastern districts, hence County, for example, suffering badly from heavy rains and floods.

FRENCH AND GERMAN OFFICIALS FRATERNIZE—The frontier towns of Neuweiler and Rosbruck have a line dividing them, on each side of the line are parallel roads marking the respective domains of France and Germany. Both officials are seen examining the contents of a motor car.

'Will Never Forget Floods' Say Belleville Motorists Who Pass Through Harrisburg

Unintentionally Elude Guards Outside City in Pennsylvania

BOATS COMMANDEERED

Mr. Walter H. Patterson Tells of Journey up From Miami

Ghostly figures of police and soldiers in silhouette with menacing bayonet tipped guns in hand, stalked on roadsides, halting all travellers on the highway and forbidding them to pass. Cities and towns sprawling in the darkness through which the tidal waves of overflowing rivers swirled thirty feet deep through the main business sections. Homes and barns floating on the swollen muddy waters. Men and women and children marooned on housetops with the ever ceasing waters inching toward their precarious retreats. Whose familiar spaces Chaos and turmoil and stark misery. Detours of hundreds of miles to escape the drowned and desolate areas.

These are only a few of the recollections of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Patterson, Belleville, who with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hollins of Cow Hill have returned to the city after a winter season spent in Florida, chiefly in Miami, Tampa and Bradenton.

Held up by Bayonets

How the touring party had their car held up three times at the point of a bayonet in the hands of husky guardsmen, while they were forbidden to continue, and the stark terror that has gripped the whole part of Pennsylvania, now devastated today by Mr. Patterson, who declared himself "glad to be home."

"We arrived by boat from Miami at Baltimore where the car was waiting for us" replied Mr. Patterson to insistent questioning. Then we set out. But our real trouble didn't begin until we got through Harrisburg. Although the highways are all guarded we somehow managed to get right into the city of Harrisburg. I can't begin to describe some of the sights we saw there. Anyone who went through there will never forget it.

"Just inside the town we got our first challenge from the militia rooted on the road. How did you get here? they asked us when we told them we just didn't know, but here we were. After we got some information as to how we could get out of the place. We went down on street and landed up at the river front where six feet of water was rushing by. We tried another and then another street. All this time we were being held up with their guns. We tried to find some directions regarding a way out. One soldier we asked got a bayonet up in his direction. Finally he told us he just didn't know. The stranger kept saying 'Hurry!' We finally ordered."

Had to Flee

Just what happened in the days of disaster, Mr. Patterson and his party managed to learn the circumstances of Harrisburg and finally arrived at Williamsburg. Here, too, the same flood conditions prevailed. The people had fled from the inhabitants. Pestilence and disease, they had been informed. Dozens of deaths had been reported. What they did not know was also under martial law.

At Williamsburg Mr. Patterson during a short stop over there, Mr. Patterson visited the State Police headquarters. This morning the only subject under discussion in that section was flood.

"I've been on post here for two weeks," explained one police officer. "During that time I don't know what has been going on home. I don't even know the name of my wife and kids are. I did hear, though, that Ward had been washed out of the flooded house and taken in a dinghy to some place where they are now being looked after. We're too busy to keep track of upon our own affairs. Mr. Patterson was told.

Trouble With Looters

Gangs of looters were the chief source of trouble that met with the police of the flooded States and cities. Everywhere, from the evacuation of flooded homes, looters by hundreds would enter, often rowing through residences, which were systematically steal everything of value. Many of the looters caught in the act by Sheriff Strutt was shown fifteen men who were caught in the act of looting. Forts to rescue all from the danger zone was also commandeered all boats of any description, using them to ferry whole families to safety.

Hundreds of Miles Detouring

"We must have driven hundreds of miles out of our way, detouring from one flooded area to another," Mr. Patterson. "But this farther north we got the worse it became. Finally we managed to enter New York State, and while there was no flooding there, it was not to be compared with the hard hit Pennsylvania.

In Buffalo Mr. Patterson was informed that with the sight of the shovels being used to remove the record breaking snow storm recently from the city streets, which were completely suspended while Buffalonians dug themselves out of the worst storm on record.

Mr. Patterson experienced a record boom of business since leaving Florida, which during the 1935-6 year was for many years, and it was reported by the local residents. This season, however, was not conducive to holidaying, it was reported.

"Although the residents complained of the cold, it certainly wasn't so much. However, it rained quite a lot and was stated to have been unseasonable," was the opinion of Mr. Patterson.

Returning into Canada was made via the Peace Bridge at Buffalo.

Advice to the Lovelorn
By Beatrice Fairfax

If He Nibbled Today with Others, Is She True to Him?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been "keeping company" for a year and a half. We've talked about marriage, but have agreed to postpone it until I have a steady job. Recently she went away on a visit, and wrote me about dates she had with a boy. Since then, she insists on dating whomever she likes. She denies any unfaithfulness, will she remain true and faithful to me? And will we be able to carry on in the future we planned? We're both in high school. G. D.

If you have no definite plans for your marriage, and the young lady is frank with you about these dates and does not object to your taking out other girls, I think you should be sufficiently broad-minded not to raise objections and restricting your society strictly to each other, lest you drive her to seek more much you really care.

Reckless to Act Friend to Shabby Home.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am not living in my home city, but in the town where I have employment. One dear friend has accepted he would like to visit me as my home is shabby and not fit for a friend.

The problem is — while I'd love to see him, I hesitate to let him come, because our home is so shabby by early fall, that I simply can't see any money to fix it up. Shall I tell him this, or would you let him come and see for himself?

Jane.

People are much less snobbish now than they were before the depression came along, to show to social face value. And if your house is clean and in order, what's a little shabbiness between friends? If a lack of luxury is going to wreck your friendship for you, do you think it is really worth keeping?

Wife Mr. Girl Wrecks Home

Dear Miss Fairfax:

While I was in the hospital for an operation for appendicitis, who is 22 years of age, became involved with a girl of 36. My mother, who is this woman out, he can never be the same to me again, as all my trust in him has been shaken. He is a church family, and I have been a devoted wife and mother. When he had been drinking he told me I stood in the way of his happiness.

Would it be better if I stop aside and let him try and find happiness with this girl?

M.

A girl of 36 is not likely to be seriously in love with a man of 22 unless he has great wealth or distinction. And in stepping aside you are as likely to wreck his life as your own. Moreover they have unconscious but their own emotions, girls often try all their little bags of tricks on married men, and middle-aged married men — and then don't know quite what to do with him.

A man of 36 doesn't have the right to act like a kid. The trouble looks pretty good to him after the day's work. And unless there is wealth to smooth these inequalities of age and temperament, they usually bring a lot more about these middle-aged Lotharios.

Will Be Happy Your husband is likely to have a hard interval-in which he will see things as they really are.

GOOD MANNERS MEAN A GOOD HEART

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am contemplating asking my young lady friend for my engagement ring. I am very anxious to please her but I know she does not like diamonds and I am wondering if there are pearls or colored stones that make as nice a cocktail and conventional engagement ring. I am very fond of pearls and if a pearl ring is suitable, what style or description would it be?

She is fond of sports and would just now and I want to write to her. I am going to write to her anyway, but would like to know if I should wait until I receive a letter from her, or may I write first? She provided me with the address before she left.

Male Reader.

I'm so glad that you wrote me about this important question of the engagement ring, for it would be a sad thing to have "our girl" have an engagement ring of a jewel that she doesn't like. And, although many are loath to believe it, there are many girls who do not like especially like diamonds, and who certainly would prefer to have an engagement ring of another jewel. These days emeralds are often used, and most superbly, in engagement rings. And so many girls are to step with the use of pearls as fashion....and what gorgeous stones they are, with their deep, magnificent fire. And as for the pearl and star sapphires....they are glorious for engagement rings, their soft glowing star in a star sapphire seems especially symbolic as an engagement jewel. And pearls too are wondrous gems, although you must have a pearl of great size and like a pearl set in a ring. Many girls love pearls and would especially like them for rings. But if she does, it will, of course, be in perfect taste.

2. By all means write to her at once as you "plan," and thank her appreciation when she gave you the address.

Fitting is the Dance Program

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly let me ask you, through the use of program as a dancer? Does the boy write in the names for both himself and the girl or just for himself? Will you also tell me the proper way to introduce one girl to another?

Puzzled.

The boy writes in the names for both the girl and himself. Say either "Miss Allen, Miss Graham," or "Miss Allen, this is Miss Chile Graham".

Loses to Dances

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the best way to learn to dance well enough to go to any ordinary dance ball or house party?

It's so-easy nowadays to take a few lessons, either privately or in a class, that I cannot see how you do this. It's one sure way to popularity, especially for a man, since he has to do the leading.

Spring Lamb Ideal For "Just Us Two"

The spring crop of brides will soon be trending their own kitchens and wondering what cuts of meat are best for "just two of us." Memories of the large meals which mother used to put on the table conjure up visions of left-overs for a month of Sundays. And as the brides turns to chops and steaks, and steaks and chops, ad infinitum.

Scarcely each member of the new family longs for a Sunday dinner as mother's, when a noble roast is placed before father to be carved into succulent slices.

According to Jean S. Wilson, noted home economist, fresh lamb offers a wide variety of roasts which just seem made for the two-some who have set up housekeeping. The leg of lamb may be reserved for the occasion when there are guests, but even a family of two can dispose of a small leg of lamb without becoming bored with too many disgusted appearances.

A rolled shoulder weighs from three to four pounds and is an ideal roast for the small family. Being boneless, it will present no difficulty for the inexperienced carver. The shoulder may be left flat after the bone has been removed and the pocket filled with dressing. This will add to the number of servings, and will also be a very second dinner, since it may be sliced cold and served cold with creamed potatoes and a hot vegetable. Both cold lamb and cold dressing are delicious, although the bride-to-be do not know how tasty they really are.

Roast Stuffed Shoulder of Lamb

Shoulder of lamb
2 cups dry bread crumbs
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 tablespoon minced parsley
1 tablespoon minced celery
1 tablespoon butter
Salt
Pepper

Have the bones removed from a square cut shoulder of lamb and the sides sewed, leaving one side open for stuffing. To the dressing: Make a dressing of the other ingredients, stuff the shoulder with it or skewer the open side, place the roast on a rack in an open pan and roast in a 300-degree oven for about 2 to 2½ hours. Serve on a hot platter.

Fashion Flashes

(Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

GET A SAILOR hat for sleek smartness. A neat model is a sailor with a black felt crown and color of black satin around the head. A veil ties under the brim in a big bow.

A GEM OF A BAG is a lovely model made of the finest velvet, point in a paisley design, with metallic set in studded fashion. The two sides are attached, curtain-fashion, by loops of gold point to gold rings. The handles are bracelet handles of gilt metal.

PLENTY OF PLEATS mark many of the new designs. A navy blue flannel frock, of maroon colored faille has a simple bodice and a clever pleated skirt. The sleeves are similarly pleated from the elbow down. Red, green and white motifs embroider a neckline scarf.

LESS AND LESS has seems to be the word for the fashion designer as they become thrifty. A tiny shelf-like pill-box of black felt has a perit of cog feathers in a bright blue and a red band across the crown. Good for a sunny day.

BLENDING into the general daytime scene for Spring is a coat of light beige camel's hair with full back and a huge collar of natural fox.

BLACK AND BLUE is again a smart color alliance. With a plain black crepe gown, one woman wears a jacket of turquoise blue suede. Turquoise-set jewellery is another detail.

HIGH OR CHIMP are the new taffeta evening frocks. A black taffeta dress with bouffant skirt is high and rose velvet geraniums in big red centers. The skirt is all full and has a deep flounce hem, narrow, braided shoulder straps.

NOT ALL in gray, blue or black in the suit world. Colors such as coral red and bitone green are also big-ly easily. A charming suit of jet-green crepe woolen has a short swagger jacket trimmed with a big collar of beige fox. Pockets are also of fox.

A WEALTH OF FLOWERS is the nail world this Spring. Typical of this floral fancy is a model in black faille, the front trimmed with a full rose velvet geraniums. There is a harmonizing hat.

A PAST GROWTH in importance is noted in the little frock now circled as a "must." Miss Wallis' model A typical model is of black silk crepe with long sleeves, trimmed in with flowers in a bright shade, such as fuchsia or geranium. Short sleeves, puffed shoulders and a loosely tied sash belt or self-fabric are other details.

LOOK ABOUT and see how smart the new frocks are. A tasteful all-day buttons all the way down the center. A small upstanding collar, a red carnation and seamed detail at the hip pockets are other characteristics of this useful frock.

OFF TO CHINA go many designers for their inspiration. Very much Chinese is a dinner ensemble of black silk with a printed Chinese pattern of red, white and gray. Red pipings, kimona armholes and neckband collar are other details.

Exercise and Care Produce Pretty Teeth

Paula Stone

Her pretty, even teeth add to her attractiveness

(By Helen Follett)

No girl will get very far along the road to beauty unless she has white, even healthy teeth. Discolored teeth and the absence of self-confidence in she who has them never cracks a smile, looks ill at ease even when the merry laugh is gurgling inside.

Strong and resisting teeth that are seldom subject to the development of caries seem to be the heritage of races that live on coarse, simple foods. Cereals, fruits and green vegetables, requiring agenis, so are other foods that require considerable mastication.

The rapid eater is likely to have more dental griefs than the individual who takes his time, chews his foods well. It is essential that the food be well mixed. Unmerciful teeth are likely to decay.

A small toothbrush is more efficient than a large one. The brush should be used on hand, so that a circular motion can be used each day.

The gentleman of the forceps and drills will tell you that good combining time contributes to the well-being of mouth parts. Lime is found in milk and vegetables. Vitamin C takes nourishment to the gums and teeth. Drink a glass of orange juice every morning, have raw tomatoes frequently.

Child Can't Fight His Fears

Granville Says Stern Measures Serve to Intensify Problem

(By Lisa Granville)

With uncertain four-year-old fingers, Jimmy clutches the edge of the swimming pool. His eyes, round and dark with fear, were centred upon his father.

His father looked down at him, unsmiling and waiting, waiting until Peter had dragged his small trembling body to the water's edge.

For a moment Peter crouched, shivering beside the waterfront, seeing with baby-horror at his father's finger, pointing back into the water.

Must it be again the cold, deep water; or the sharp disappointment in his tall, magnificent father? Peter chose the lesser of two evils, and closing his eyes tight shut he jumped. Down he went, down.

Early morning Peter's father came for Peter to take him down to the waterfront, to conquer his fear of water.

But Peter did not conquer his fear of the water; on the contrary it grew day by day, as did his fear of his father. This went on until both he nights and the remainder of his days were filled with a terrible dread of both.

Fear, a feeling of self-condemnation, a feeling akin to shame of, against his will, over and over, only intensifies the fear. Fear is a destructive material.

If Peter's father had made a game of the business it might have been a different matter. If he had splashed frolicked in the pool, playing porpoise, clowning a bit, the child might well have lost his fear of the water.

Something which grown-ups seem to forget is the child's sudden fears. But that which a grown-up regards as a trifle, like lemons, arouses his apprehension.

Peter's father was a man without fear, without imagination. He did not understand or admire his son's sensitiveness, which he had inherited from his mother. Peter's father was determined that his son should be "manly", fearless, as he was himself.

But only God can change natures, And Peter's father only succeeded in accentuating the very characteristics in his son that he most disliked.

Fear is a natural emotion, placed in us for protection. And, if in father or child who does not fear who is somewhat abnormal.

Fear is dangerous, however, to allow fear to dominate a small child's mind. Every effort should be made to remove the cause of his particular fear. Not ridicule, but tolerance and love, will bring child peace, should be shown by the parent. And, above everything a child as his parent's calm, undisturbed manner.

Animals Story of Quint Film "The Country Doctor"

Stars World's Most Famous Babies

Darryl F. Zanuck's "The Country Doctor" — now delighting capacity audiences daily at the Belle Theatre, proves to be the "cleanest event" of the year as it presents the five famous Dionne Quintuplets laughing, crooning and stealing your heart in a motion picture star.

It is a story bristling with drama, comedy, romance, pathos and adventure that presents these universally loved babies in their first feature length picture roles. Jean Hersholt is the hero, as the doctor who devotes his life to a remote Canadian rural settlement.

Hampered by official red-tape, acutely in need of a hospital, he marshalls the heads of his company, loses his position because of the enmity of the company manager. He answers one last call for his services, and to his astonishment brings five tiny mites to the world at one birth.

With a startling suddenness, the doctor finds his position reversed. He is the focus of world interest, he can demand and get everything he wants for his tiny charges. And in the climax, the man who faced a lonely old age becomes the recipient of highest honors from the government.

Combined against the dramatic central plot are the comedy roles of Slim Summerville and John Qualen, and the youthfully tender romance of Michael Whalen and June Lang, all contributing to the story's entertainment power.

Henry King directed the picture, many scenes of which were photographed by a company dispatched to the quints' home in Callander, Ontario.

Grand Short Treats

A grand array of short treats have been assembled for exhibition on the same program including the Belle Latest World, Pete Smith's clever Walt Disney Silly Symphony cartoon, "Cracked Ice," the beautiful and interesting travelaid "Honolulu" all in gorgeous technicolor.

The entire program will be repeated again tonight and Wednesday, matinee and evening, performances starting at 2.00, 7.10 and 9.15. "The Country Doctor" starts daily at 3.05, 7.25 and 9.40 p.m. The Belle Theatre is closed Monday evening prevail or this attraction.

A great actor's greatest picture is "Two Sinners" adapted from Warwick Deeping's "Two Black Sheep" featuring Marian Sleeper and Cora Sue Collins.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Mad Love"

Thrills and mystery are rampant, and laughs and romance play hide and seek with creepy chills and fantastic happenings in "Mad Love" new drama of bewilderment which introduces an amazing new personality to the American screen in Peter Lorre. It comes Wednesday to the Capitol Theatre.

Lorre, the European star of "M", one of the sensational mystery thrillers of all time, "The Man Who Knew Too Much" and others that made him the talk of Europe, makes his debut in American films as a mad surgeon, working miraculous medical magic, performing bizarre experiments, and figuring in an amazing plot.

Work Scientific Wonders

The action ranges from a Grand Guignol horror theatre in Paris to the weird surgery where the mad doctor and his Oriental assistant work out their scientific wonders.

The story tells of a great surgeon who gradually goes mad because of love for a beautiful actress, who loves another. As his madness grows, a ghastly transformation in the man is seen on the screen. His amazing plot is to ruin a husband to gain the woman he loves in the leads of the story.

The picture is filmed with the strange lights and shadows and unique camera effects which Karl Freund, the director, pioneered in Germany. Metropolitan, "Variety" and others of his pictures that revolutionized photography of the screen.

The bizarre locales include the burlesque region of the theatre district, with its strange "props" and effects, the theatre itself with its macabre trimmings, the weird clinic and surgery of the surgeon, with its fantastic lights, surgical instruments and trappings, the forbidding street of the prison and other surroundings in keeping with the strange story.

A notable cast surrounds Lorre, Frances Drake plays the heroine Yvonne, and Colin Clive is Orlac, her husband. Rollo, the murderer, is played by Edward Brophy. Ted Healy Jewell is the Apache girl accused of the murder done by the mad doctor.

Ted Healey as Reporter

Ted Healey plays an American newspaper reporter, and others in the cast are Keye Luke as the plotter Dr. Wong, Murray Kinnell as owner of the wax museum, Sarah Haden as the comedy maid in the theatre, Ian Wolfe, Charles Trowbridge, Henry Kolker and Harold Huber.

The M-G-M picture is based on Maurice Renard's novel, "The Hands of Orlac", adapted by Freund and Guy Endore. with screen play by P. J. Wolfson. John W. Considine, Jr., is the producer. Ted Fosters Hit on Same Bill

"Fighting Youth"

Communistic radicals on the football field!

This is the disturbing situation which is brought to light in "Fighting Youth", the Universal gridiron drama which comes to the Capitol theatre on Wednesday, starring Charles Farrell and Jean Parker. Mel and Andy Devine in featured roles.

In the story the campus of State College is the scene of seething radical activities which "easily find an outlet in the attempted disruption of the football team on the theory that the game itself is Big Business, with the players simply pawns in the hands of those who are exploiting them for their own gain. Farrell All-American star of the squad, is induced to attend a meeting of the Students' League of Freedom and to express his sympathy with its but dimly-understood aims.

On the following Saturday the "glue-fingered" Farrell, who has not dropped a ball in three years, makes two costly fumbles which cause the loss of a traditional game, and the rumor spreads that he has deliberately "thrown" the contest. Subsequent events in the life of this thrilling picture an illuminating commentary on present-day conditions, in a screenplay filled with exciting events and intensely dramatic situations.

"Fighting Youth" was directed by Hamilton MacFadden, and the cast appearing with Farrell, Miss Parker and Devine includes J. Farrell MacDonald, Ann Sheridan, Eddie Nugent, Phyllis Fraser and Murray Kinnell, as well as many such outstanding football stars as Jim Thorpe, Paul Schwegler, Dick Lukas, Jim Purvis, Moon Mullins, Howard "Red" Christie and Dale Van Sickel. The story is based on an original idea by Stan

Fish are Caught As Paddle Swings

Fishing without nets or fish poles is being engaged in by residents of the district of Redmerville, Pring Steward County, this week as the annual smelting rushes start though their methods of capture are novel.

As an illustration, it was reported today by Mr. Pringle Douglas, resident one and one half miles south of Redmerville that over a dozen large pike were scooped by him and his son in the marshes near his home.

"All we had to do was bat them over the head with long paddles when they came," stated Mr. Branagh.

Swollen flood waters of the bay have carried the fish out into the marshes, it was explained.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

The next development, that will have an important bearing on the market trend, is expected to come from Europe. Now that the German election are over with the results as ordered by Chancellor Hitler, it is expected that the Reich will take a definite stand with regalion to France and the England. If its demands of peace-maker, will be able to bring about some plan that will satisfy the conditions all. Any proposals that would have the effect of lasting peace in Europe for a number of years would be welcomed by the whole world and would have a very constructive effect on the security markets.

Consolidated Smelters has been acting with characteristics of late despite the uncertain tone of the metal markets generally. Recently the new shares, according to present indications, will have a par value of $5, which places them in a category easily accessible to the investor. Dividends will increase. The splitting-up of the shares of Smelters will be the first such step by an important company in several years and should have a constructive market influence.

Earnings of Gold Mines Are Capitalized in Market Very Moderately —Consolidated Smelters Stock

It is quite obvious that the present is a time when it is necessary to look at which shares of the leading gold mining companies the present earnings of exchanges are selling discounted that in most instances the capital is not large enough to command a much lower price-earnings ratio than that now commanded by other industrials in general.

This condition seems warranted that this unwillingness of the investing public to capitalize earnings of the gold shares at a higher rate than ten or twelve to one can be attributed to the general uncertainty a general wariness of the necessary hazards of mining. Even the most gold mines considered are operated by experienced personnel, and the problem of finding, and maintain ore reserves that insure profitable operations for several years to come.

It would appear that instead of speculative uncertainty, a realization that speculative appeal is lacking in the shares of the leading gold mines is the basis of the old time rumors of mergers, consolidations and apparent unexpected profits, the only basis for larger earnings per share will be a rise in working costs or upon an increase in selling price of the product received.

It is true that in Canada, where the gold mining industry is firmly established as of major importance, there has been a decline in the price of gold since the principal mines since 1930, but wages there were always relatively low as compared to that before the increased price. But with the British Pound, however, have entered in to prevent any consider. able reduction in costs, and it is quite likely that they will be lowered to any extent over the future.

The other consingency of a further increase in the price of gold is of course purely hypothetical, but the fact that gold has remained stationary at $35 an once since February, 1934, when it was set at $35 an ounce, would indicate that there is the psychological effect of suggesting a sort of a permanency.

An indication of the heavy tax burden to which Ontario gold mines are subjected is pointed out by the Ontario Mining Association, which declares that total taxes paid by the northern Ontario mines in 1935 amounted to $1,710,000, of which $1,072,778,000 went to the Dominion, while the province took $246,000 and the municipalities contributed themselves only $377,000. Taxation per ounce of gold produced increased from 89 cents in 1931 to $4.88 in 1935.

$8 MILLIONS IN ESTIMATES PASSED IN NIGHT SESSION

Disclosure of New Farm ad School Grant Made by Hon. Mr. Simpson

WILL BE EQUITABLE

Col. Hunter Asserts Teaching of History is Colored

Toronto, March 31 (CP)—Ontario legislators stumbled wearily to bed today after a gruelling 16-hour session, interrupted only by dinner adjournment, during which they passed estimates totalling nearly $8,000,000.

The Legislature's first dawn sitting of the year, recalling the parliamentary tactics of a year ago during debate on the Quebec power contract, adjourned at 4.38 yesterday, influenced for dinner at six o'clock and resumed at eight.

Consideration of the remainder of the $61,000,000 Ontario Government needs to carry on during the fiscal year commenced at 10 o'clock today.

With tempers frayed as the night wore on, two sharp arguments featured the otherwise dull period of considering items by item the money to be voted. One came with Chicken Farm Relief Act. W. A. Baird (Cons., Toronto, High Park) demanded the Minister explain the manner in which the $2,500,000 would be apportioned. There had been no new admission, he was told, to the past.

The new estimate was $300,000 greater than a year ago, said Arthur Wills (Cons., Ottawa South) the increase was needed to meet the extra money was going.

At this point, Dr. Simpson claimed the new grant. It would be based on an attempt to give assistance where assistance was needed and was figured out on a school population in proportion to assessment.

Details of the division of the $2,850,000 could not be given since returns from all schools were not available, said Dr. Simpson. Later, Premier Hepburn promised to table today the division of grants last year.

The Ottawa South member, Leopold Macaulay, Conservative member for York South, and opposition leader George S. Henry joined in pressing for revelation of the manner of the new grant.

Another Minister Croll objected that the information was before the courts, the Minister of Government was being sued, and he did not know whether a Bat to sue had been launched.

"I don't propose to stand here and have a lot of media suggested what was said during the Patrick campaign," Mr. Heenan declared shortly, referring to the Government's successful attempt to unseat the late Premier Patrick.

Mr. Heenan, former Minister of Railways) repeated these same remarks to Fred Wilkins, during the campaign and those speeches licked him.

"I have been in politics twenty years, I have never yet seen anybody forbid to make a political capital out of the bodies of dead men. Than anyone, he (, man) as to do this! Imagine the effect this will have on their families.

The man had asked for and received a leave of absence from their work, he said. Some were going to the meeting. Others were not.

"No one is blaming the Minister for the death of these men," Mr. Heffington said.

New School Grant Disclosed.

"Talking about killing people," Mr. Heenan went on. "Let me tell you about a year ago I was in the company of politicians, who did not know anything about dynamite before, and they killed 19 men."

Disclosure of the new form of school grant, which the Minister said would be equitable to both types of schools, came latter. W. A. Baird (Cons., Toronto, High Park) demanded the Minister explain the manner in which the $2,850,000 would be apportioned. There had been no new admission, he was told, to the past.

The new estimate was $300,000 greater than a year ago, said Arthur Wills (Cons., Ottawa South) the increase was needed to meet the extra money was going.

At this point, Dr. Simpson claimed the new grant. It would be based on an attempt to give assistance where assistance was needed and was figured out on a school population in proportion to assessment.

Details of the division of the $2,850,000 could not be given since returns from all schools were not available, said Dr. Simpson. Later, Premier Hepburn promised to table today the division of grants last year.

The Ottawa South member, Leopold Macaulay, Conservative member for York South, and opposition leader George S. Henry joined in pressing for revelation of the manner of the new grant.

"Are you worried about the difference between Public and Separate Schools?" Dr. Simpson asked Mr. Henry.

Called to Put Amendment

"No," Mr. Wills replied. "A minister of the Crown comes before the legislature and says 'I, as a member, must swallow the $3,000,000 item without knowing where it's going. I consider it an insult to the House that you submit the estimates in this form."

"Put your amendment," Premier Hepburn urged. "We'll just vote it down."

The opposition leader and Mr. Heffington questioned the Minister, on the Illinois towards medical schools of university professors, Mr. Macaulay protested not to be "driven by the whip."

While a professor should not give the impression he was speaking for the university, Mr. Macaulay said he's "not the same as a coolie." He should be entitled to express his views. His stand brought applause from government benches.

Textbooks were "thoroughly discussed," Mr. Heffington stated, and parents were disgusted. Col. Fraser Hunter (N., Toronto St. Patrick) queried the teaching of history of the war was colored by party writings, and severely Nicholls, "a Pacifist of the worst type."

During discussion of forestry department estimates, Mr. Heenan declared the government was responding to cake over Don Echo, property the government was to acquire at Mr. Merrill Ferguson, the writer.

Conservatives protested a $64,000 vote for forest ranging in one year to the extension of roads and a $1,000,000 vote in another part. Premier Hepburn told the legislature the government was building airplanes at Sault Ste. Marie for half the price it would cost to purchase new planes.

The following estimates were passed: Agriculture, $1,969,500; Education, $9,063,780; Labor, 1097, 118; Lands and Forests, $3,117,725; Mines, $343,003; Municipal Affairs, $83,136; Northern Development, $2,809,000; Prime Minister, $132,470; Provincial Treasurer, $1,300,088; Welfare, $18,819414.

Trenton and District

Trenton, March 31.—(Special)—Trenton is the town in the river that did not move out into Bay until last Saturday, diving operations to locate the body of Mr. Ernest Bell, which had not start until yesterday, owing to the weather conditions on the Russell Construction barge was set up from the Government docks on the west side of the river to the foot of Baptist street on the east side, where the pipe line connects with the water system which supplies the east side residents. At 6.30 p.m. yesterday afternoon Diver Wade made his first descent to the bed of the river. His efforts to locate the missing man were hindered by the swift current, which carried him downstream for a distance of twenty feet. The workmen decided to call it a day and the diver stated, that he did not have much visibility below the ice, from the bottom of the river against the current. The weight will be increased to one thousand pounds as it is expected, that it will take a very much to cope with the swift moving waters. Although, he seemed to be out of breath, when he was pulled on the platform of the barge he seemed none the worse for his experience otherwise and it is expected that operations will be resumed tomorrow.

Players of the Whitehall Cans have been making inquiries as to why they did not receive medals for taking second place in the Trenton and District Hockey League, and the Ontario Hockey League contest. Both received medals and the reason for it was that Mr. F. A. Collins, M.P., Ontario, donated part of the money for the medals. Mr. Howes states that this process of the cups, which were awarded to the champions of the league is levied upon him and he cannot see why any clear to present the runners up with medals, when the league knows that he was in a position to do so. Players of the league should have enough confidence enough not to expect reward as Mr. Mooney has worked wonders with the bringing hockey to Trenton into the hockey limelight and to him much credit is due.

Court

A local lad appeared before the Magistrate today charged with being found in the city of Belleville, on Saturday night Dedicated. He pleaded guilty of the charge and was fined $10.00 and $5.60 costs. Crown Attorney asked the boy his age and he said that he was nineteen years old". As it is against the law to sell anyone under age intoxicating liquors the Crown asked him, where he had procured the drink. He stated that a man was at a hotel at the northern end or Front St., but he was not sure as to the name of the hotel. The Crown stated that it was a serious charge for anyone to supply people under the age of twenty-one intoxicating liquor and the penalty imposed on them was one month in County Jail. The boy was told by the Magistrate if he could have the time for the payment of the fine lengthened as he was working and did not receive his cheque until the 10th and 24th of the month. The Magistrate gave the boy until the 24th of April to pay.

A local man, who is employed on relief appeared charged with being intoxicated. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10.00 and $5.60 costs. The Crown asked him if he would pay the amount and he said that if he was given an extension of a few days, that he would pay. He was asked how he could get, $15.60 when he was working on relief. He stated that he had a few odd jobs to do and that he could make the amount payable that way. He was given until the fifteenth of April to pay and on default will be sentenced to Bellecille jail for ten days.

The juvenile case of theft which had been laid over till Dr. Doyle's report could be submitted to court was resumed today. The report stated, that the boy should go back to the Boys' Training School in Bowmanville. When he came out a child says he was fair but that he had slipped back since he had been there. Dance and Procter Hockey Banquet

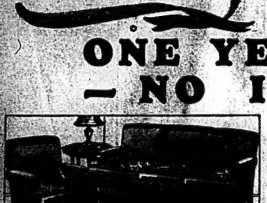
At Allard's Restaurant last night the Benedict and Procter Hockey Club gave a banquet for the players and manager. Nineteen persons were present and all enjoyed the evening immensely. The manager and the captain of the team each spoke briefly to the gathering and in their speeches they extolled the team though they did not win the laurels this season that they hoped to be on top next year that was, providing that the aggregation held together and they saw no reason why they should not. Mr. R. Shroader was the manager and Mr. E. Neale held the position of leader and captain.

WAIT AT PRISON GATE WITH SMILES AND HELP

Prison Gate Work of the Salvation Army — the endeavor to help men who have slipped, offended against society and been imprisoned for it, to become useful citizens again, was very interestingly described to Belleville Rotarians Monday by Colonel Sims, Social Secretary for the Salvation Army for Canada, Alaska and Bermuda. Many instances were related by the speaker of men being met at the prison gate after serving a term, helped to get a job and go straight despite the difficulties in their path and the bar sinister of a prison stain.

General William Booth, the Grand Old Man of the Salvation Army, used to say that a man was worth as much as a cab horse. If the horse fell down, there were many to rush to his assistance and help it up. The first step was to put the horse upon its feet, then acquire into the whys and wherefore of the fall. A man should be entitled to the same help — if he is down help him up, leave the probe into the reasons of his fall until he is on his feet again. A cab horse is assured of food, shelter and work — a man is entitled to the same. Incidents were related by the speaker showing the great love for humanity of General Booth, and his pity and help for the hundreds of homeless in London who lay out all night under the bridges.



"Darkest England and the Way Out", revealing in book form the horrible poverty in the great cities of England, showed how deep General Booth had probed beneath the surface of the underworld, and relieved all England to action.

Inequality of sentences were discussed by Col. Sims, and incidents given of such variation in sentences as to cause wonder how such conclusions could be arrived at by the Bench.

Captain Ruston introduced the speaker and H. Petterly and Frederick J. B. Bryce voiced the appreciation of the Rotarians present.

Mrs. Tyson was all of a flutter at her evidence of Mrs. de Bray's kindness.

had playfully twisted her father's ear.

"It was indeed a WET affair," commented Mrs. de Bray, with a shudder.

Mrs. de Bray was beautifully dressed in the height of the mode, Nan noticed, and had evidently had a perfectly delightful time. She found that her work in connection with the party had been kept a profound secret.

"The clever press agent had kept in the interests of the party, in the interests of Motherhood, wonderful photographs (at least they had once been) of her rather shady "Romeo" husband, and his one daily glass of champagne.

The night for Vernon's coming-out party had been fixed for a week before Mrs. Tyson learned that eight subsequent débutante dances had been announced in the name of Jake and herself.

The Chateau in the Park was to be gloriously decorated for the occasion. The favors were beautiful, if expensive.

At Nan's "tea" (whereat no tea was served) half the people were utterly unaware that it was given in honor of Vernon. Nan behaved rather badly, Mrs. Tyson thought, making herself entirely too much the centre of attraction. She had invited a lot of rowdy theatrical people, and the bar was doing a roaring business.

Soon, too, rather lost his head, along with pretty movie actresses and consuming more than was good for him.

But Mrs. de Bray was thoughtful and solicitous. She always was, even if most of the people she brought up to your house did rather get little at first to grind.

Customers' men from the best-...ge houses..... dressmakers,..... (high-class, of course—emulating how many "Society names" have they been these days!).... portrait painters ("your daughter is so beautiful, she really OUGHT to be done!").... singers who begged her to buy lots of tickets for their concerts.... women who were promoting dances.... and the great Charity seizure.

It was all very confusing. Good-natured Sadie's hand was often seen in her pocket-book. Apparently one had to buy one's way in this town!

But she had high hopes of Vernon with Prince Karinof. Such a charming fellow! So attentive to his elders! Such perfect manners! His eldest! Such perfect manners! He had big oil properties in the South of Russia, only waiting to be developed.....

CHAPTER XVI.

Martina de Bray had told her all about the Prince's antecedents, and what a brave and unconquerable fight he had put in in the new country, unaccustomed to waiting on himself.

The Prince had twice won his wonderful military decorations, showing what a hero he had been in the World War, and afterwards with those dreadful Bolsheviks he had wounded him badly. He was, as she knew, directly he got out of hospital, he had driven a taxi for, for almost a year! He wanted to do as much for Vernon, which of course was the act of a real gentleman!

He was modest, and he was ambition. Mrs. de Bray remarked to Sadie, at least "in the American manner." She had looked down her nose in such a pitch Prince's horn to such a height for a brief time, Sadie had felt that Martina must herself be descended from the aristocracy of Russia!

But nothing of the sort. It had, indeed, resulted in the deepest admiration that Nan's father (if he had been there at the verge of a real romance" before the crash. But just what must Nan's father of them had unfortunately

"We wouldn't go far," said Dick. "Come on!"

But they had gone only a few steps when a train guard hailed them. "Say, whatever you do, don't go into that forest. You'd be lost in no time." "Lost!" Doc whispered scoffingly; "he must think we're crazy."

The warning made them all the more anxious to investigate. They sauntered to the edge of the train, then passed to the other side. There an opening appeared in the tangled vegetation, flanked by solid ranks of sentinel trees. "Just a little peek," Doc suggested.

They stepped into the opening, which proved to be a path. Ahead, it curved out of sight. They were intrigued to see what was beyond the turn. Then another turn, and another claimed their attention. Curiosity drew them onward. The scenery of the jungle had claimed them!

"I'm glad you enjoyed it," A gleam of hope sprang into the girl's eyes and she added: "And letters, Mother?"

"Heaps of them. On both of us. Invitations, Bills. Circulars. Most of the invitations are the kind where we have to pay. They don't seem to be giving away much for nothing in this city. But it's exciting, just the same."

The lure of the jungle was seeping slowly into the minds of the boys. "Wonder what it's like in there," remarked Doc. "Looks spooky. Don't you?" "I'd like to go in and see," "So would I. There's no danger we haven't seen a thing in Africa that could hurt a flea."

excellent taste.

Sometimes, alone in that bird's eyrie apartment atop the great Park Avenue hotel, poor Sadie Try-...on would think the world rather topsy-turvy. There were times—but ...ouldn't admit this to herself—when it was true—when she wished they hadn't made such a success of the Texas hogs, or struck oil on the property, either.

Still, one had Vernon to consider. All the spending, and dressing, and entertaining and late hours would be worth something, if her little girl achieved a title!

But perhaps Mrs. Tyson's happiest times in the luxurious top-apartment were when she kicked off her tight shoes and discarded her fashionable corset and got into her loose slipper and lay on the chaise longue, and her maid brought her a strong cup of tea, and she read the Palookah newspapers.

That good-looking but undistinguished young man whom Vernon had "picked up with" on the train had telephoned very often since Sadie congratulated herself that she had not refused his message.

One day, in actually dared to be chivalrous! He said he had been out of town, for a week—he wanted to ask Vernon to dinner.

Sadie had "put him in his place" with "My daughter is not with Prince Karinof of Russia. We are the Hotel Splendide to a sparkling week, and next too," she had grandiosely announced.

Nan had rub in almost on the heels of his departure. Sadie had told Nan of his visit, and her cleverness in getting rid of him.

Nan's blue eyes had widened in amazement. "You mean Willie Terry?" she asked. Why, don't you know that he's a catch? That he comes of a very rich and prominent New York family? Vernon will be wild! You've put your foot in it dreadfully, Auntie!"

x x x

Vernon Tyson—it was the tenth morning after her arrival in New York—awoke in her guest bed room on the thirty-seventh floor of the Hotel Splendide to a sparkling and ever since the party, on his part—silence!

To him, then, she was only one of many girls who had "fallen" for his charm and his good looks!

"Only I'd never met him if only I'd kept him at a distance—hadn't let him kiss me!" She sat up in bed, with an impatient gesture, brushing the tousled curls back from her forehead.

"Awful, Maggie!" Her mother, plump and merry in an orchid lingerie trimmed with swansdown, thread-lace head dress, looked in. "My! but you slept like the dead. I was all in myself—but that wonderful Prince Caroline's to-night! By the way you pronounce it?—certainly showed us a swell time last night!"

But Vernon didn't feel particularly happy at awaking. She had dreamed of Terry Stanton. Had lived again through his glowing kisses. More, in her dreams, Terry had told her the last straw. She had been transported to a wonderful country shot through and through with rosy light. Now—back to reality—everything had changed. Despite the sunshine that flooded her wide room, everything figuratively was drab.

"To love him or am I just a crazy fool?" she asked herself.

She had dressed for handsome Terry almost every night since their meeting on the train—dined the wonderful penthouse party. She had but to close her eyes to feel again his warm kisses on her lips.

"Am I in love with him? Or is it just that he's the first man who ever kissed me?" she asked herself.

MAGEDOMAS GAIN ONE GAME LEAD OVER SUDBURY

Disputed Goal Allowed Which Defeats Falcons 5-4

GRABOSKI STARS

Second Game of Series Played in Toronto on Wednesday

Ottawa, March 31. (CP)—Brockville Maguiremen had a one-game lead on Sudbury Falcons today as both teams prepared for their second and concluding Eastern group intermediate O.H.A. series next Thursday night in Toronto in Ivy Graboski. Brockville won the first game, 5-4, and Sudbury the second, 6-5, in overtime.

The Ottawa and district title-holders splintered the Northern Ontario team 5-4 here last night in the first of a two game total-goals series which will represent the group in the O.H.A. finals. The second game, if necessary to decide the series which the Brockville squad in the lead with the win.

Away back in 1924, Joe Ironstone was the last of the north to sign a professional contract with Ottawa Senators. For two years he drew a weekly pay cheque from the National Hockey League squad without getting a game. Finally a coaching method to New York Americans wanted a goalie in the International League.

Last night the same Ironstone, a veteran backstop but displaying a great cap, demonstrated to 6,000 fans he is still a great goalie. If he was the goalie of his the Falcons lost the first game in the series. Ironstone was the star of the game, in the opinion of many fans, making back 30 shots and keeping several of them safely behind the goal.

Thrilling Game

It was a great game of hockey from start to finish. Both teams attacked in turn and the lead changed had the lead, then Brockville, with Graboski and Cowley away with a disputed score late in the final period.

With the score 5-4 and less than five minutes to go, the fast-stepping Falcons were slow in covering up in the mid-ice area. Mike McMahon, Sudbury centre, scooped up the puck and shot blindly toward the Sudbury goal after Ironstone had been drawn out of the nets.

The puck went over Ironstone's head and Jack Collins, centre behind the nets, Ronald Ryan dashed after it and flipped a pass out to Tip Trudeau on the wing. Coleman cited a shot that hit a post on one of the nets and appeared to be in the net the other side. The red light flashed.

Disputed Goal

Led by Ironstone, the Falcons claimed it was no goal. The goal judge claimed it was and the referee upheld him. The same referee upheld him. The goal made it 5-4 and there the score stood for the rest of the game with Falcons hemming Magedomas in their own end of the rink, raining rubber at Lee Tice but unable to find the mesh. It was an open ice, fast game with the crowd standing cheering every chance of the game.

Ryan, Graboski, Cowley, Collins, Gene Bowler; Collins Hill, Gerald Hall.

DYNAMITERS WIN PLACE IN FINALS

Defeat Fort William And Meet Winners of Eastern Series

Ottawa, March 31.—(CP)—Belleville Dynamiters, group winners of the first Dominion Senior Hockey League series, today:

A four-game, hard-fighting squad of Dynamiters defeated Fort William Canadians, Ontario Championship and Thunder Bay titlists in the Red-West Allan Cup finals by defeating Fort William Westerns 7-3 in the second game here last night to win the series, 4-3.

It was the first time a Belleville hockey team had successfully carried their way into the Dominion finals. The Dynamiters, who have developed themselves for the Allan Cup competition by a hard season's play in the Ontario Hockey League, will meet the winners of the Eastern Canada group, which will be decided in the Allan Cup finals.

Oh look! like the rest for Falcons but they rose to the occasion, Marshall getting his second goal of the evening on a pass play from the Brockville defence who came in to cover up. That up the score 4-4. Then came the disputed goal, which put Brockville in the lead.

Red Sox Good Enough to Win

FRED OSTERMUELLER
Southpaw Hope

Says Joe Cronin

Sarasota, Fla., March 31.—"I am not in the habit of predicting pennant winners, preferring to be out in front at the end of September when the championship is decided," declared Joe Cronin, pilot of the Boston Red Sox, "but I will say this much: I believe my boys will be good enough to win. I am sure that feeling prevails among the entire roster of the Boston club. That augurs well, for there is no better asset than confidence.

As I see the Boston picture, Johnny Marcum is only one problem in pitching, and it is just possible that the pitching will be good enough. I do know that if the Red Sox had one more starting pitcher the team would be a solid one for first win.

To my way of thinking, Boston's pennant chances are entirely up to Johnny Marcum and Fritz Ostermueller. Ost does not need to worry about Lefty Grove and Wes Ferrell, Boston then they should win 46-to 50 ball games. They did last year and will be pitching for a much improved Boston club this season. There is no smarter pitcher in baseball than Ferrell. Ost for a year with a bad arm caused Lefty Grove to think about outsmarting the opposition instead of simply trying to throw his fast ball by them. He did a great comeback last year and should be even better this season.

With a tall ender, Johnny Marcum won 17 games last season. There is no comparison between the Athletics of 1935 and the Red Sox of 1936. Along that line of reasoning, Marcum should be the 20-game column this year and has a chance to go beyond it. Marcum has a great fast ball and like Wes Ferrell, is a stimat at the bat, winning many of his games with a timely base hit.

Comes Cheap

Southpaw Ostermueller has the stuff to be a consistent winner. He has been on the verge of breaking into the first class, but has been somewhat unlucky of late. Twice in the season he suffered minor injuries that made him showing a disappointment. If Ostermueller can win from 15 to 20 games, the Red Sox will not need another starting pitcher as I have inferred. But, if either Marcum or Ostermueller should fall, then the need of another experienced pitcher would be apparent.

Rookies are not going to get much of a play in the Boston plans for 1936, for the Red Sox are going to be a veteran ball club shooting at a pennant. Rookies who might have the ability to merit serious consideration for this year will be temporarily sidetracked.

The Boston infield will be made up of Foxx, Melillo, Cronin, Mellar and Werber, all recruited from other big league clubs. Foxx to the outfield will be Cramer and Watson with the other position wide open. Of the real rookies, one to watch is Arthur Grandau. He is going to give Dusty Cooke and Mel Almada a battle for the open job. Grandau, who came to the Red Sox from St. Louis, a really good catcher, will do some of the receiving. Incidentally the 21-year-old Bigs Miller may force in the outfield plans, in spots at least.

On form Boston looks good enough to win. If it does, Eddie Collins will have made good the baseball's toughest task by predicting a pennant winner in three years.

Recreation Alleys

The Christie Cakes broke alley record for league bowling when they rolled 3754. The old record was held by the Moose Bowling Team from Nov. 5, 1931 till March 18, 1936. King's Plate Draws Fifty-Two Entries With Glanford High Among Favorites

By CHARLES "HORSES" AYERS
Central Press Canadian Writer

Toronto, March 31.— Palmer Wright, secretary of the Canadian Jockey Club, in releasing the entries for the King's Plate, Queen's Plate, and that 53 Canadian-bred Chesapeake stakes for the turf classic have been nominated. This year's total nominations are greater by more than were nominated in 1935 or 1934 when forty-one were named.

Heading the list in the Parkwood Stable of E. L. McLaughlin, leading all guns at the $6,000 pot of gold. The Oshawa motor magnate has nominated Epicurus, Blighty, Spearman, Adrian, Boniface and Glanford. Only three of these horsemen the best of the five is Spearman. This three-year-old son of Gallisman-The Whisking Wall faced the barrier twenty times, finishing first in two occasions, finishing second three times and three times out of the money.

Seagram Has Five

Five that will carry the black and yellow sash of E. F. Seagram, Waterloo sportsman, are Sir Cosmo, John Parker, Judge Pool, Shadow Walls and Thornhill. Samson will likely be rated top on his performances. This three-year-old bay colt son of Bpy Pearl Samson was seen in action during 1935 six times. He first ran down the stretch a winner, but he then met stiffer competition and in his next four starts he was third, fifth, second and once. Khaka Fuller, who will likely be coupled with Samson, is touted by connections close to the inside as the "dark horse" of the Parkwood string.

Hatch Stable Strong

Colorbearer of the J. D. Hatch stable is Sir Lurcs, Monawcon, Pensad and Sweepouch. The wins of Sir Lurcs in the Hialeah Park win the plate." There is no doubt but this grand son of Sir Gallahad III will stand up in Sweepouch. This three-year-old chestnut son of Sweepstakes-Bouche was one of the best juveniles seen in action during the 1935 racing season. Facing the barrier on seven occasions he entered the winning circle four times, finishing second on two occasions and third on one occasion. He is a real stakes horse. During the latter part of 1935 he showed brilliant speed in the Coronation Stakes, Kenilworth Park, Windsor. Sir Lurcs is likely the best that could be mustered going great guns on the defense. Neil McKinnon and Harry Hood are included on the team as spares.

GLANFORD, owned by Ge o. Hendrie, Hamilton, Ont.

Glanford To Win?

A stable inform ut Glanford, has it The Kendale Stables of Toronto to intend to send an entry of four or five. Those mentioned are Sandeiman, River Crest, Judge White and Bowling. The long shots are all maidens.

George M. Hendrie of Hamilton, vice-president of the Ontario Jockey club, hall nominated Glanford, Stormbloom and Rose Sachem. Glanford this popular sportsman has a straight-bold on the plate this three-year-old son of Sidelard-Dalcona was considered the best Canadian-bred juvenile seen under colors during 1935 in Canada. His first victory in the Clarendon plate showed him a colt of real class. Glanford really faced the barrier three times, finishing twice, and was third on the other occasion in the Coronation Stakes, Kenilworth Park, Windsor. During the latter part of 1935 he showed brilliant speed
